autumn I

"high school was a bore. i never studied. but it's going to be different. i know it. i know there's a lot more expected. but i can meet the challenge. i disciplined myself in high school when i really had to. now, i'll just be doing the same thing—but all the time. and it's going to be interesting, i guess exciting—something really worthwhile. sure, i'm a bit scared, but for the first time i feel i'll be doing something that really counts."

winter I

"become more involved? sure—why not? as it is, i spend three hours a night on german alone—doing nothing but memorizing.
and just how is memorizing german going to make me an 'educated man?' i know damn well if i don't spend those three hours on german, i'll never get anything but a 'c.' well, that isn't good enough. what a rat race. nothing but grades—for the next four years. maybe after that i can start learning something —maybe."

spring I

"i love her completely. seeing her makes an intense, dizzying feeling travel right up through me till it reaches my mind and seems to convert the whole of me into a living spirit, capable of total awareness and understanding. when i'm with her, i am complete. there is nothing more. we are a world in ourselves. and i feel this overwhelming desire to protect her—this precious being who is mine."

autumn II

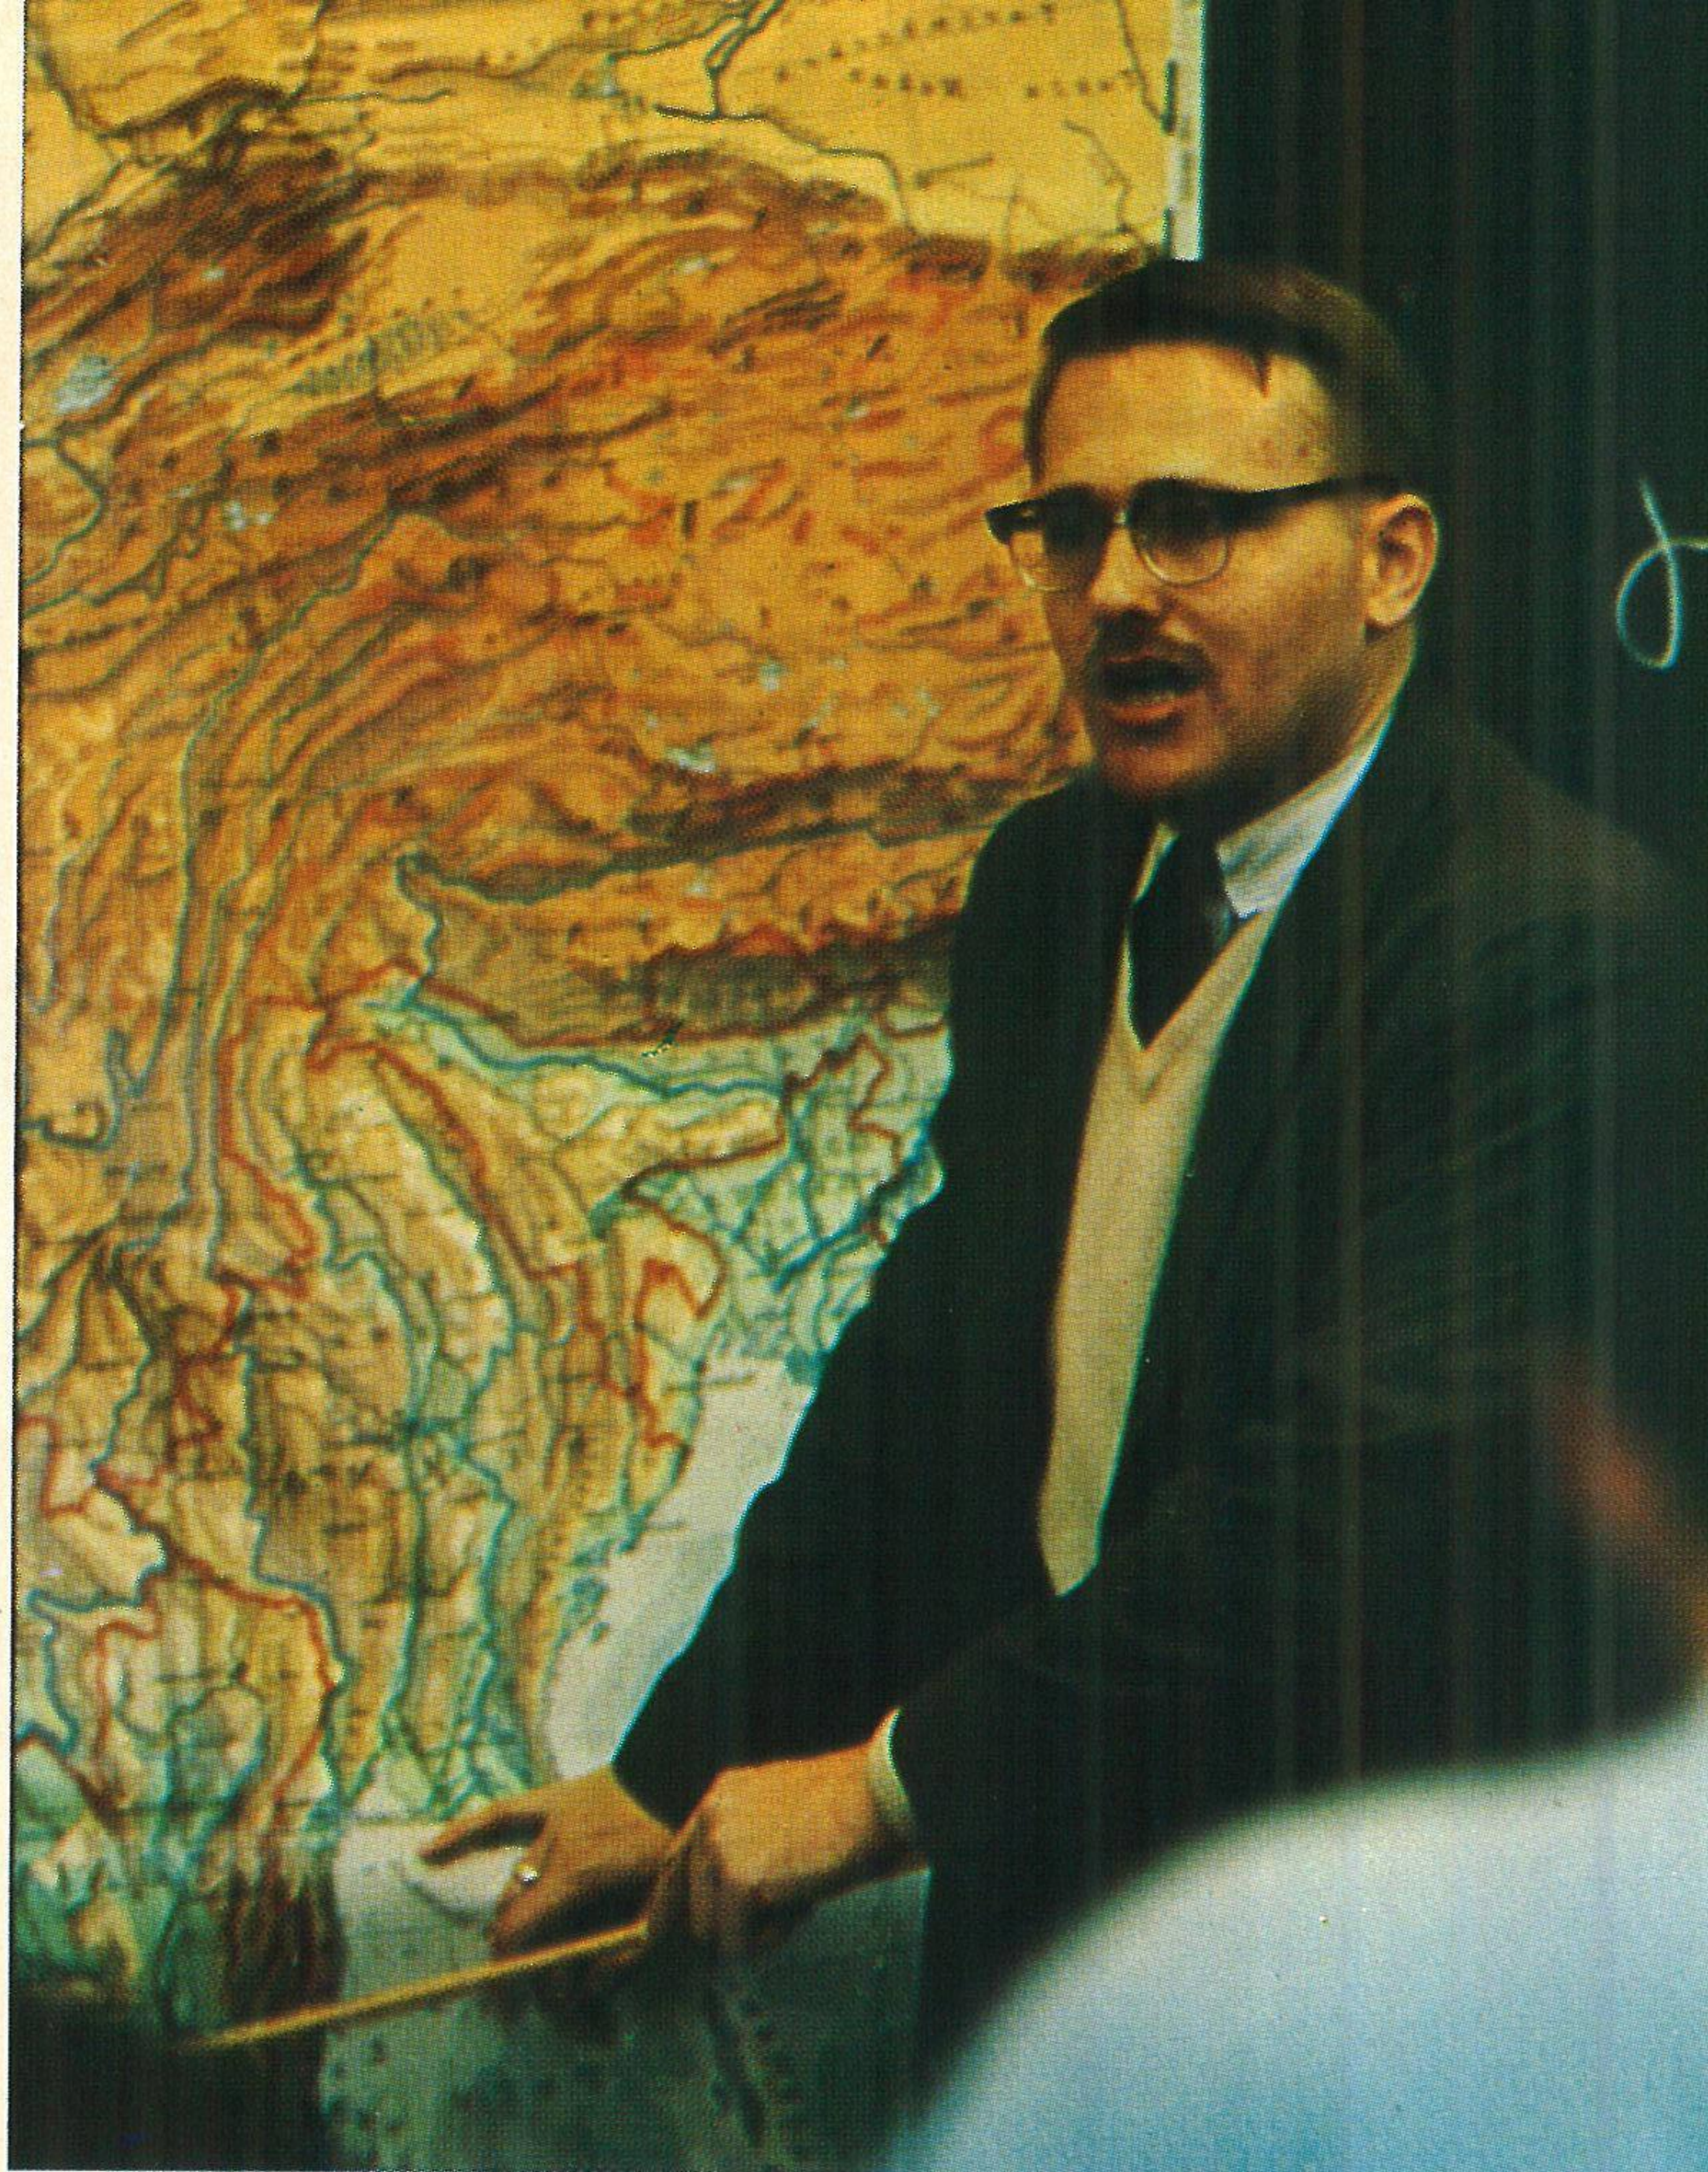

"i do respect them. i love them. i want them to understand why i feel this way. just because i disagree with them doesn't mean i'm showing disrespect or don't want their opinions. i want to tell them how i am reacting and feeling—things that i am enjoying and experiences that i have had.

but it's so baffling. i start out and they try so hard to be understanding. but then i sense that there is a confusion or a void behind this show of interest. and they seem sad, maybe even frightened, that they don't sense what i'm trying to say."

"his lectures aren't that good. in fact, the whole course is really a bore. but when he starts talking, it's as though no one else is in the room. he seems to be thinking outloud. and then he gets excited and you can tell he has a new idea. yesterday i realized i wasn't taking notes. i was just watching that man. i didn't hear a word he said. it was him—completely immersed in his own knowledge, divorced from any tangible influences, trying in his own way to bring us into this private world. and i got this feeling of complete and overwhelming respect for this person."

"next year? i don't know. i should be doing something—accomplishing something. it's all just a jumble—classes, meals and homework and sleeping, so much sleeping.
how can i let them down—everyone down—this way? the more i sleep, the more tired i get—but it's the only way i can get away. i can't understand it—can't understand anything, can't understand myself."

spring II

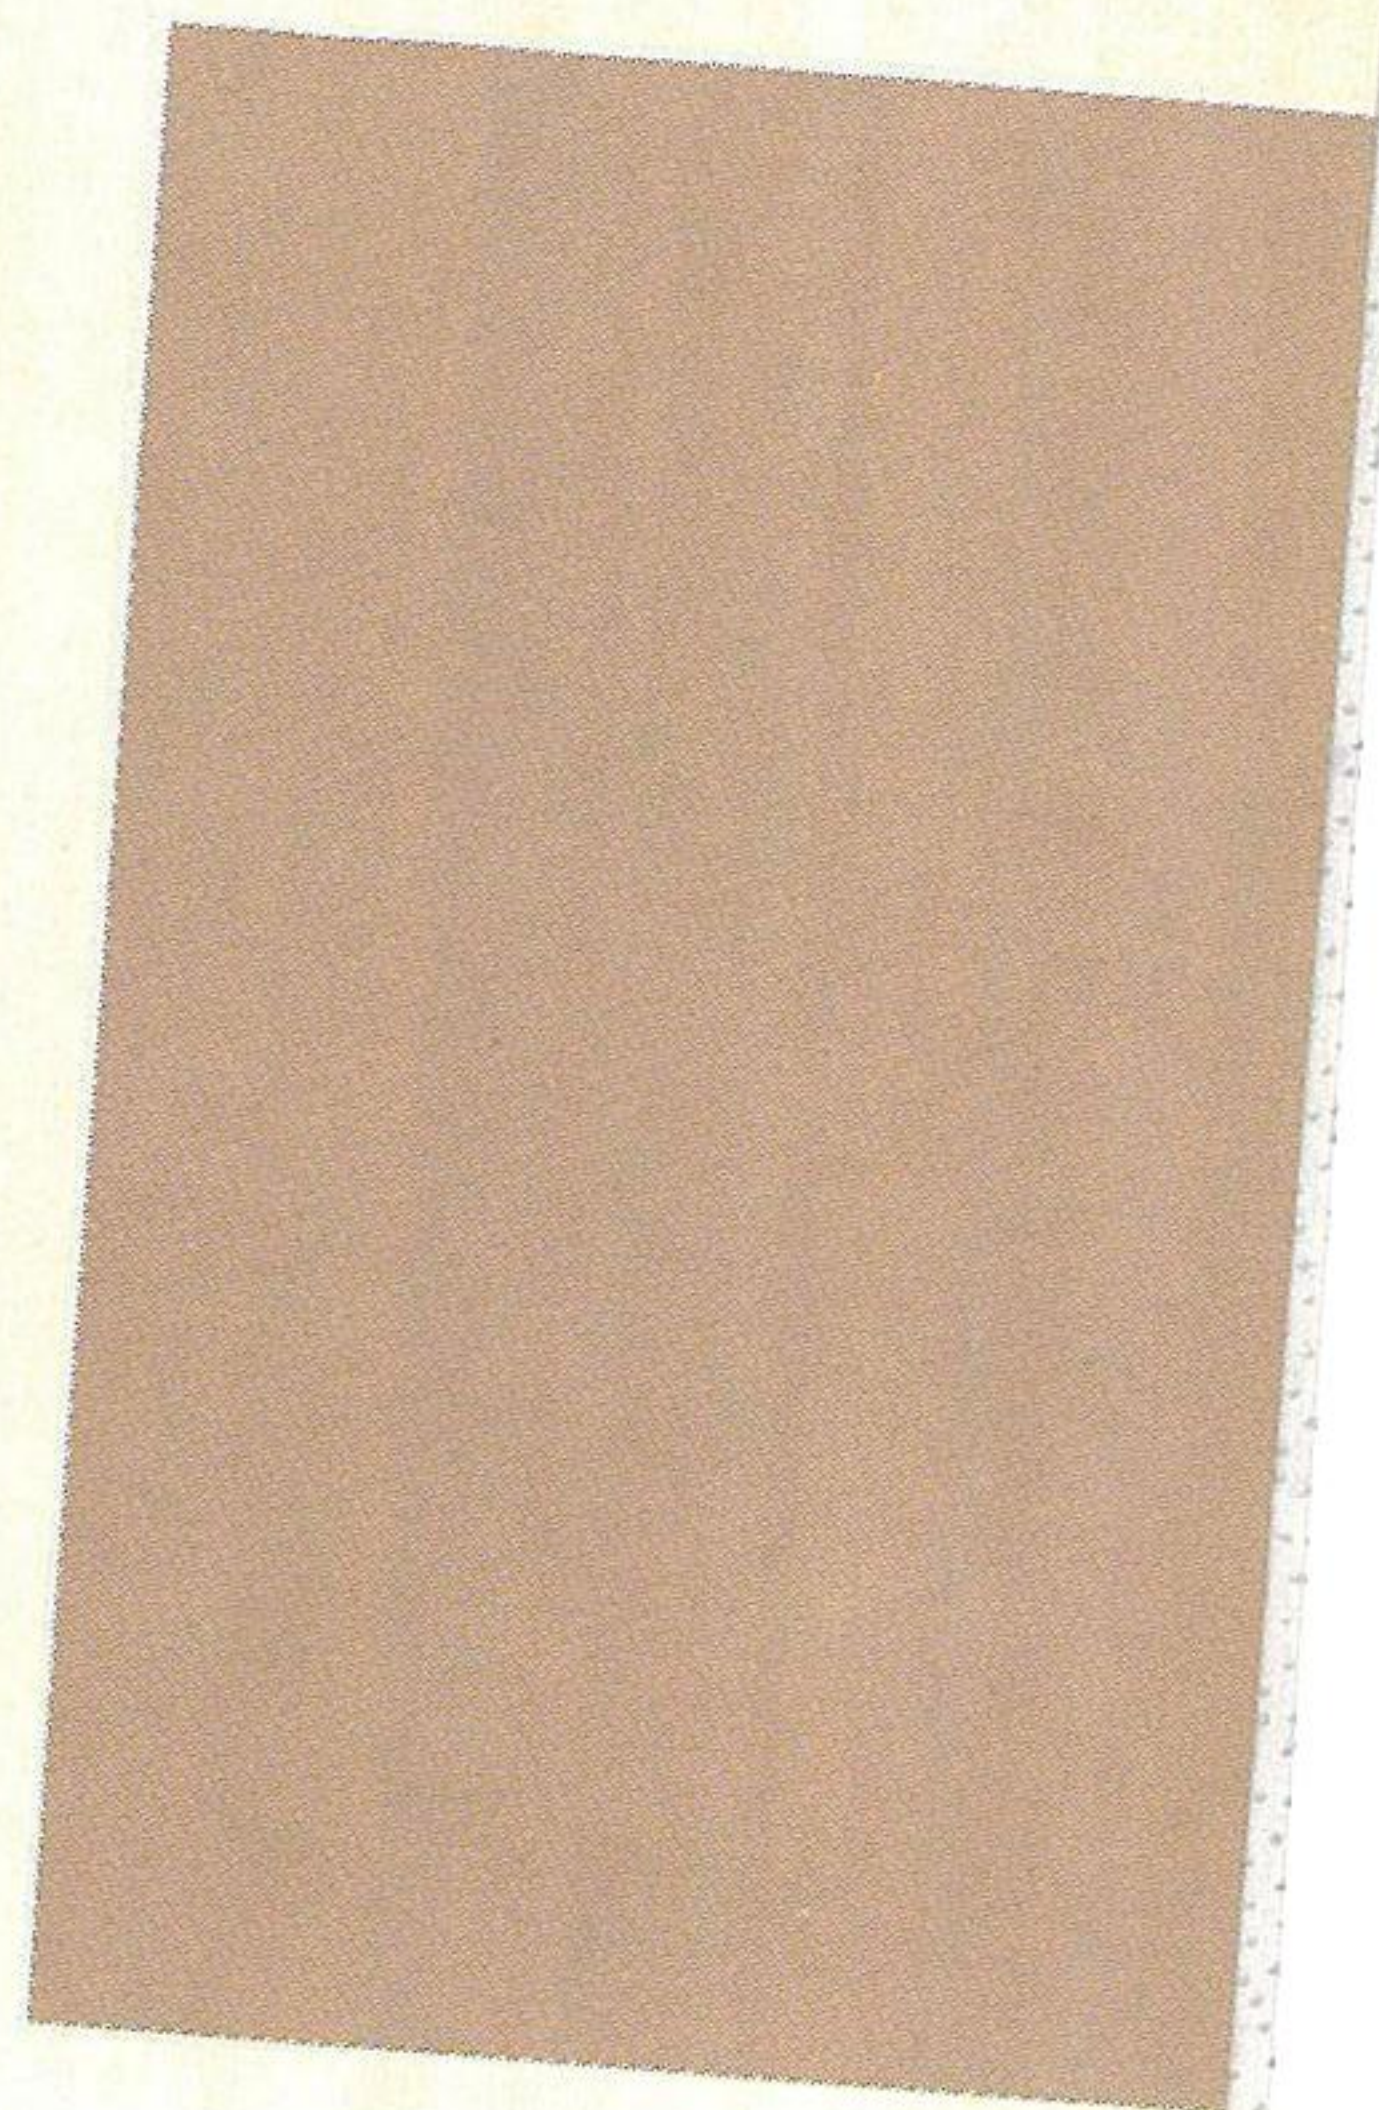

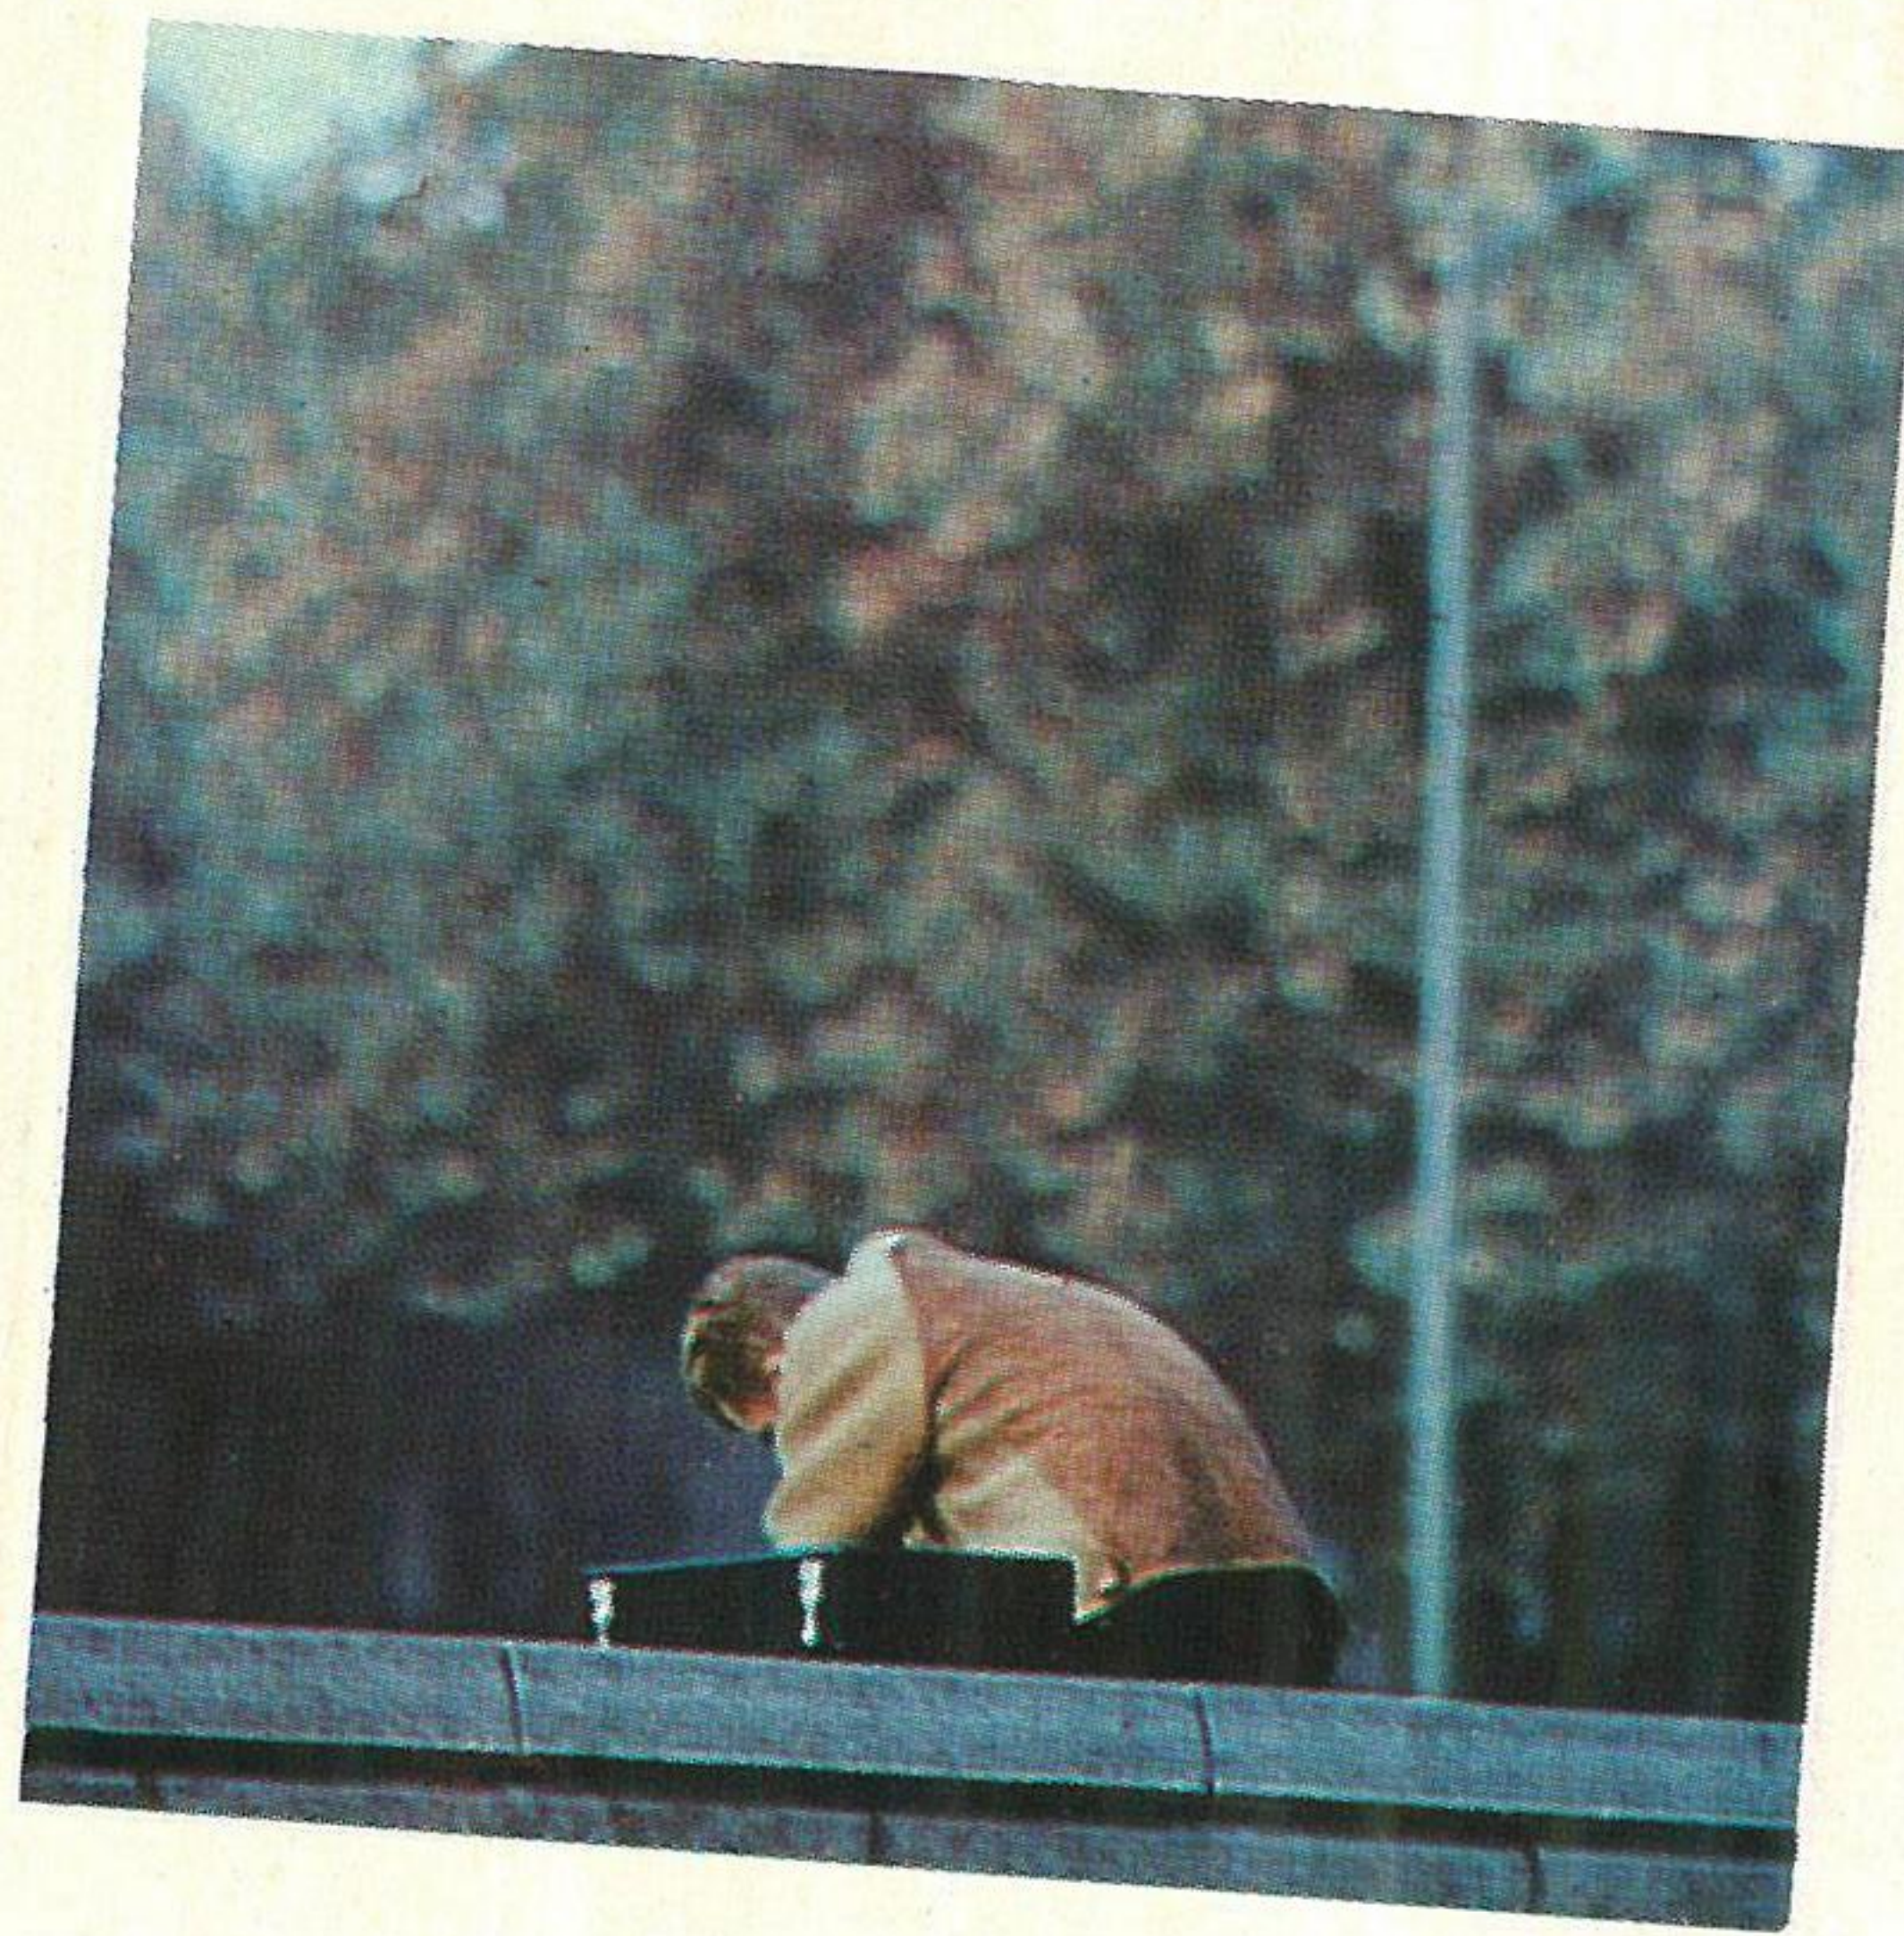

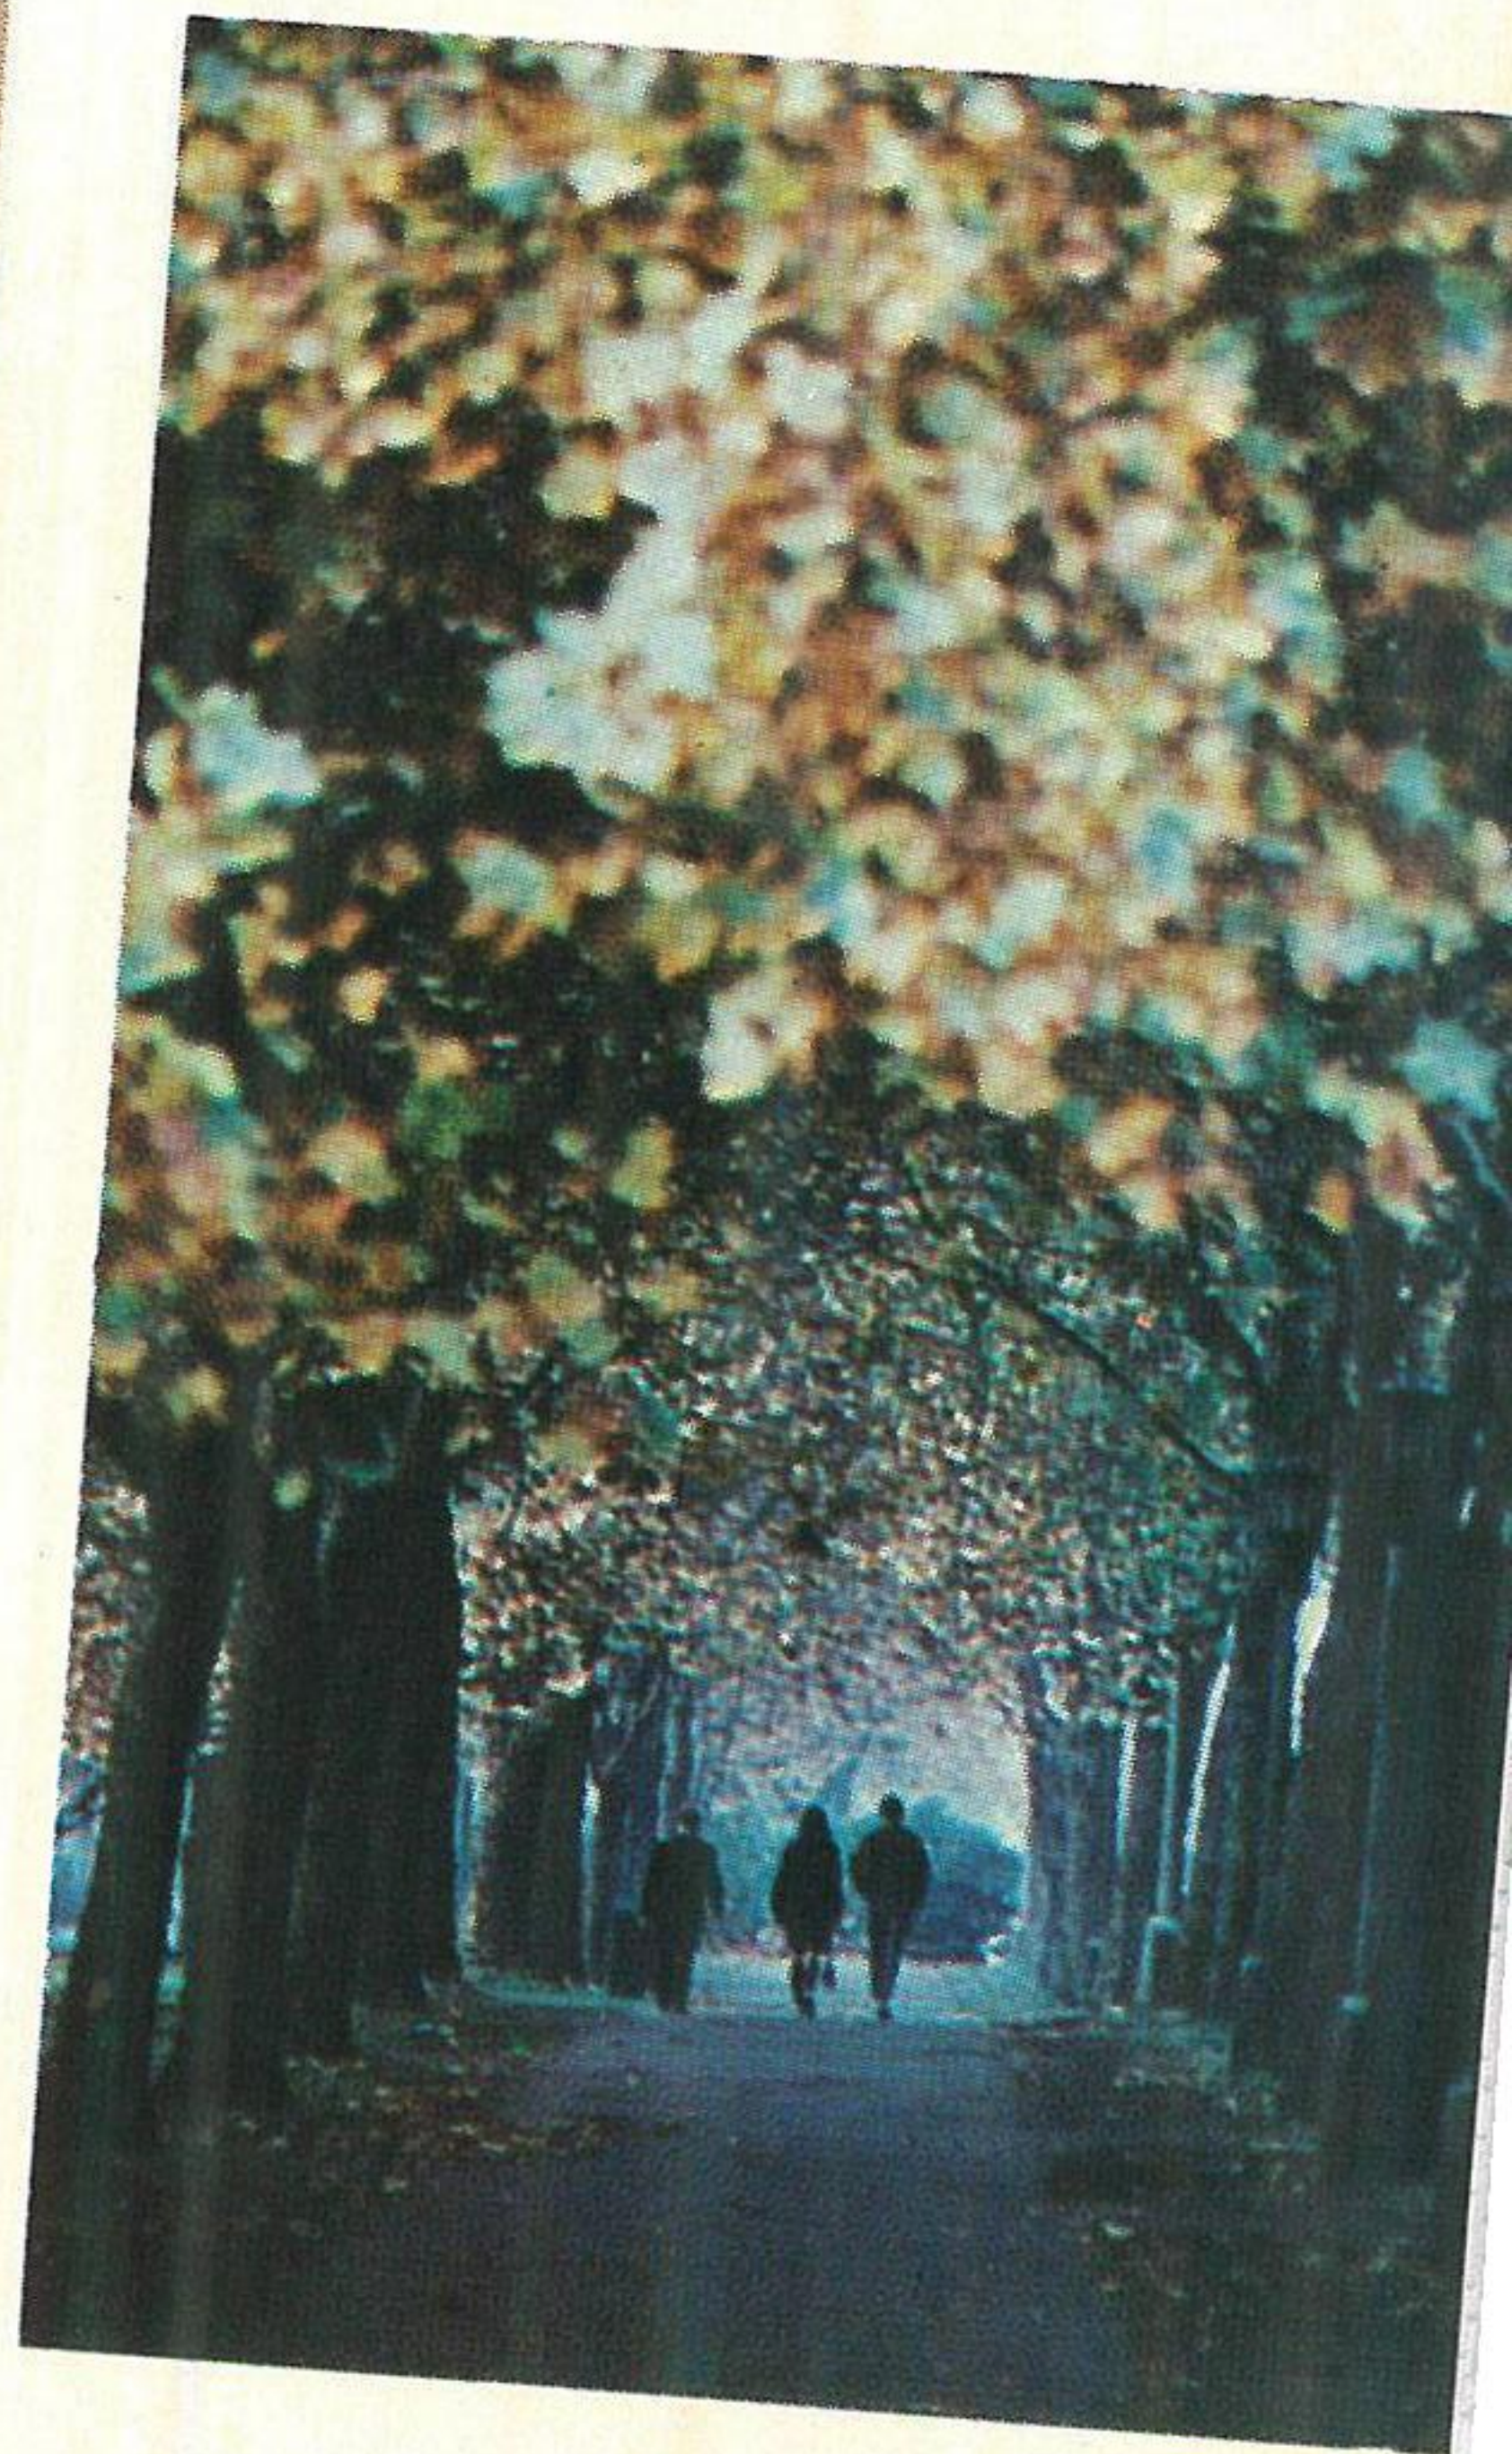

autumn III

"i can't believe it. i was so sure and had been since high school. i felt so secure—and really sorry for guys with hazy plans and ridiculous majors. now, here i am a junior. i'm just beginning to realize that i have no feeling whatsoever for my 'chosen field.' but it makes me so damn happy that i'm no longer committed to that so-called 'chosen field.' it's unreal. here i am looking forward to school for the first time in years—just like some green, wide-eyed frosh."

winter III

"i'm sure i've been exposed to the same thought a hundred times before. but it's never sunk in. then, there it is—right on the page and inescapable. it's not that my way of looking at it was necessarily wrong—more like incomplete. but i wonder how many of my other ideas are incomplete.

everything seems so indefinite."

"i'm happy with myself. i don't mean self-satisfied or resigned to the inevitable. but i guess i mean willing to accept 'me.' i never thought i'd feel that. i can't stand people who are egotistical. maybe it seems i'm being that way, but i'm not. for years i wanted to remake myself—become better, stamp out the undesirable, impress everyone, including myself. now i guess i'm more willing to go along with myself and work from there."

spring III

autumn IV

"a person unique in the entire history of the world—never again to be duplicated? i wonder. look around campus. what makes me unique—grades, sox, a woman, major, personality, car? why should i be unique? what difference does it make? sure i want to make a contribution—but why? to boost my ego? or to put down a mark somewhere that at least someone will remember. i don't know. does anyone care?"

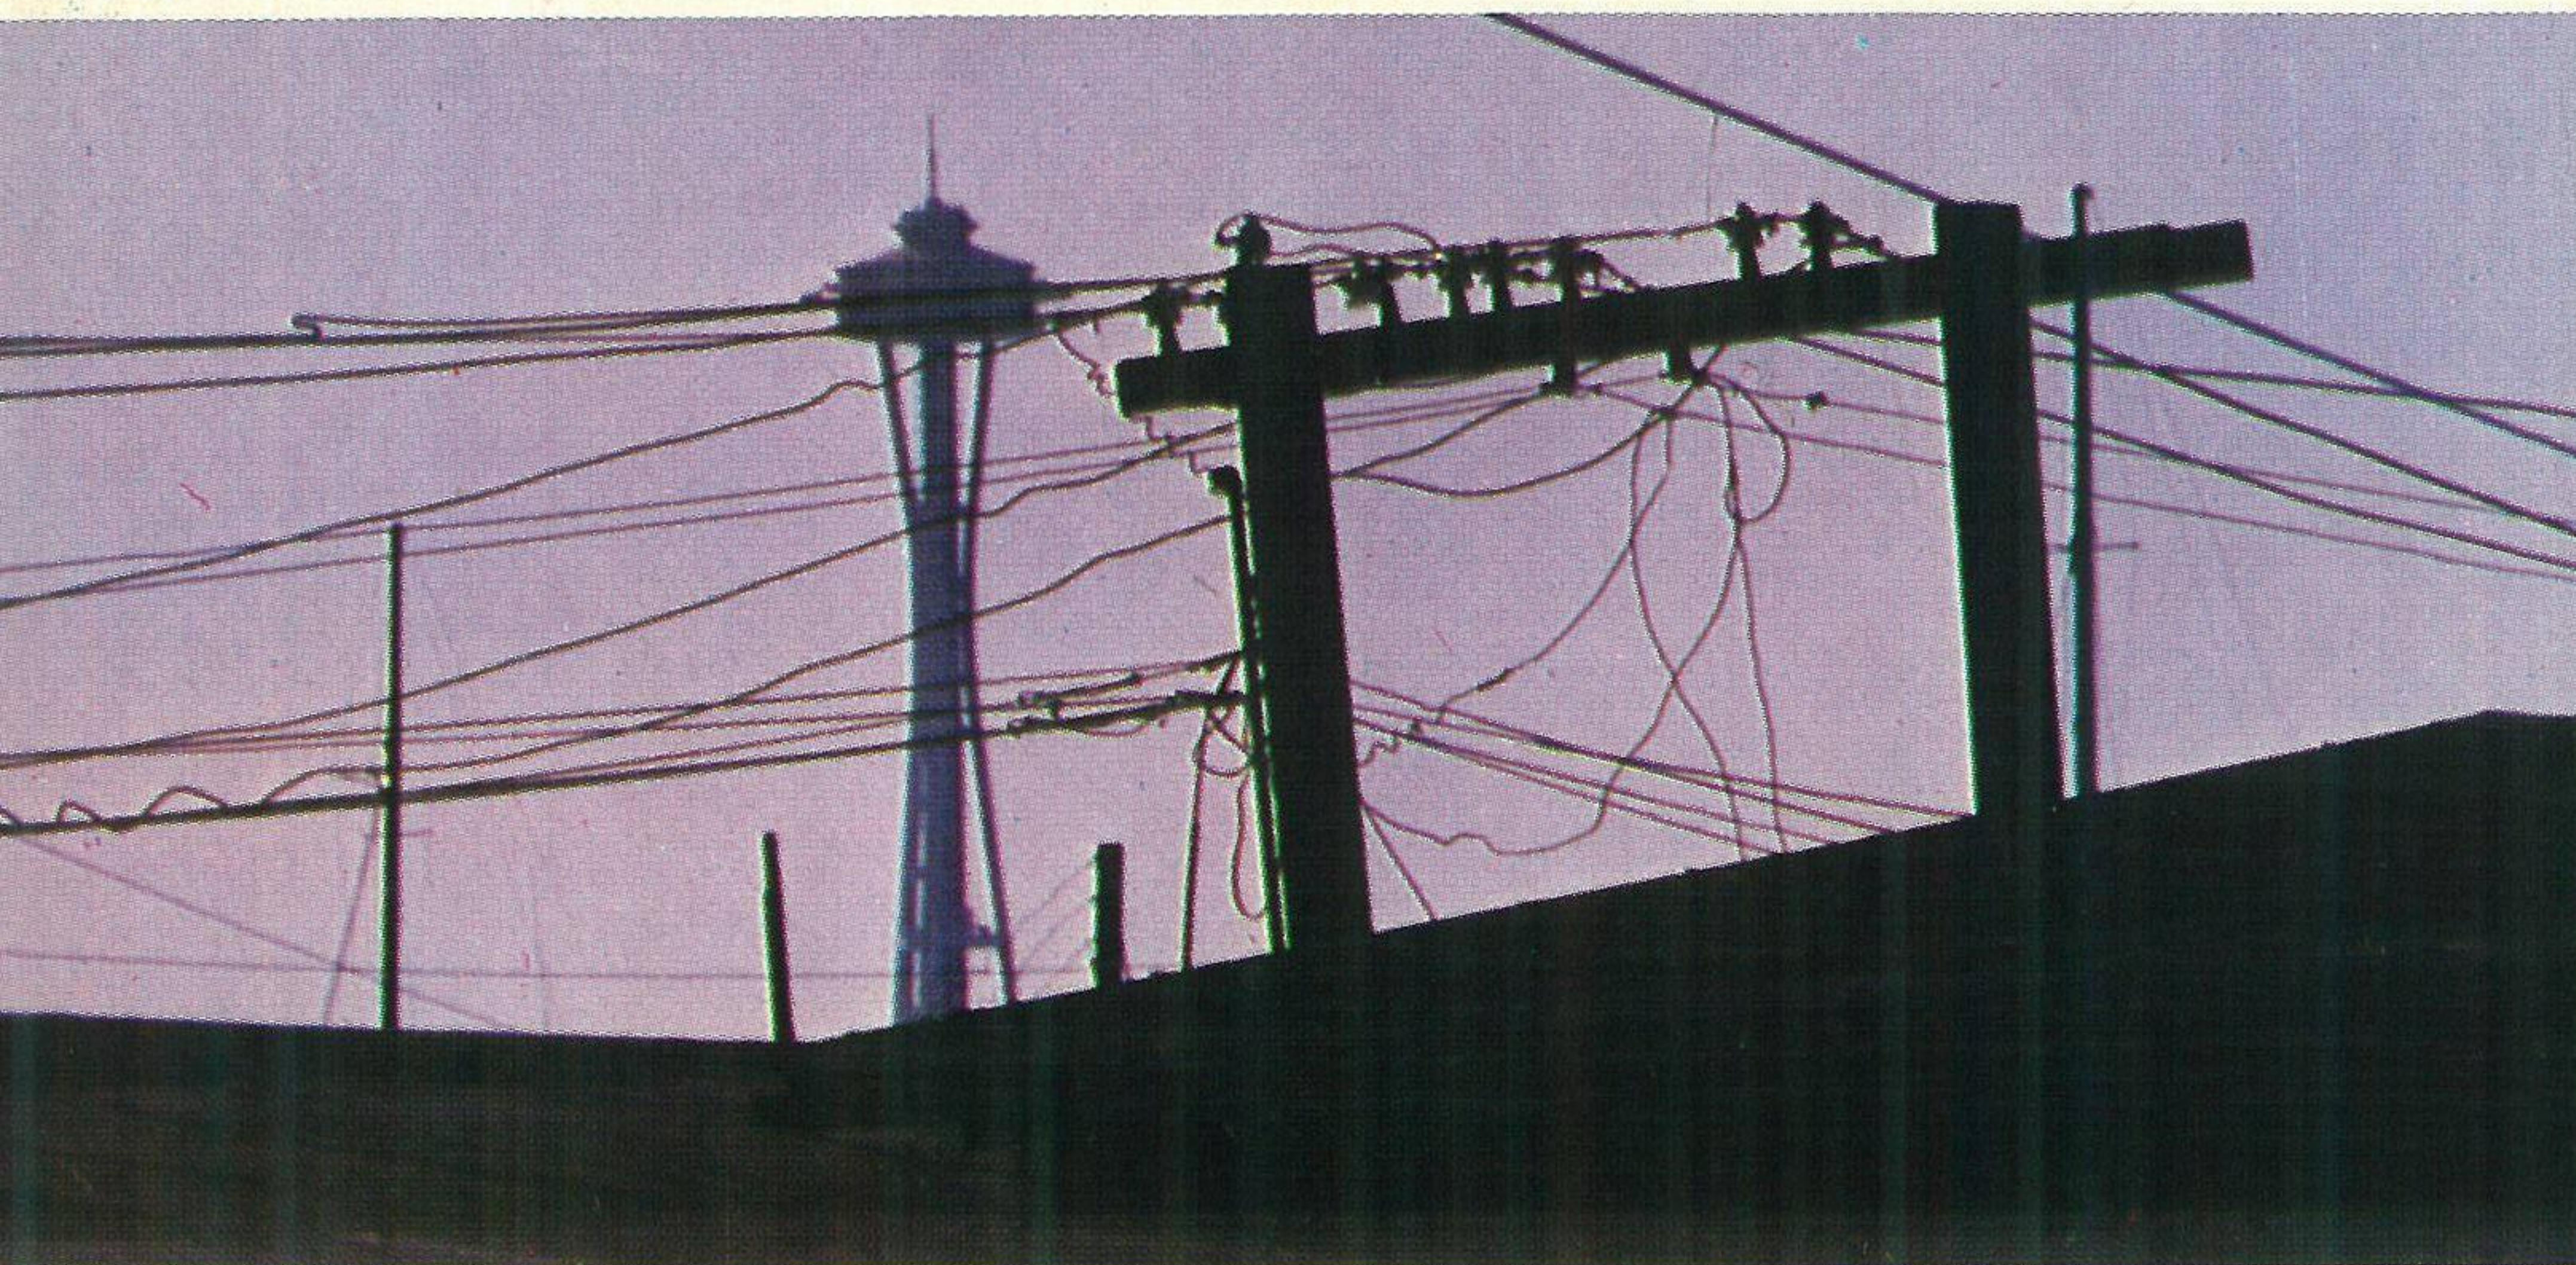

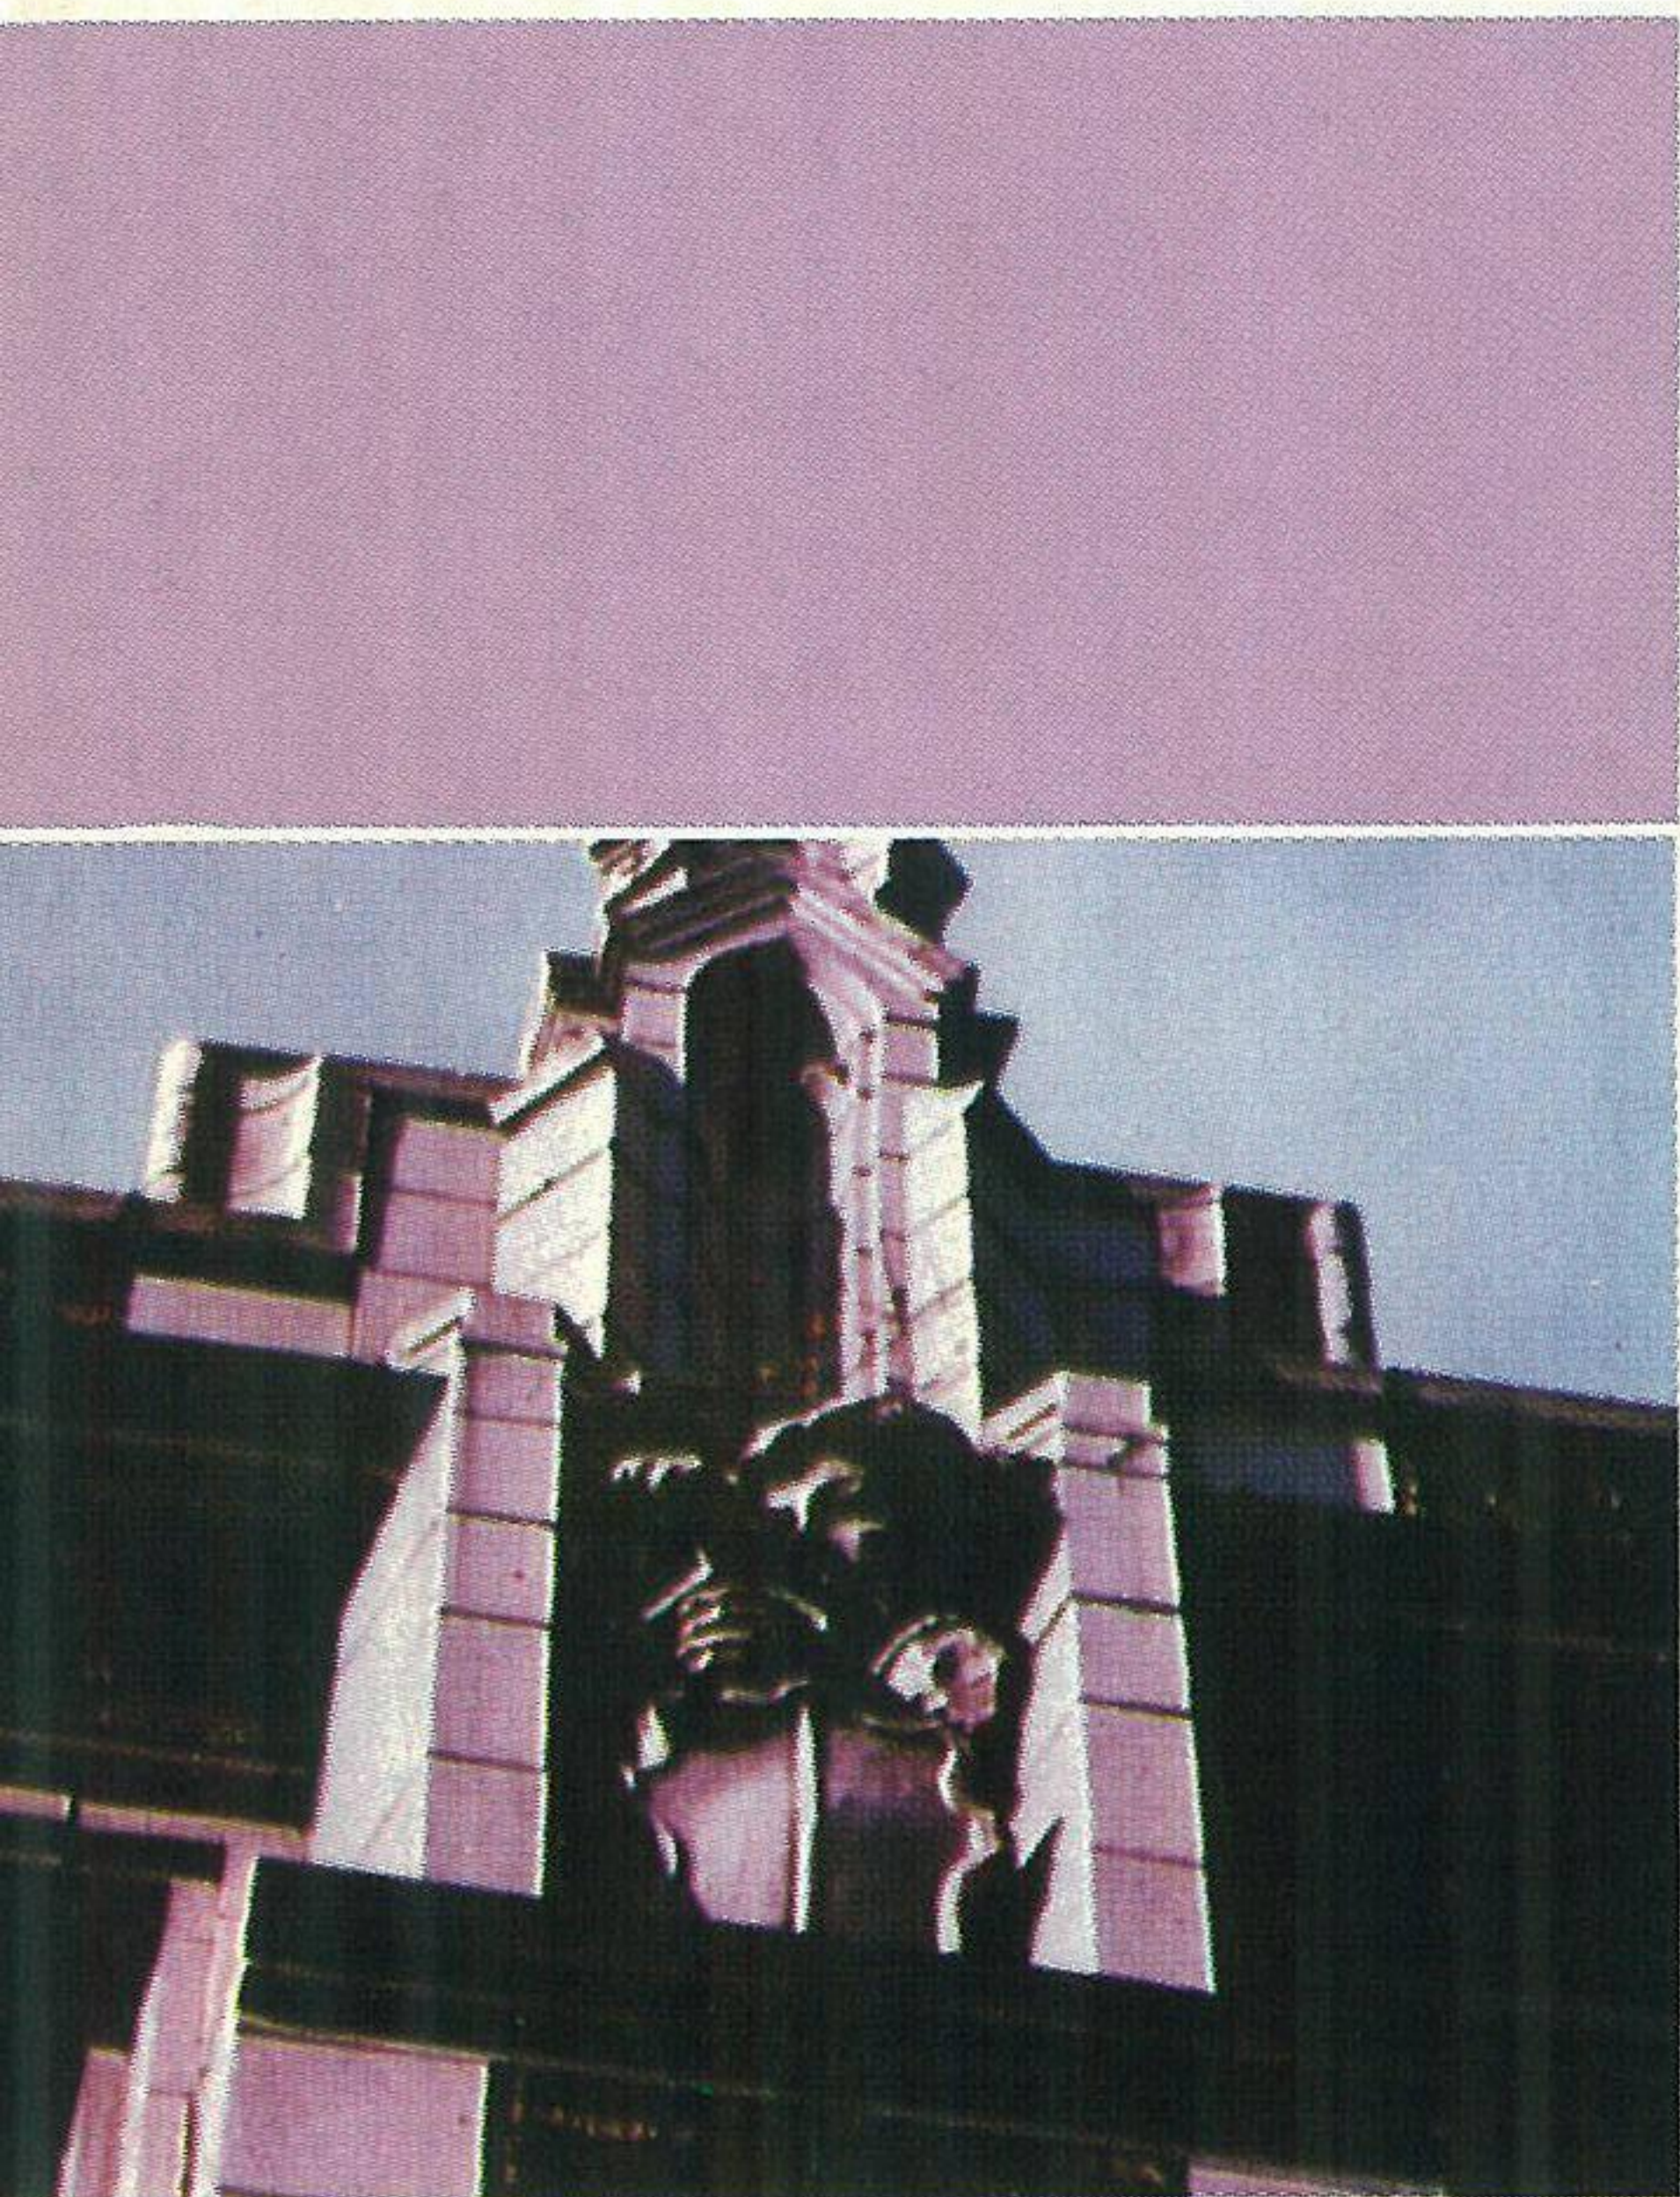

winter IV

"i love her. she makes me complete, alive—and sensitive to what's outside myself. it's an unbelievable paradox. when we're talking—or even just sitting together—i seem to appreciate and understand myself. yet i feel less focused on myself than ever before. she seems to sense so fully what i am feeling—and makes me want to discover. i feel as though we are exploring the universe together—and everything is so vivid, so real. and i want to go on searching forever."

spring IV

"i think i want to grab onto something, but i'm not sure. should there be something tangible to show for it? how tangible? maturity, exams, knowledge, books, grades, understanding? sure, i'm more mature. but that's all relative. and it's ridiculous to look at the bookshelf and say, 'there's my college education.' no, i guess i shouldn't try to sort it all out. i think it's better as a blur—not separate parts, but the whole thing coming together into what i am right now. and i don't really think that what i am, can be, or even should be, something tangible."

Foresters 'Log' Successful Garb

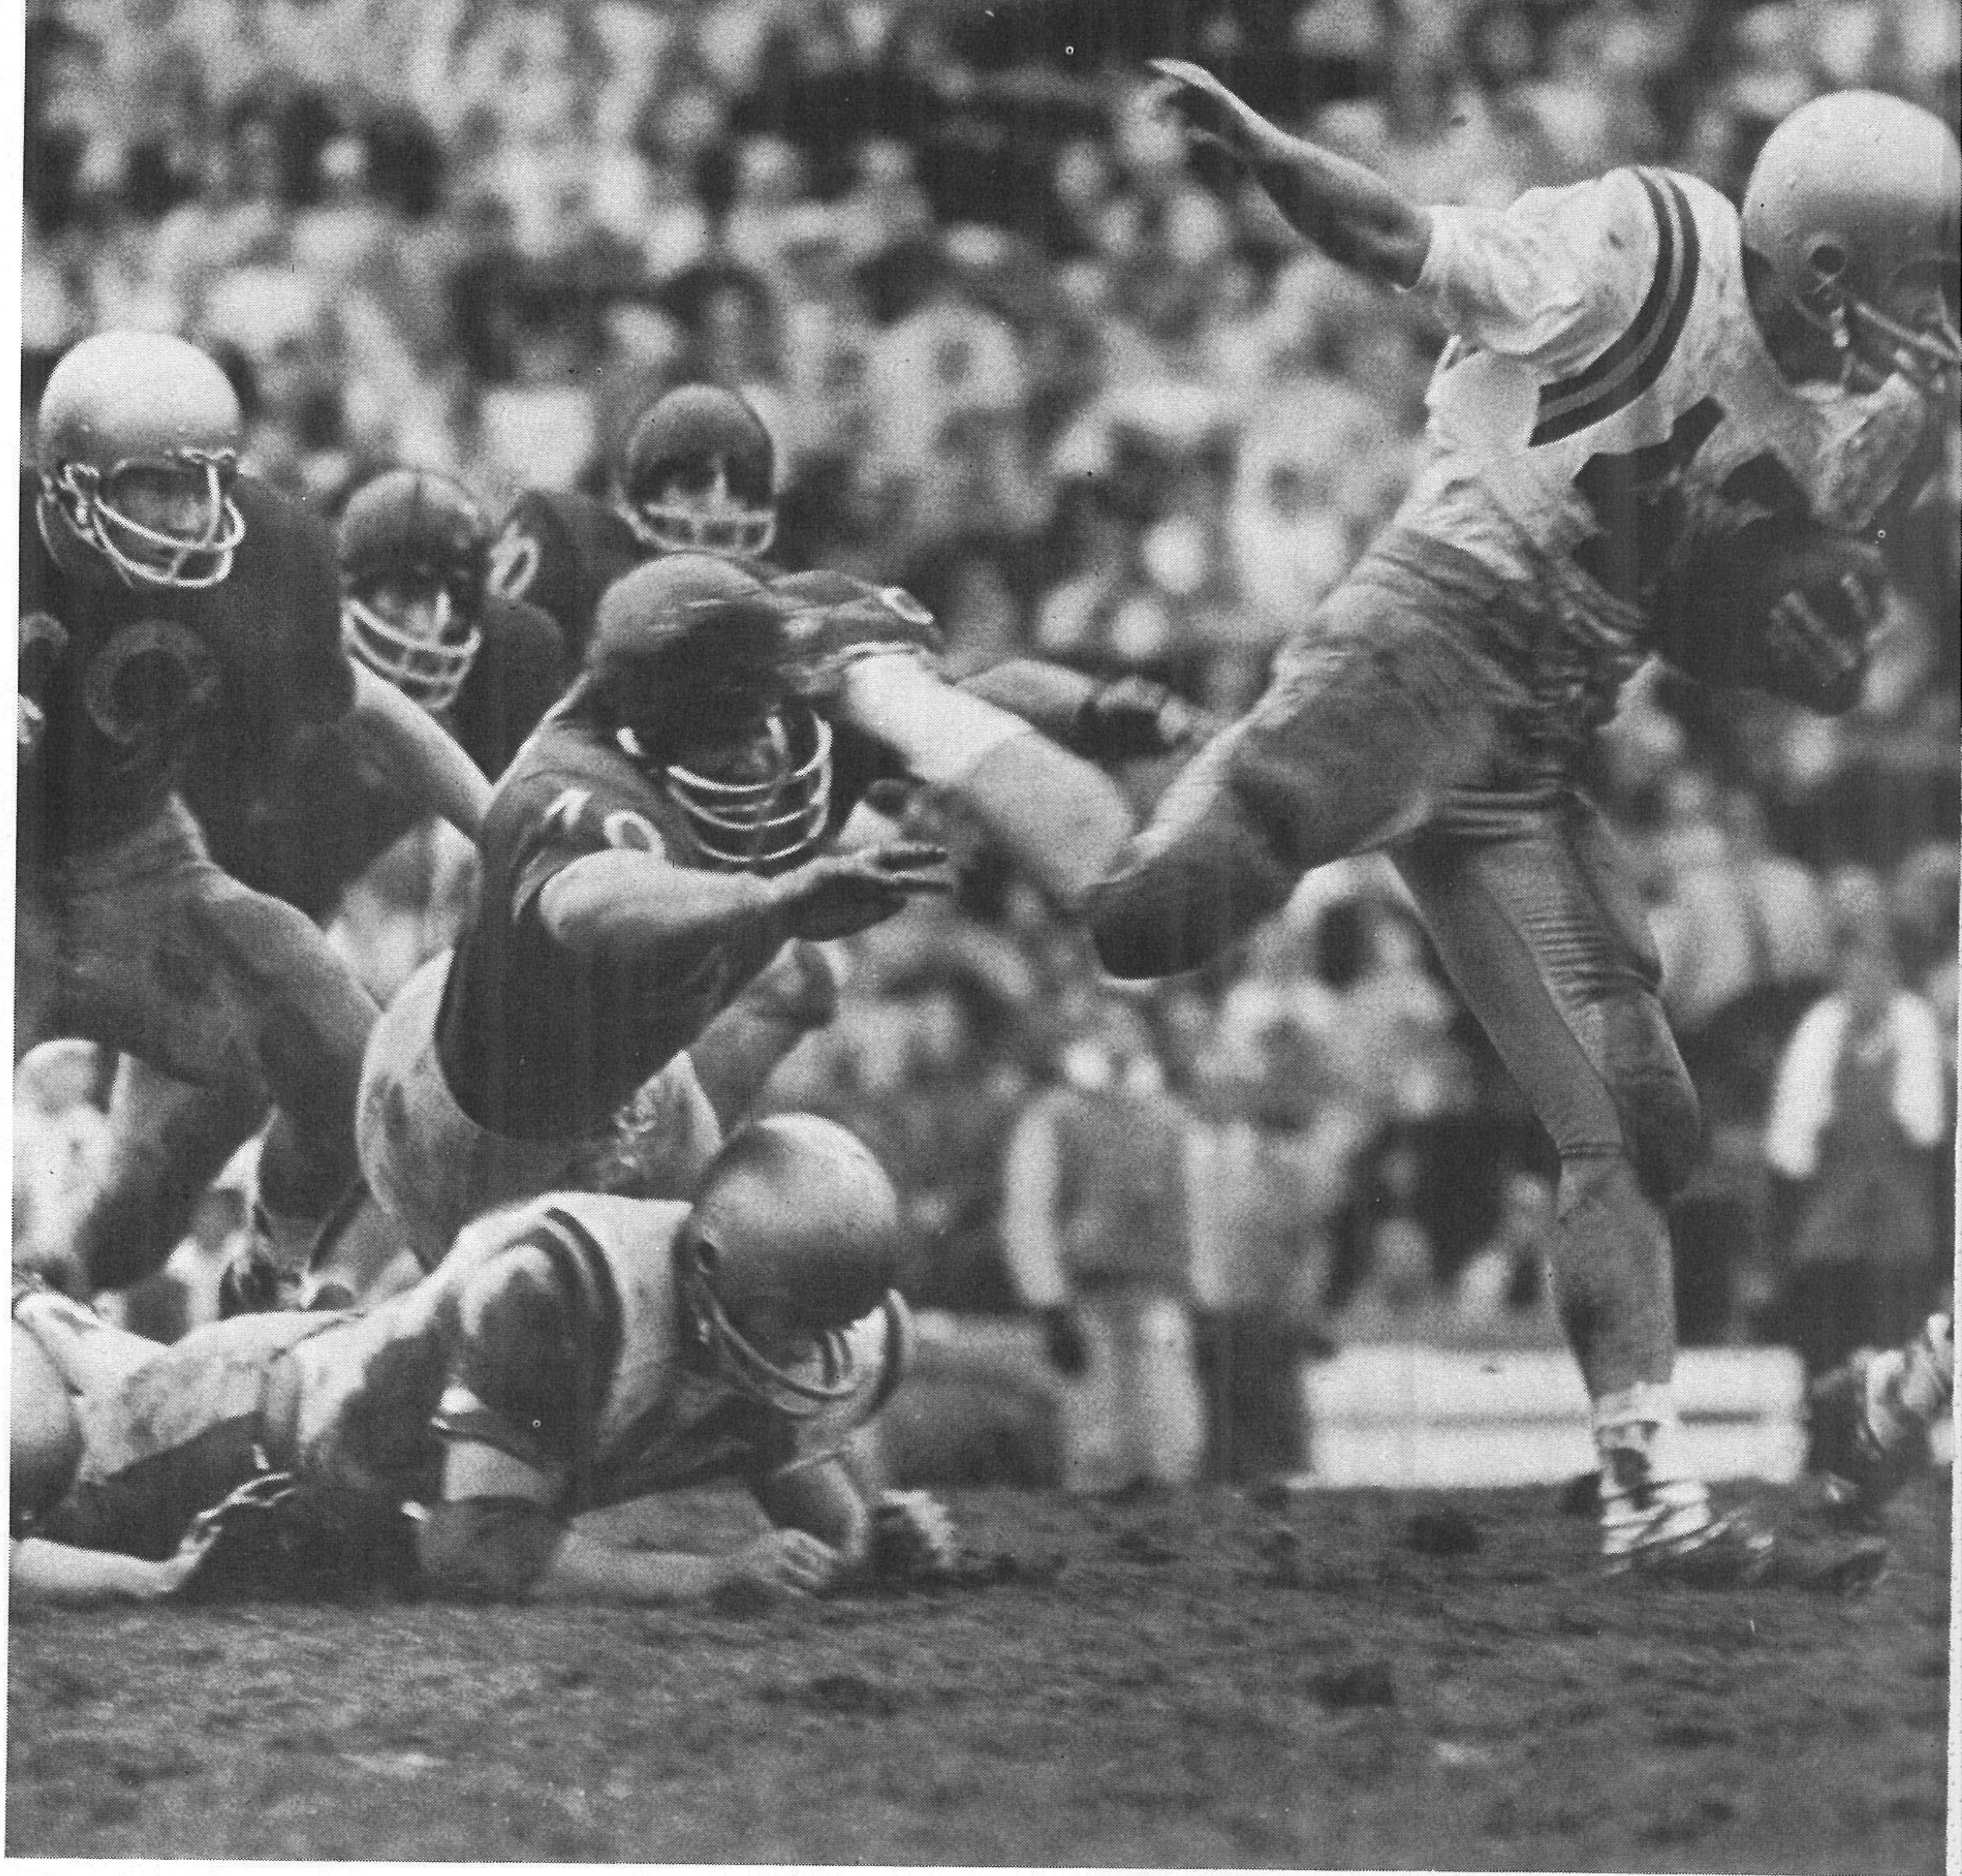

Day; Many Try Hand At Tree Climbing, Wood Chopping

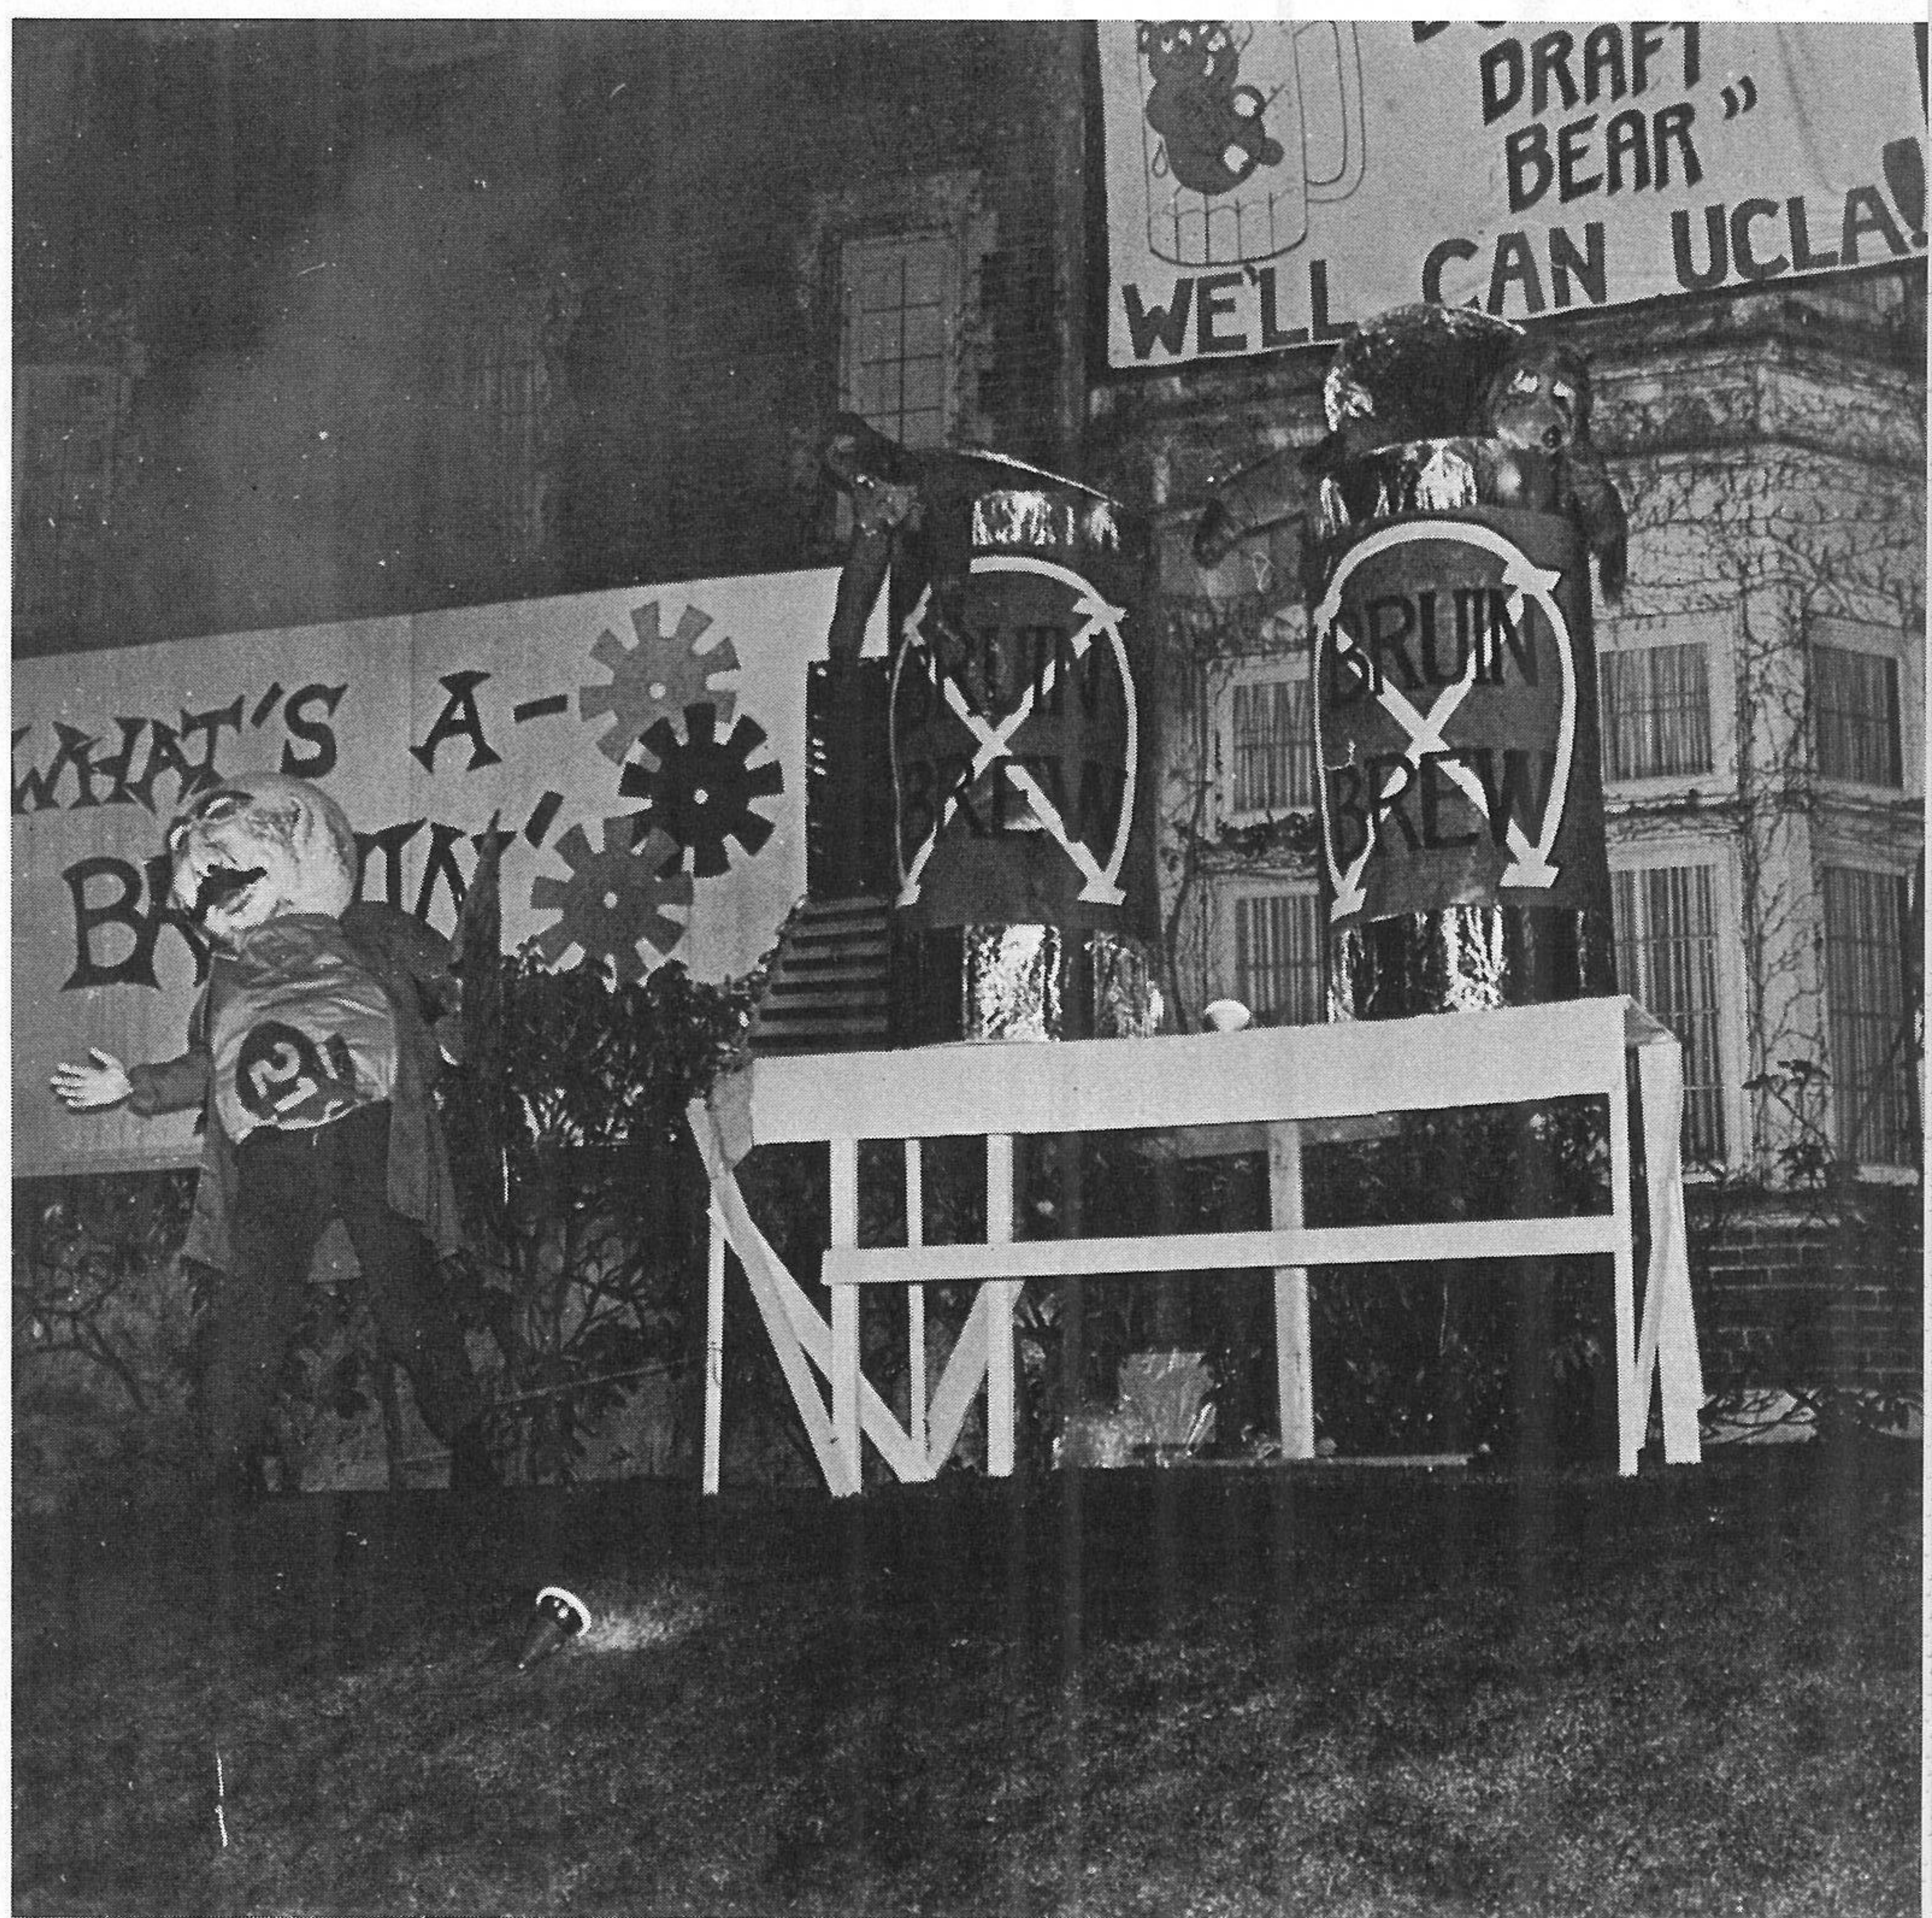

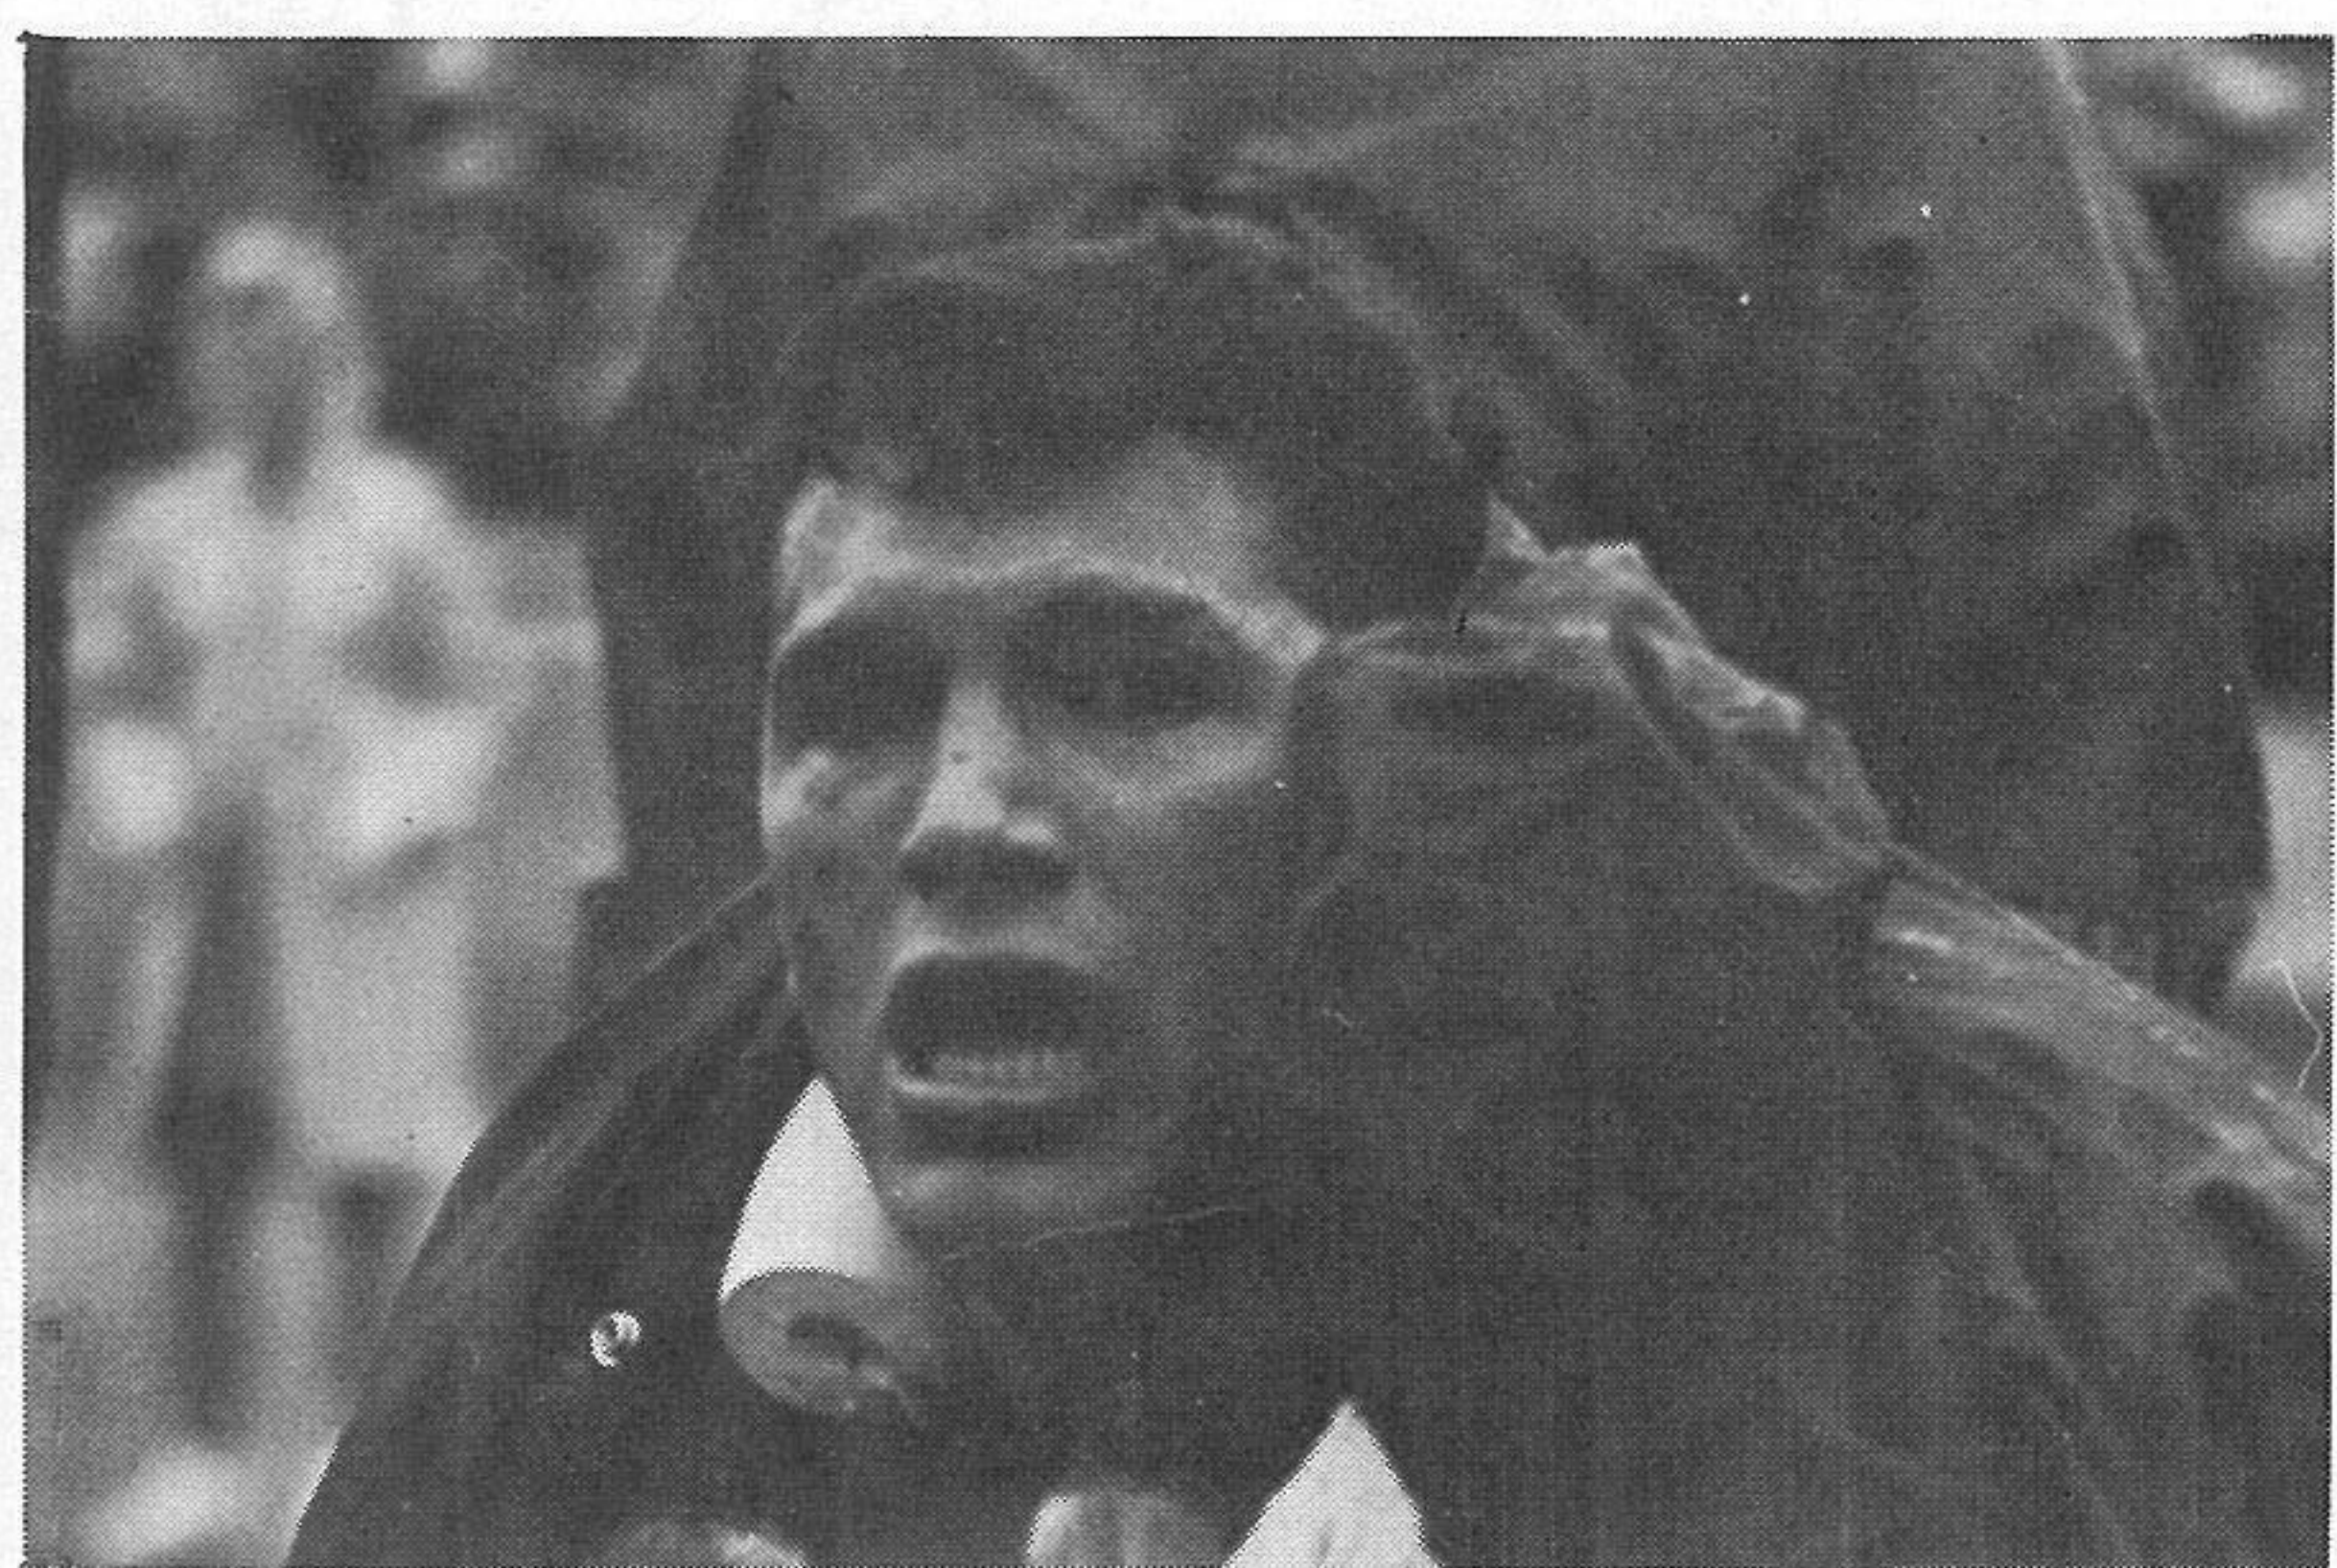

Guffaws of laughter and a good-natured competitive spirit prevailed when energetic forestry students celebrated their traditional Garb Day October 21. The day's events included log tossing, tree climbing, wood chopping, single and double bucking and log rolling. Many students discovered that a knowledge of the forest was not sufficient for competing in the events. Climax to the outdoor capers came at the Loggers Brawl, where King Ole and his queen were crowned. Gordon Iverson successfully defended the title for the second time.

At The University Of Washington Homecoming Is A Big Deal

Homecoming '66 A First Class Affair

Everything about the 1966 Homecoming was big...the 16-3 victory over third-ranked UCLA, the big and massive dance crowd of 2,000 students, the Coliseum.

Campus living groups skipped classes and stayed up all night to finish their homecoming signs. Scores of alums and students lined Greek Row to view the final products.

It rained and you had to wait 20 minutes to get your coat from the check stand...but the music was good...Newhart was funny, and the fair grounds provided a setting for the dance and show that the HUB just couldn't offer.

Christmas: A Warm Tummy, Santa Claus

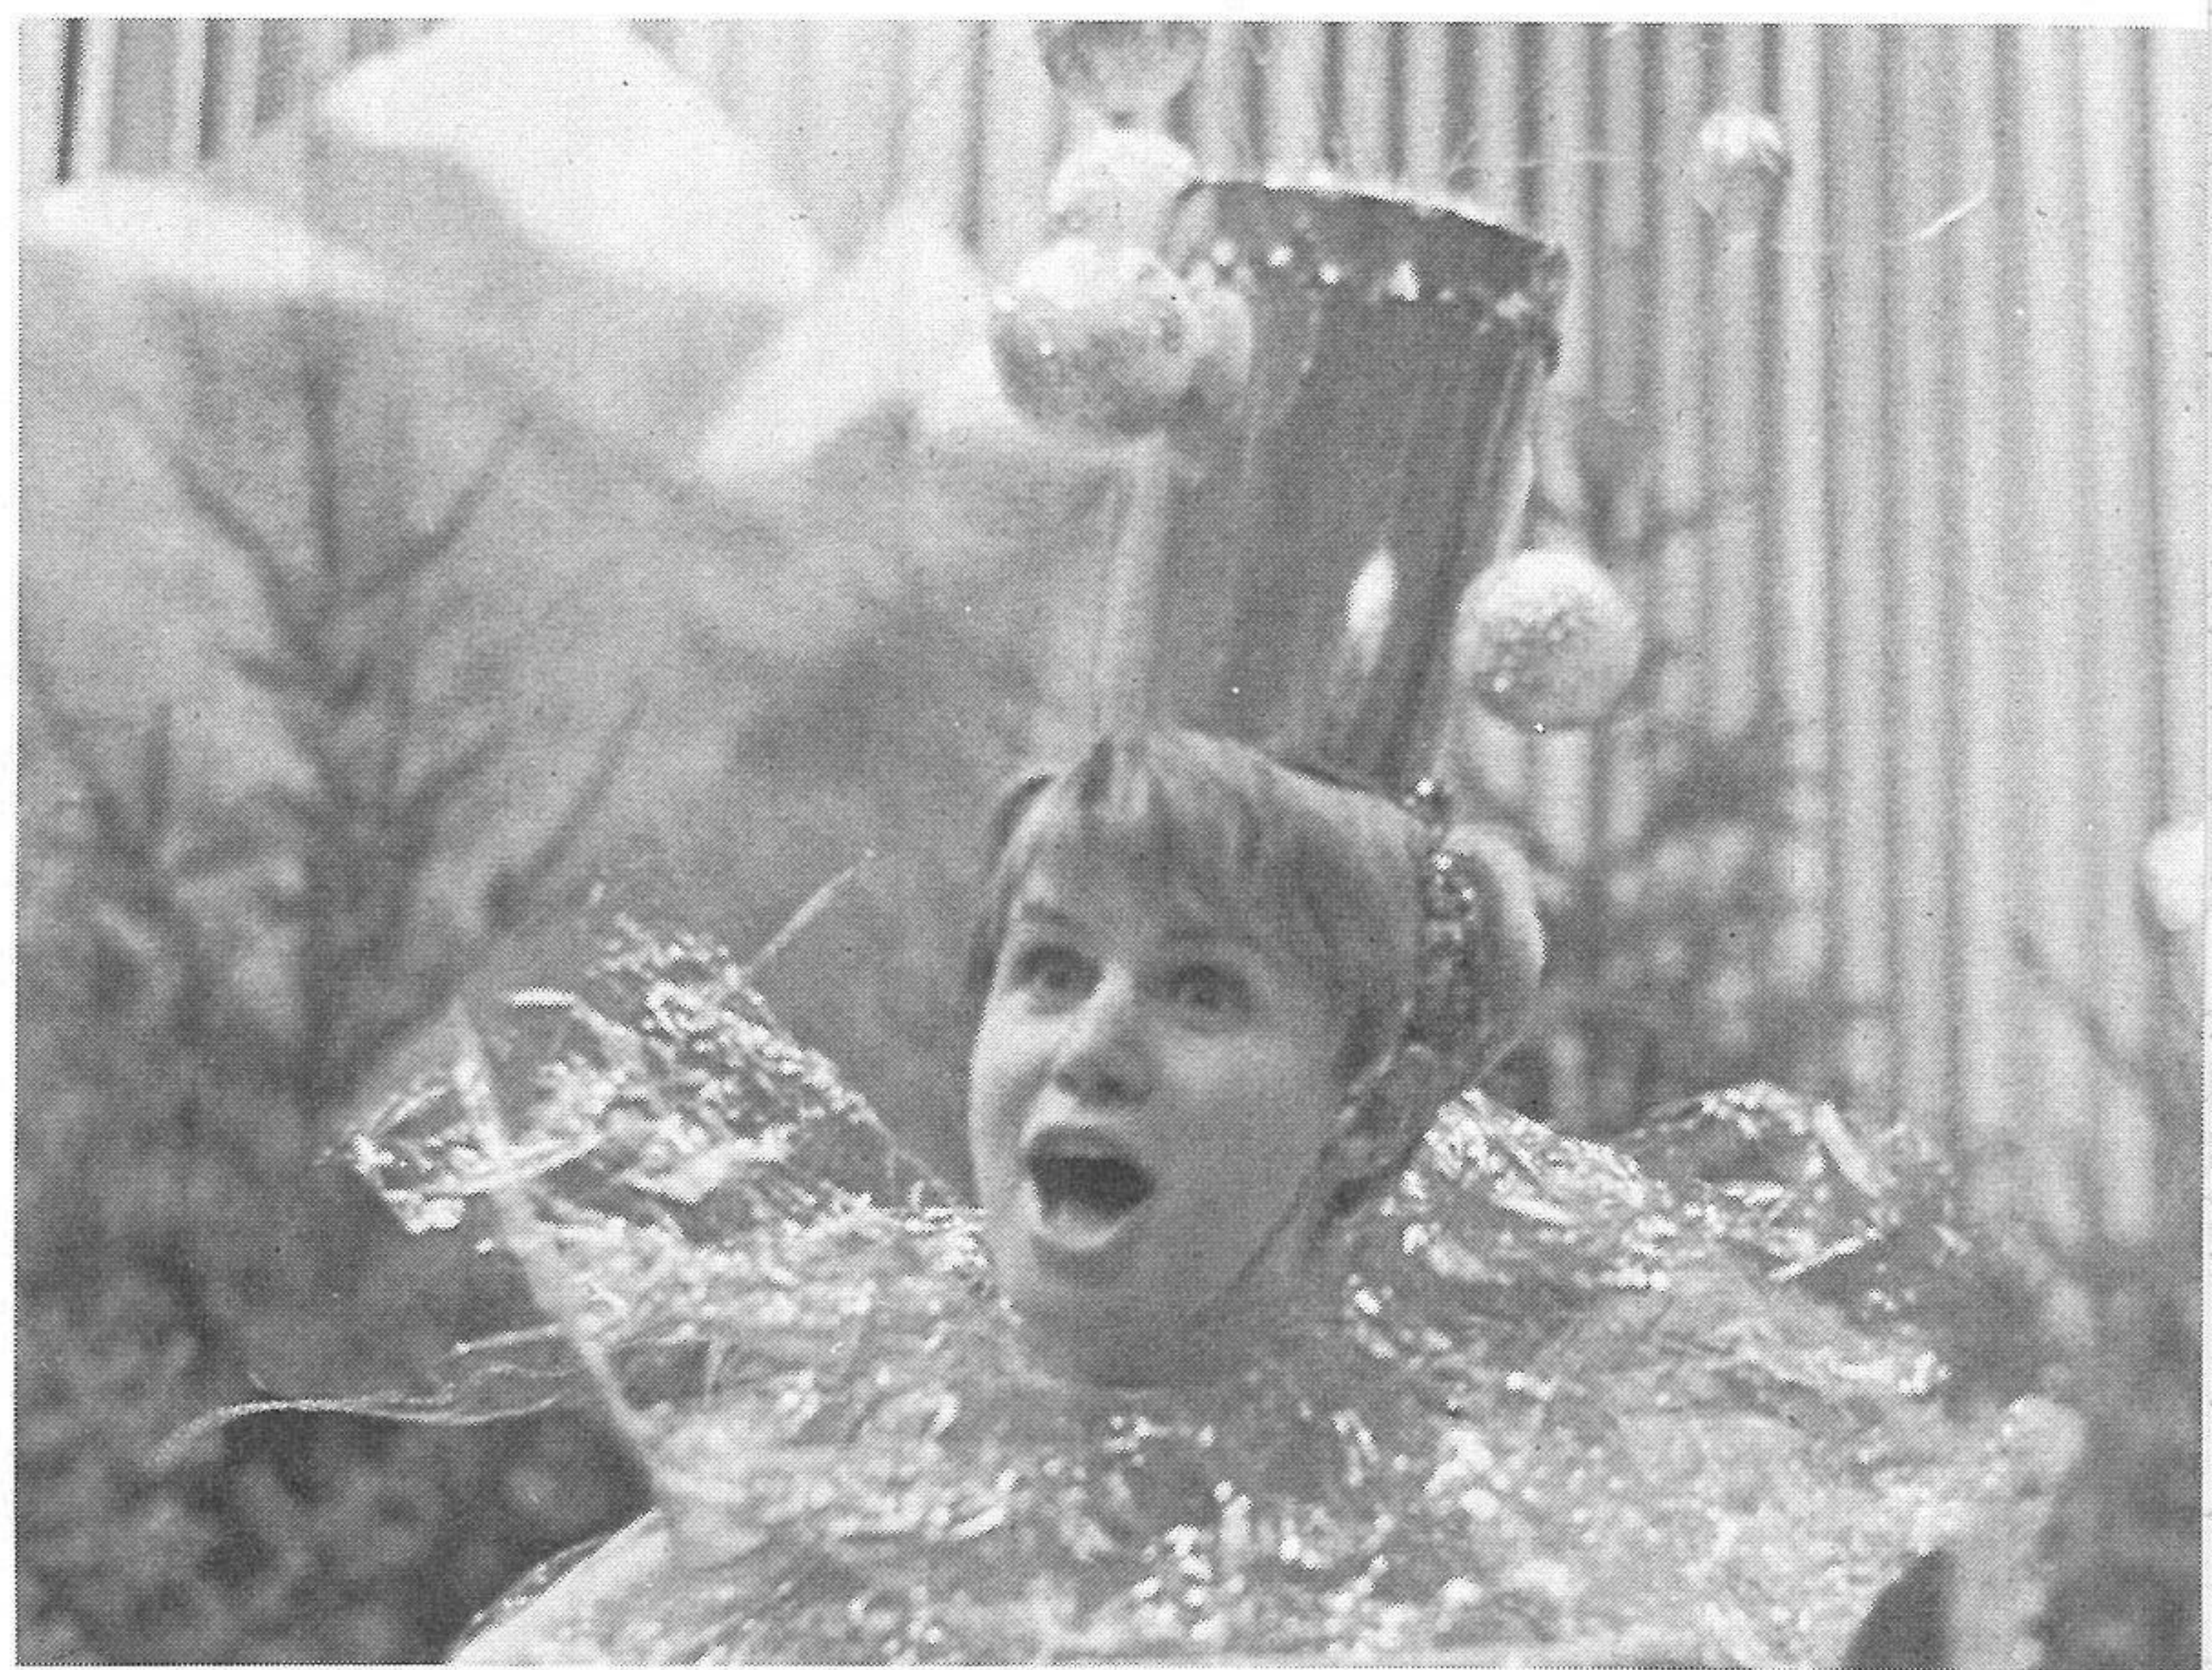

Happiness is a warm tummy.

Happiness is a pretty Miss Mistletoe, Ann Wittenburg, dressed as a Jolly Green Giant Food can to emphasize the canned-food drive.

Happiness surrounded the annual ASUW Christmas Party. President Odegard officially lit the ASUW Christmas tree in front of the Administration Building, reminding everyone that Christmas was just around the corner...after finals.

Happiness was climaxed with the appearance of Santa Claus, record-holding halfback Jim Cope.

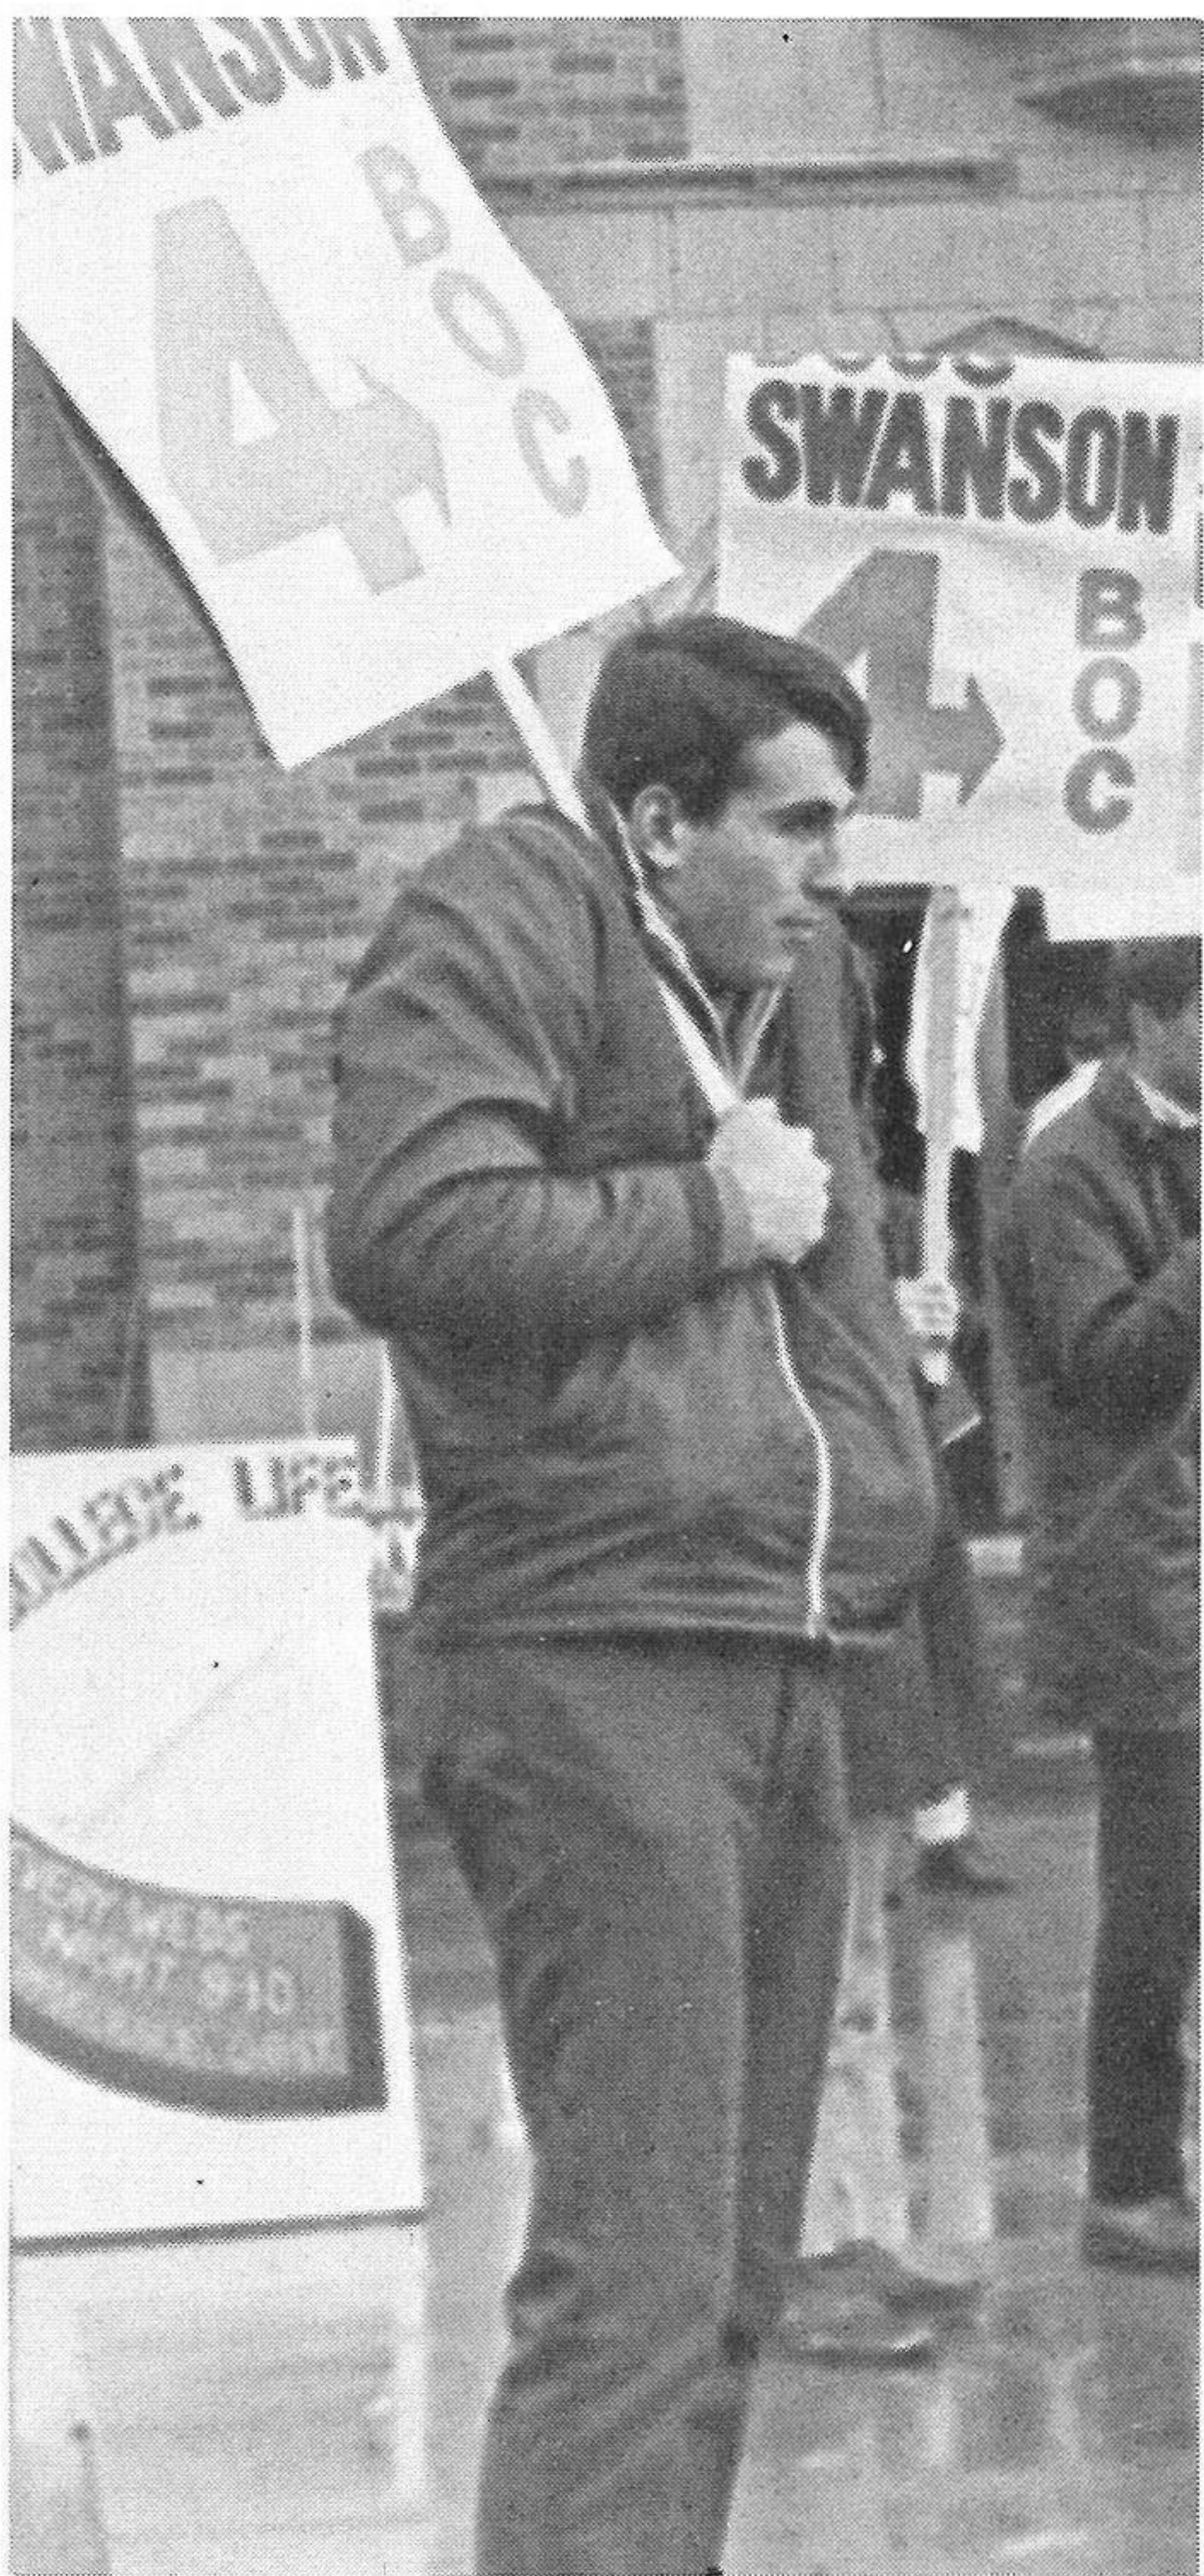

Only Five Candidates Opposed On Winter Ballot; Election

Hampered By Wet Winds

The climb to the top was made considerably easier for most of the candidates in the winter quarter elections. Out of fifteen positions open, only five were opposed. A forty-mile-an-hour wind and heavy rain forced most campaigners inside. Only ardent supporters remained outside dripping wet. BOC positions went to Bruce Matlock, Barbara Durkin, Joan Duffy, Paul Schaake, and John Mosier. AMS President was Jerry Jamison with supporting officers Gary Martin, vice president; Bert Harris, secretary; and Jim Rogers, treasurer. AWS officers were President Lynn Miller, First Vice President Robin Kettenring, Second Vice President Anita Deasy, Corresponding Secretary Lisa Dyson, Recording Secretary Virginia Gunderson, and Treasurer Linda McColm.

Las Vegas Nite Studded With Students, Getz, Gambling, Good Music, Bunnies

Those who were winning bet $100,000 and those who were losing bet $500. But both enjoyed the lively spirit of Las Vegas Nite, January 28. Excitement during the night's gambling ran from playing a suspense-filled game of blackjack to frolicking with the bunny girls. To rid the boredom of losing and to ease the tension mounting around the gambling tables there was dancing to two fast bands—The Time Machine and The Magic Fern.

The spotlight was on Stan Getz and his Combo for the evening's entertainment. Jazz with a sweet beat came from the bell of his sax. For one night the HUB took on some of the glamour and excitement of "the real Las Vegas." The chairman for the annual event was Joe Mano. The first Miss Las Vegas Nite was selected—Christine Folger, a sophomore from Stanton House of Haggett Hall. The Evergreen Room, the South Lounge, and the Main Lounge were converted to "casinos" for the diverse gambling activities.

Judd Kirk, president.

Seeking to ascertain, to clarify and to eliminate problems that students complained about but didn't care about, five people kept the ASUW running smoothly this year.

There were problems and the student administration began on a weak footing that eventually became cemented through hours of reading, talking, behind-the-scenes politicking, and getting to the right people.

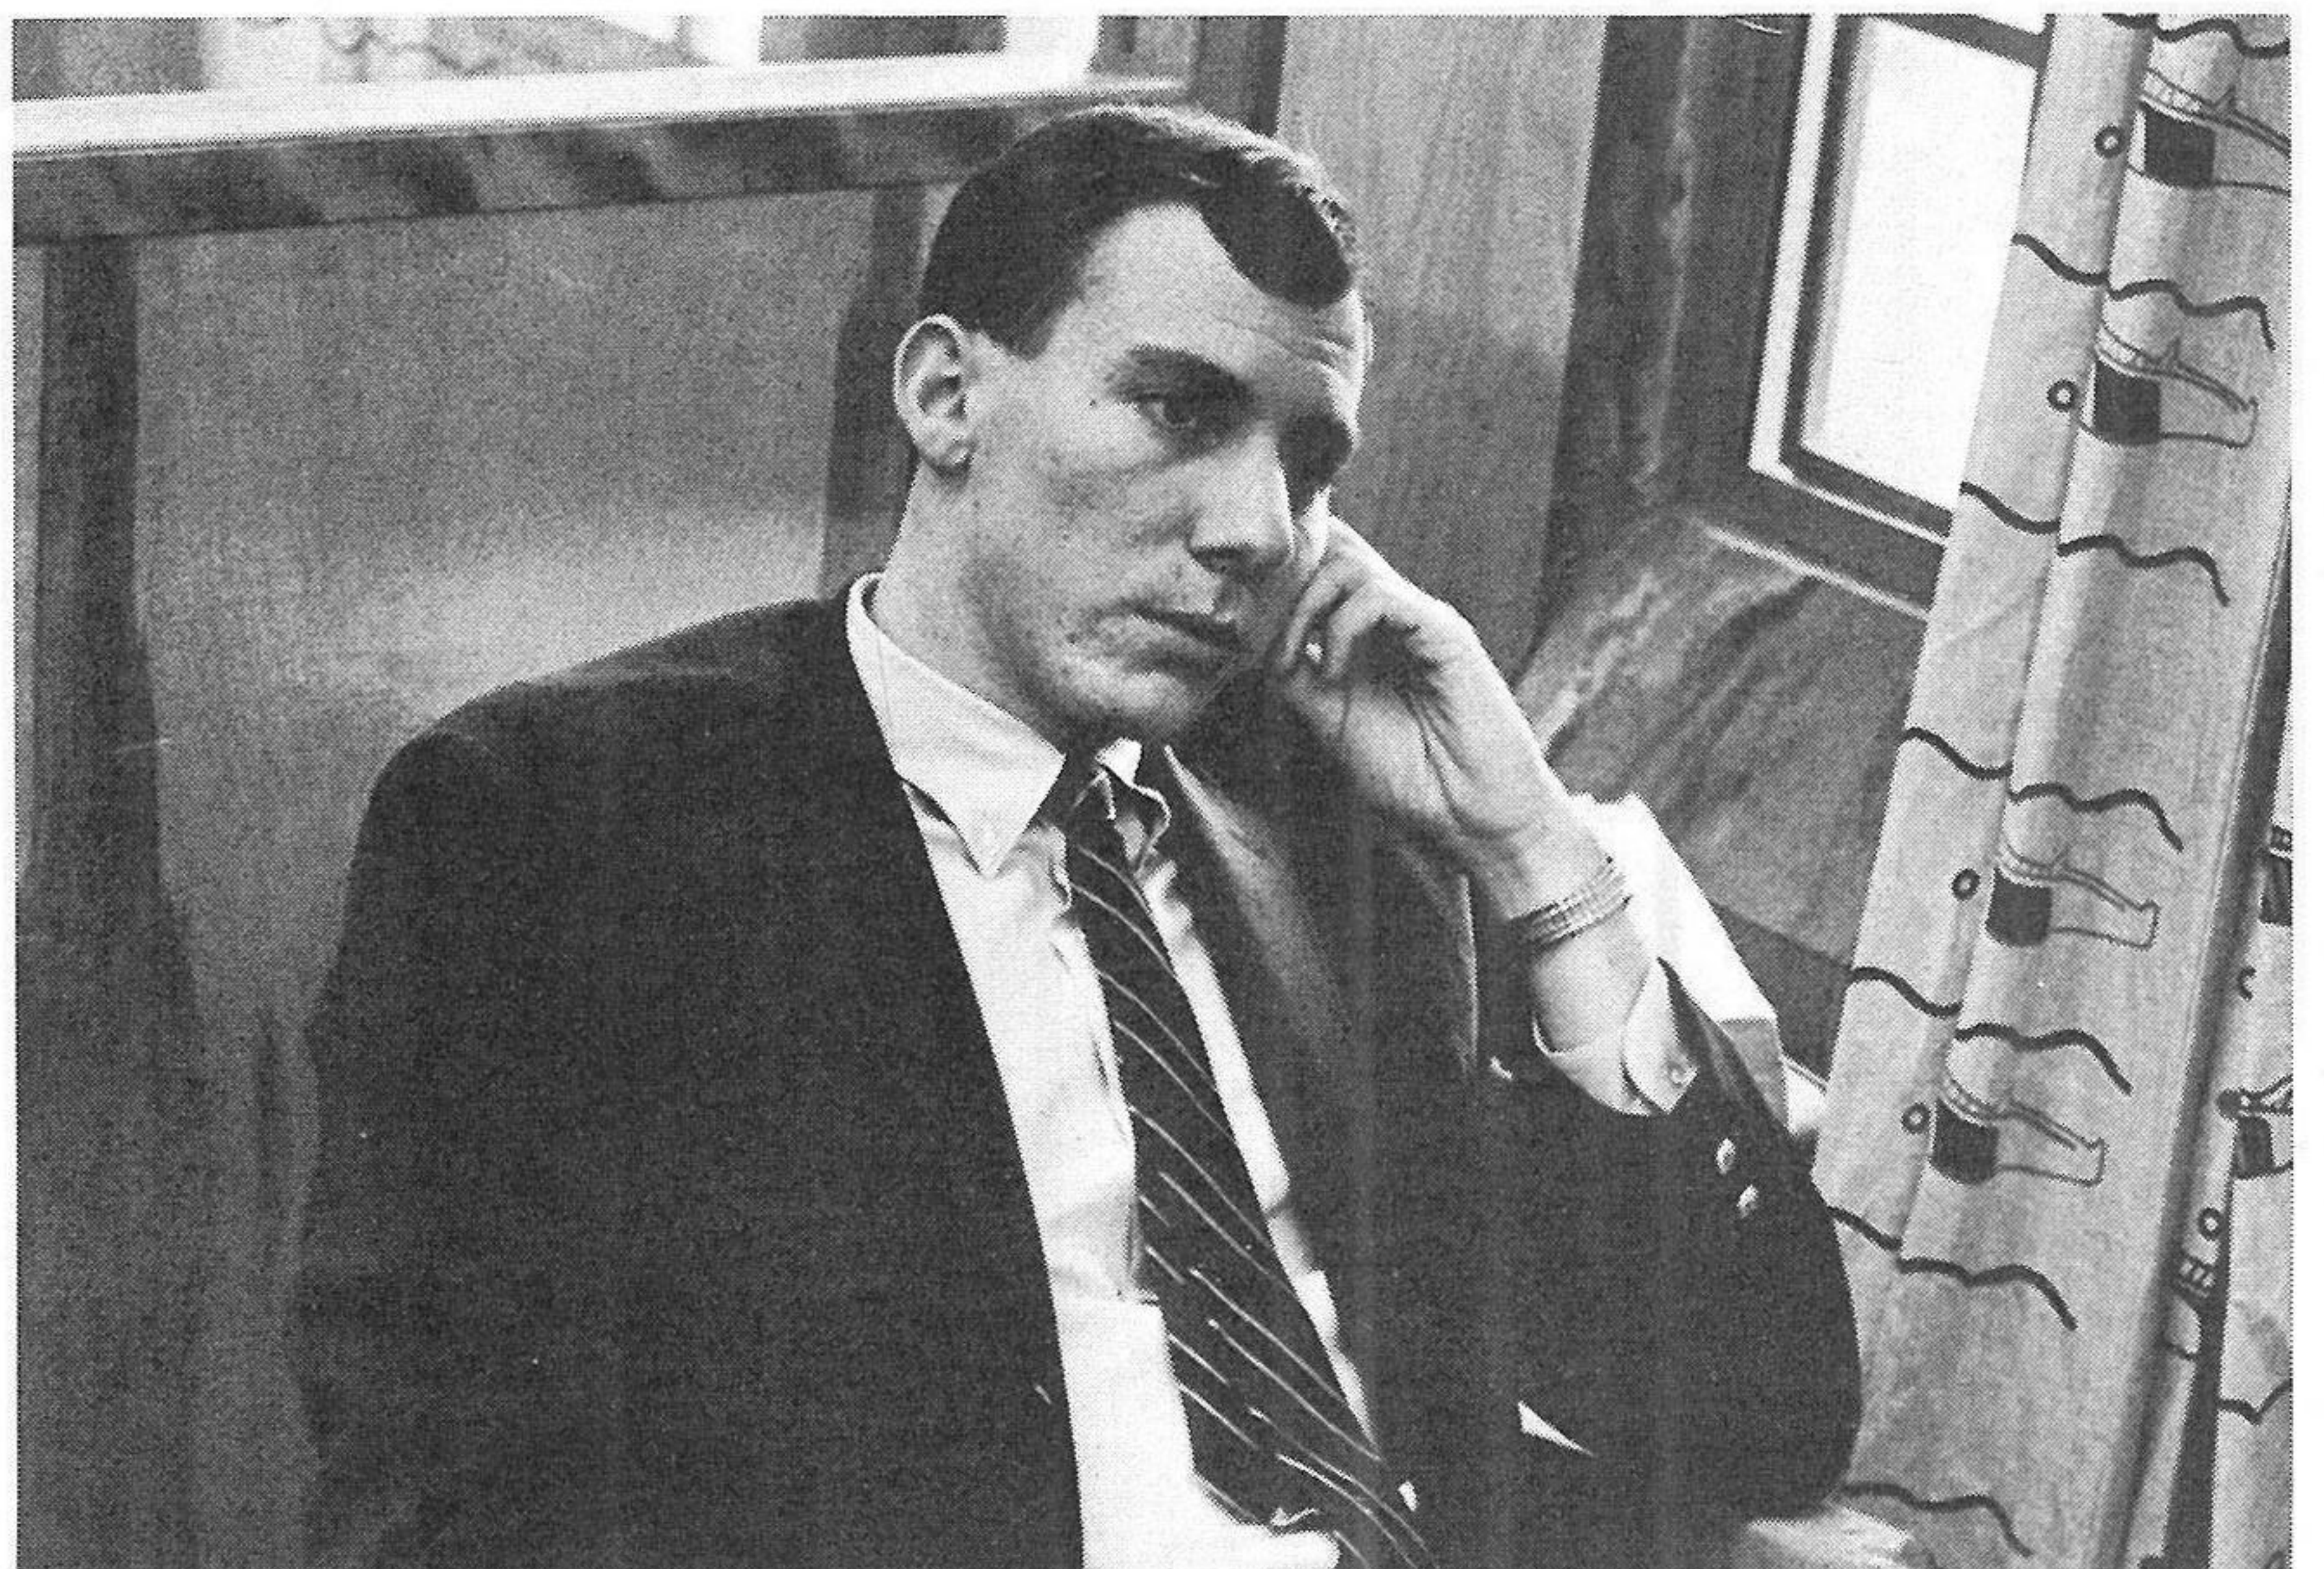

Kirk, the dark-horse candidate in last spring's election, took over and with calculated risks and careful probing gained the reputation of being a first-rate problem solver. In an effort to fill the gap between students and faculty, he became more involved with the administration than any of his predecessors.

Woollen, with Program Panel experience, and Crosby, relying on his accounting knowledge, voiced opinions that mattered and saw that things were done—with and in spite of limitations. Judy Corey's inquisitive mind was constantly analyzing, and Larry Stone, Kirk's appointed assistant, brought the necessary balance.

ASUW Officers Played Game Of Shifting Campus Politics;

Larry Stone, administrative assistant.

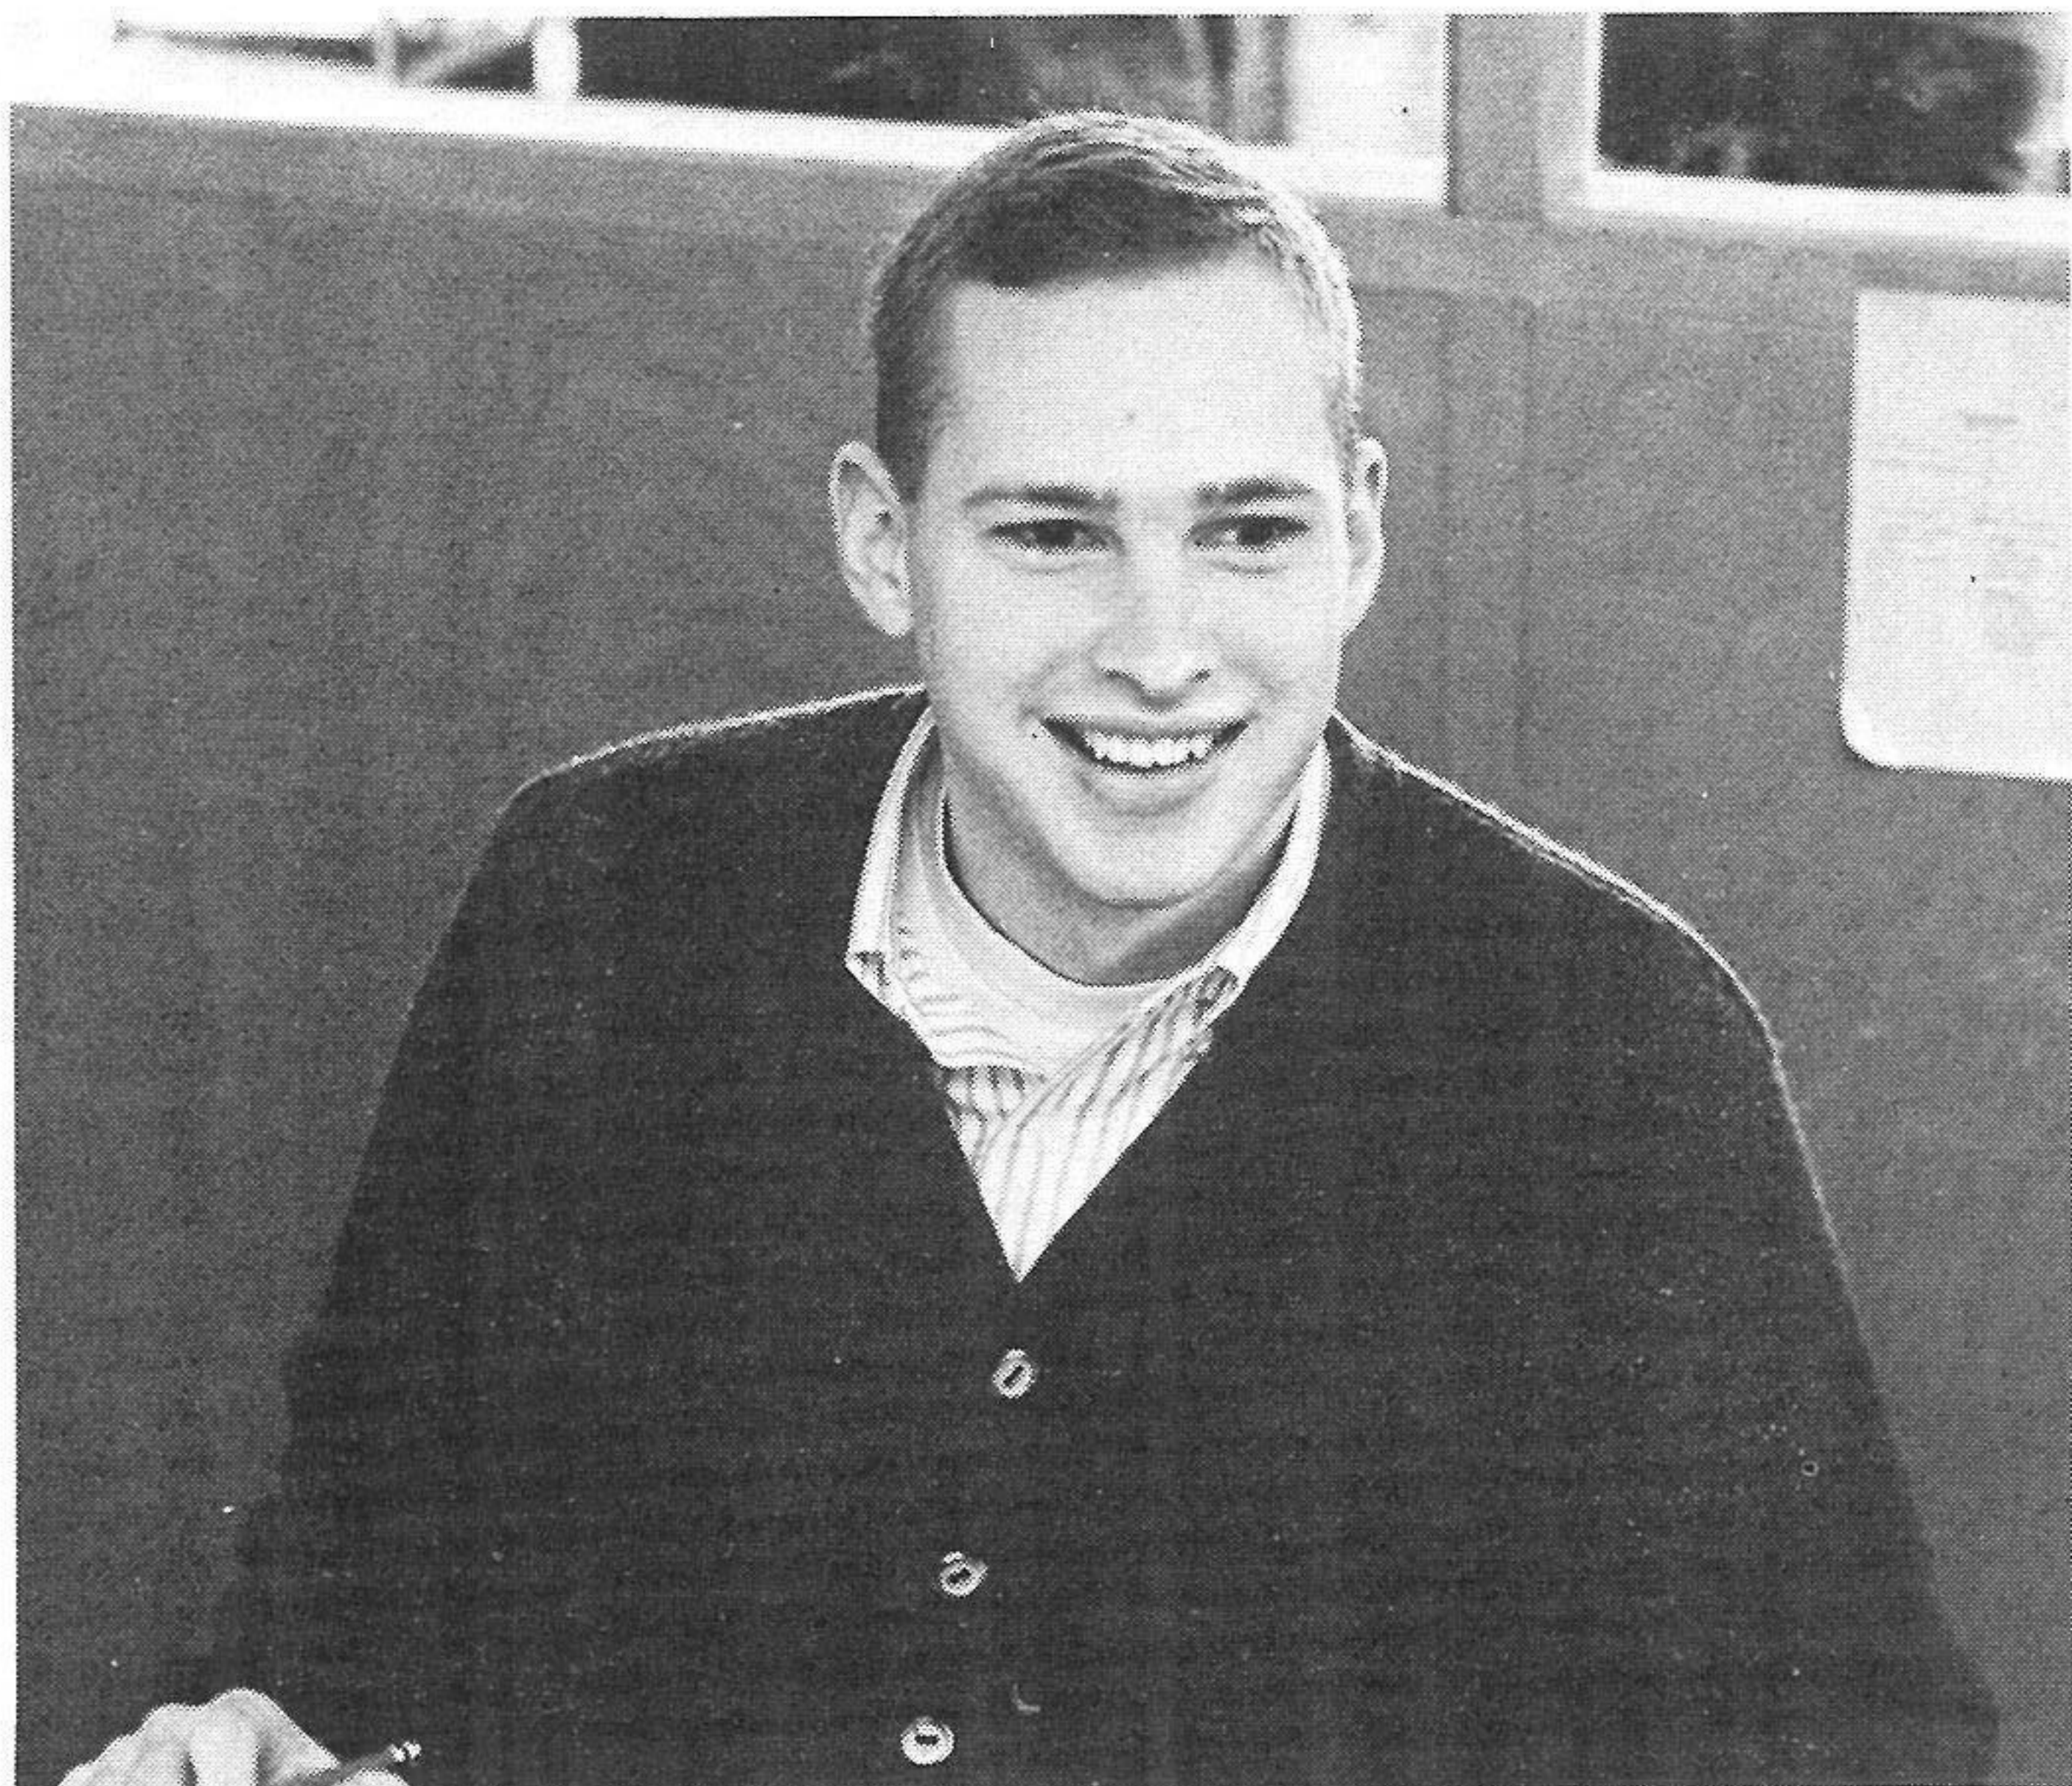

Ed Woollen, first vice president.

It was largely a matter of working together—on the little jobs as well as the big.

They Found Effectiveness In Their Individual Responsibilities

Joel Crosby, second vice president.

Judy Corey, secretary.

Dr. Ludwig Spolyar, adviser; Sandy Shaw and Joe Schocken.

Brian Matsuyama, James Flint, adviser, Glen Johnson, and Julie Donnelly.

Anne Todd, Daily reporter; Sharon Maeda, Judy Corey and Howie Stansbury, guest, chairman of Program Panel.

Randy Lee, Craig Barrick and Rosemary Barker.

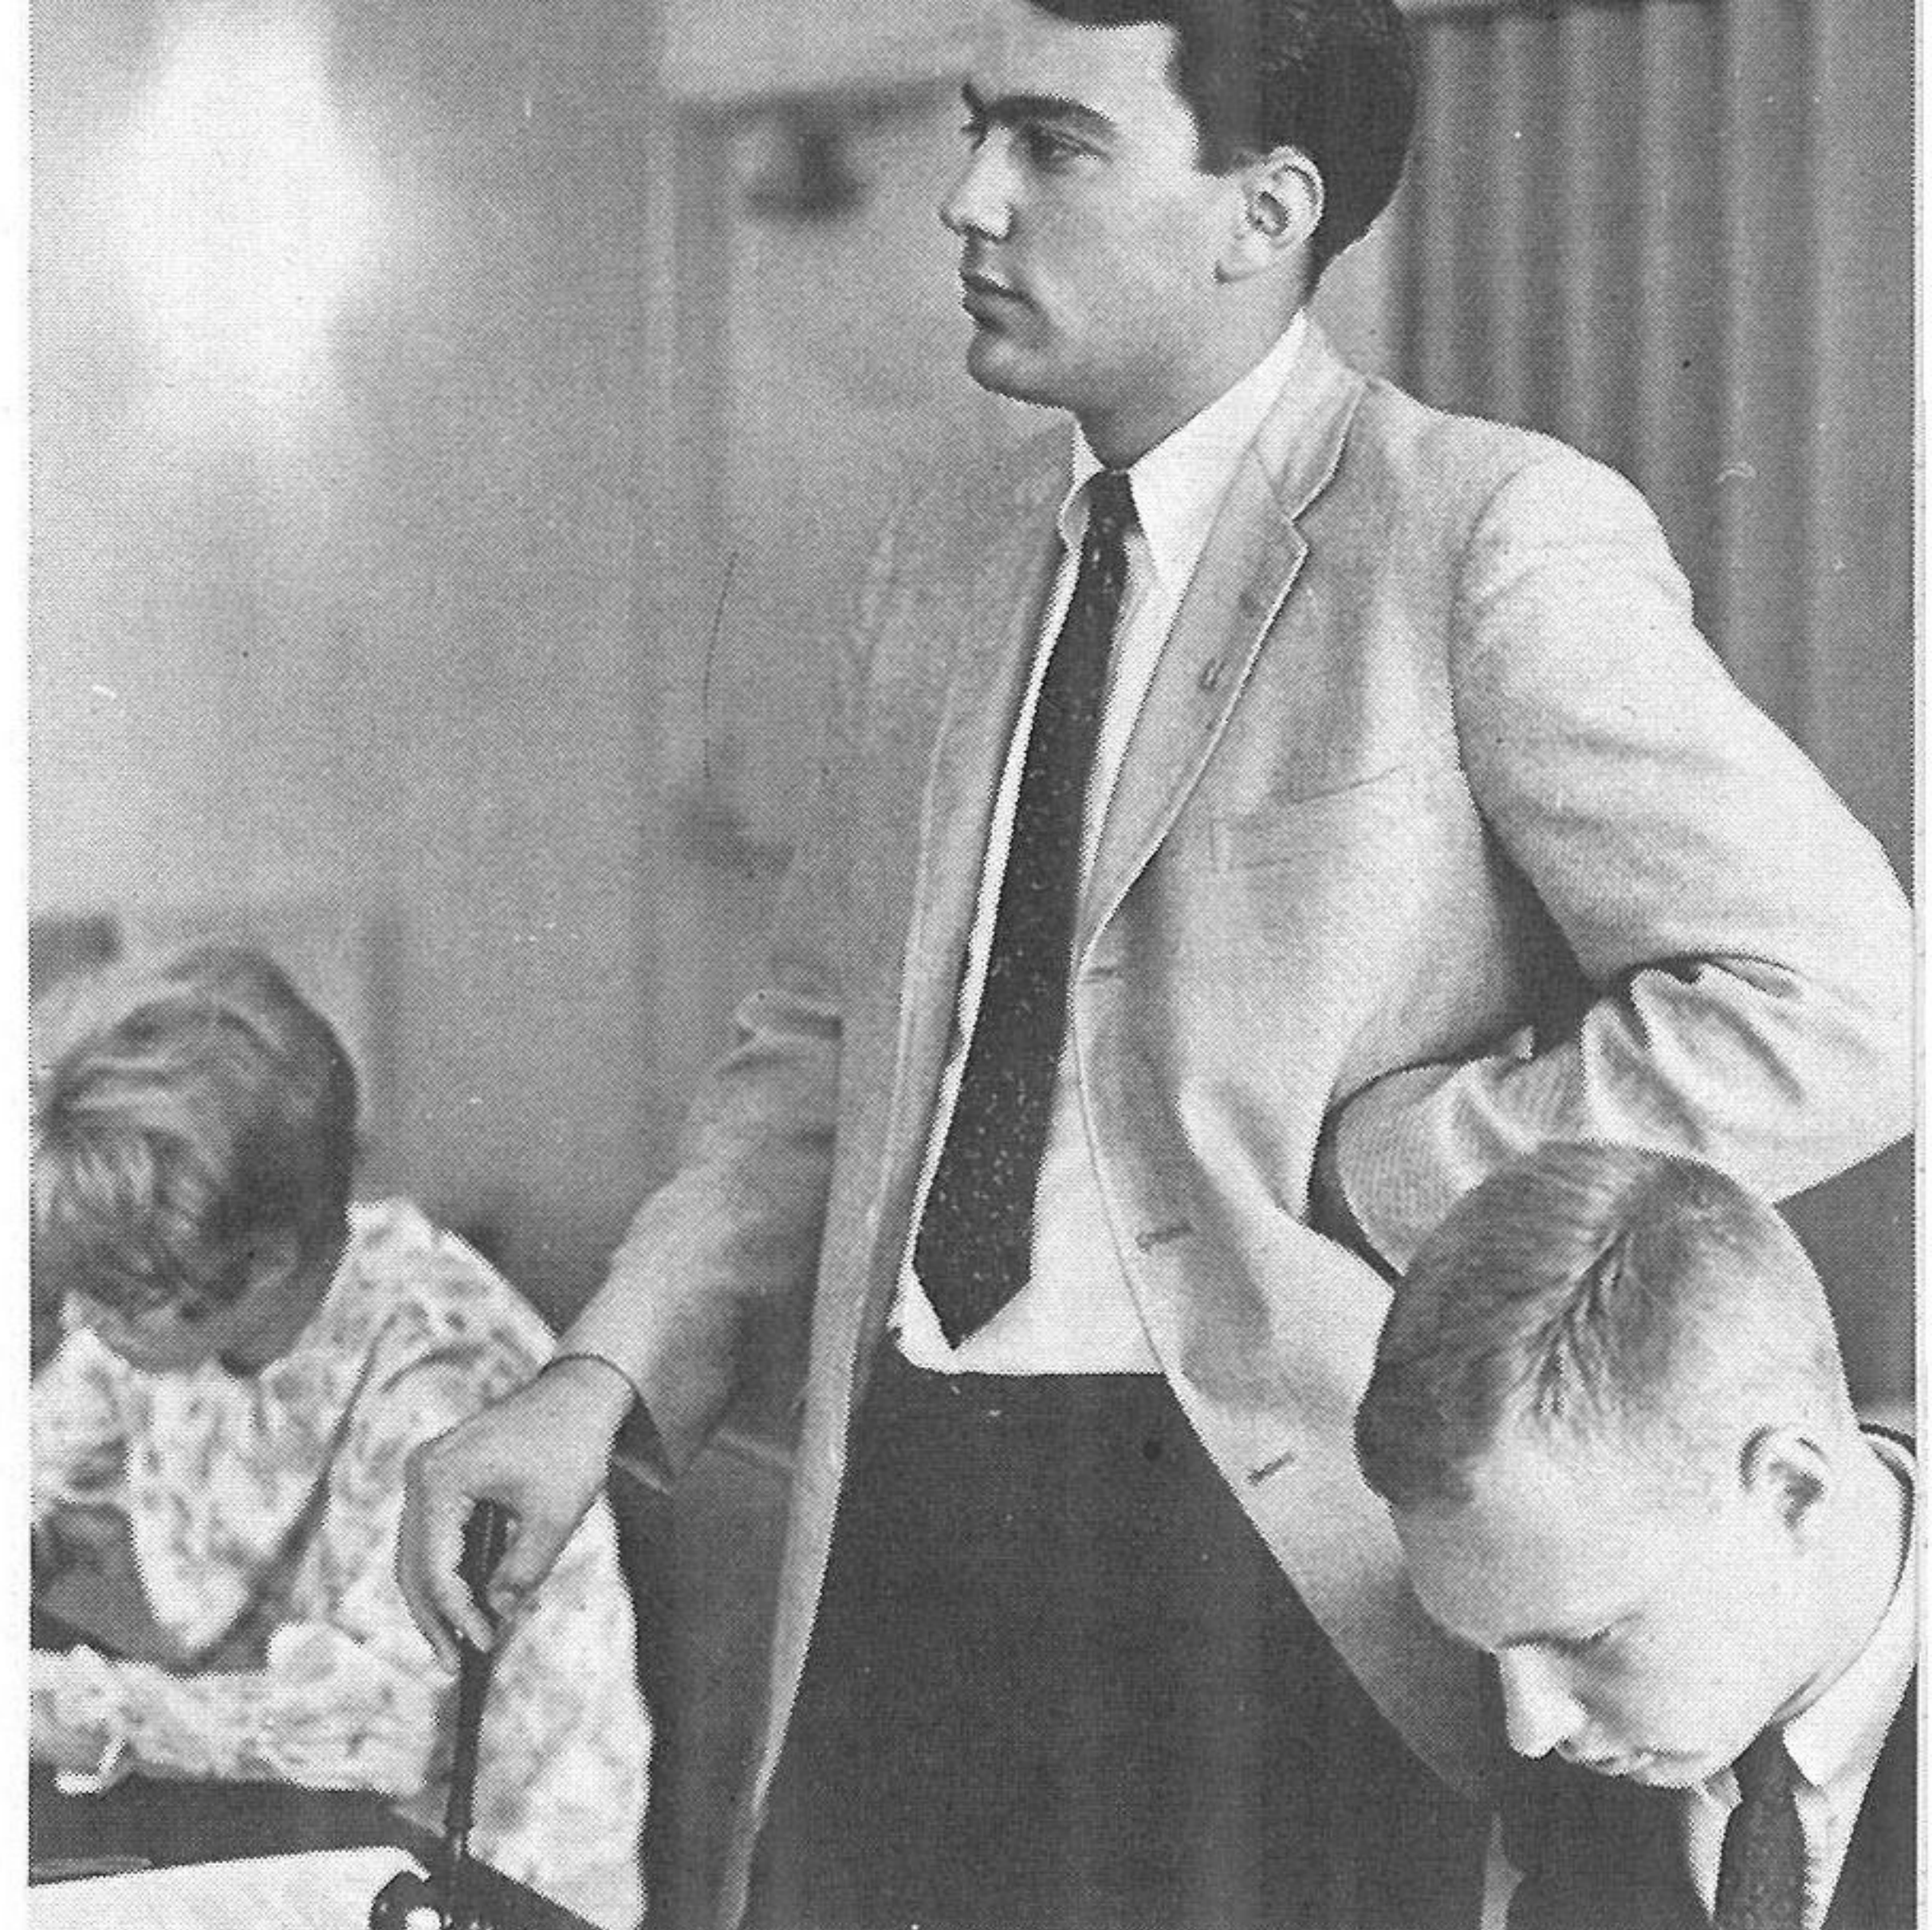

A change in the structure of the BOC, appropriations for CASH, a current affairs briefing center and expansion of the University Bookstore—these were major issues for a newly-oriented Board of Control this year.

Under the leadership of ASUW President Judd Kirk, the Board switched from a social and activities-bound orientation to a more mature academics approach to student affairs. Improved communication with administrative and faculty representatives and a pilot self-advisory program were indicative of this change.

The board was characteristically a "yes" board to important bills, indicating advance research and lobbying for approval.

Kirk handled the meetings with the skill of a politician—all business and always in a hurry to get things done.

Finance and Budget Committee prepares the annual budget of the ASUW and recommends the monies for ASUW projects and events. The budget is submitted to the Board of Control for approval, with recommendations from Finance and Budget.

HUB Advisory Committee serves as liaison between the Board of Control and the manager of the Student Union Building, offering advice on HUB policy decisions and making suggestions for improving service for the student body. Five students serve on the board.

Mike Mandeville, chairman; Gary Tripp, Joe Schocken, Mr. Stephen Nord, HUB manager; Sandra Jessup, Larry Stone.

Dr. Spolyar, Judd Kirk, Howard Stansbury, Prof. Thomas Macartney, James Kelly, Mr. James Flint, Michael Mandeville.

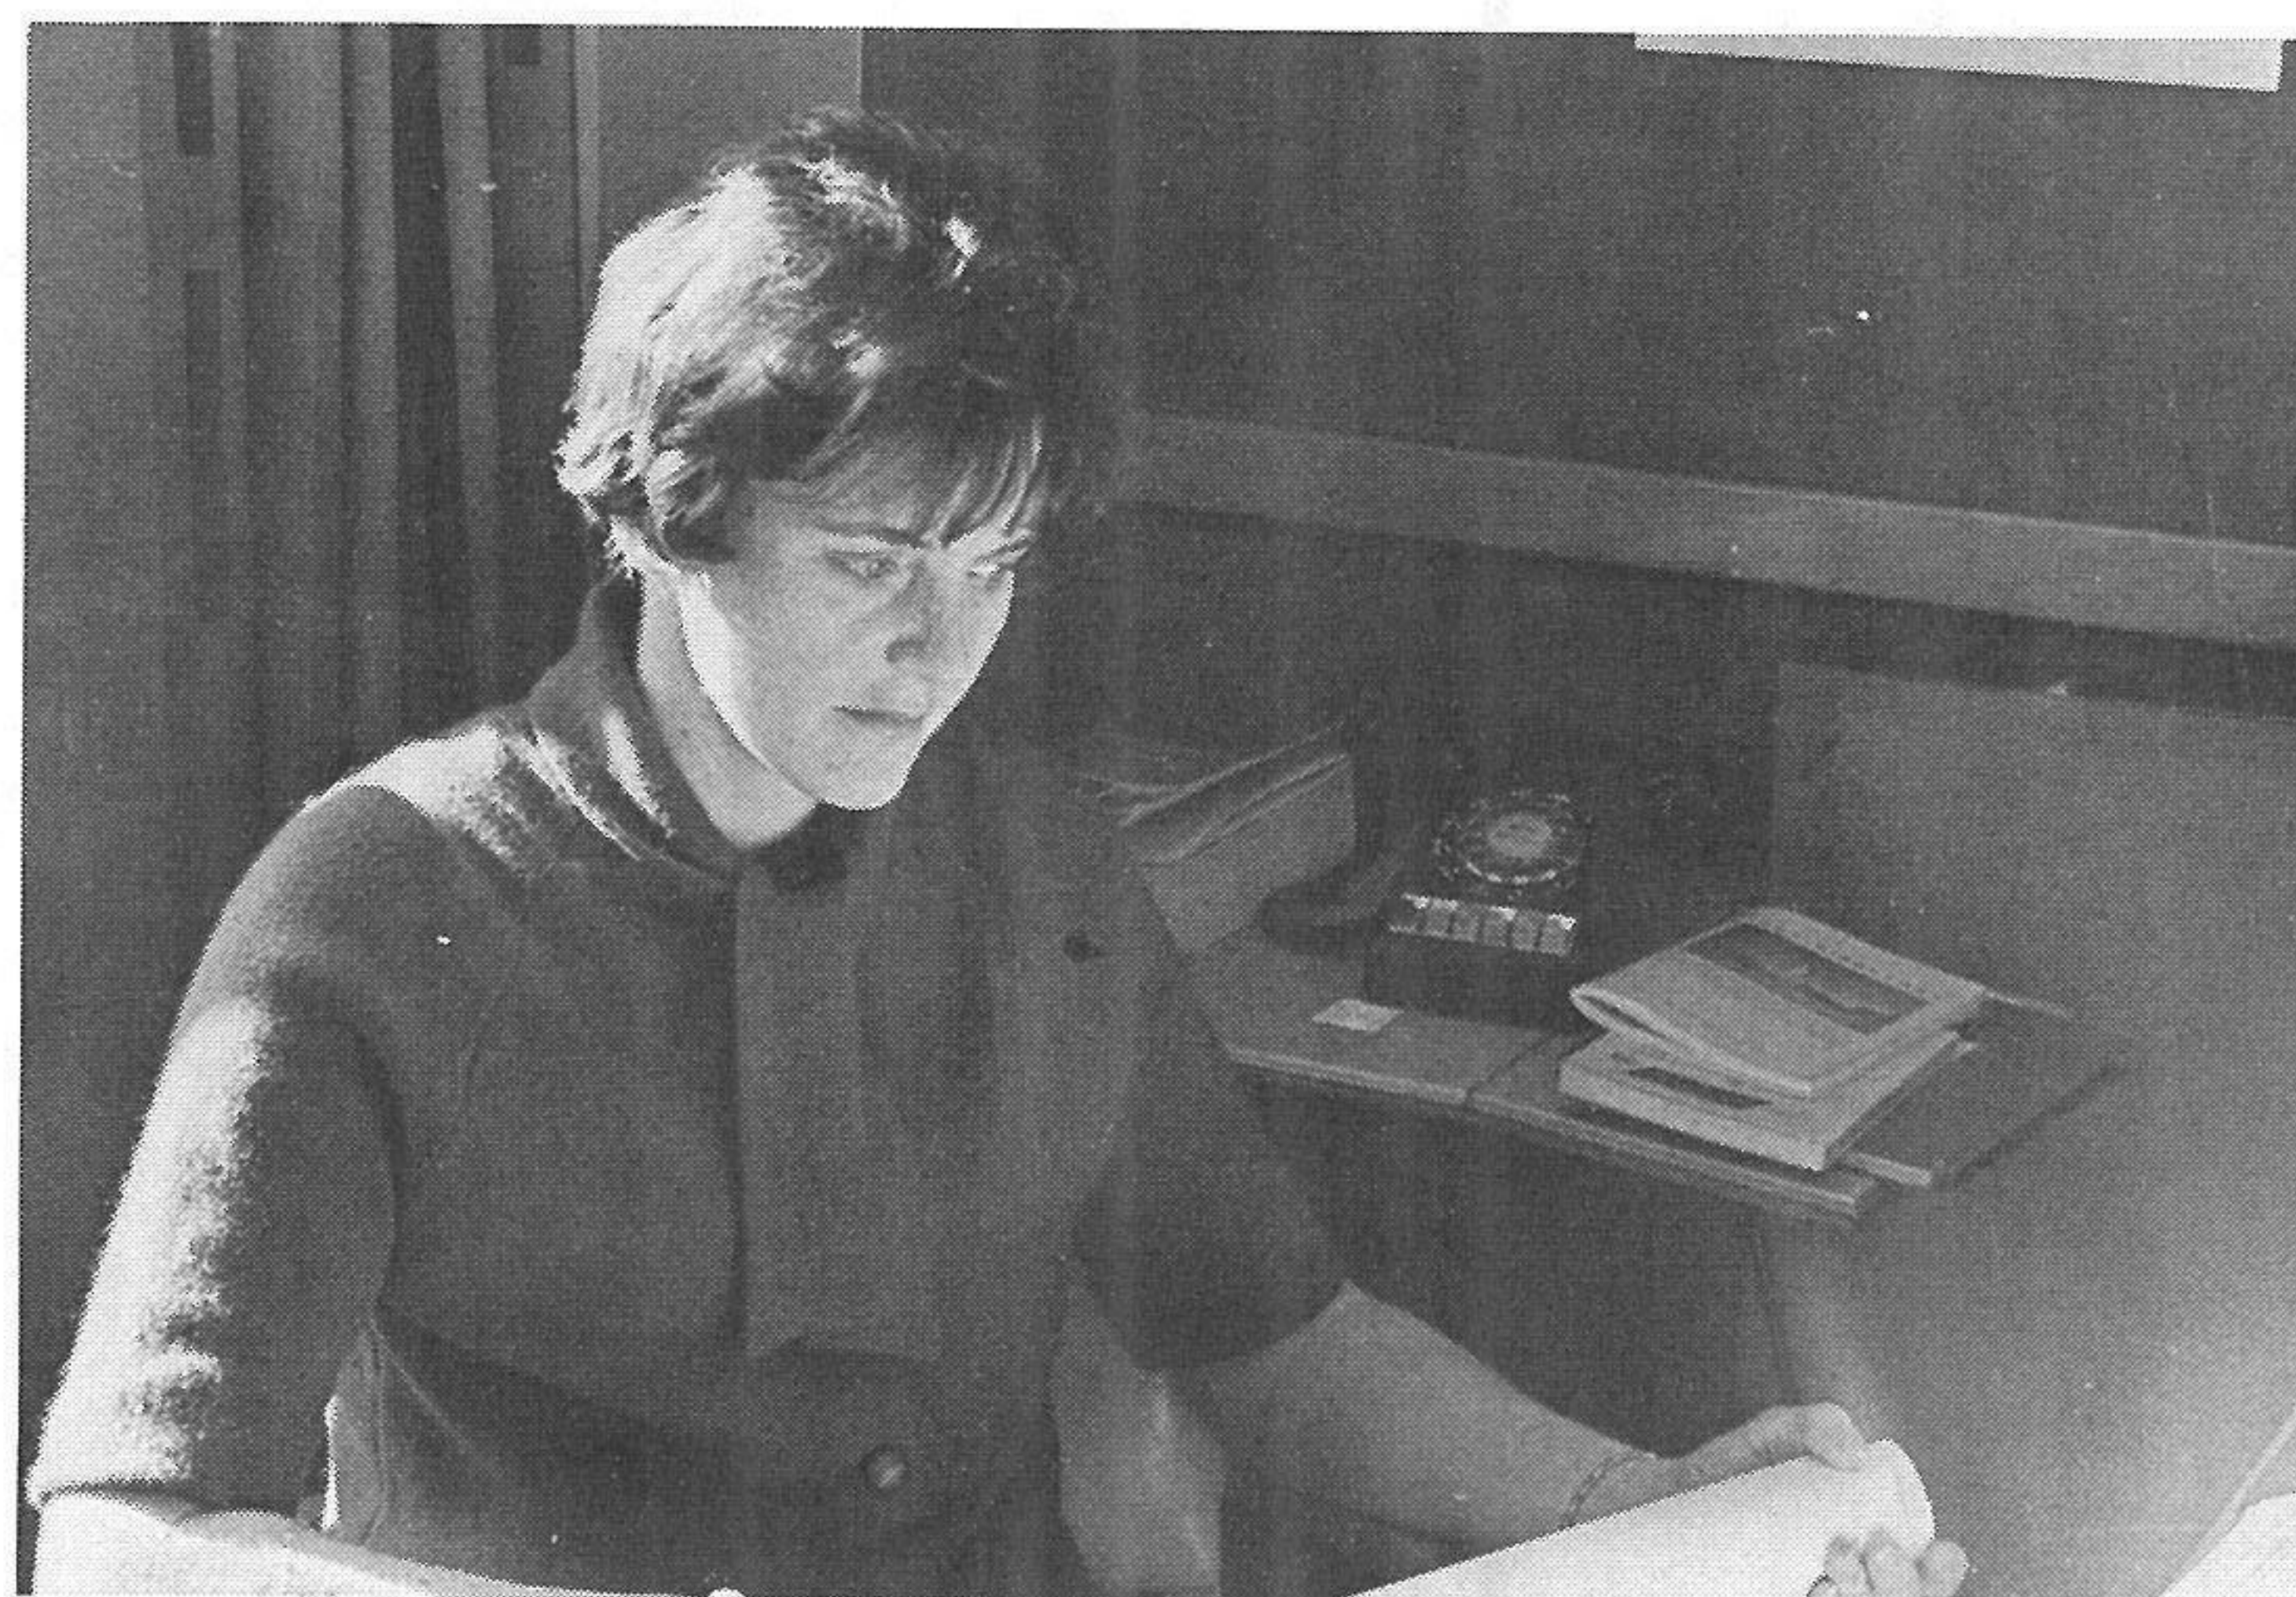

The ASUW Advisers advise and assist the student chairmen in planning, coordinating, and carrying out the expanded activities of the Associated Students of the University of Washington. In addition to their guidance, the advisers also furnish ideas and have promoted service to the community and the graduate program. They act as an important link between the students and the faculty, the administration and the public.

Program Panel Schedules And Coordinates ASUW Activities

Program Panel, under the Board of Control, is the central planning and coordinating agency for campus activities sponsored by the ASUW. Under the Program Panel are seven areas in which activities are sponsored and coordinated by the panel. For each of the seven areas, a chairman is selected to represent the interests of his committees on the panel with respect to program initiation and financial requests. The area chairmen are also directly responsible to the panel for the functioning of all committees under them. Some of the activities sponsored by Program Panel include Parent's Weekend, Husky Honeys, STAY, and the ASUW film series.

AWS Hours Plan Breaks Through Administrative Red Tape;

Kathy Noland, AWS president.

Associated Women Students and Associated Men Students worked together this year to provide as many students as possible with opportunities to participate in a wide selection of activities and services.

Husky Guides were recruited by AWS and AMS to help orient freshmen during the first days of fall quarter. The two organizations co-sponsored the Scholarship Banquet for honor students and the How-to-Study program on KCTS-TV. AWS also hosted a statewide AWS convention in November. The Honor Tea recognized the outstanding women on campus.

AMS Serves Social, Educational, Cultural Needs Of Men

Through the AWS Standards Council, steps were taken to abolish closing hours for all women housed in dormitories and sororities.

The red tape surrounding the proposal finally lifted when Dean Strawn announced to a surprised audience a new University policy—one which stated that regulation of hours was up to the individual and the living group—not the University.

Men's Day highlighted spring quarter AMS activities with sports, exhibitions, films, and entertainment. AMS-sponsored TGIF became a familiar Friday afternoon HUB feature. Sports specials were presented throughout fall and winter quarters. Hockey Nites with discount rates for students were sponsored at the Seattle Totems' games.

Both AWS and AMS tried to contribute to the educational, social, and cultural needs of students.

Richard Semke, president; Terrance Kelly, vice president.

The Political Union, recognized last spring by Program Panel, concentrated its funds and energy on political programs and new ways to enhance political education.

Some of the best authorities available appeared in P.U. programs covering the full spectrum of international and domestic affairs and included Dr. Henry K. Kissinger, George Lincoln Rockwell, and Senator Jacob K. Javits.

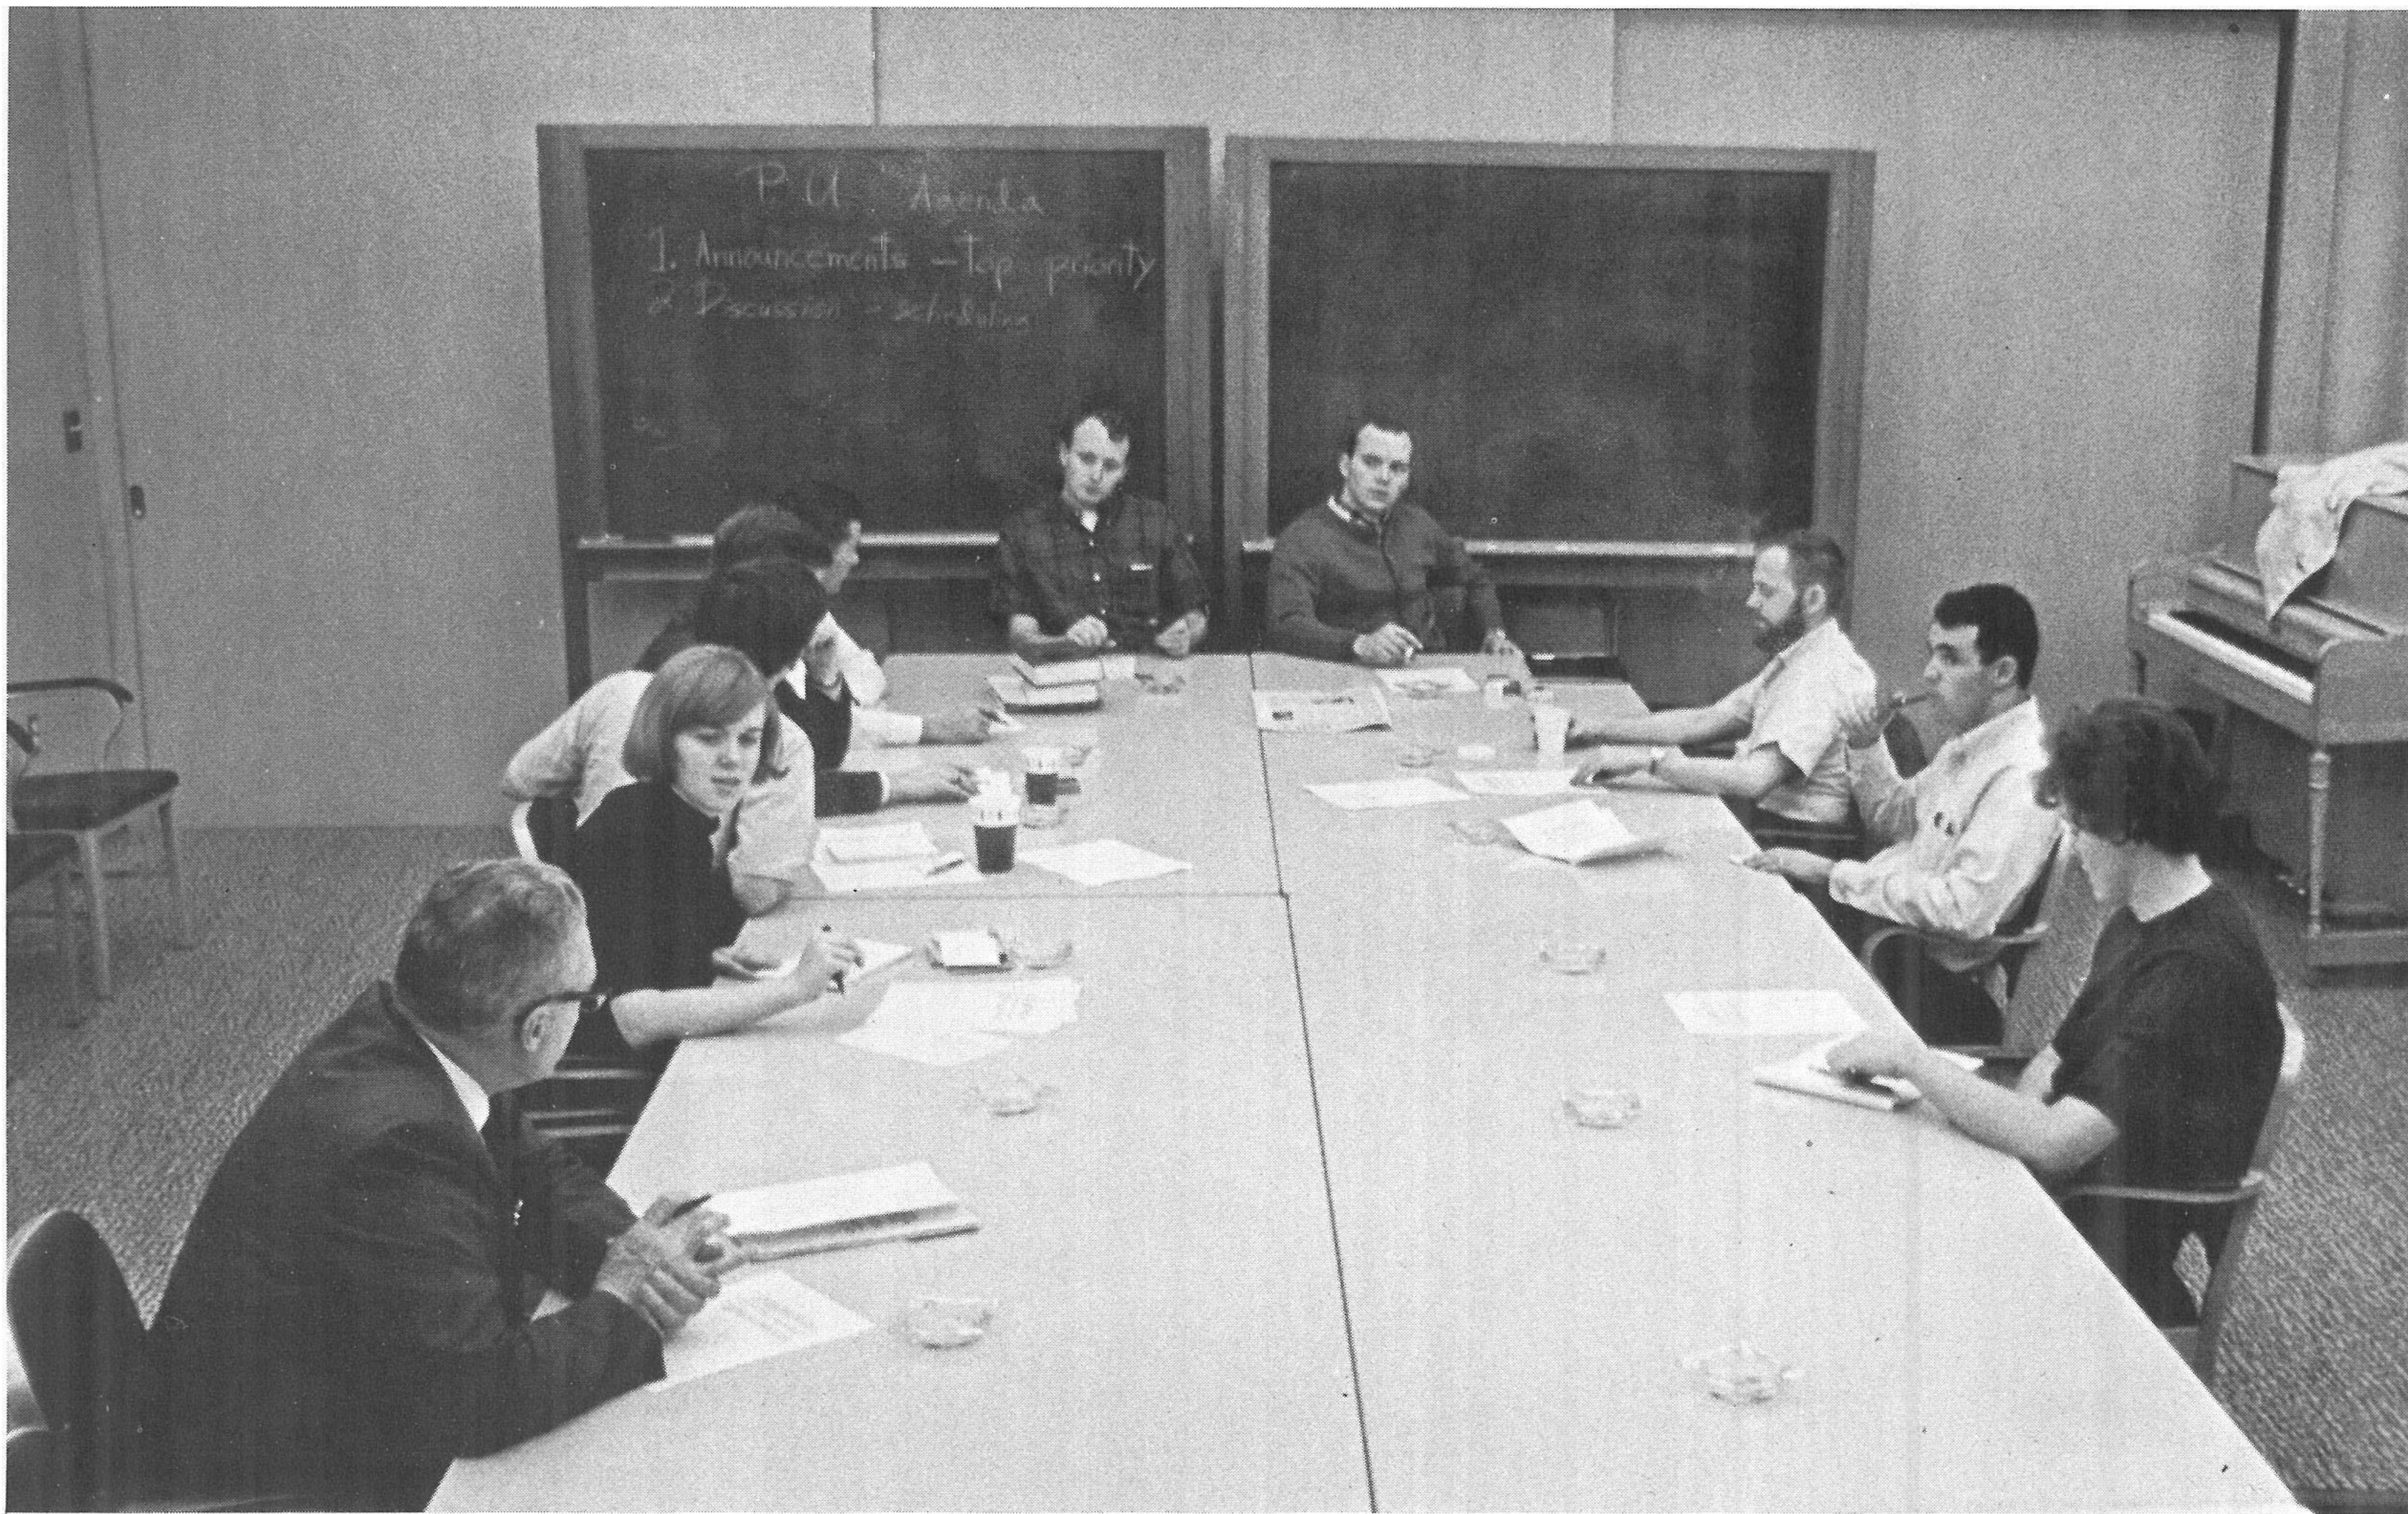

The Policy Council, a quarterly debate, and the Foreign Relations Committee, a fact-finding group investigating American Foreign Policy, were two new programs inaugurated winter quarter.

To provide for actual political participation the P.U. sponsored a Mock Constitutional Convention this year to formulate revisions to the Washington State Constitution.

Politically Aware Students Is Political Union Goal

The capstone of fall quarter was the three-day lecture series by Dr. Walter W. Heller, former Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors.

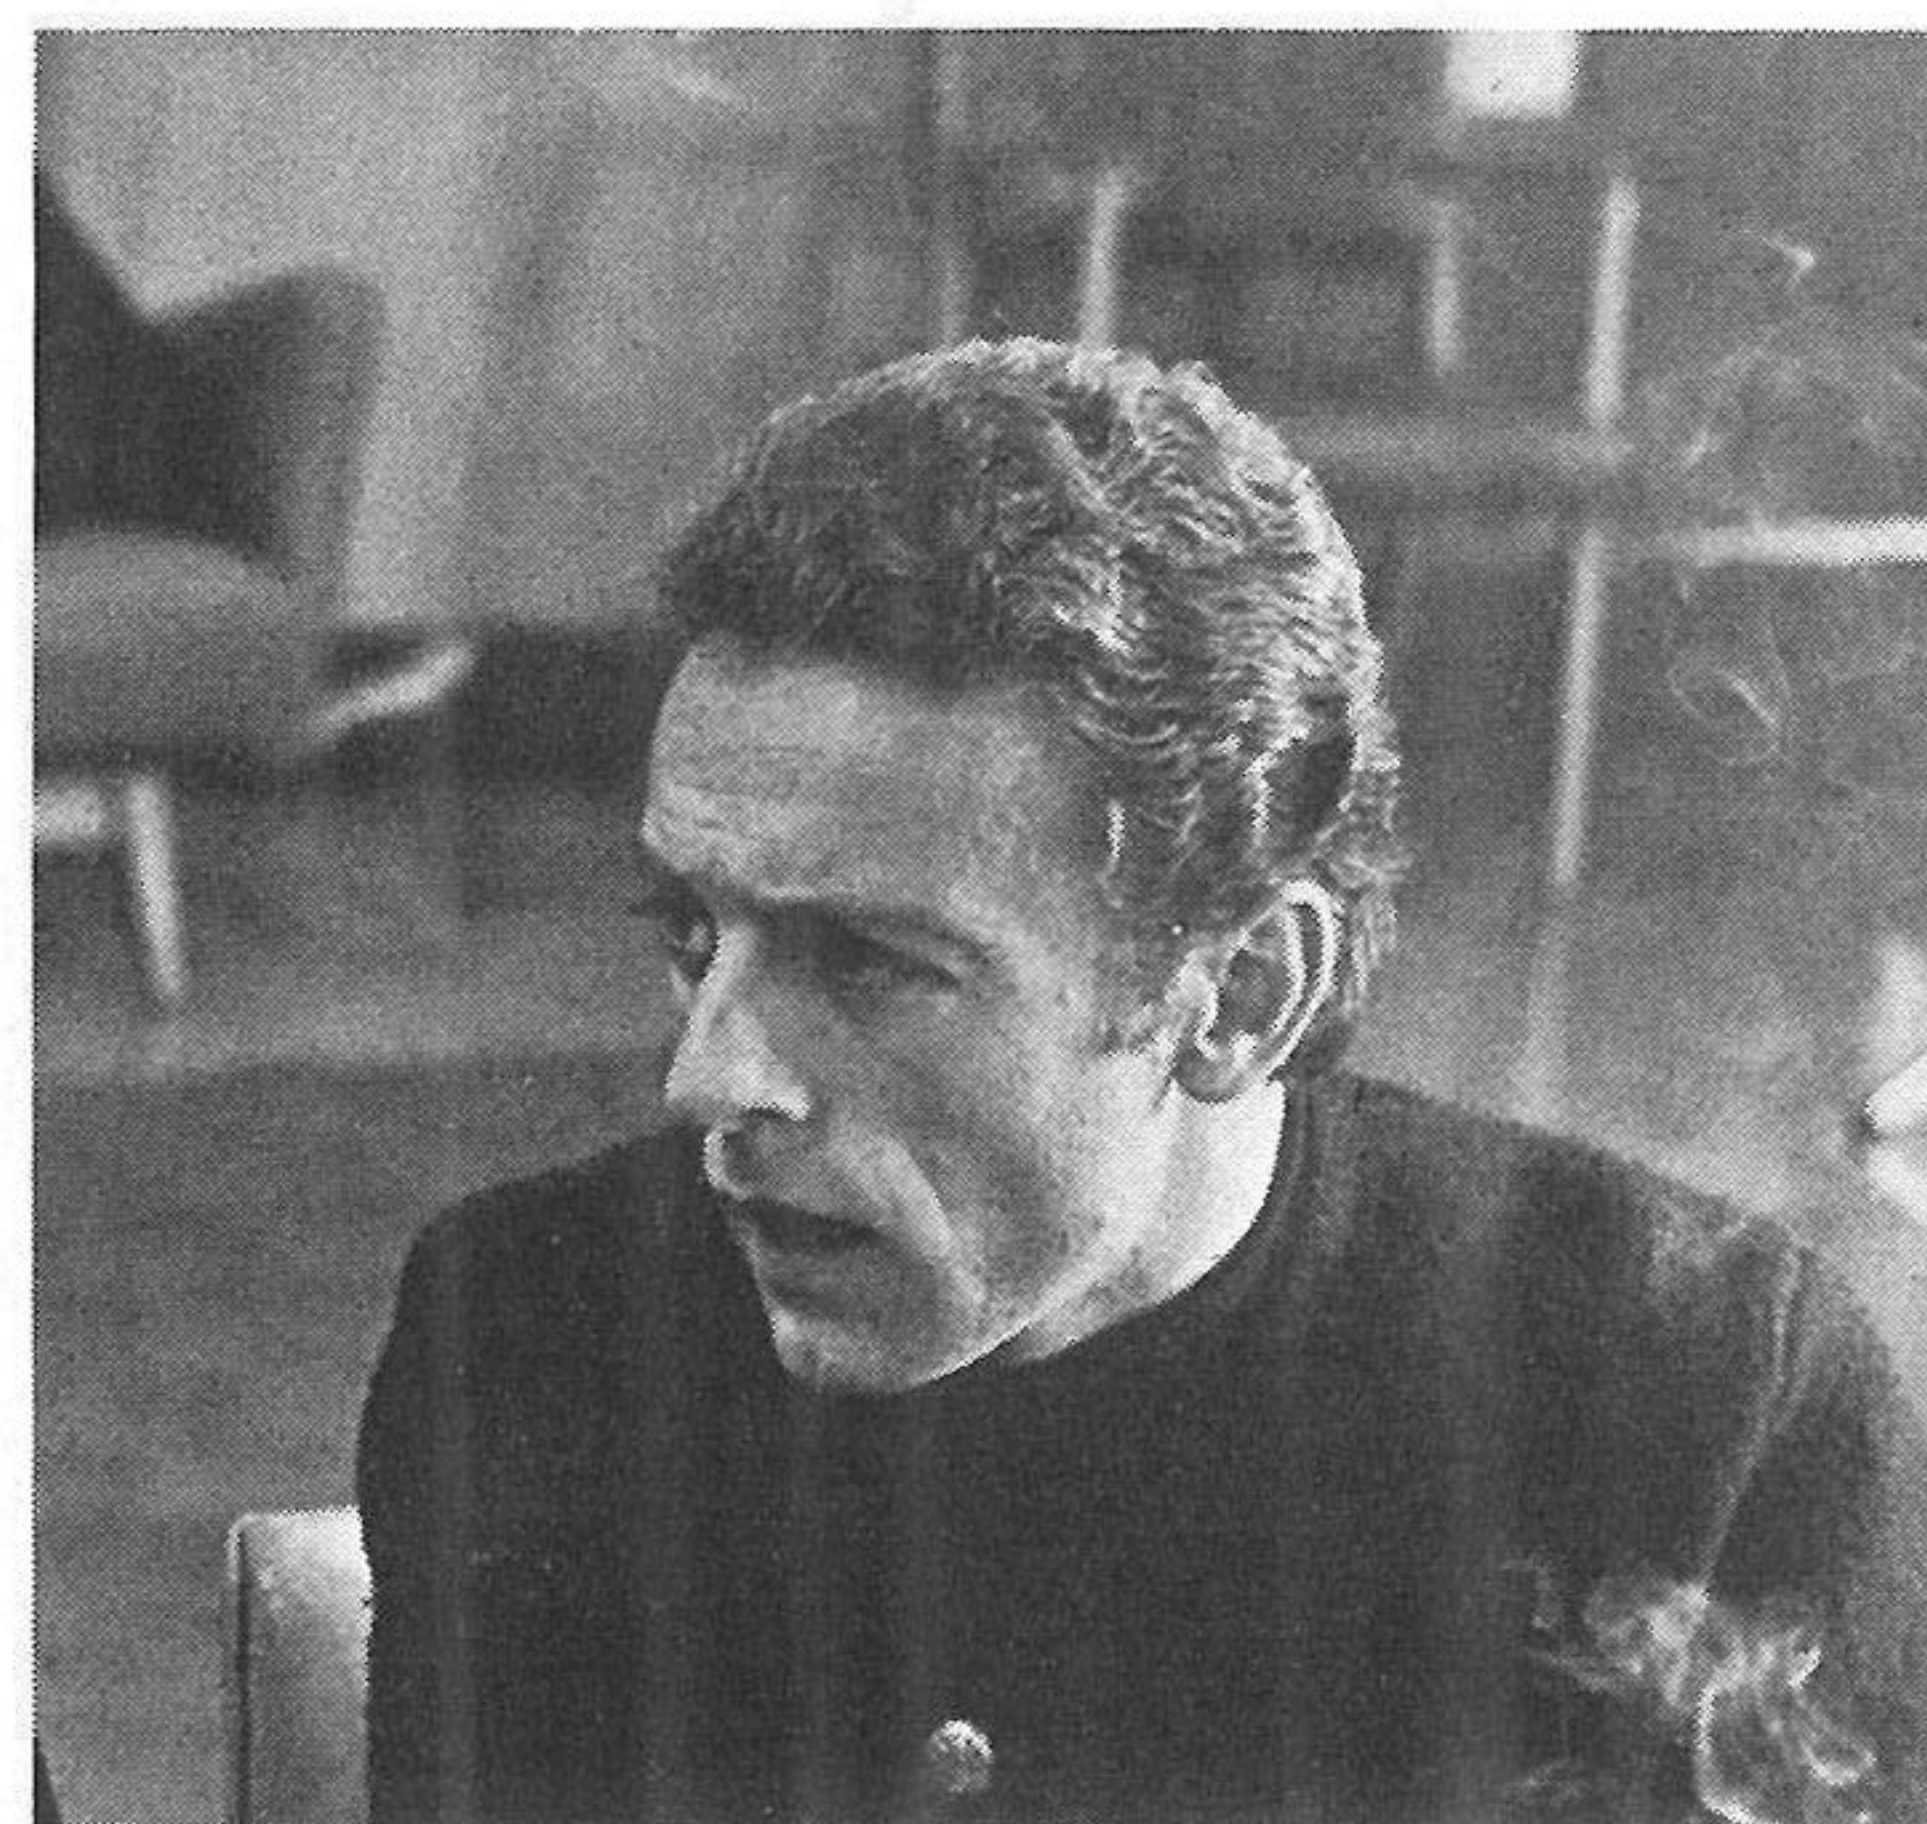

Dr. Chapman, faculty member; Sylvia Johnson, secretary; Bob Hall, Young Democrats representative; Kim Knierim, New Conservatives representative; Gary Tripp, Young Republicans representative; Richard Semke, president; Terrance Kelly, 1st vice president; Ray Hendrickson, Objectivists representative; Jim Jones, Vietnam Committee representative; Dotty Stratton, activities adviser.

Walk Together, Talk Together Ye People Of The World . . .

Weekly informal coffee hours featured such varied programs as a South African's view of apartheid and a Brazilian's rendition of bossa nova music.

"Fun and friendship are the roads to international understanding." This was the guideline for the UW chapter of People-to-People this year in planning their many and varied activities.

Under the direction of Karen Hermanson, programs were planned to promote the exchange of customs and ideas. "Brothers" and "sisters" viewed a Husky football game together and sponsored a hayride, a snow weekend and a picnic.

In February, the International Show at the Seattle Opera House climaxed an International Fortnight of cosmopolitan activities.

American "brothers" and "sisters" were assigned to each incoming foreign student at the beginning of the year.

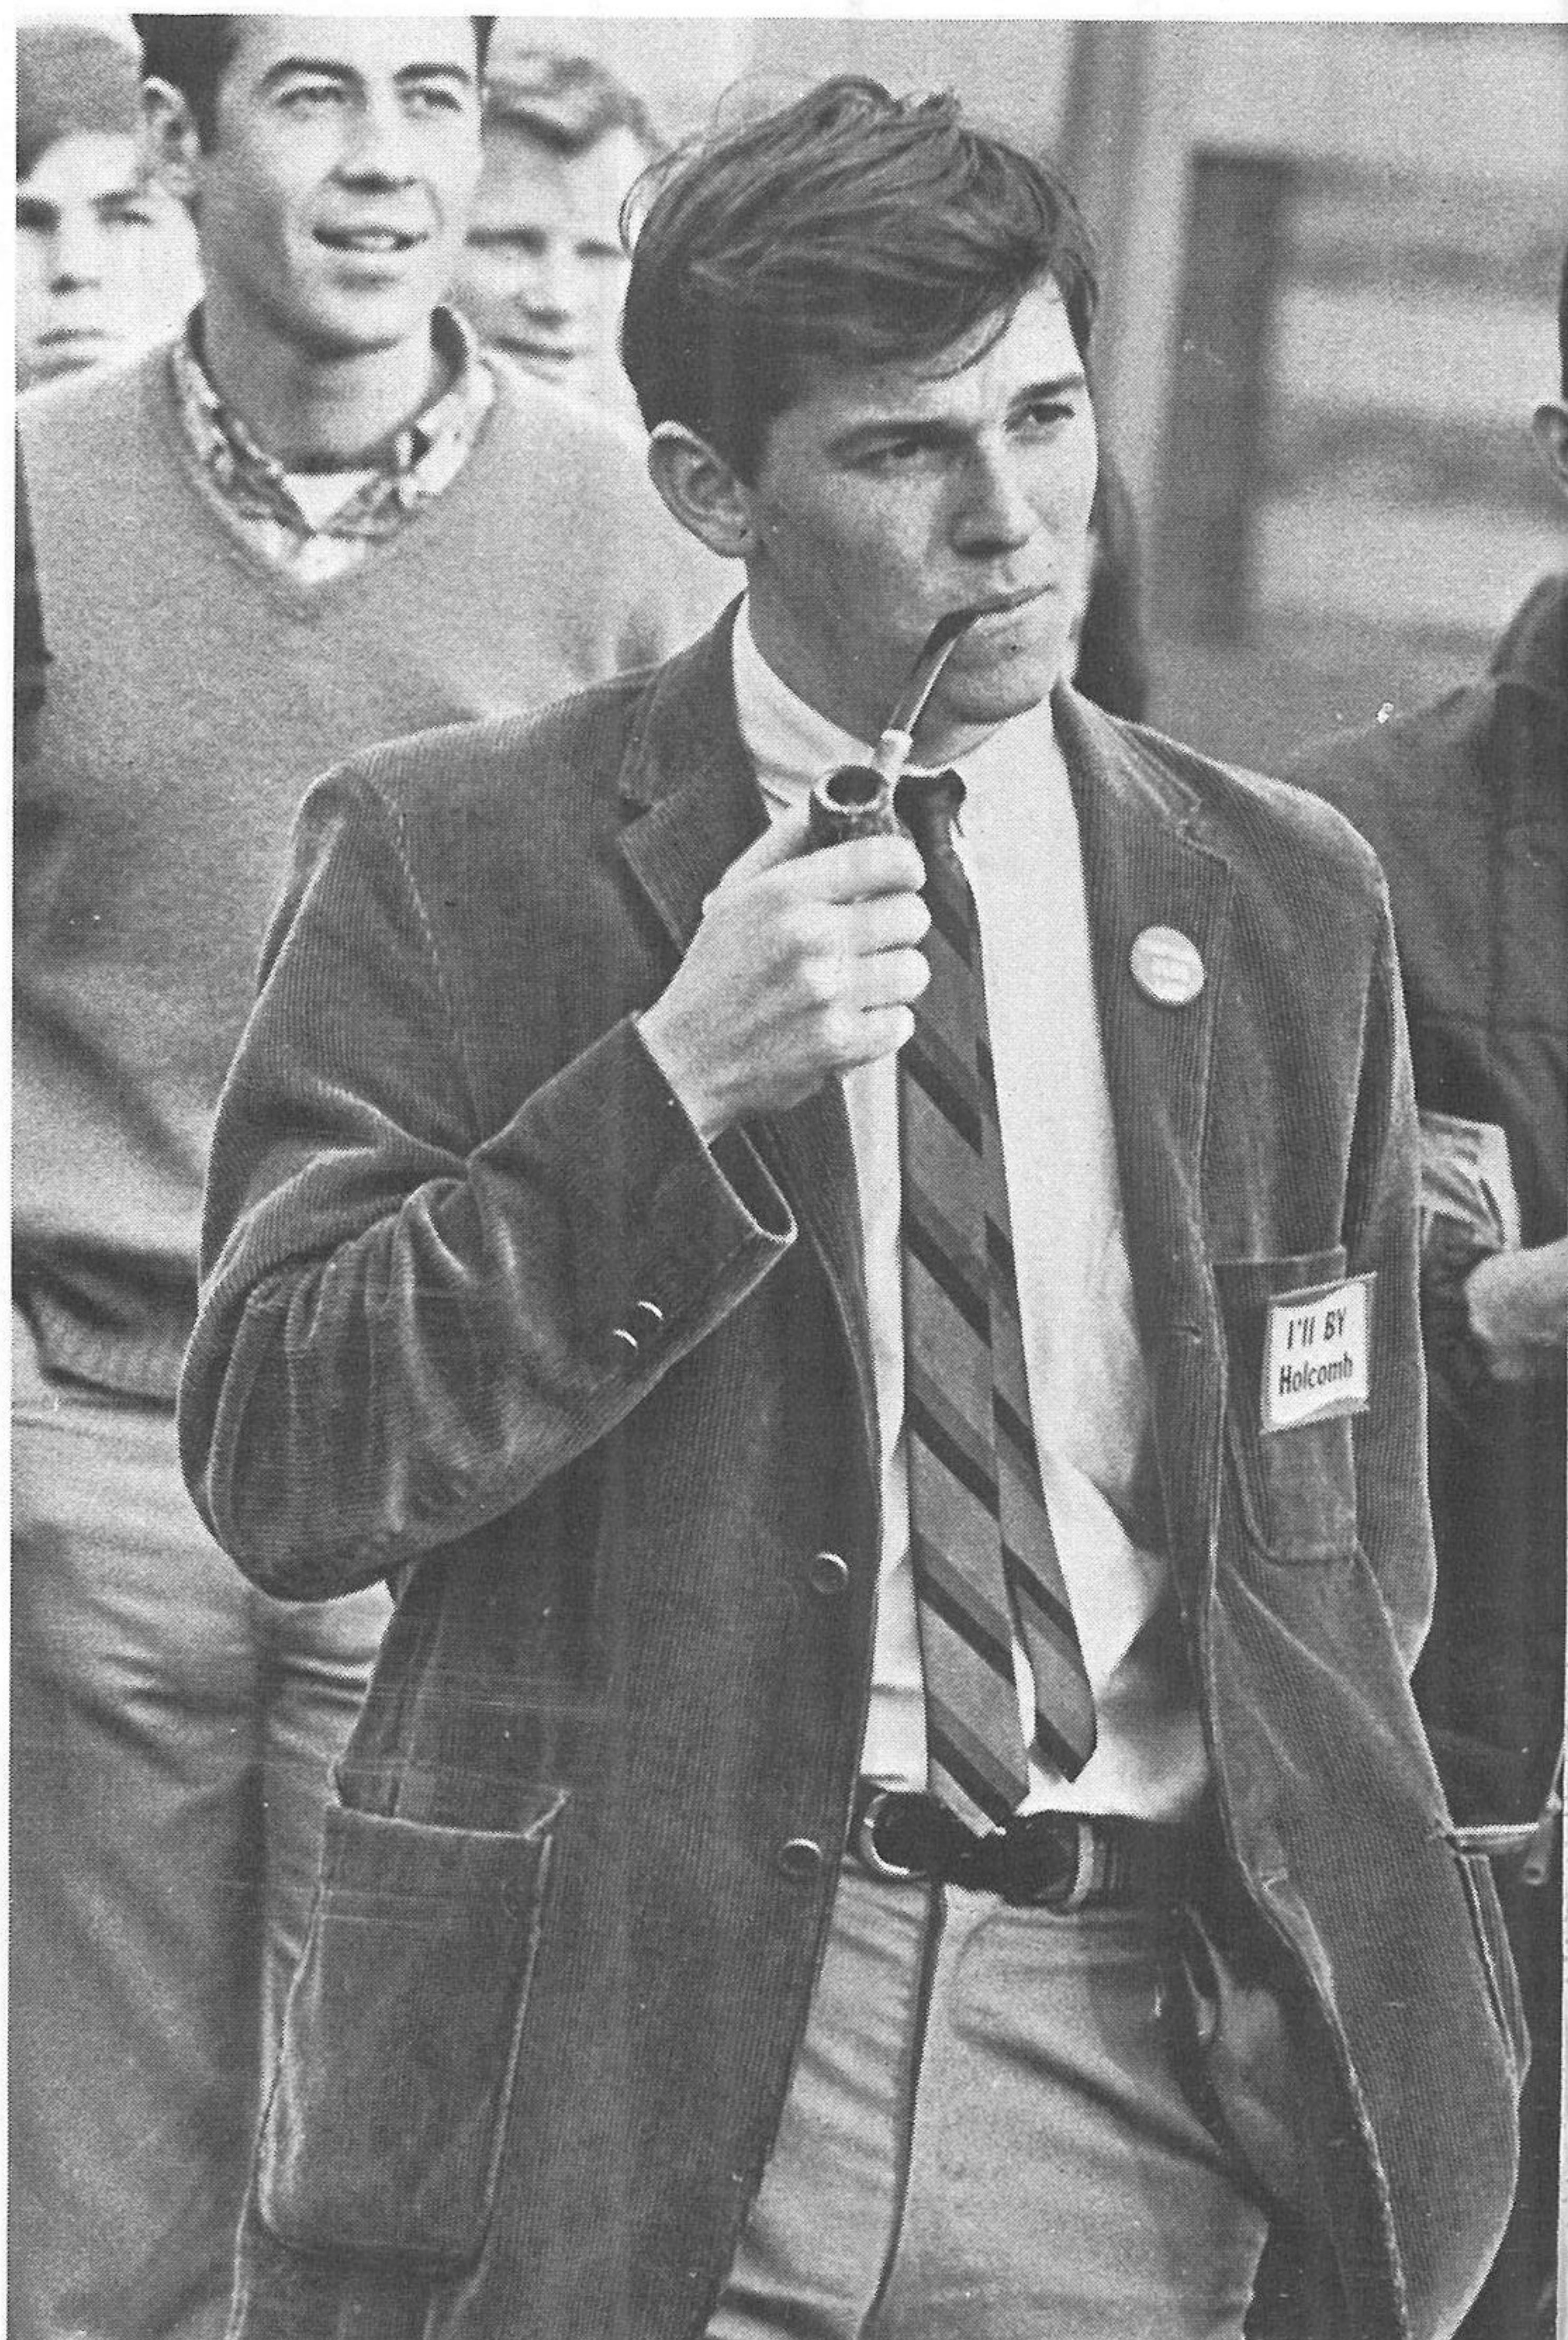

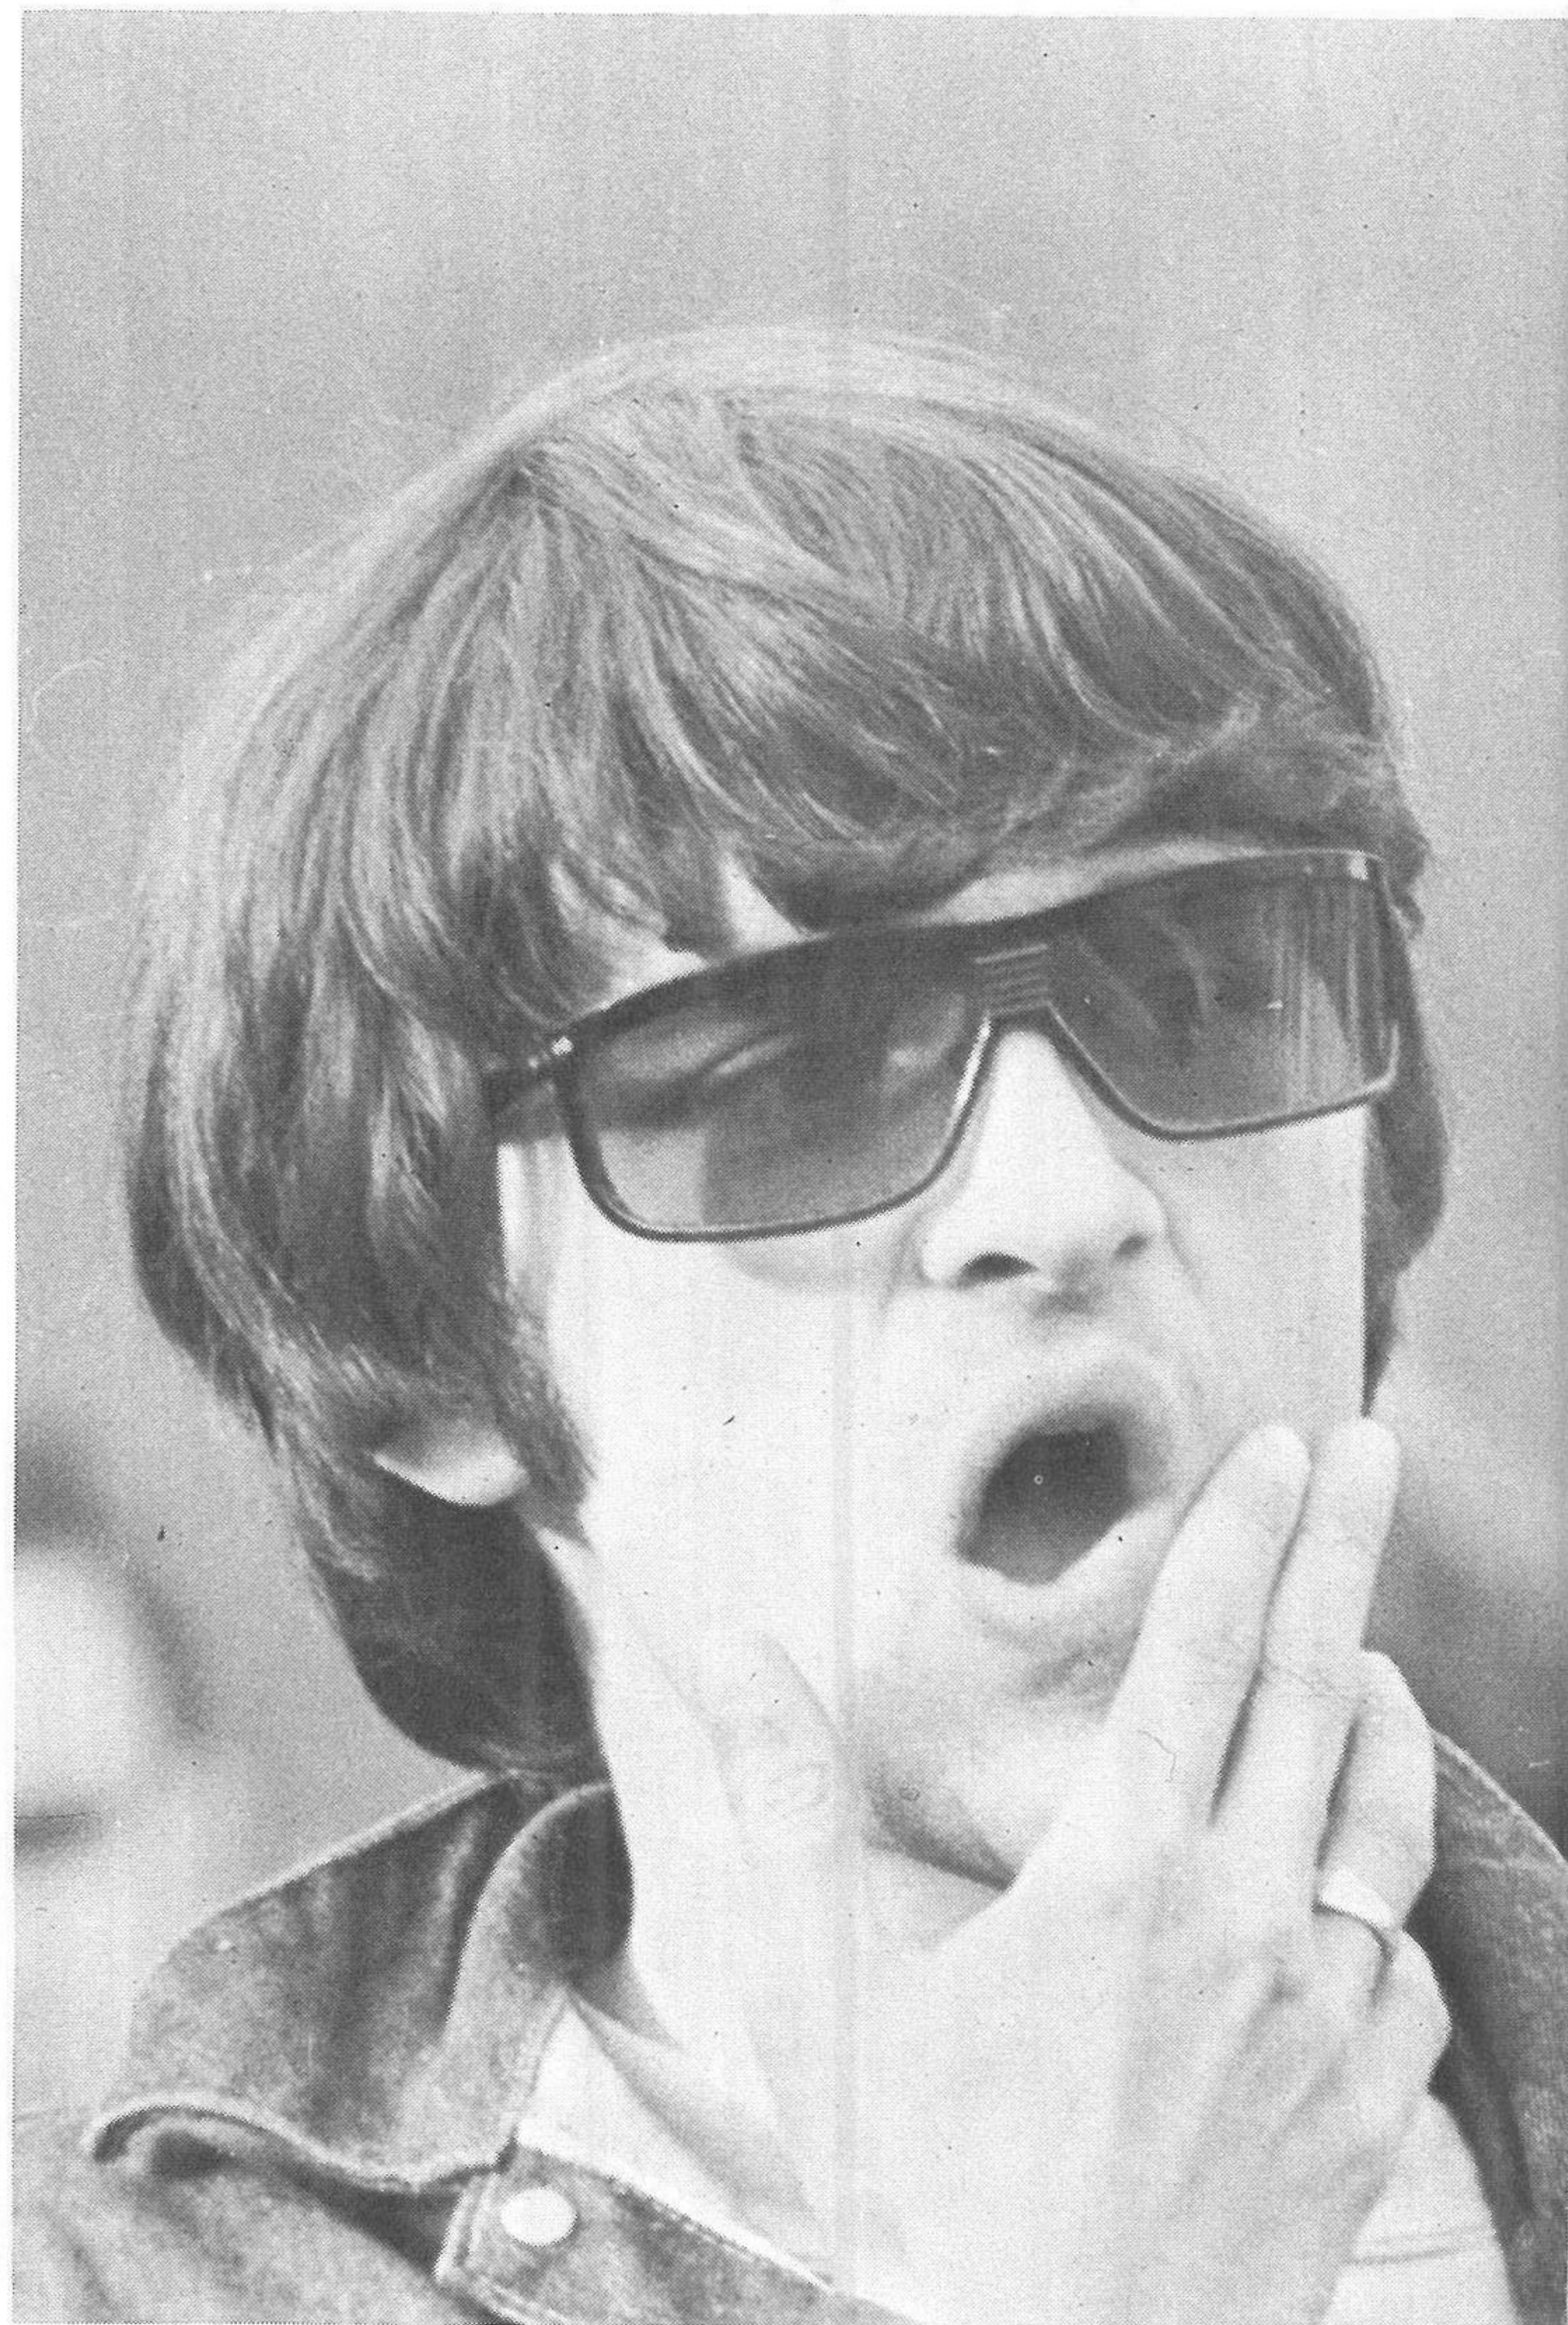

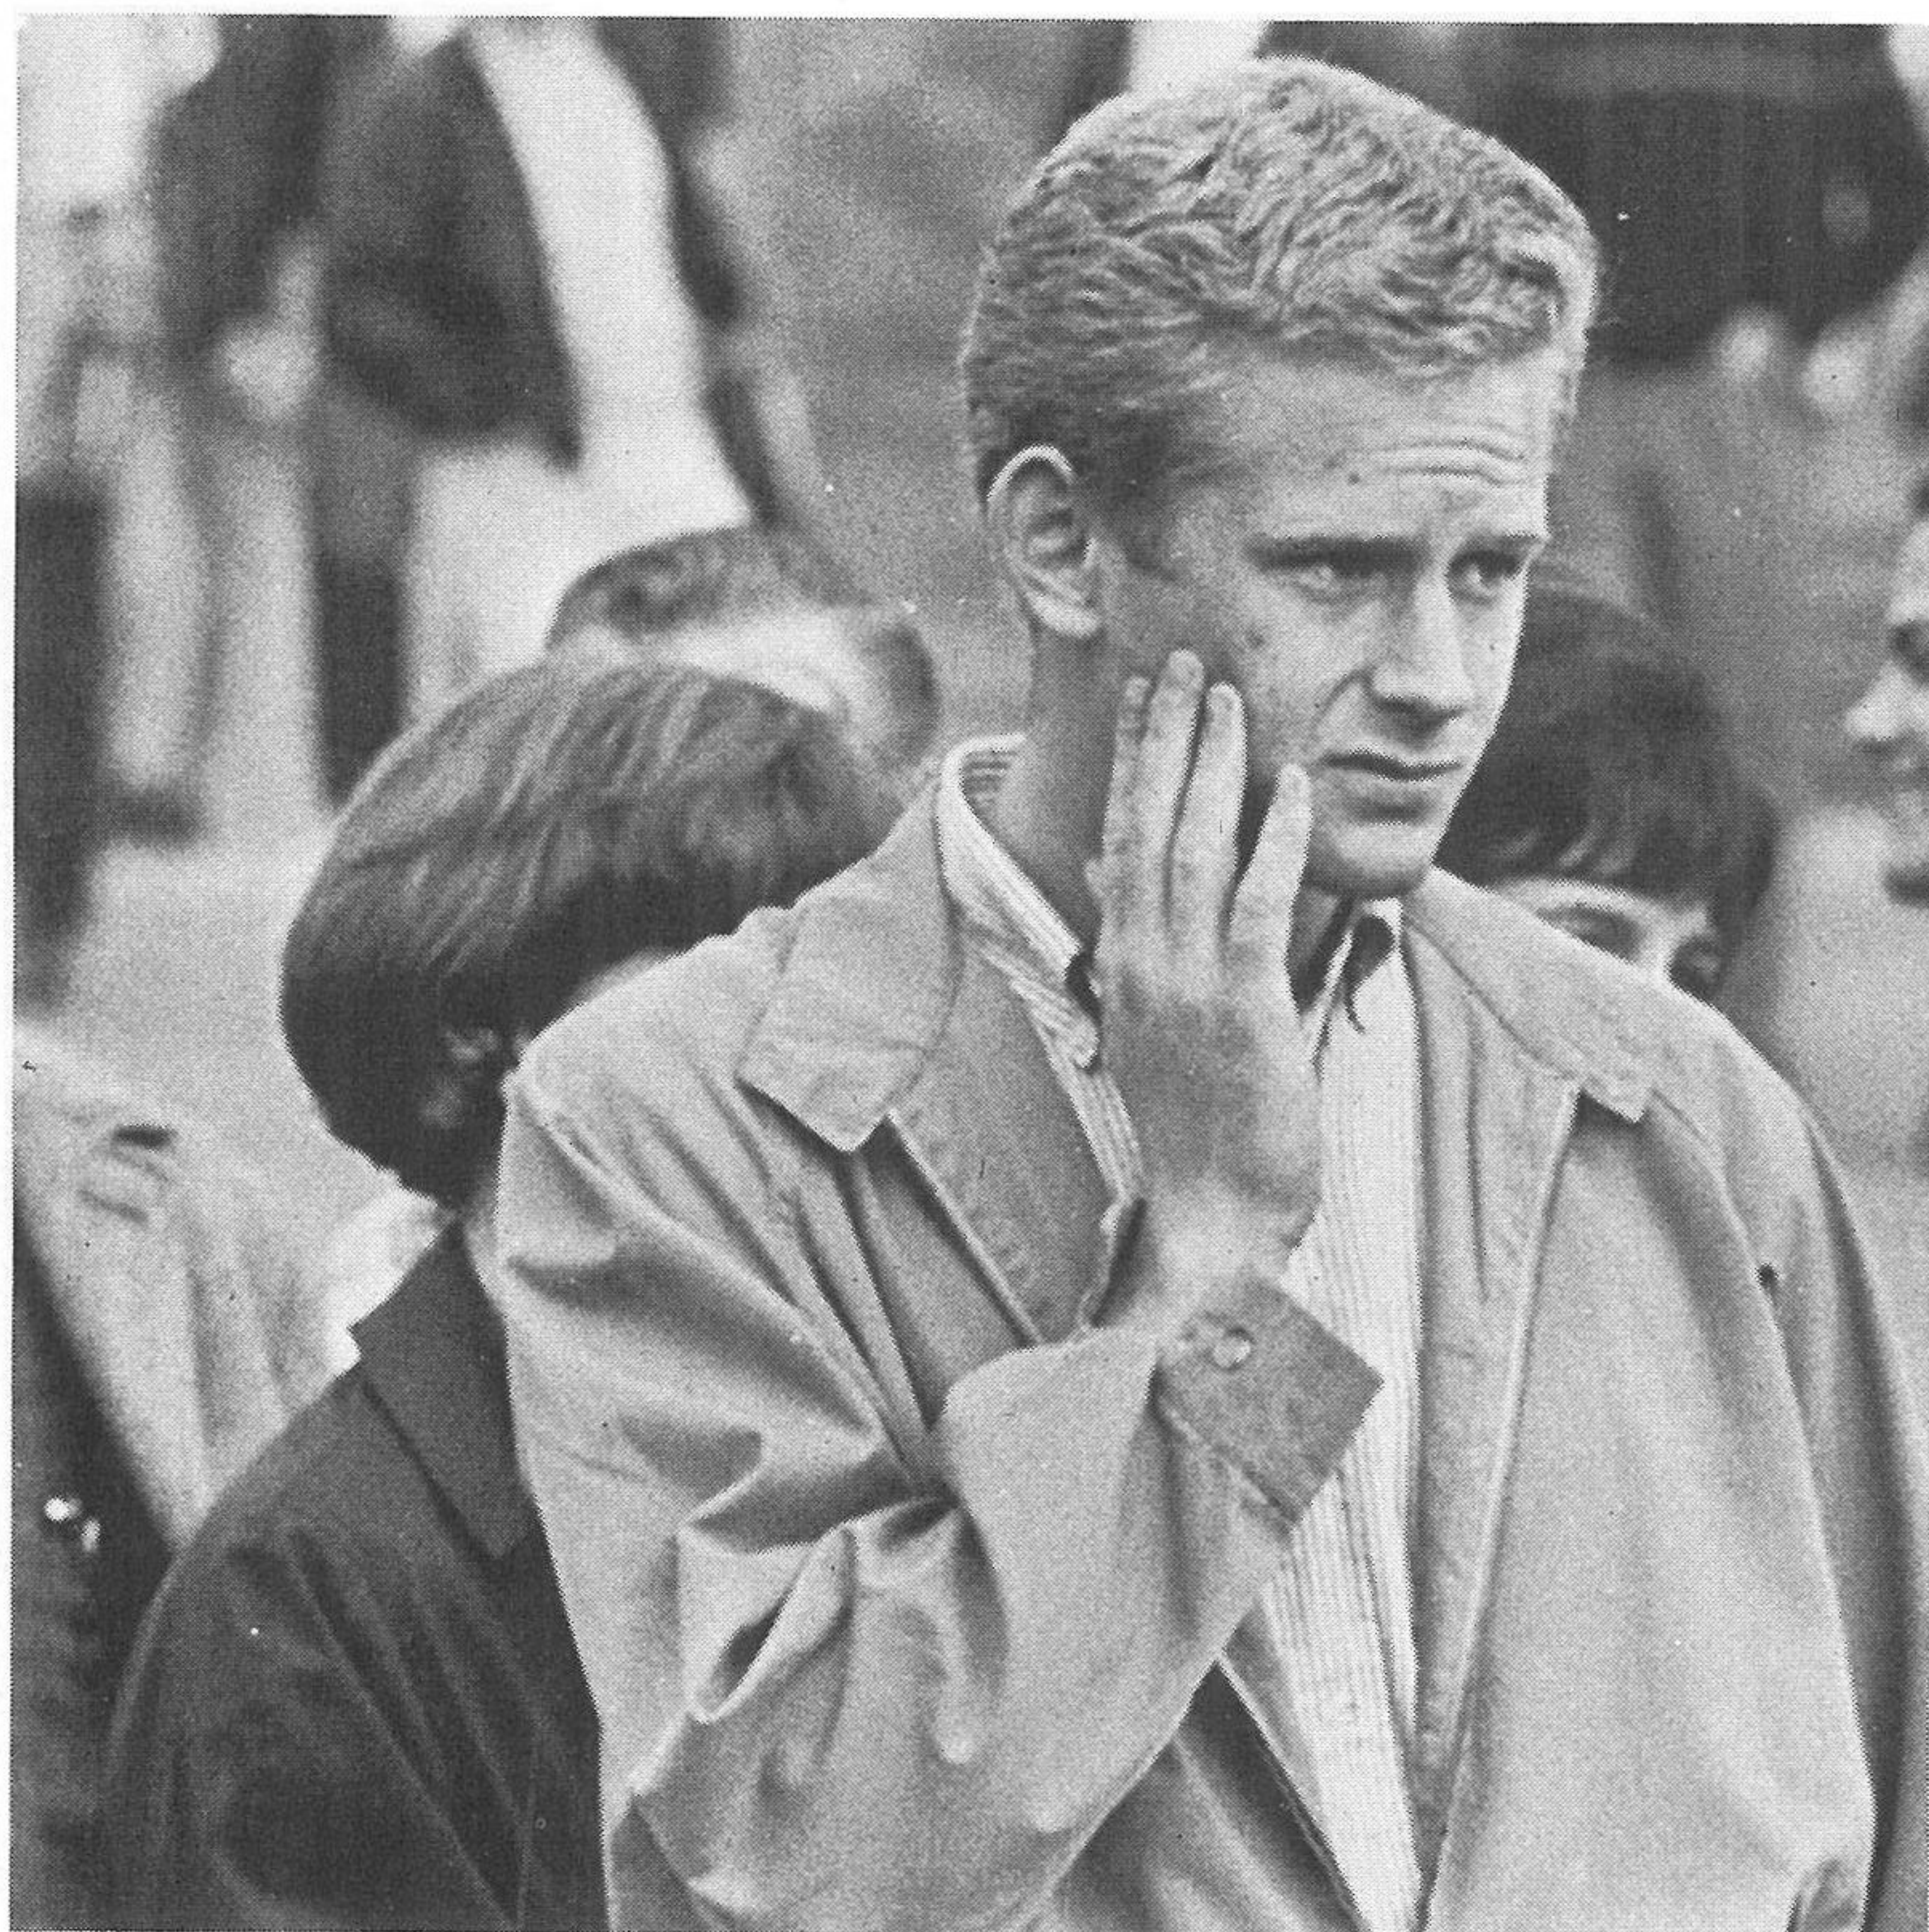

International students with all degrees of dexterity learned to folk dance on Tuesday nights.

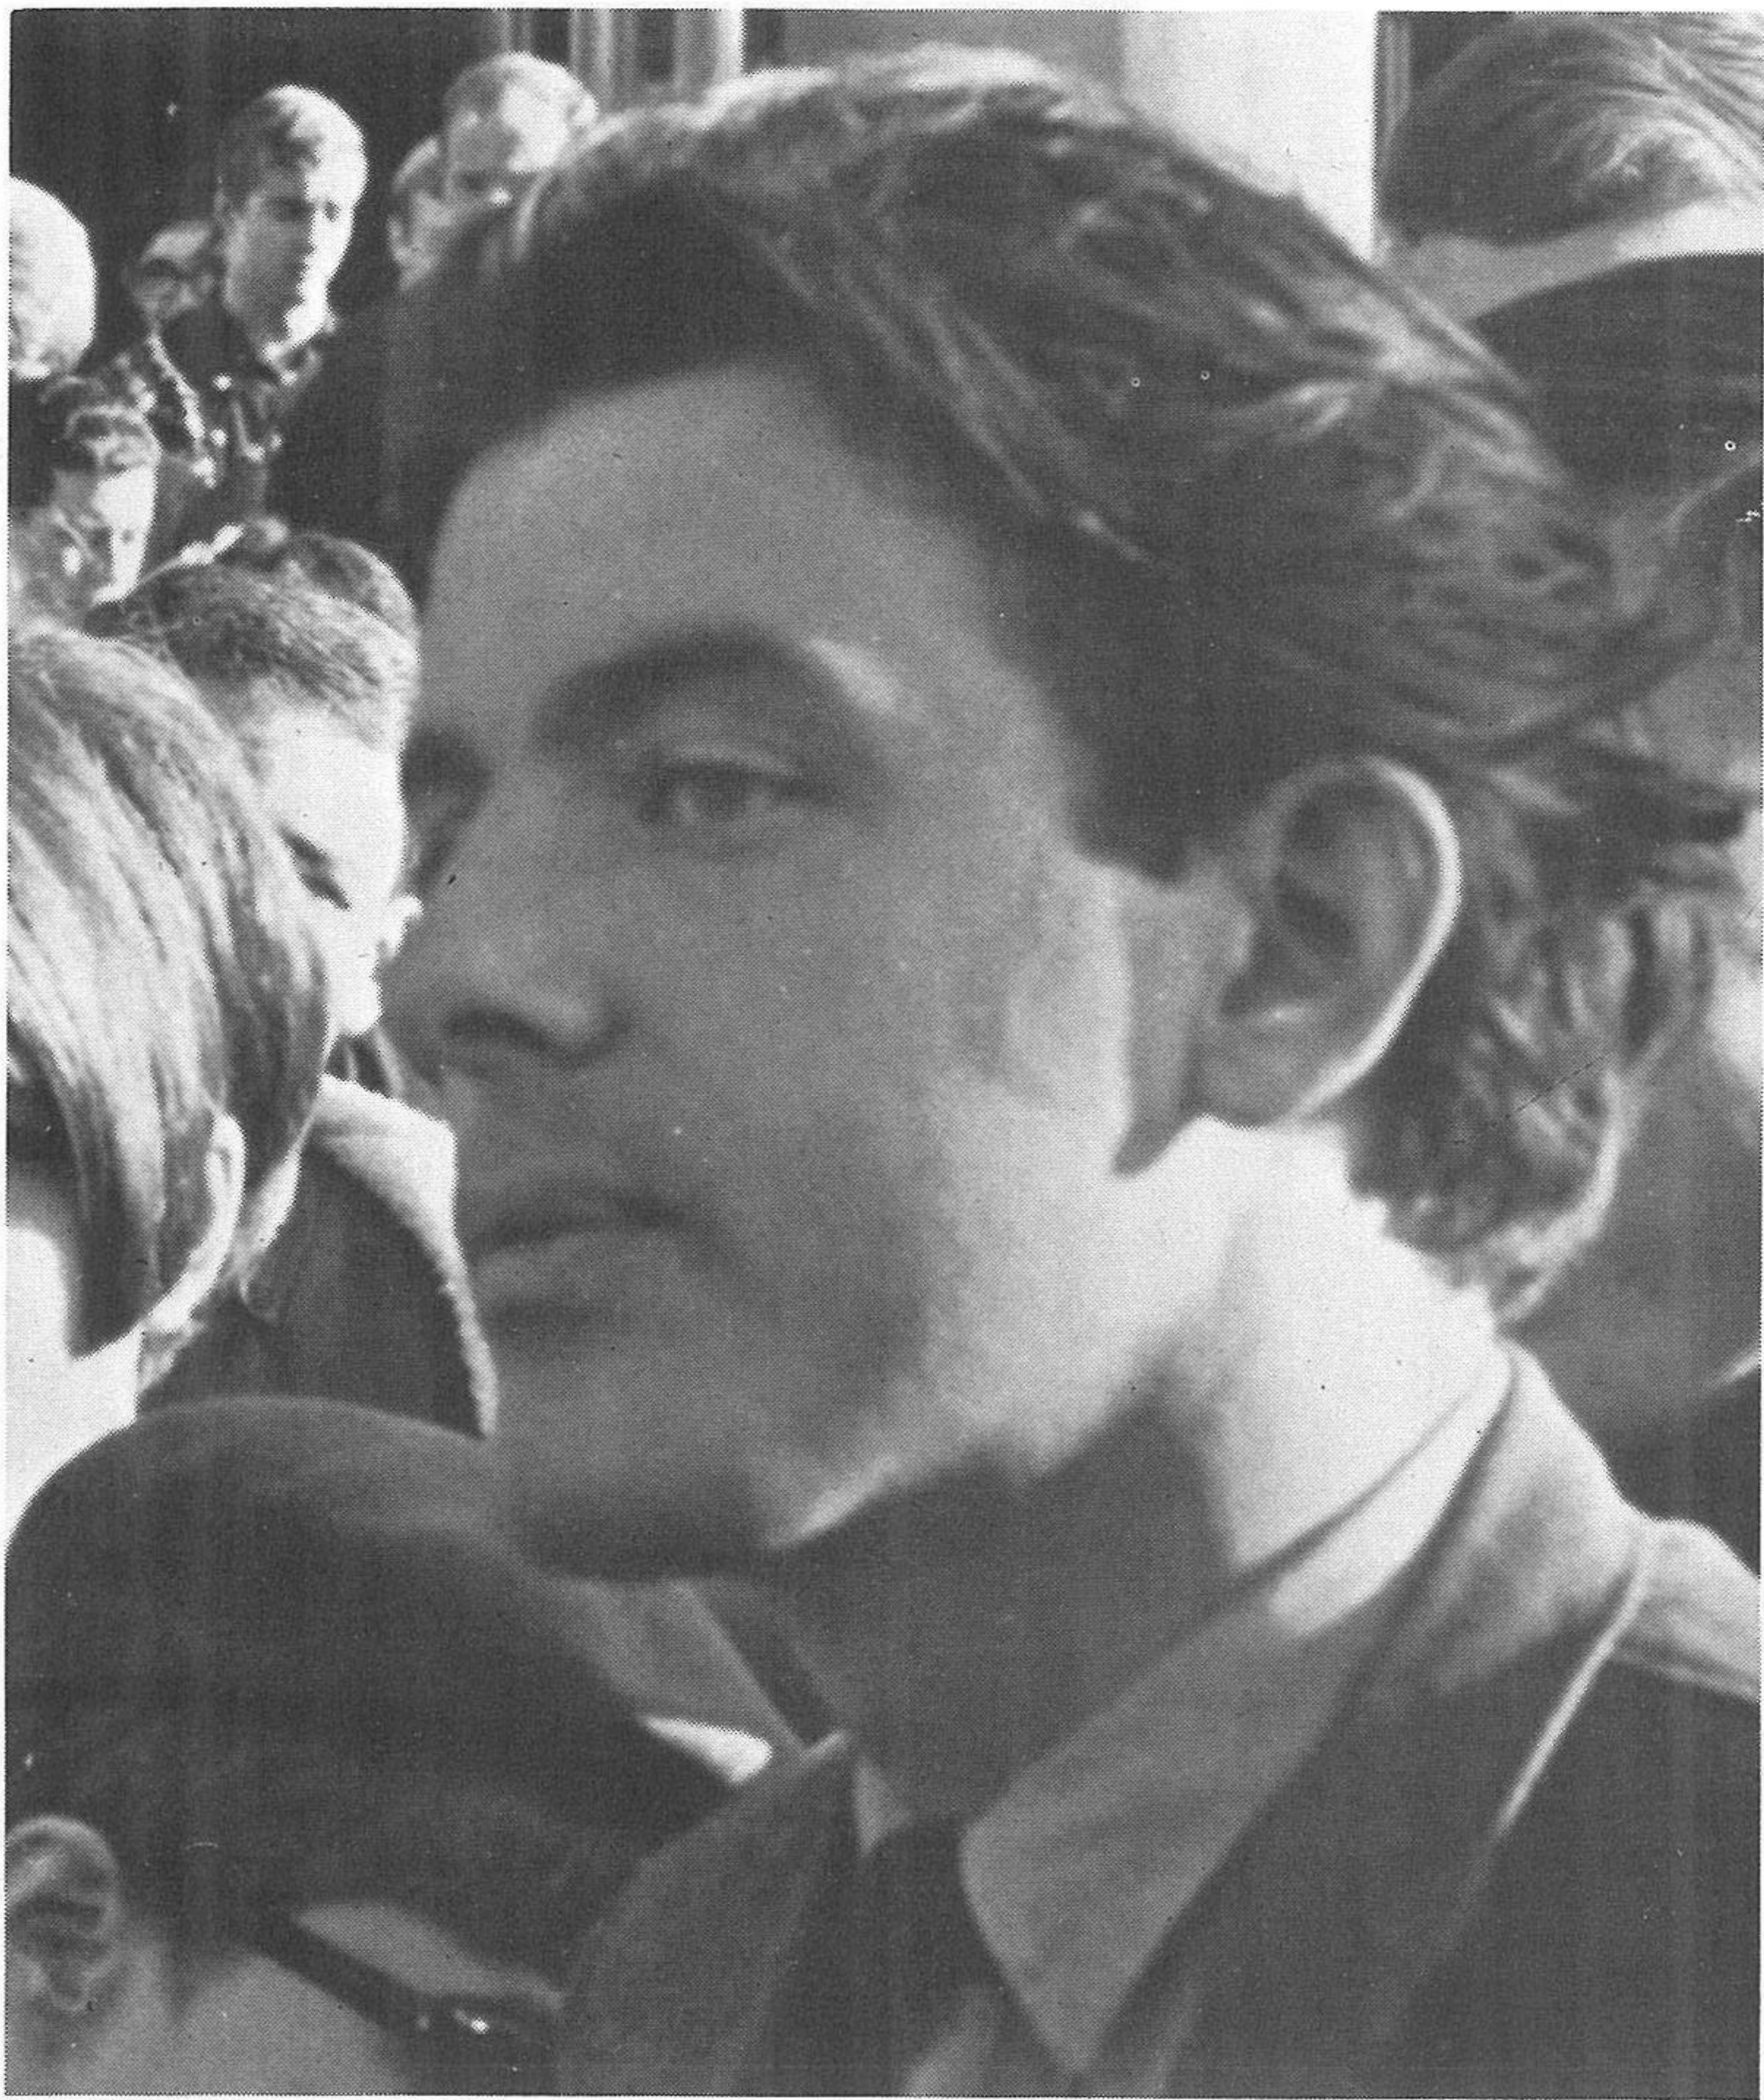

Open Forum Focuses On Viet War, The 'Pill,' Draft

"My gripe is . . ."

With this opening line, students flocked to each Tuesday's Open Forum on the front lawn of the HUB. Airing complaints from atop a Hyde Park-type box, self-appointed critics remained impervious to taunts and barbed witticisms hurled from an audience which often exceeded 300.

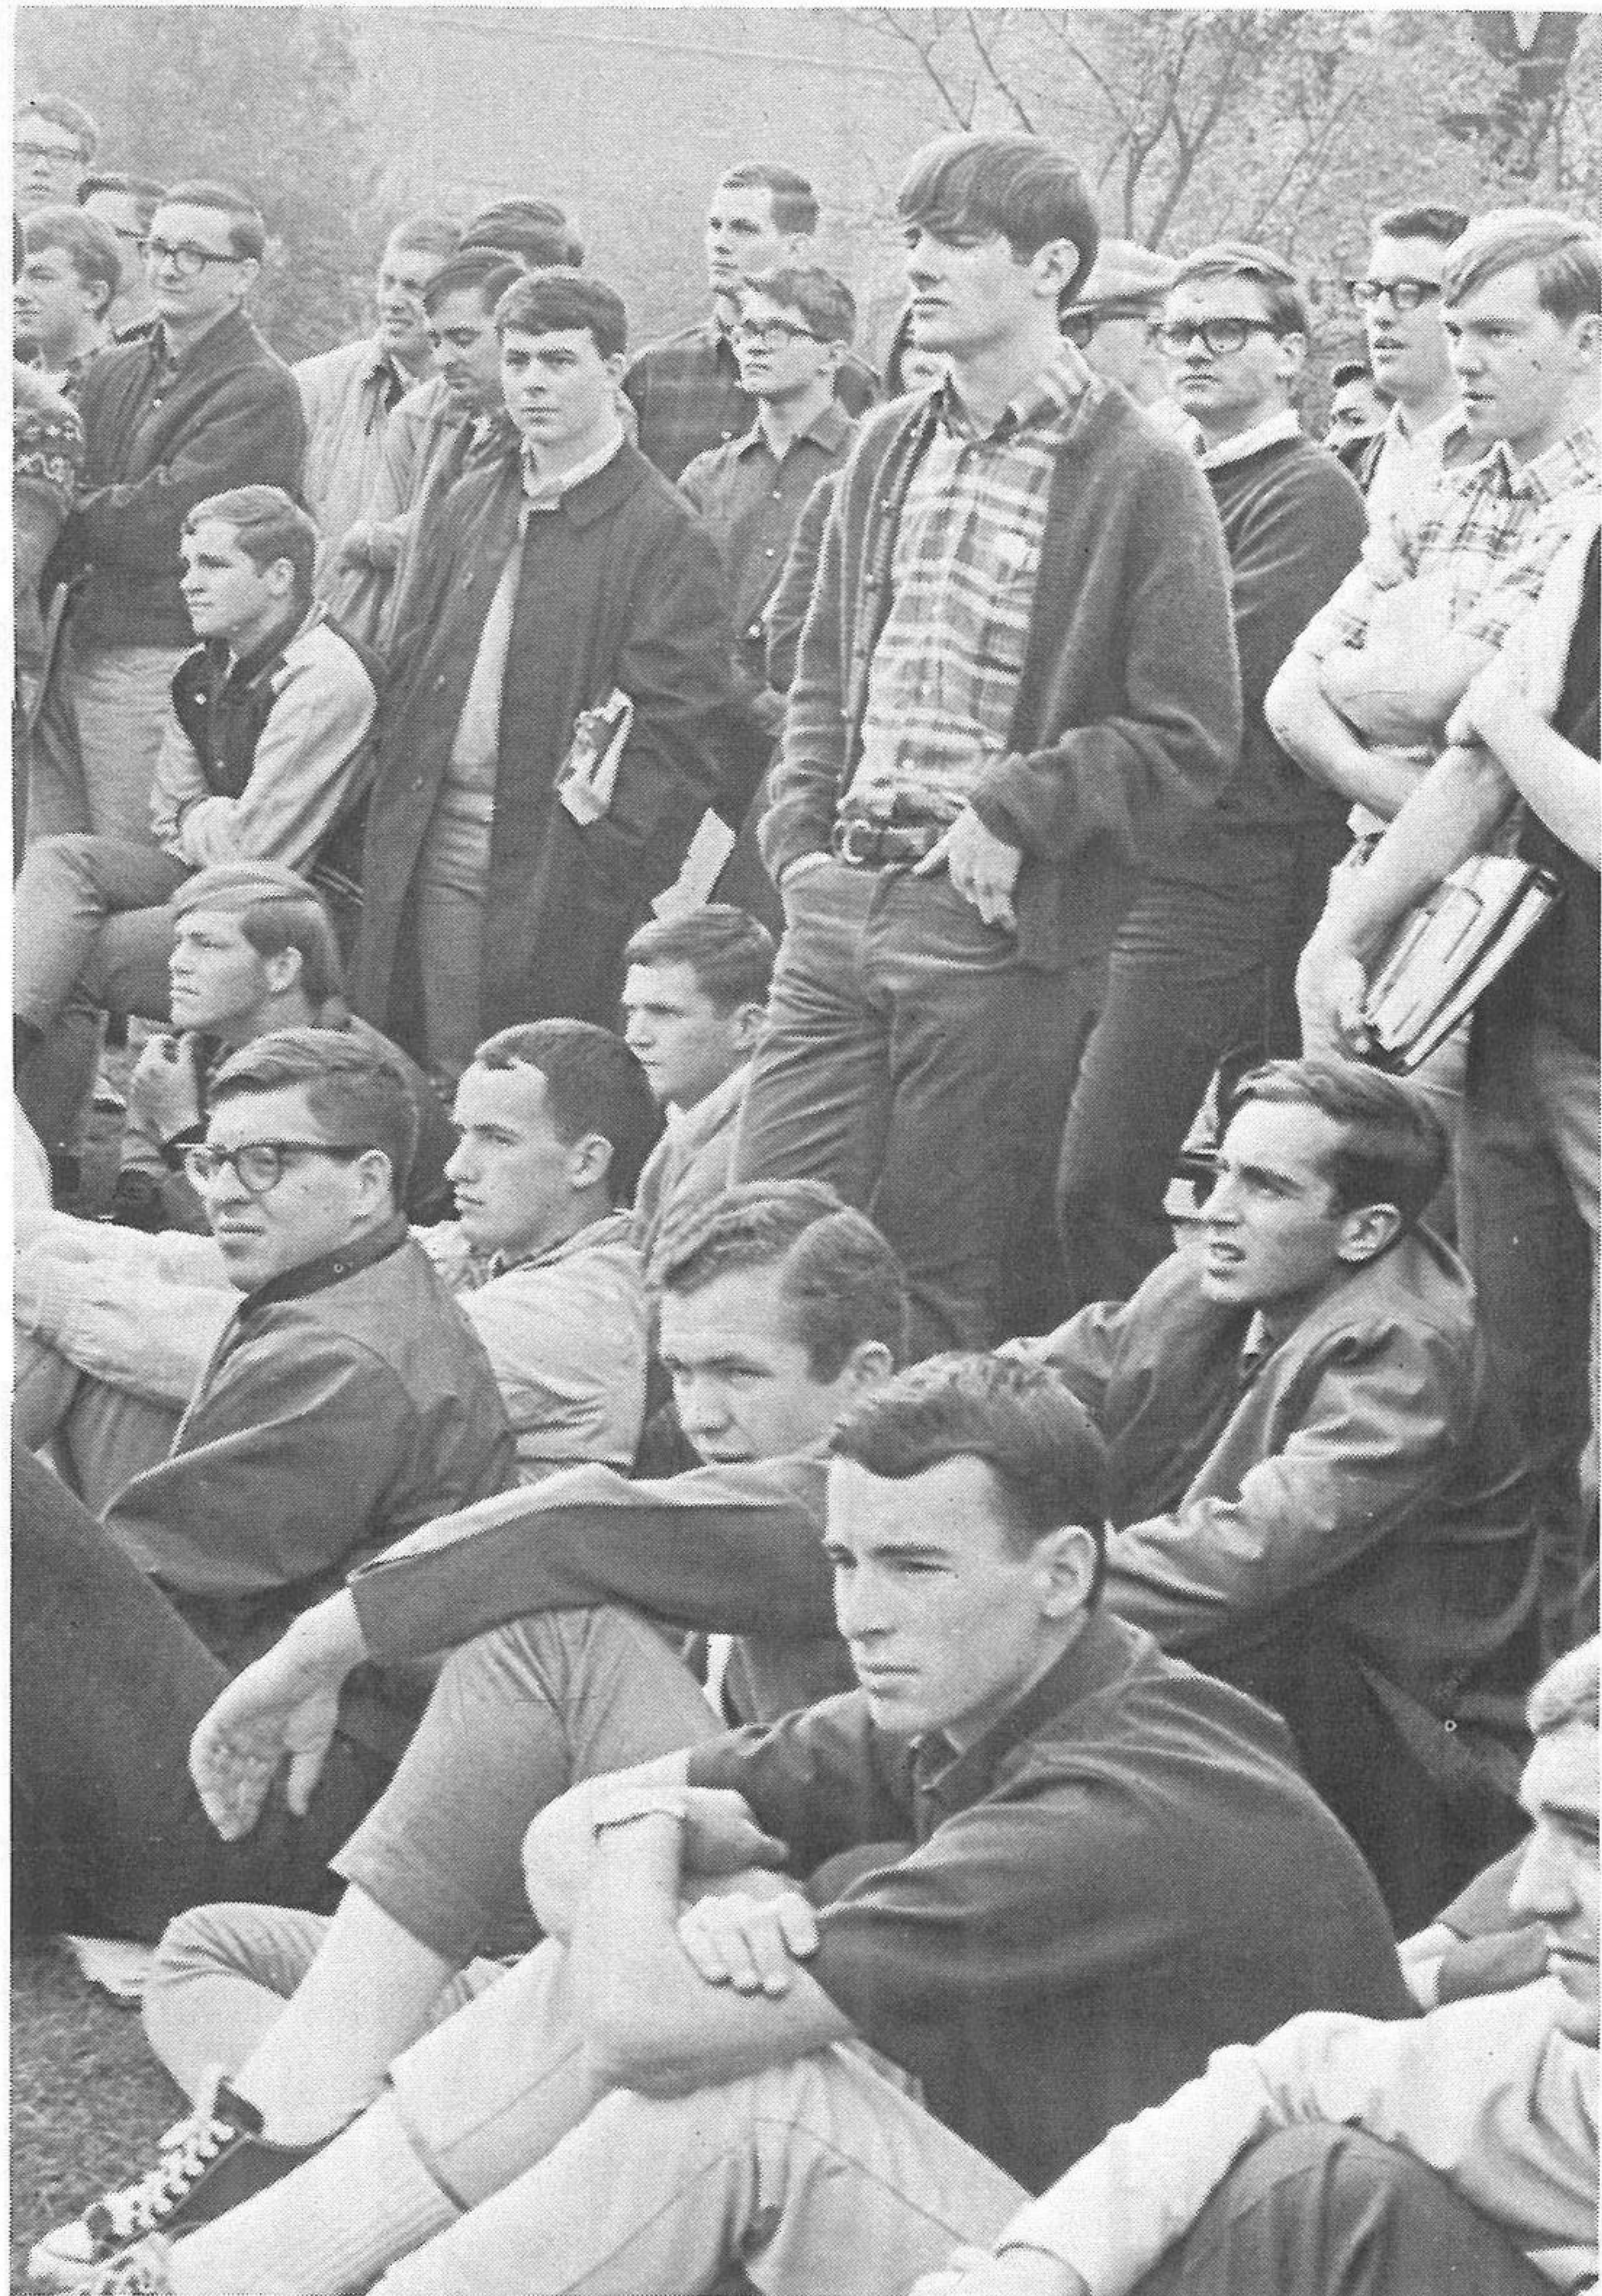

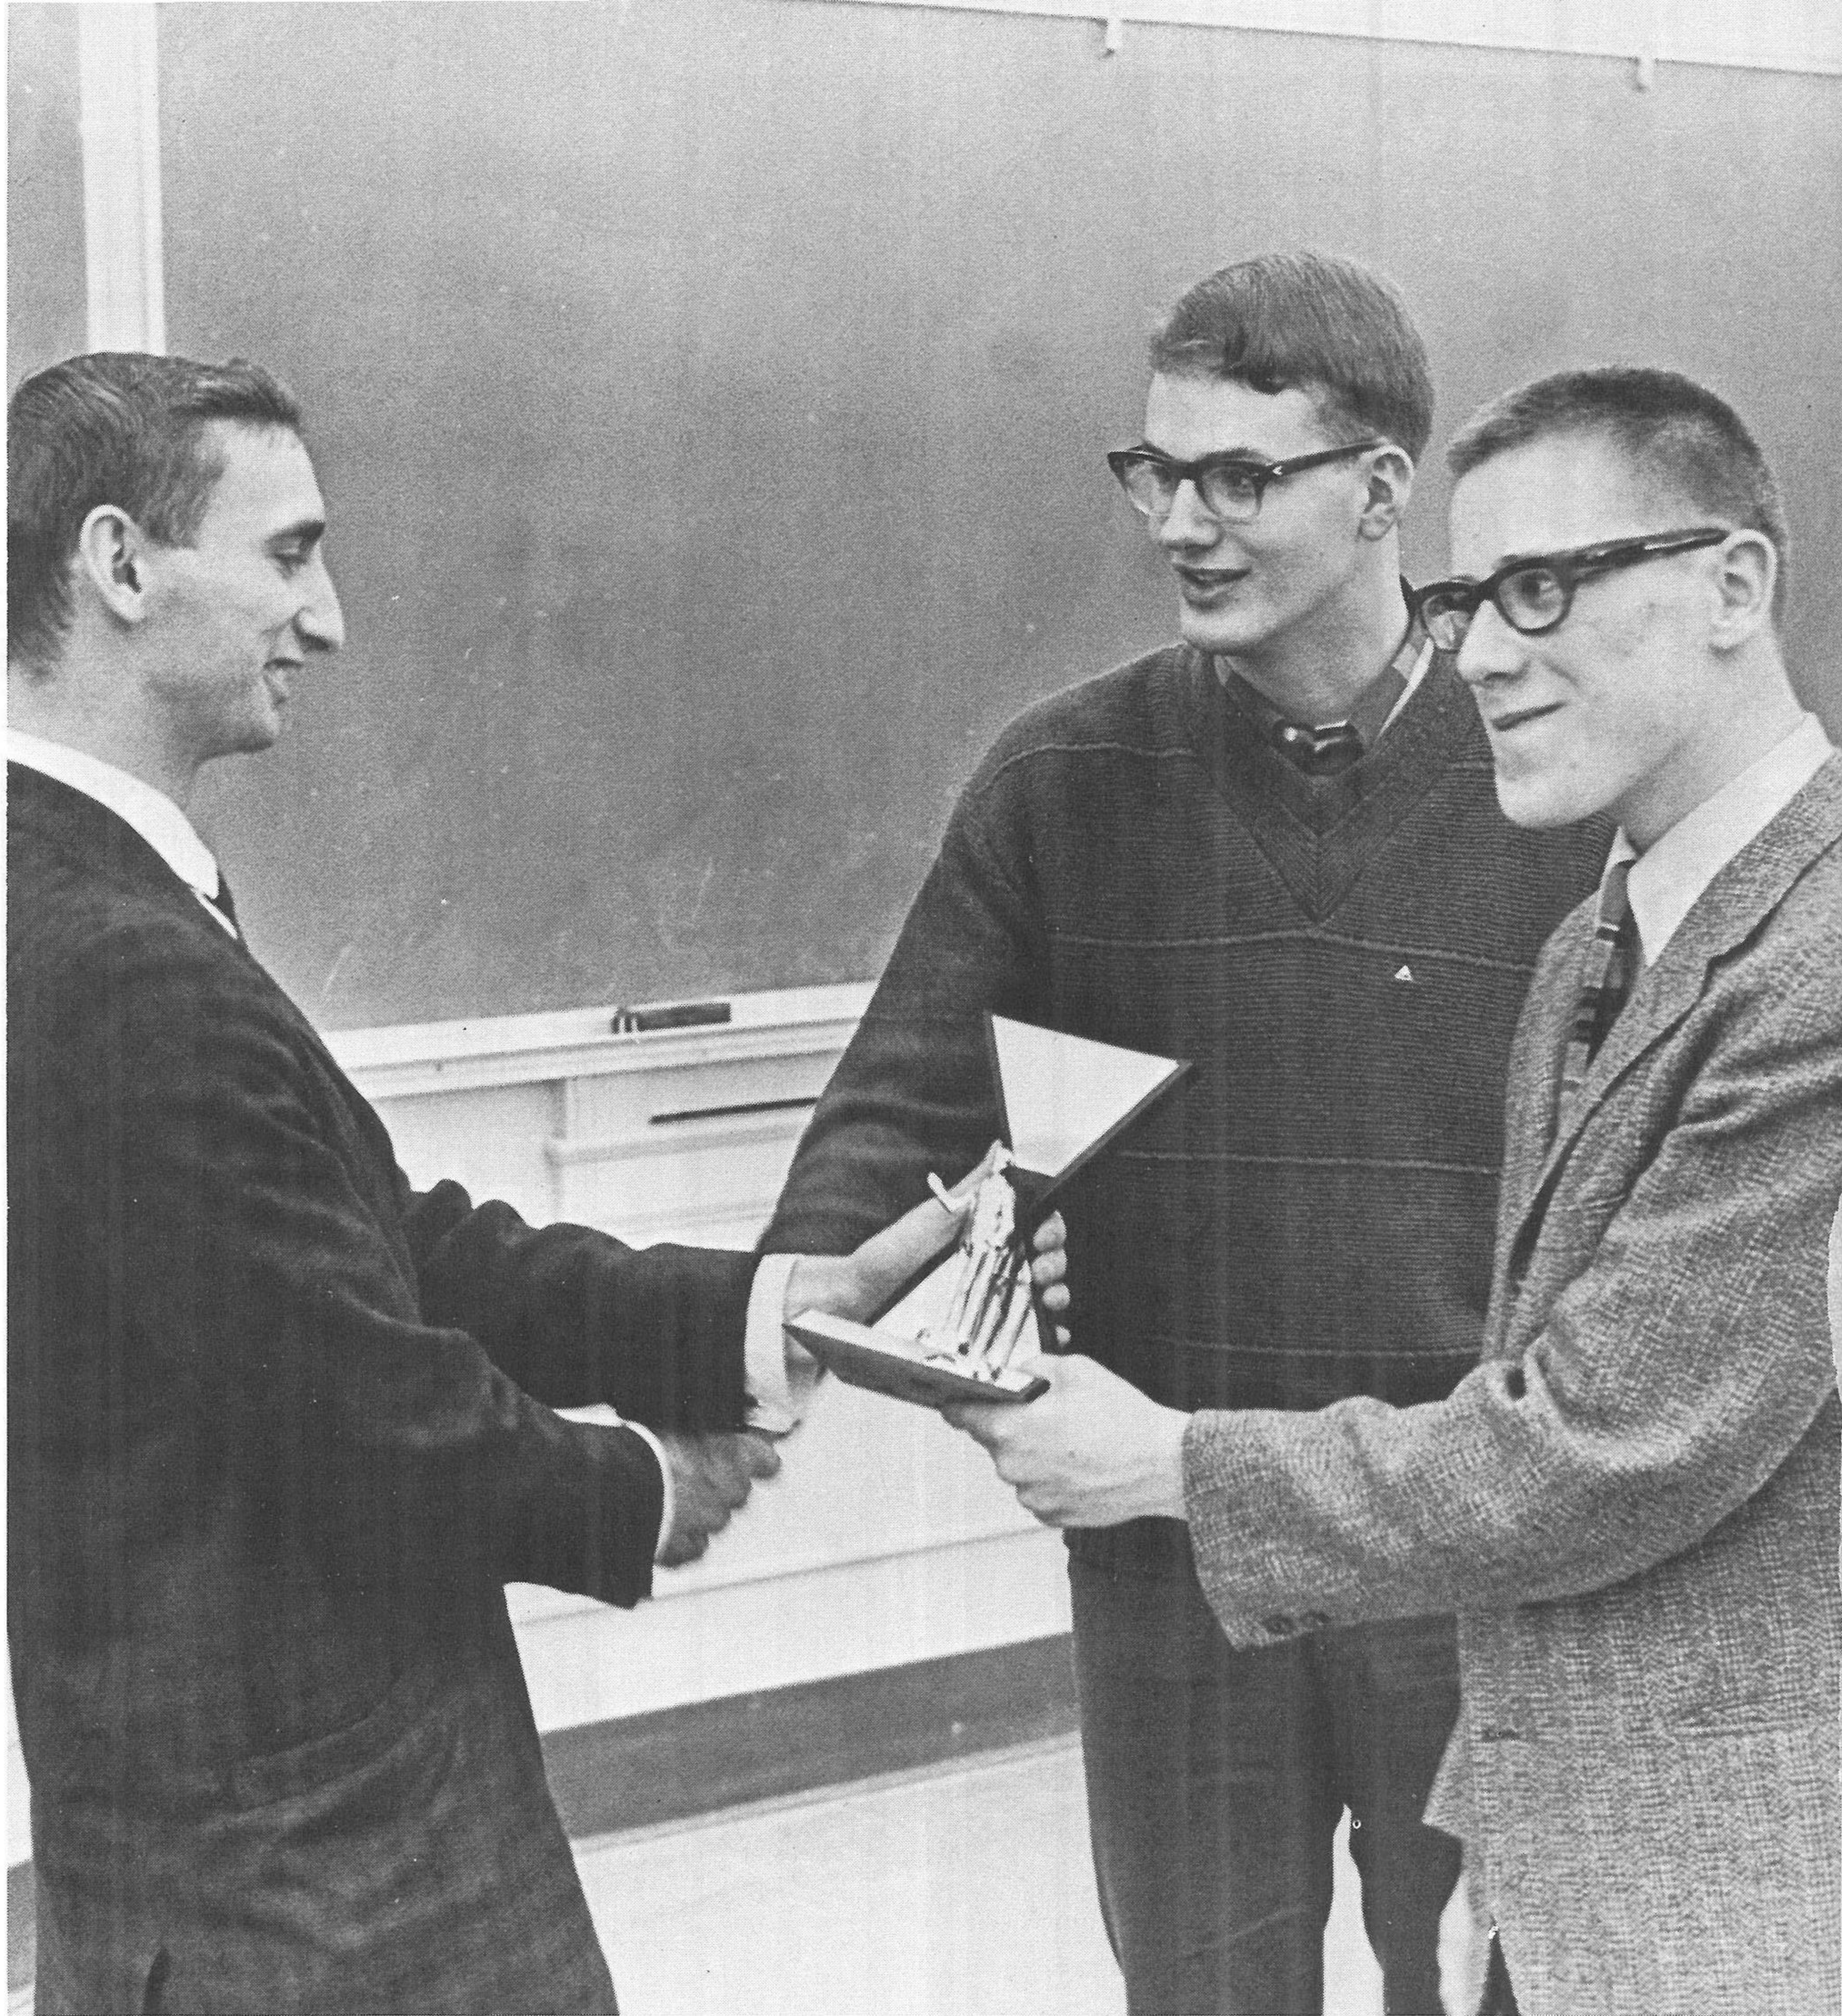

Open Forum style and content range from tirade to passivity, from diatribe and ribaldry to Platonic logic. Topics are unlimited — and those who dare to take the stand are, as well, unlimited in their verbosity and eloquence.

The Vietnam War, the imposed morality and the foreign language requirement have dominated Forum discussions. No takers were found to argue the distribution of contraceptives to unmarried women.

The Peace Corps was called an imperialistic tool. One potential draftee jibed, "Who knows, if I had met the same Viet Cong elsewhere, we might have had a couple of beers together."

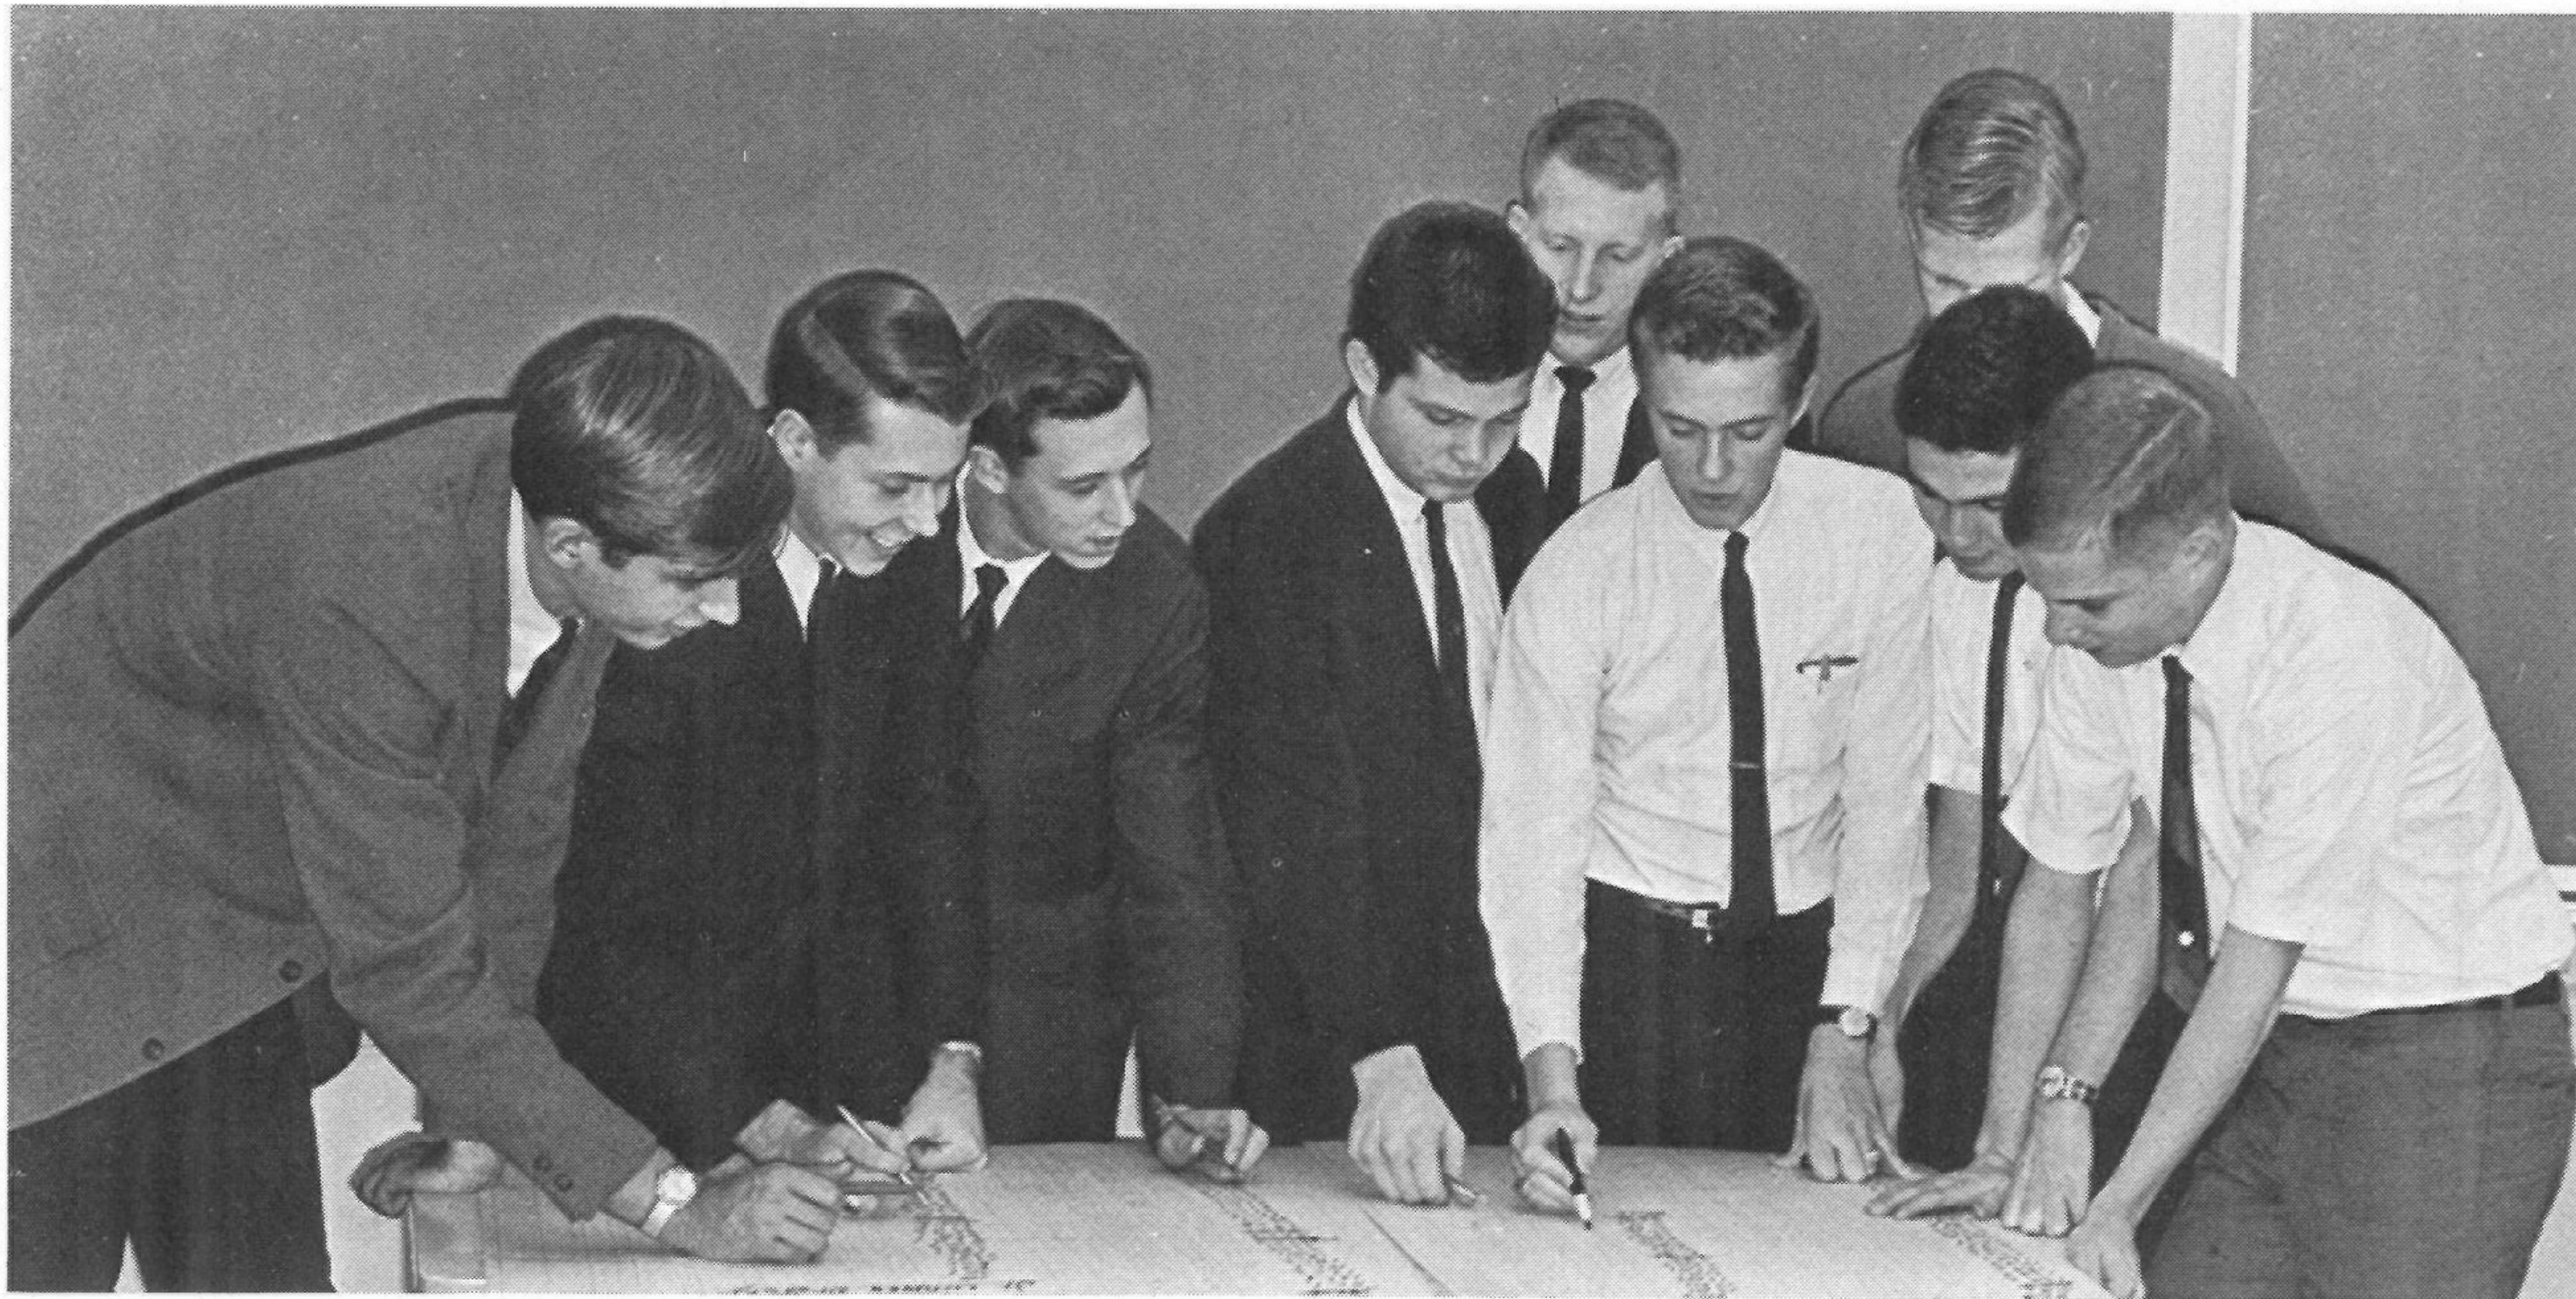

Resolved: Forensic Team Has Good Year

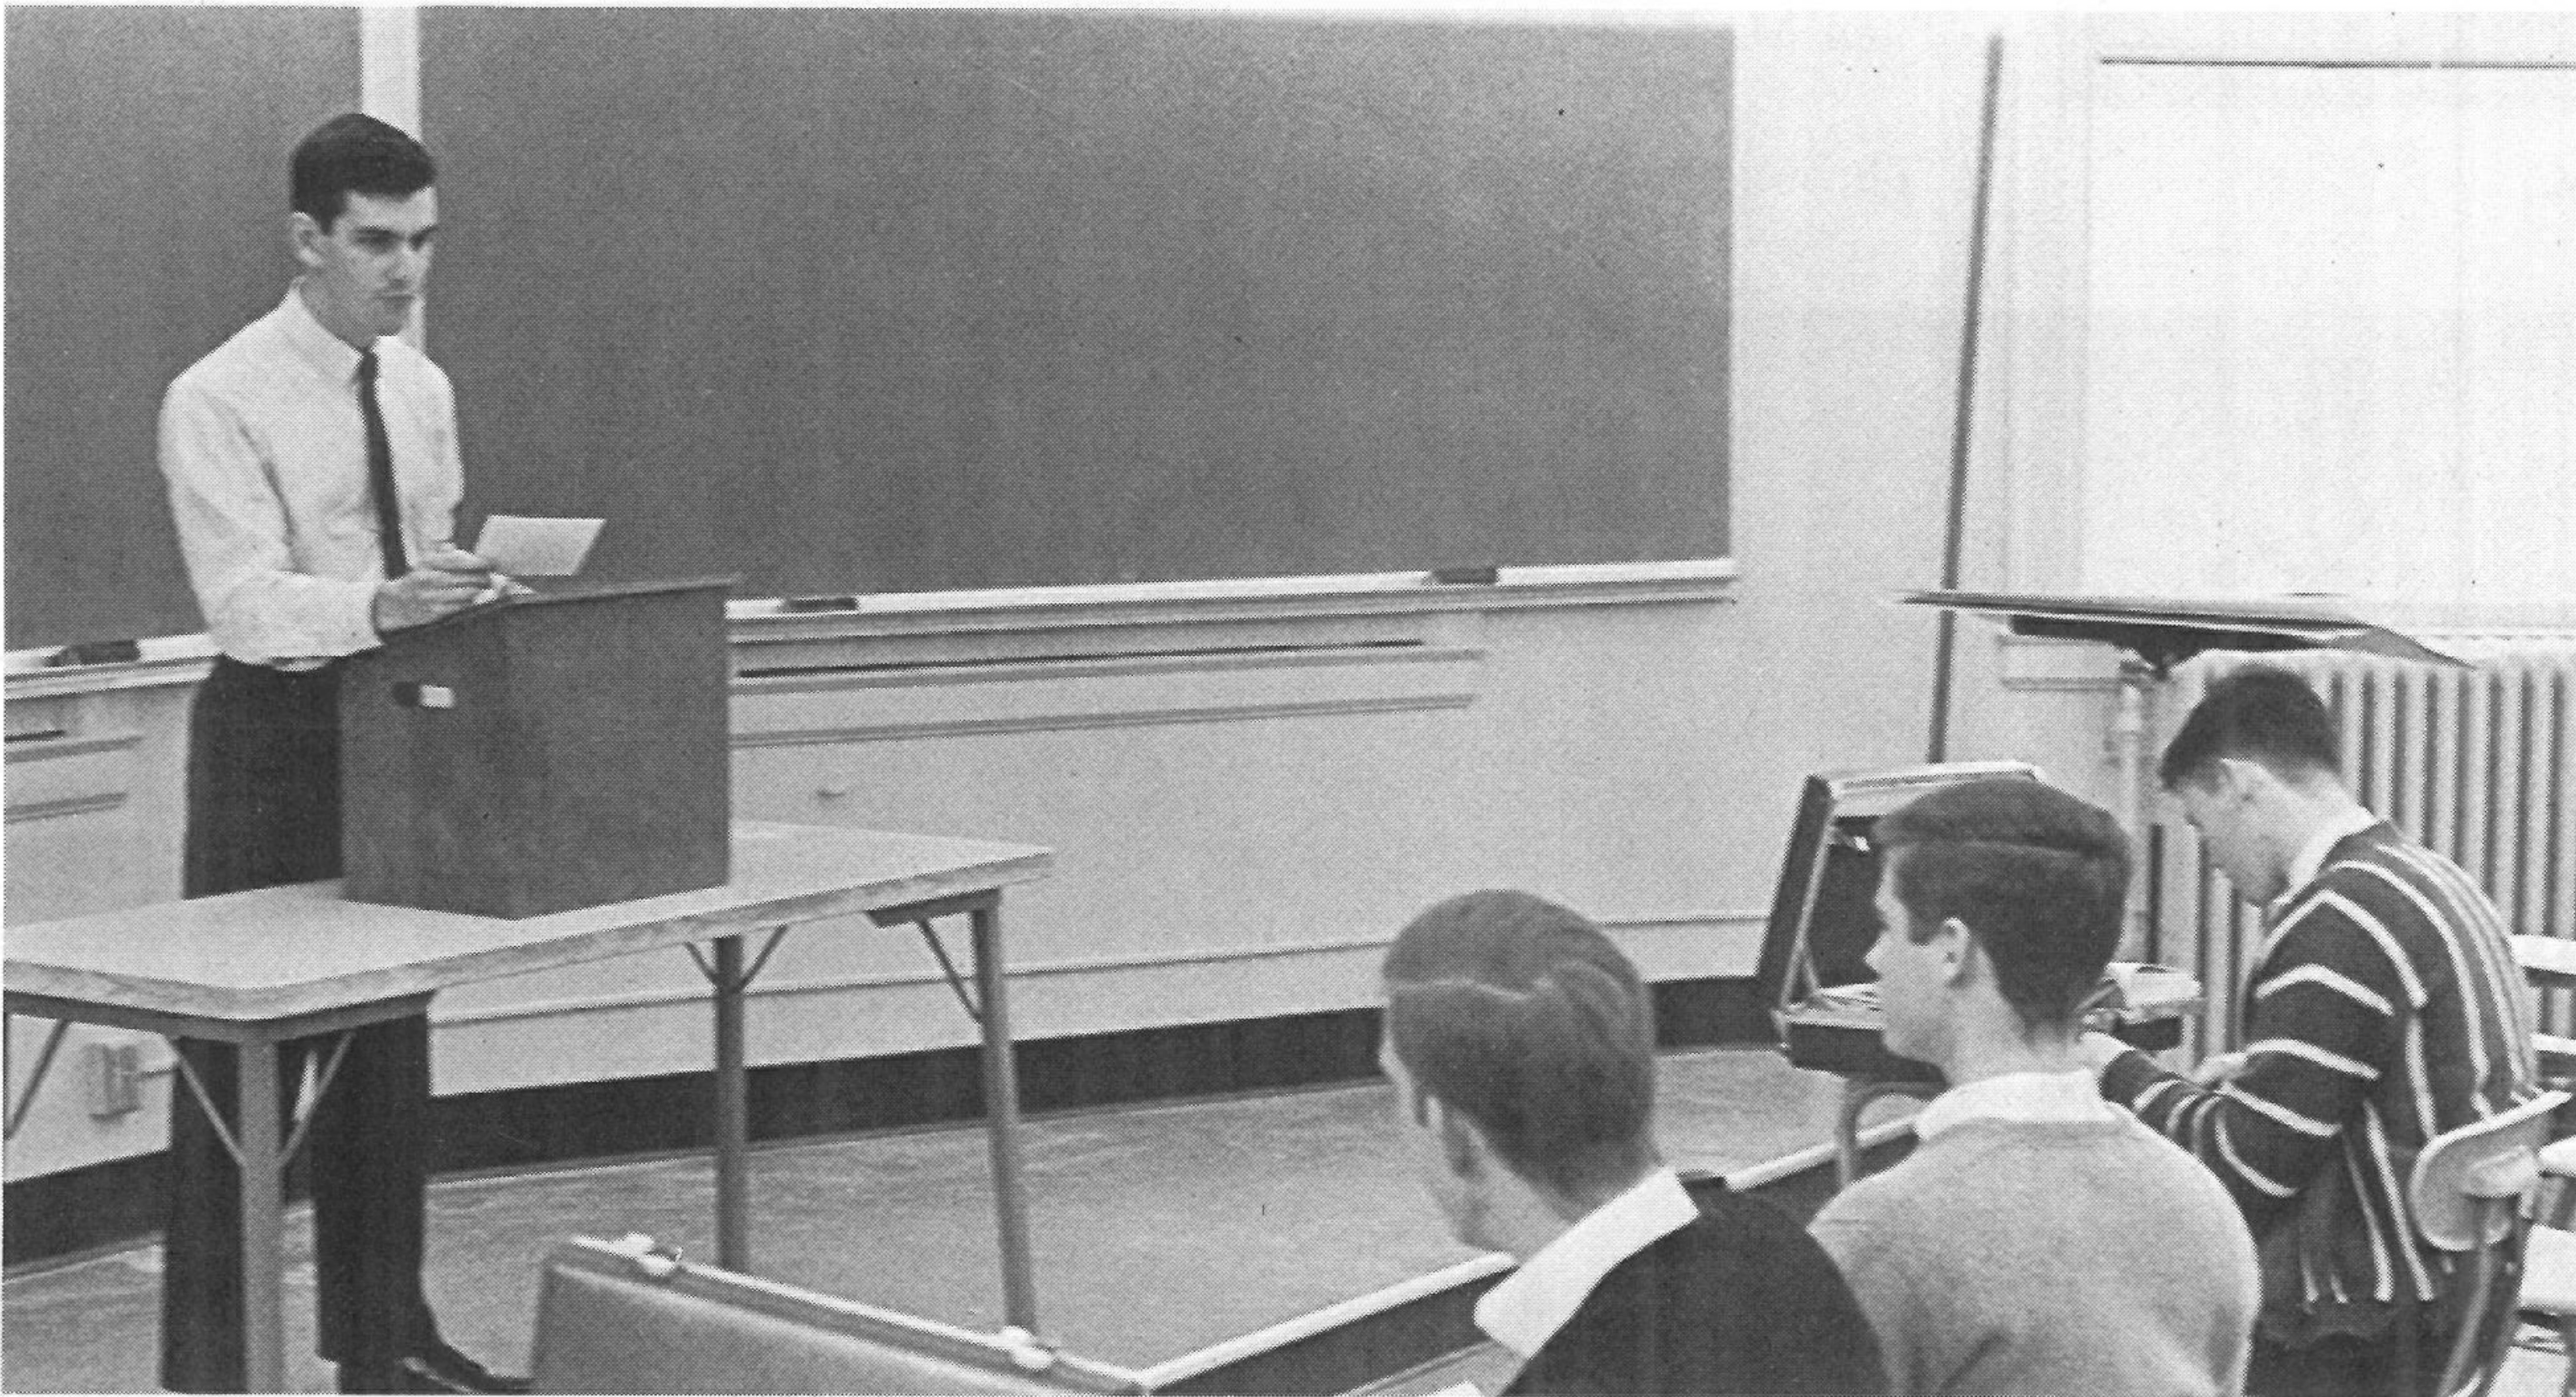

The highlight of the 1966-67 University of Washington debate season was hosting the tournament of the Western Forensic Association. During Thanksgiving vacation 450 students from 64 colleges and universities participated in nearly 1,000 individual rounds of speech contests on campus. This annual tournament is one of the largest and most important on the west coast and rotates among various member schools. Most of the 35 members of Washington's Forensic Association either participated or helped in the administration of the tournament, whose host director was Robert Halle of the Department of Speech.

The Forensic Association, sponsored by the ASUW, participated in nearly twenty tournaments, some as close as Seattle Pacific College and others as far away as Wayne State University of Detroit, Mich., site of the national tournament of Delta Sigma Rho—Tau Kappa Alpha, forensic honorary.

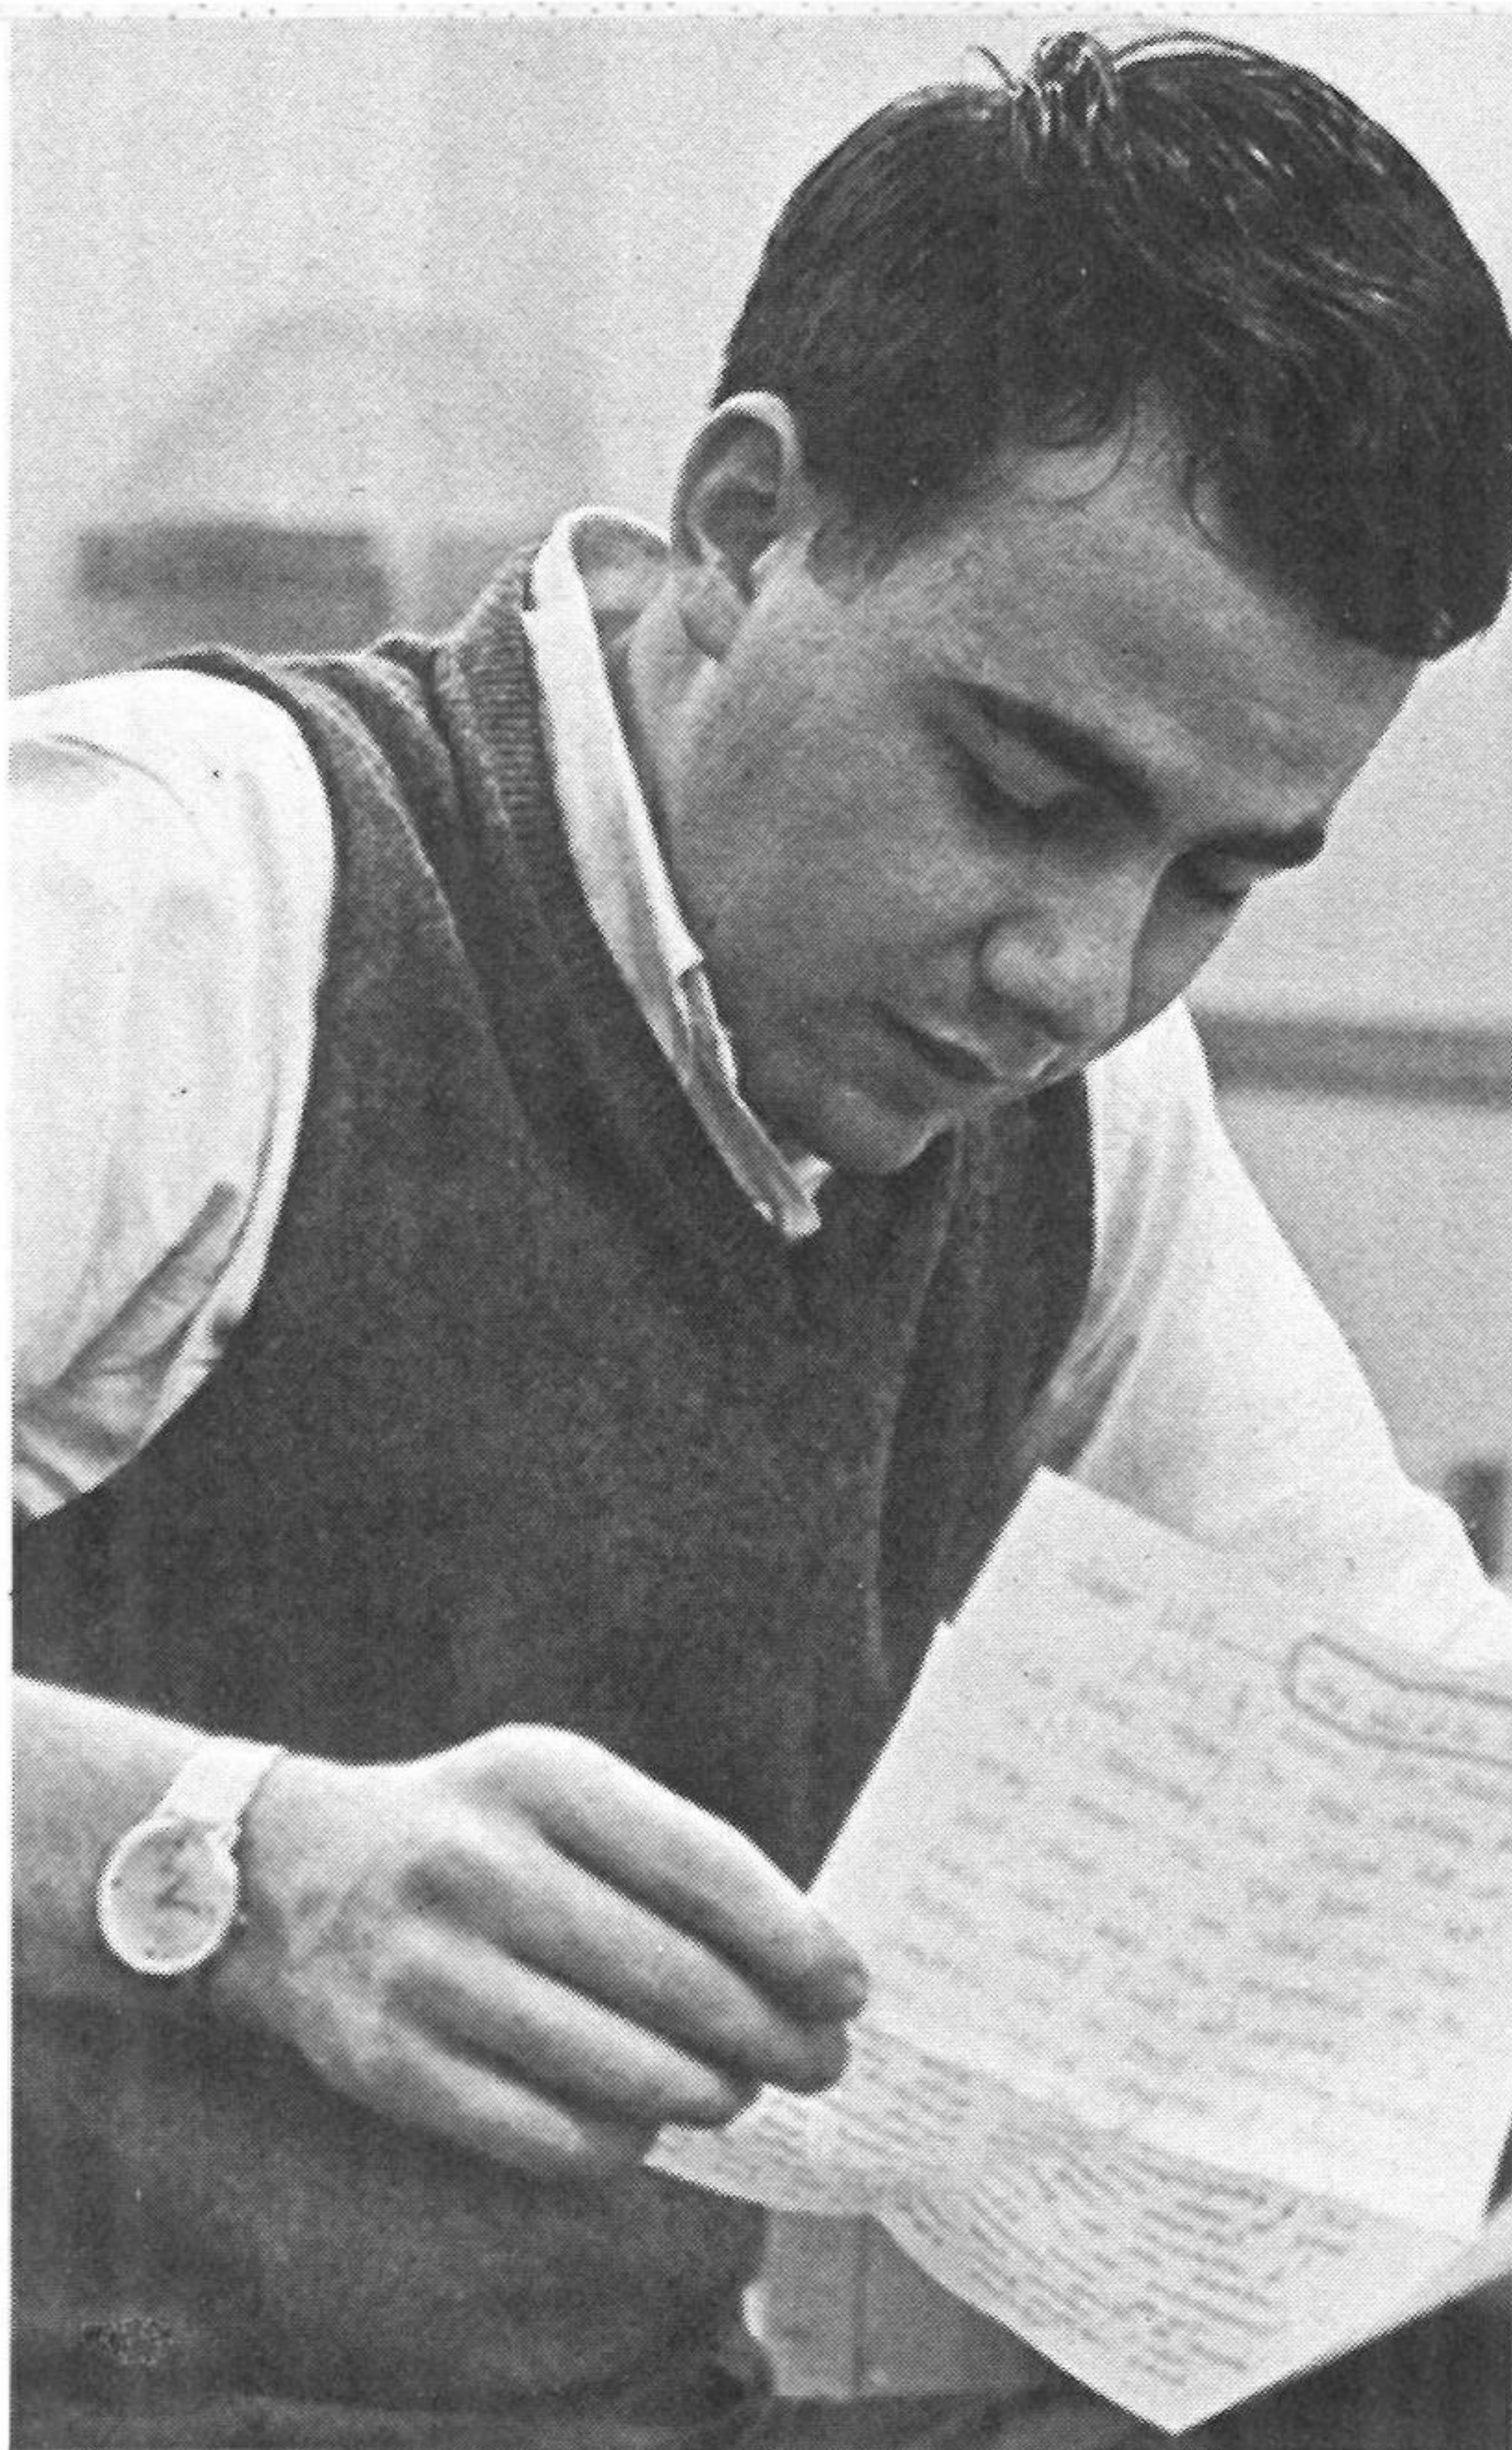

Hosting the well-attended Western Forensic Association tournament was a time-consuming task.

Publications Board Struggles With Fledgling Magazine To Find Identity, Publications Board is the "group at the top" as far as ASUW publications are concerned.

Comprised of student, faculty, and administrative representatives, it makes major policy decisions and acts in a supervisory capacity to the Daily, Tyee Yearbook, Tyee Magazine, and other campus publications.

High on this year's agenda was a close scrutiny of the one-year-old Tyee Magazine.

"Through constant revision and reevaluation we are searching for the magazine's identity, format, and future," said William F. Johnston, ASUW publisher and ex-officio member of the board.

"We can't please 26,000 students, but we're trying to serve as many of them as possible."

Johnston's position is comparable to that of a business manager who reports to a board of directors. Responsible for the day to day running of the publications, he reports their problems and progress, as well as making suggestions of his own.

Tyee Magazine Staff Searches For Talent, Personality

What happened to the talent that should be so abundant but isn't? Is it hiding under the desk? No—the Tyee Magazine staff looked there. Is it working on the Daily? No—they didn't have to look there. Is it in the yearbook office? Perhaps. But is there not more talent than that in this mighty University of many years?

The search began. The mag editor uncovered hidden talent and printed talent that wasn't quite so hidden. She wrote. She worried. She had two papers due and a deadline to meet. She met the deadline.

The writers came. They wrote, and rewrote, because what they wrote needed rewriting. But the finished product was good and no one knew about all the rewriting except the writers and the editors.

The Mag needed a “New Personality.” There was no magazine machine that could produce an instant personality. The editors and the writers and the layout artist had to reshape the personality of the two-year-old magazine with a not-so-popular personality.

And so they made some changes—and saw others that should be made. But there wasn't time, only six issues and two years. They saw the great potential—and yet still wondered. Why was the audience so silent?

Poised and motionless, the TYEE Yearbook staff watches another deadline go whizzing past.

These were the salesmen who sold the ads that filled up the ad pages that paid for the book that Jack wrote: Ralph Thompson, Jane Miller, Dennis Brown, Susan Kaanta, Rob Wintersteen, Loren Johnson and Paul De Bruyn.

Tyee Yearbook: In 20 Years, Who'll Remember The Sweat, Toil, Tears?

Four score and seven years ago—or at least it seems like that long ago—TYEE staff started to produce a TYEE. Not an unusually large TYEE, as TYEES go, but nonetheless a better-than-the-average-type TYEE. In fact, it was going to be a great TYEE.

That was fall quarter. By Christmas they were still toying with the idea of producing a TYEE. It was still going to be a great TYEE, but they were also toying with the idea of making it a considerably shorter - than - the - average - TYEE-type TYEE. But the publisher said no and the printer said no, so they finally decided it was time to produce the TYEE.

By the middle of January they were at last producing their TYEE. Sparks of idealism flew around the office as they produced, produced, produced. One page down, two pages back from the printer needing corrections.

And so continued the long winter. Forget Saturday night dates. Forget Las Vegas Nite. It's time to produce. Find a new layout editor and put her to work, work, work. Grab sorority sisters, fraternity brothers, roommates, girl friends and put them to work, work, work.

Behind farther than they were ahead—that was their distinction. Off to a slow start—that was their problem. TYEE 1967 — that was their book.

Owned by the University and operated in the public interest by the Division of Extension Services of Continuing Education, KUOW radio station makes extensive use of the cultural and educational resources of the University.

Programs are selected for their educational merit and ability to stimulate thought. Some programs present the divergent viewpoints of responsible minorities. Since music on KUOW is chosen for its intrinsic value, less familiar scores are frequently presented in addition to the standard fare. The latest releases predominate, although

The studios of KCTS TV serve as a laboratory for the School of Communications in giving instruction to the students in television production, performance and programming. KCTS, Seattle's educational station, began broadcasting in 1954, making it the 9th educational television station in the country. Today there are over 100. The station broadcasts include tel-ecourses, cultural and informational programs as well as programs planned by the public schools for viewing in the classroom. University students work under TV professionals to form an important part of the studio staff.

Dilemma Of The Year: Is Knocking 'Camp' More 'Camp' Than 'Camp'?

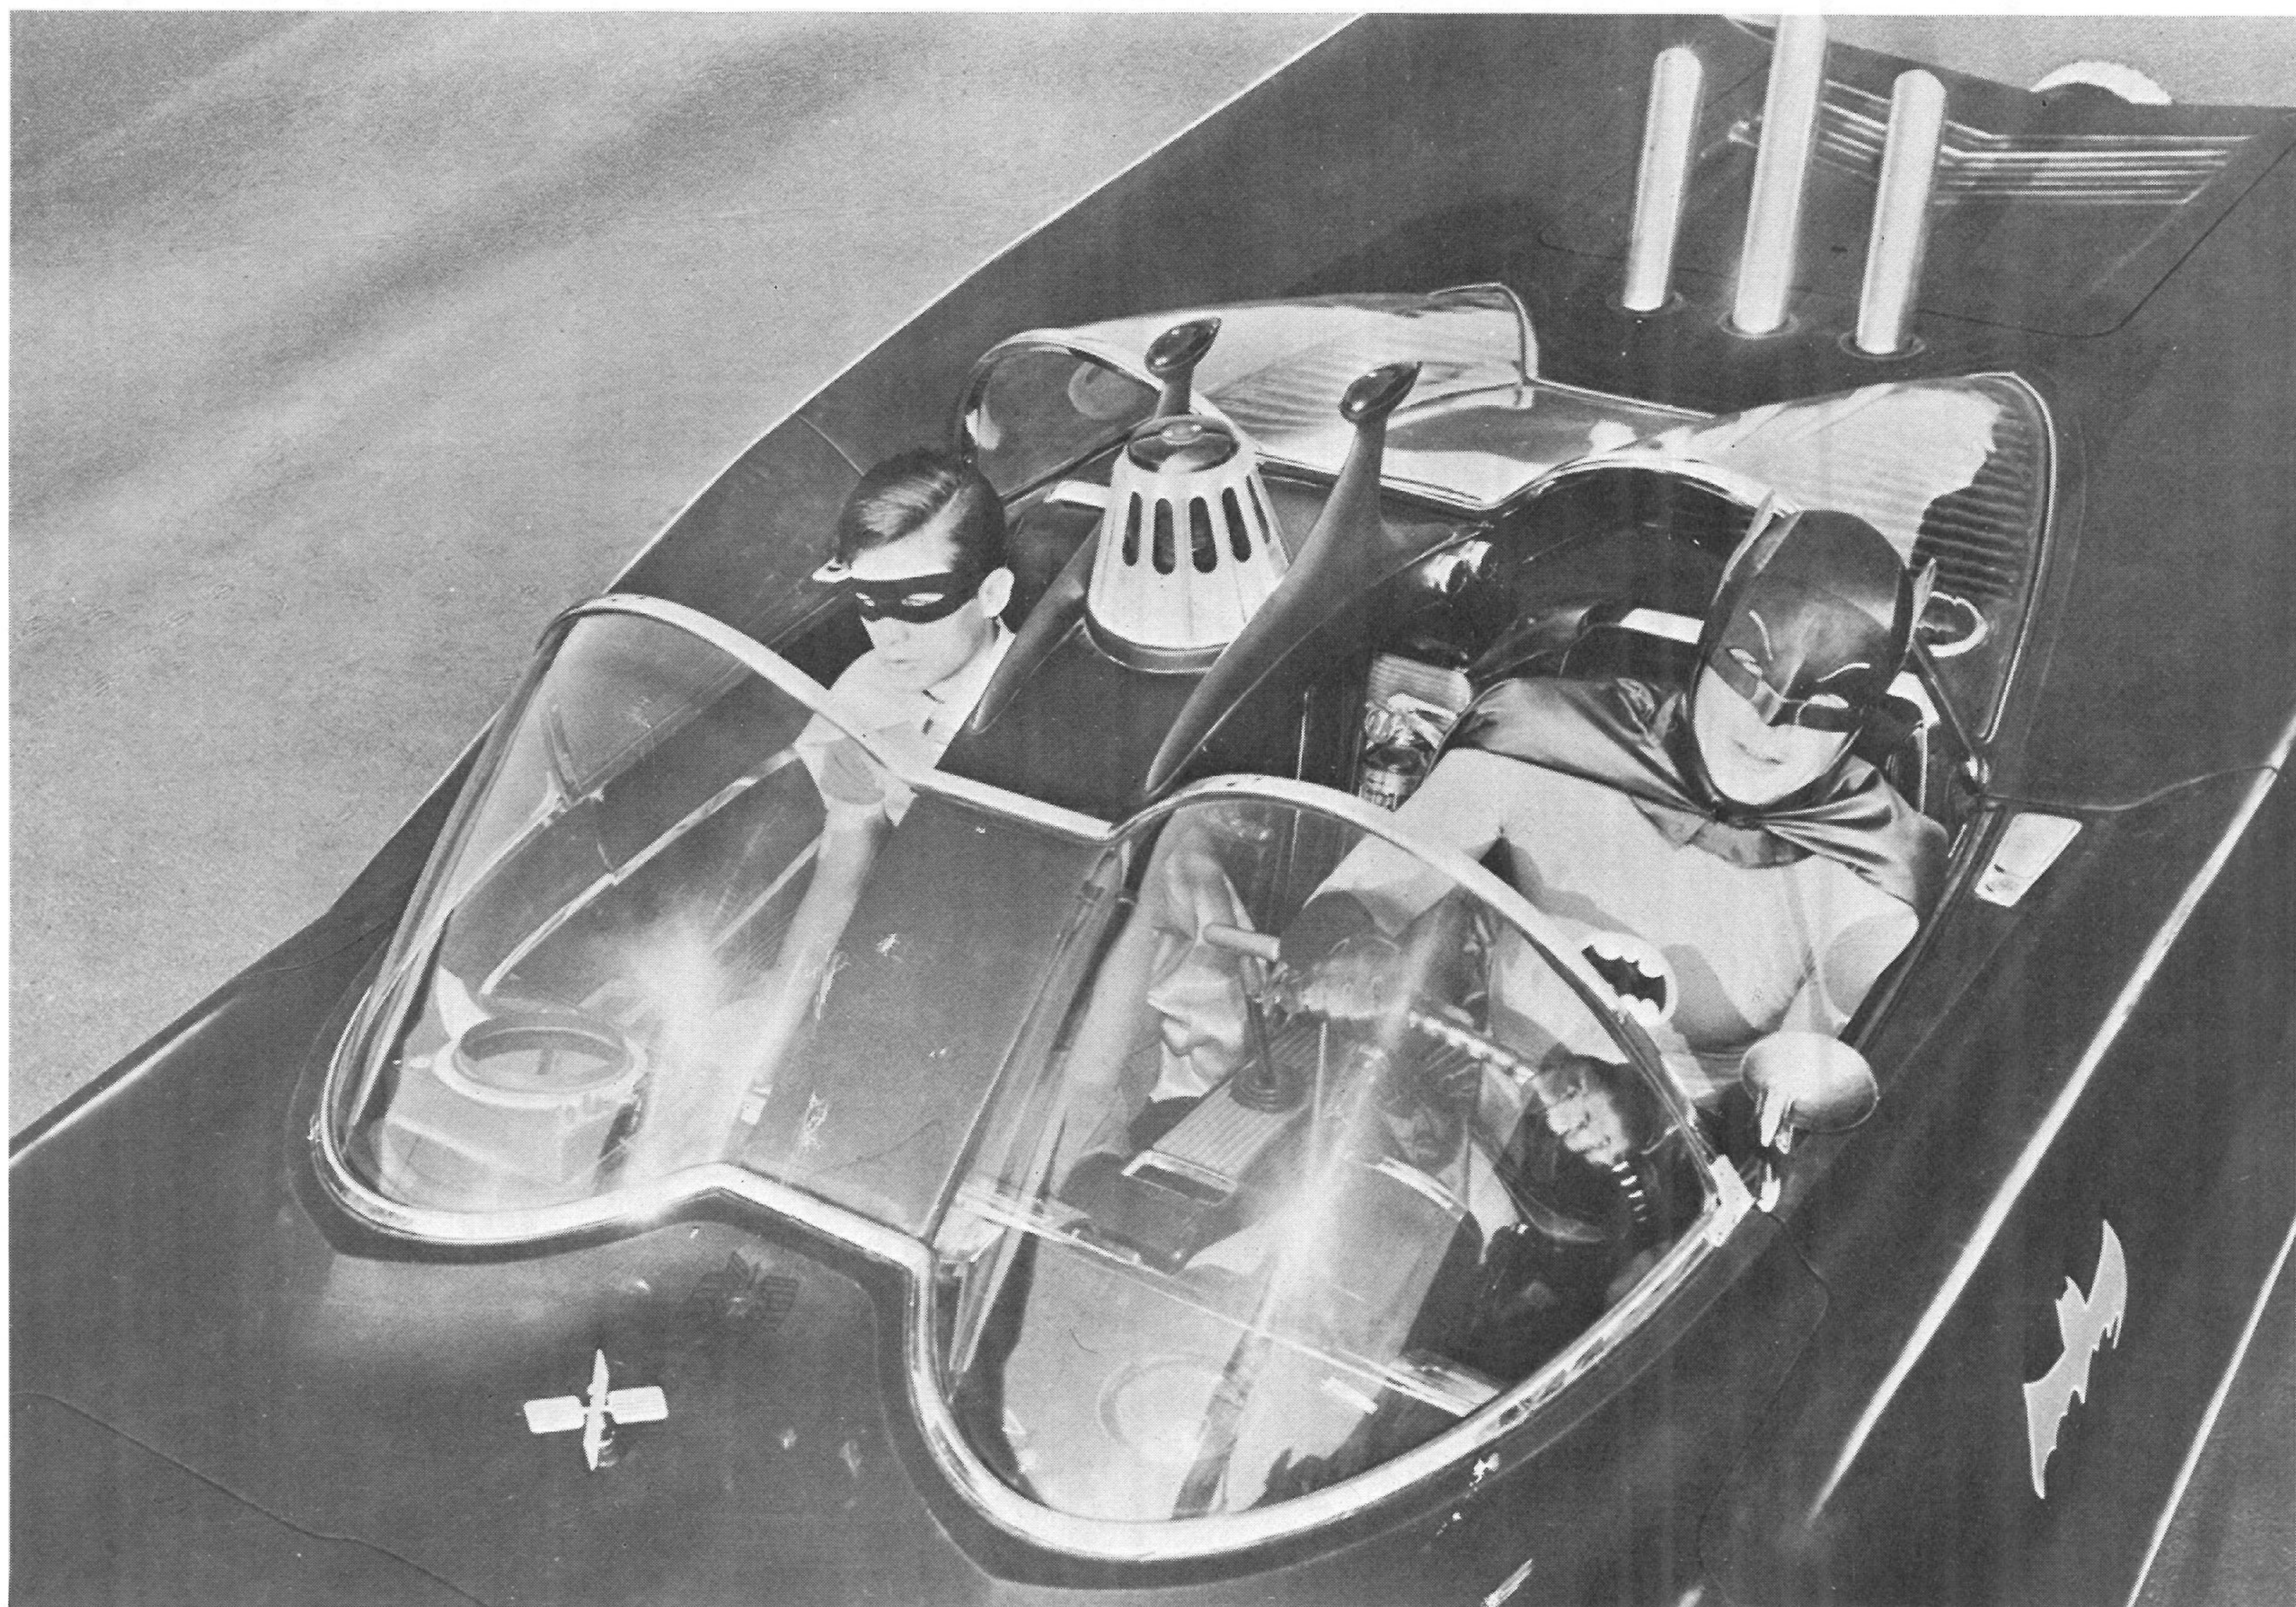

Art, music, and the theatre all paused for breath this year with the advent of Camp. After we had all explained to our mothers that Camp was not the place where kids go in the summer, we might have paused to wonder ourselves just what it was. It would seem that the Camp things to a great extent were things from the past, as if man were tired of the pretensions to greatness expressed in his scribbles, his posturings, his orchestrations and his daubing. Suddenly, novelty was the theme tune, and fun was the essence of improvisations on it. "Of course it has no cultural value or personality enrichment in it, Dad," we would scream in frustration. "That's not the point of it! It's... it's... well, it's just Camp, that's all." Then, clutching our dollars in our damp little hands, we would run out to old Humphrey Bogart movies, Kukla, Fran and Ollie puppet shows, psychedelic dances, or some other freak-out. Do you understand now? Well, if not, don't worry about it. It's becoming very Camp to knock Camp.

Thomas Burke Museum: Where A Chinese Street

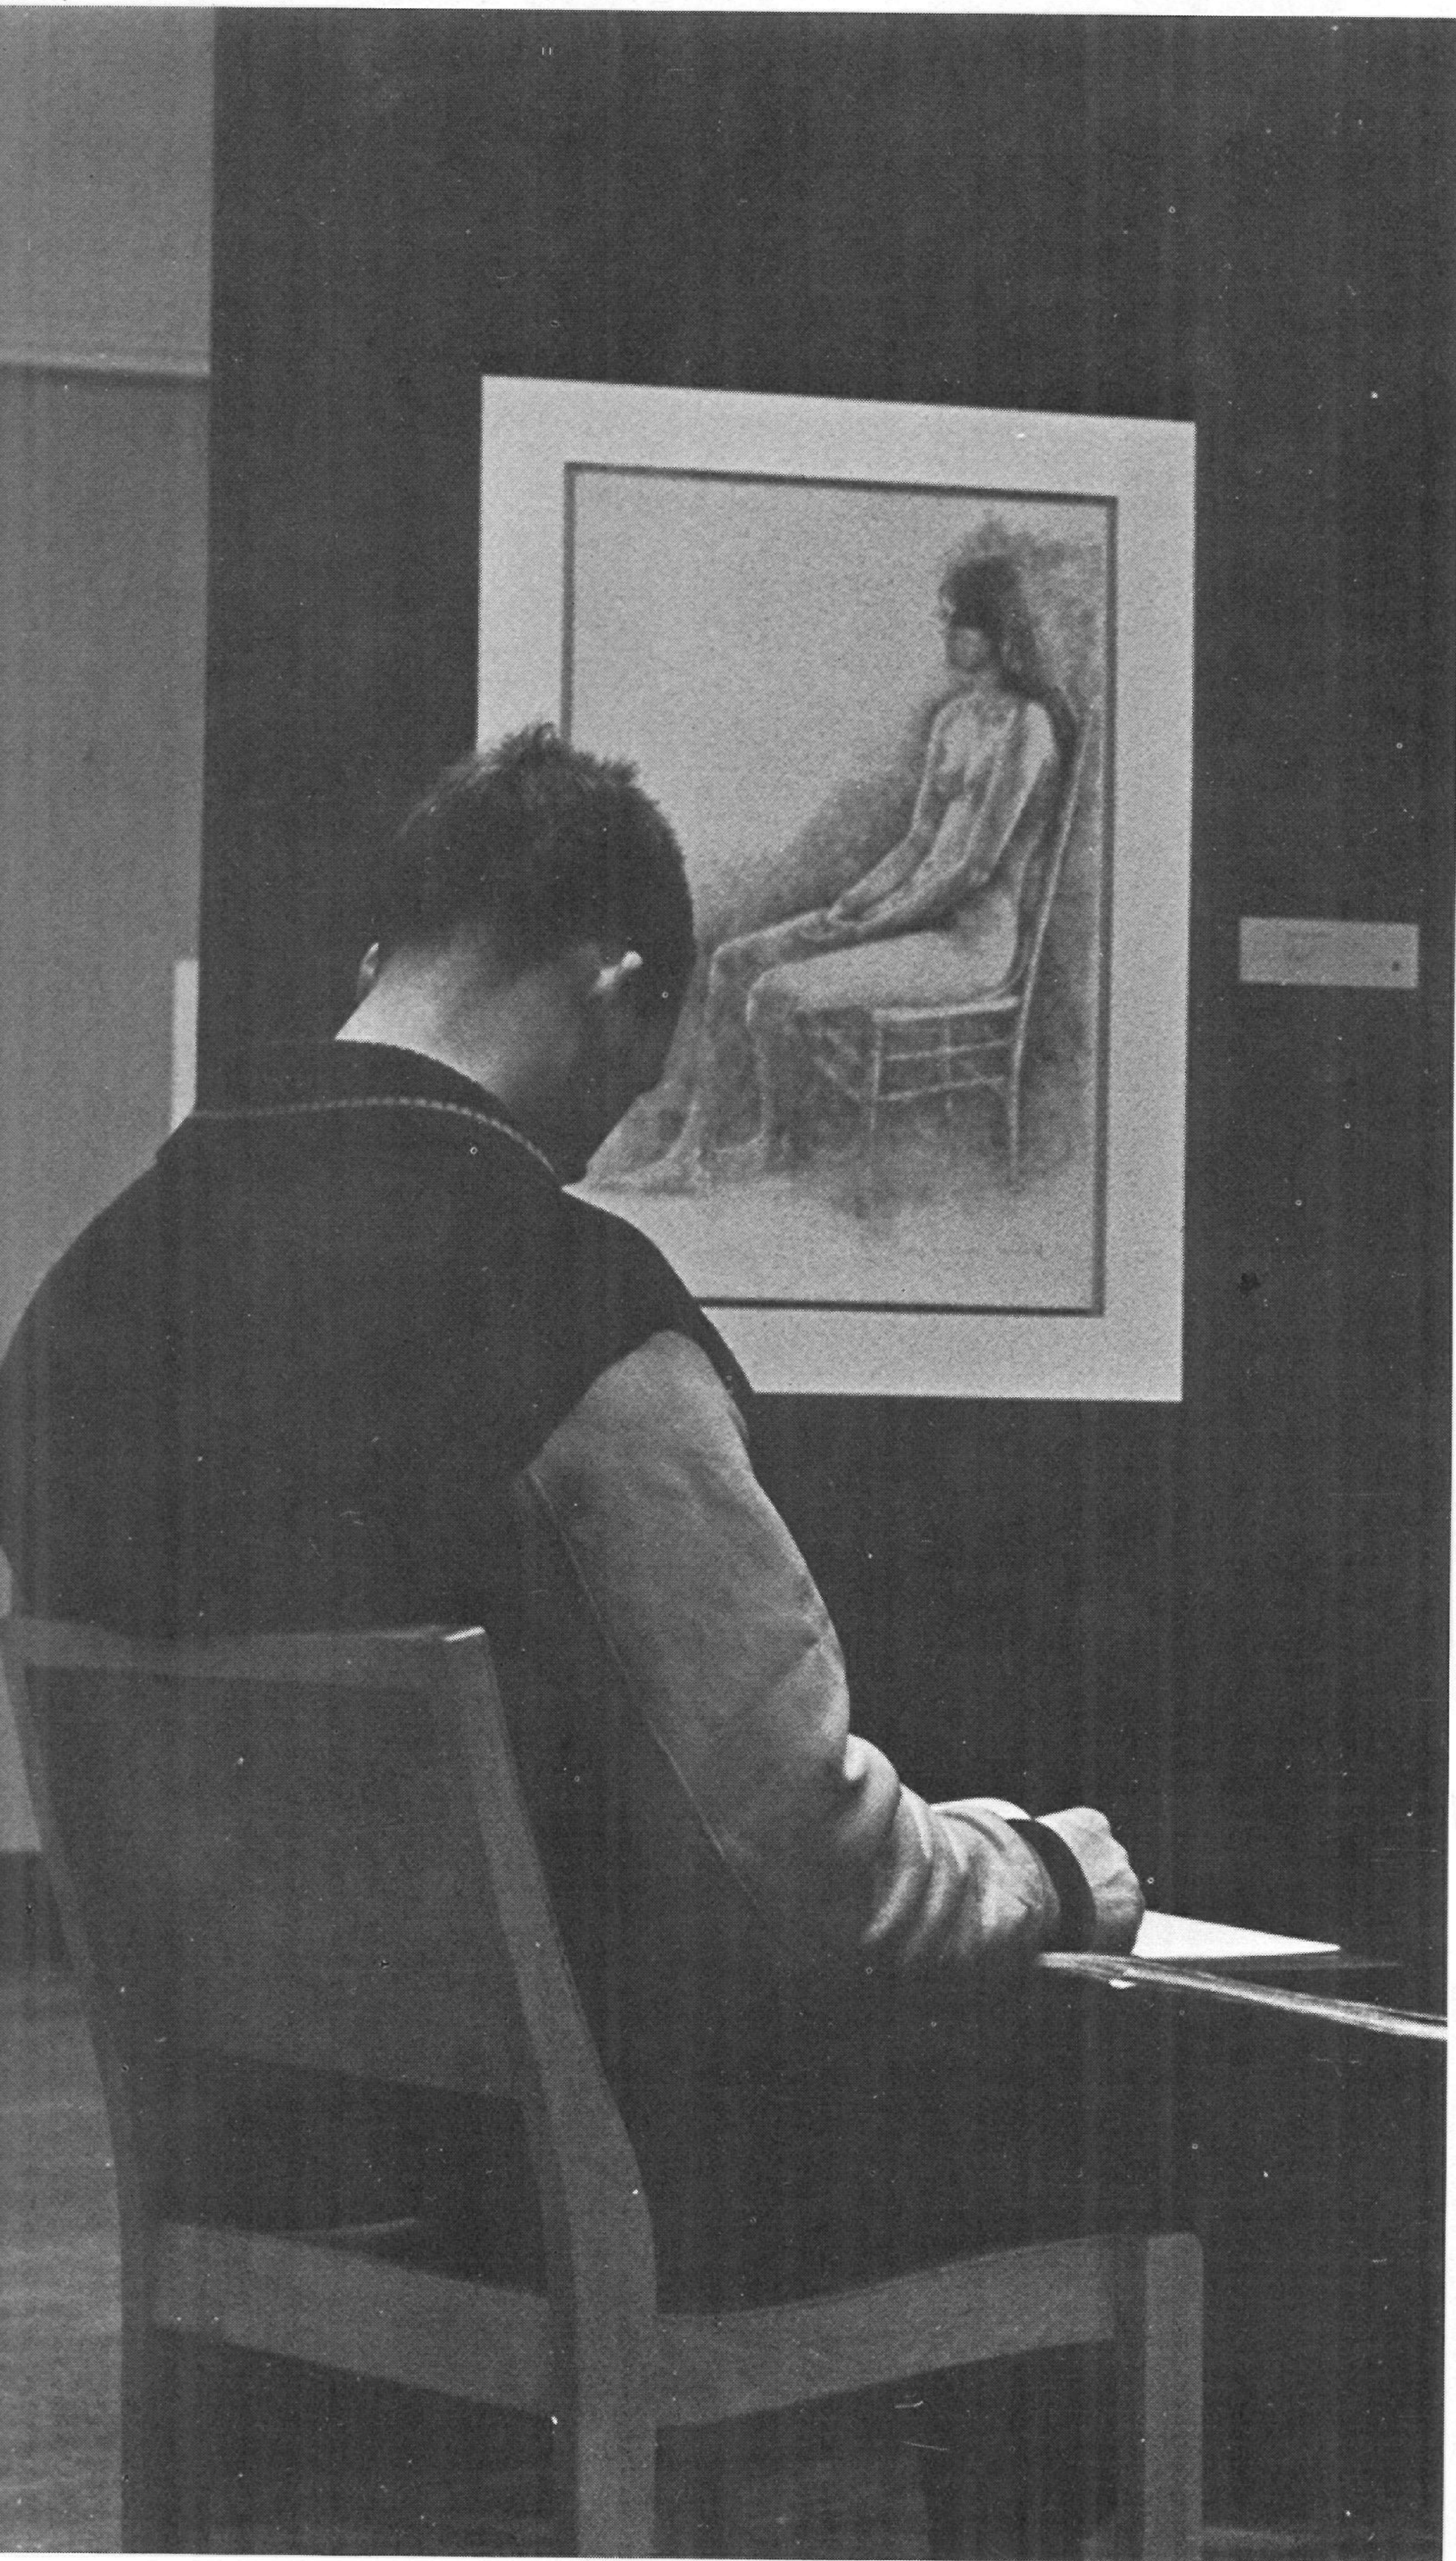

Thomas Burke Museum stands back from the corner of 15th and 45th, aloof from the busy University setting. What lies within the four-year-old glass and brick edifice?

Although its emphasis centers around the people, customs and natural history of the Pacific rim area, a Chinese street dragon or a piece of classical Greek sculpture are not uncommon. Many people visit Burke Museum. Some return again and again. Some never come back. Museums have their own unique fascination.

Philadelphia String Quartet: Hopefully, Permanent Fixture

Fresh and direct with no mannerisms or exaggeration for effect. This—as well as their love of making good music—sets the Philadelphia String Quartet above all others. The Quartet was appointed in the fall as quartet-in-residence at four state-supported schools. They arrived in the midst of a lawsuit by the Philadelphia Orchestra, challenging the Quartet's right to break their orchestral contracts. The suit later was dismissed by the Thurston County Superior Court. Hoping to present to University audiences all the great quartets in musical literature, the Philadelphia String Quartet is now solidly established on the UW campus—hopefully as a permanent artistic fixture.

The demand for concert tickets was unprecedented. Every scheduled concert was sold out in advance.

Ethnomusicologists Re-Spin The Spell Of Centuries-Old Asian

Students at the University are accustomed to hearing an interesting diversity of sounds drifting through the windows of the Music Building. They aren't surprised when an incongruous mixture of honky tonk and heavy opera blend into an unlikely sopranoic twang. But even the well-seasoned graduate student would surprisedly cock his ear to the strangely melodic screeching, droning, clicking, and pounding emanating from the building every Wednesday evening.

If his curiosity got the best of him, he would wind down a tunnel-like flight of stairs to the sub-basement. Here he would find 12 to 16 students in stocking feet spinning a spell of music enjoyed hundreds of years ago by the Japanese Court. The peculiar-looking instruments they use produce what the Japanese call gagaku or elegant music.

Since 1962 when two Japanese professors visited the University's music department, the University has risen to international fame for its ethnomusicology program stressing the musical traditions of Asia. Under the direction of Prof. Robert Garfias, students majoring in Asian Music have an opportunity to work in special instrumental groups, of which the gagaku study group was the pioneer project.

Gagaku is a highly stylized music in which the position and movement of the hands and body complement the unique effect of the sound created. Winds, strings and percussion instruments combine to produce the ornamental and bewitching melody.

Many students in the gagaku study group have difficulty adapting to the new form of music. Garfias

It often takes months of practice before a student feels he is adding to the overall effect of the gagaku.

Concert plans include performances of the classical music of Java, Korea, and India as well as of Japan.

Classical Music

often tries to help them adjust to the rhythm by leading the group in Japanese singing. This approach stresses a complete involvement in the music which, according to one student, often takes a long time. "A student may beat away on a Taiko (similar to a drum) for six months before he feels he is really an integral part of the group."

Festival Opera

Magnificent costuming, realistic staging and expressive choreography were combined with superb music to revive 8th century Carthage for two nights last fall as Stanley Chapple and the University Festival Opera presented Henry Purcell's 17th century opera, "Dido and Aeneas." Leading singers were soprano Sung Sook Lee as Dido, Queen of Carthage, and tenor Harrison Sykes as Aeneas, the Trojan Prince.

"Dido and Aeneas"

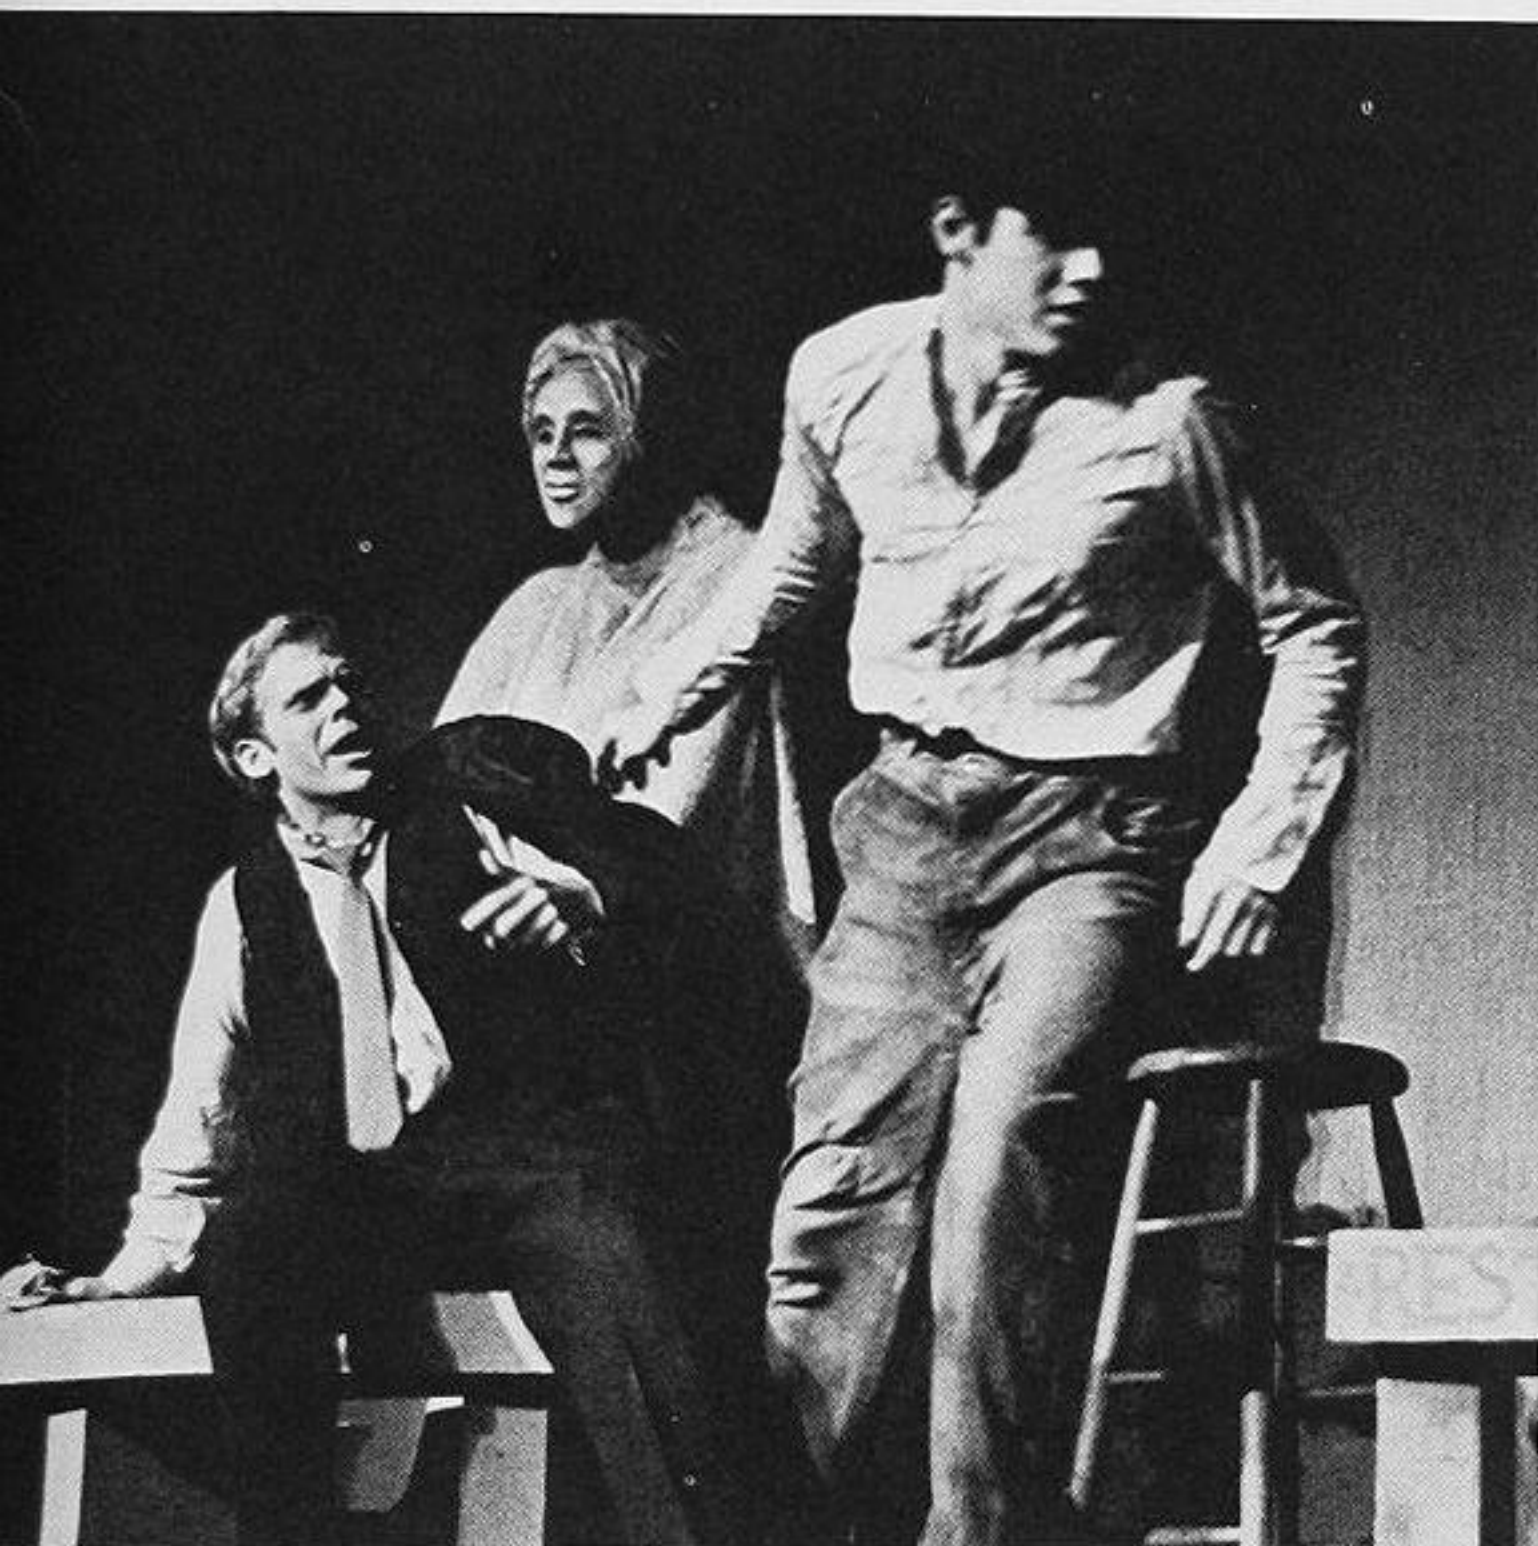

"The Boor"

"The Boor," a chamber opera written by contemporary composer Dominick Argento with libretto adapted from a play by Anton Chekov, had its first West Coast staging last fall. "Outstanding vocal and dramatic performances" were given by soprano Charlotte Garrettson as the widow, baritone John Duykers as the boor, and tenor Theodore Turner, the servant.

Look Homeward, Angel

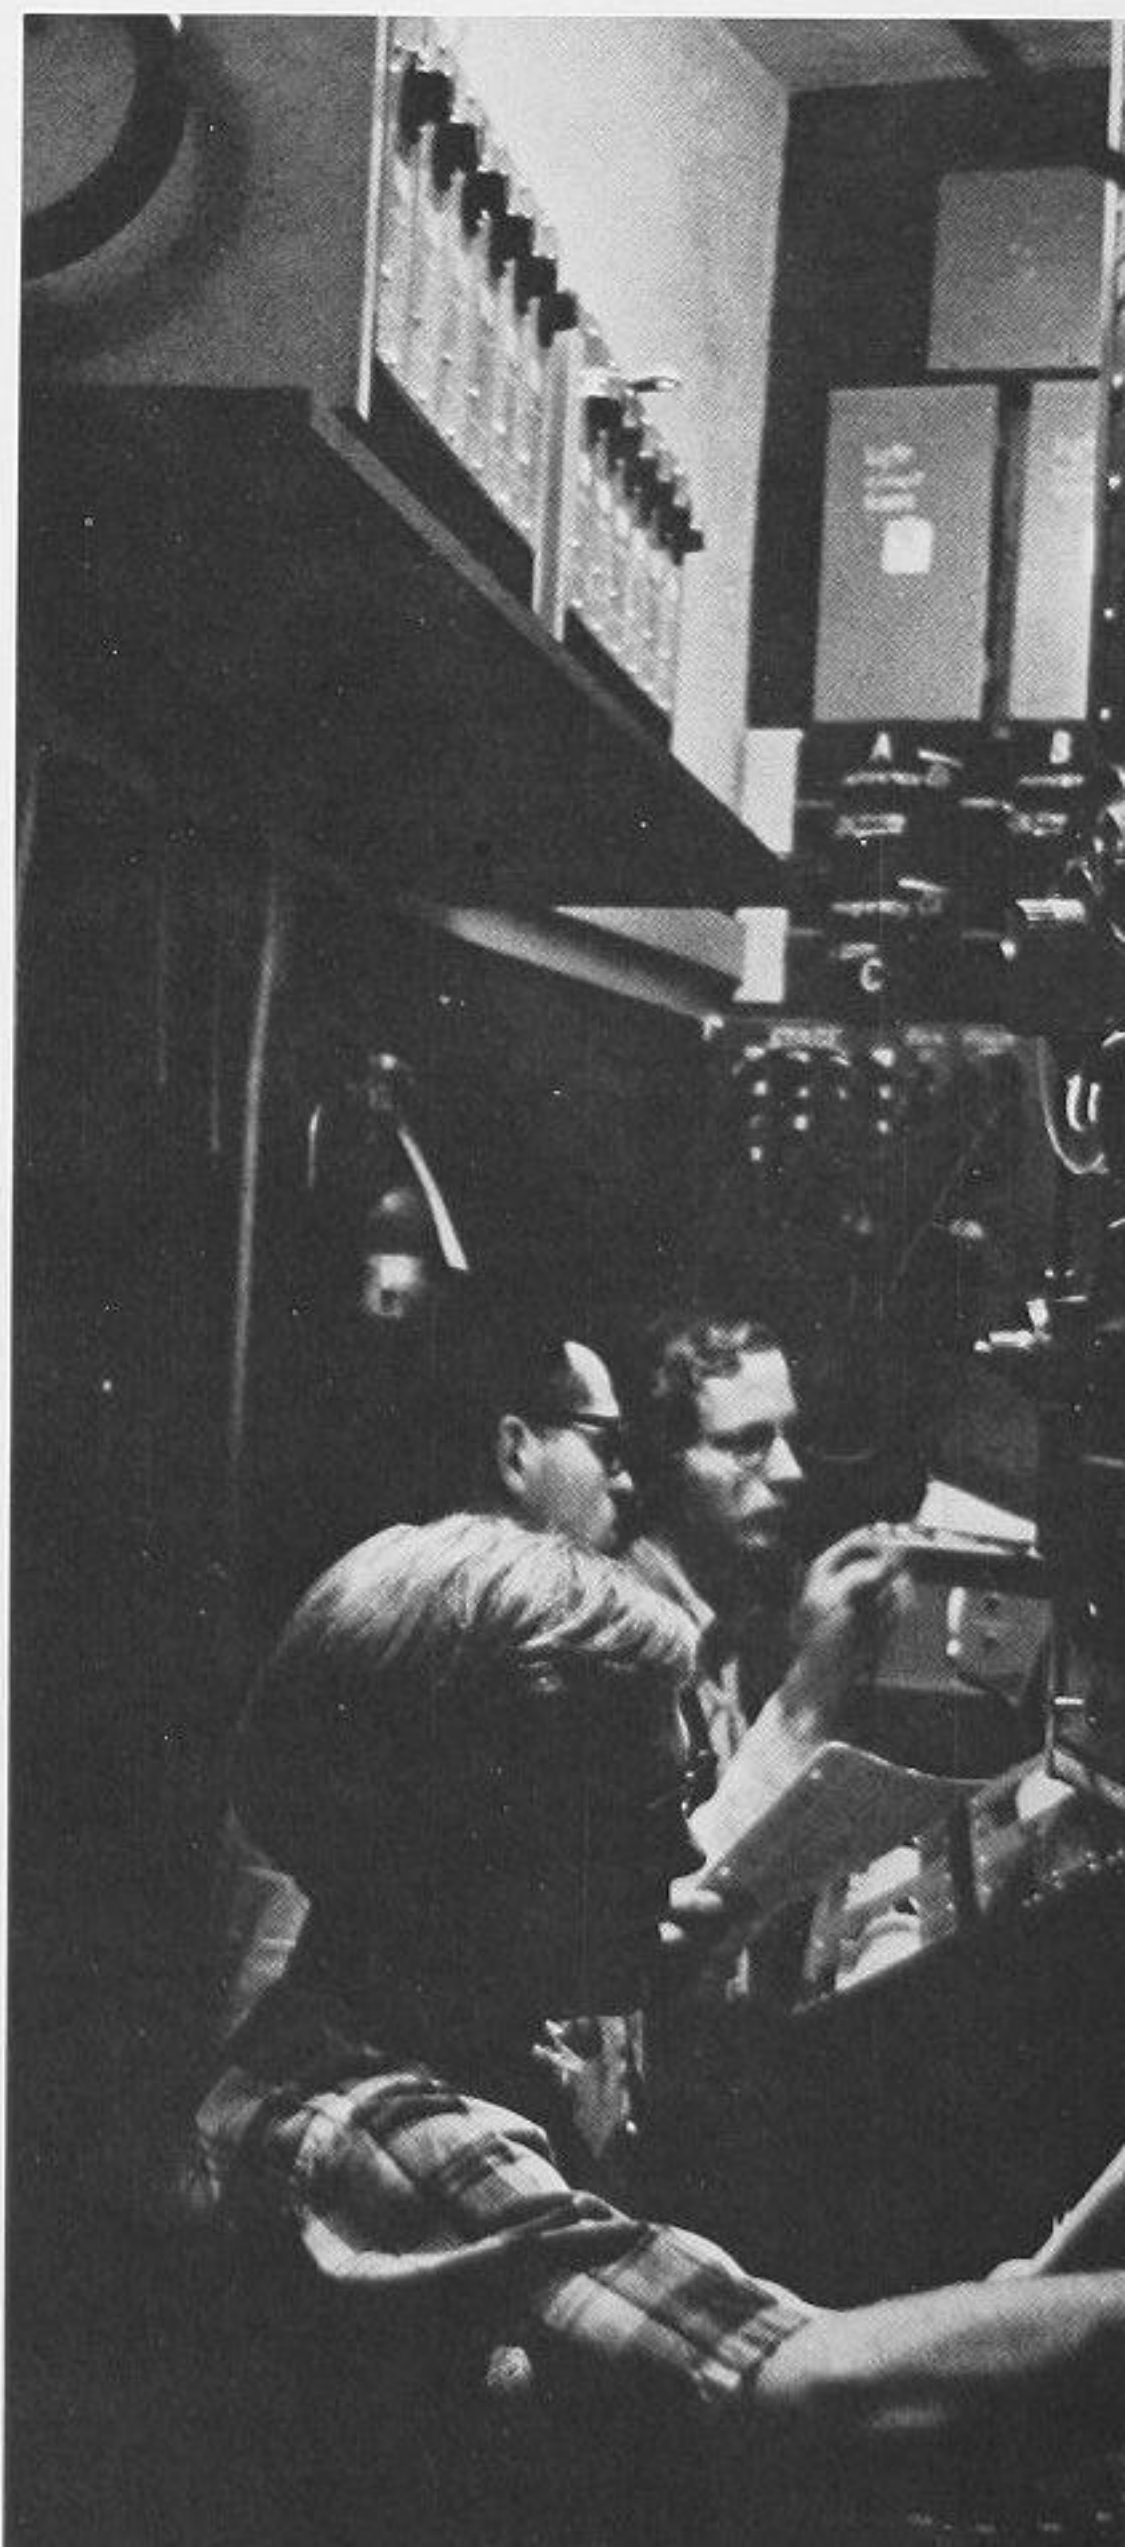

"Look Homeward, Angel," Ketti Fring's dramatization of Thomas Wolfe's autobiographical novel, opened the Drama School's season. Brad Gromelski directed the master thesis production with set designer Pat Connolly. The father of the household, was well portrayed as a "fallen Titan" by actor William E. Beattie. Susan Reid was cast as the "possessive mother-protector of all," and Mike Koenig as youthful Eugene Gant in a range of emotions presented bigger than life at the Showboat.

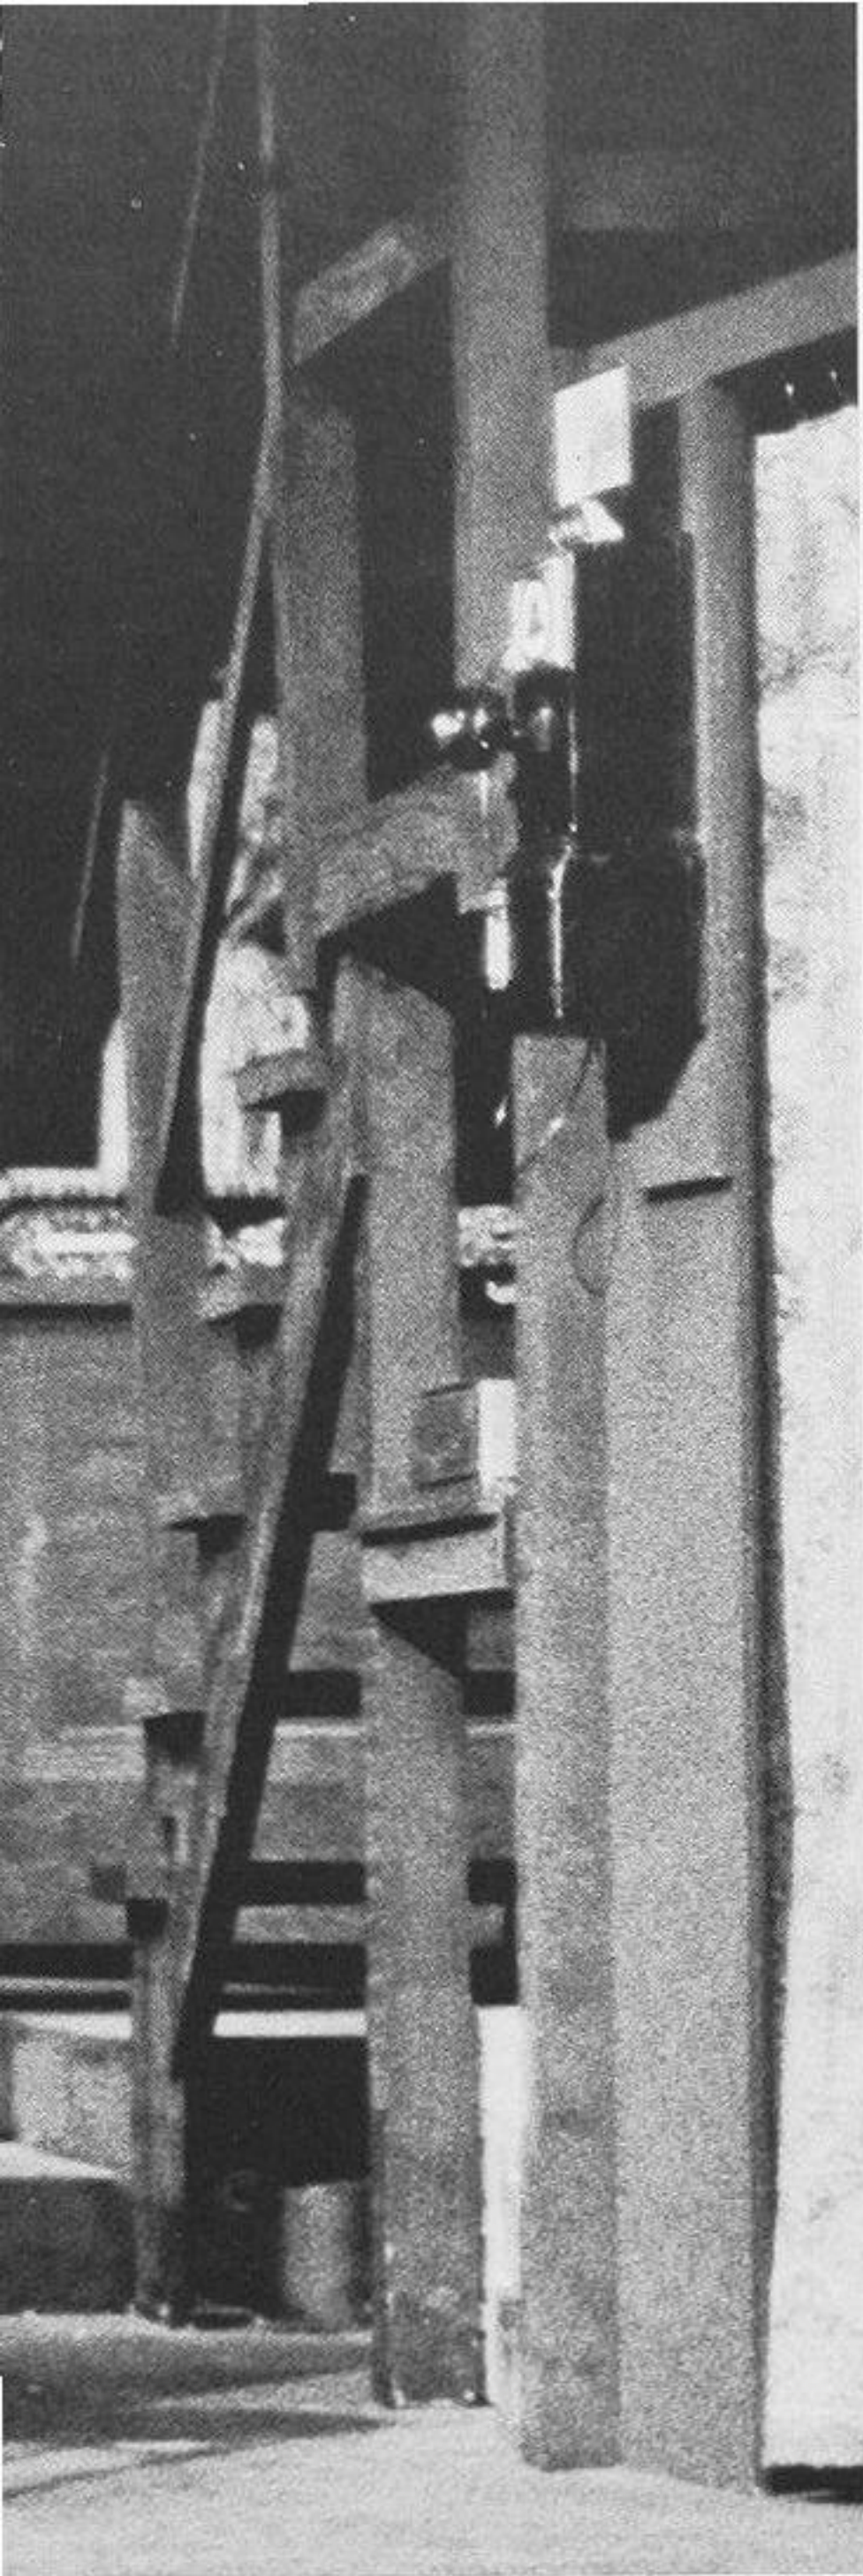

Once
Upon A
Mattress

"Once Upon a Mattress" is the musical adaptation of Hans Christian Anderson's tale, "The Princess and the Pea." Director Kenneth Carr's production received rave reviews, "nicely channeled exuberance, beautiful and spirited." Actors, songs, orchestra, costumes, and sets were coordinated to enchant Showboat audiences throughout the production's two-week run.

Orpheus Descending

Director William West's production "Orpheus Descending," was well received at the Show Boat this winter. The play has typical Tennessee Williams script ingredients. The exaggerated action of the characters searching for their individual values amid a bigoted rural Southern society, found stability in West's production. Phil Schermer designed the sets. Jeff Craggs was cast as hero; Val Xavier, the wandering guitar player. Eugenie Williams played Carol Cutrere and Lady Torrance was played by Judith Clossan.

George Paydeau's French farce, "Take Care of Amelie," provided delightful entertainment for theater audiences this fall. Vanick Galstaun directed this largest cast show ever done at the Penthouse Theatre. The absurdities and complications of the plot were presented with a mixture of "exaggerated dignity" and "diminished morality."

Take Care Of Amelie

Sharp personal discipline and an appreciation and understanding of literature—this is what is required of the small group of students who are members of Readers Theatre. Organized under the Speech Department, this year's readers found intellectual challenge in presenting Carson McCullers' "The Ballad of the Sad Cafe," Fry's "Tiger at the Gates," "Henry IV," part 2, and other contemporary poetry readings.

Readers Theatre

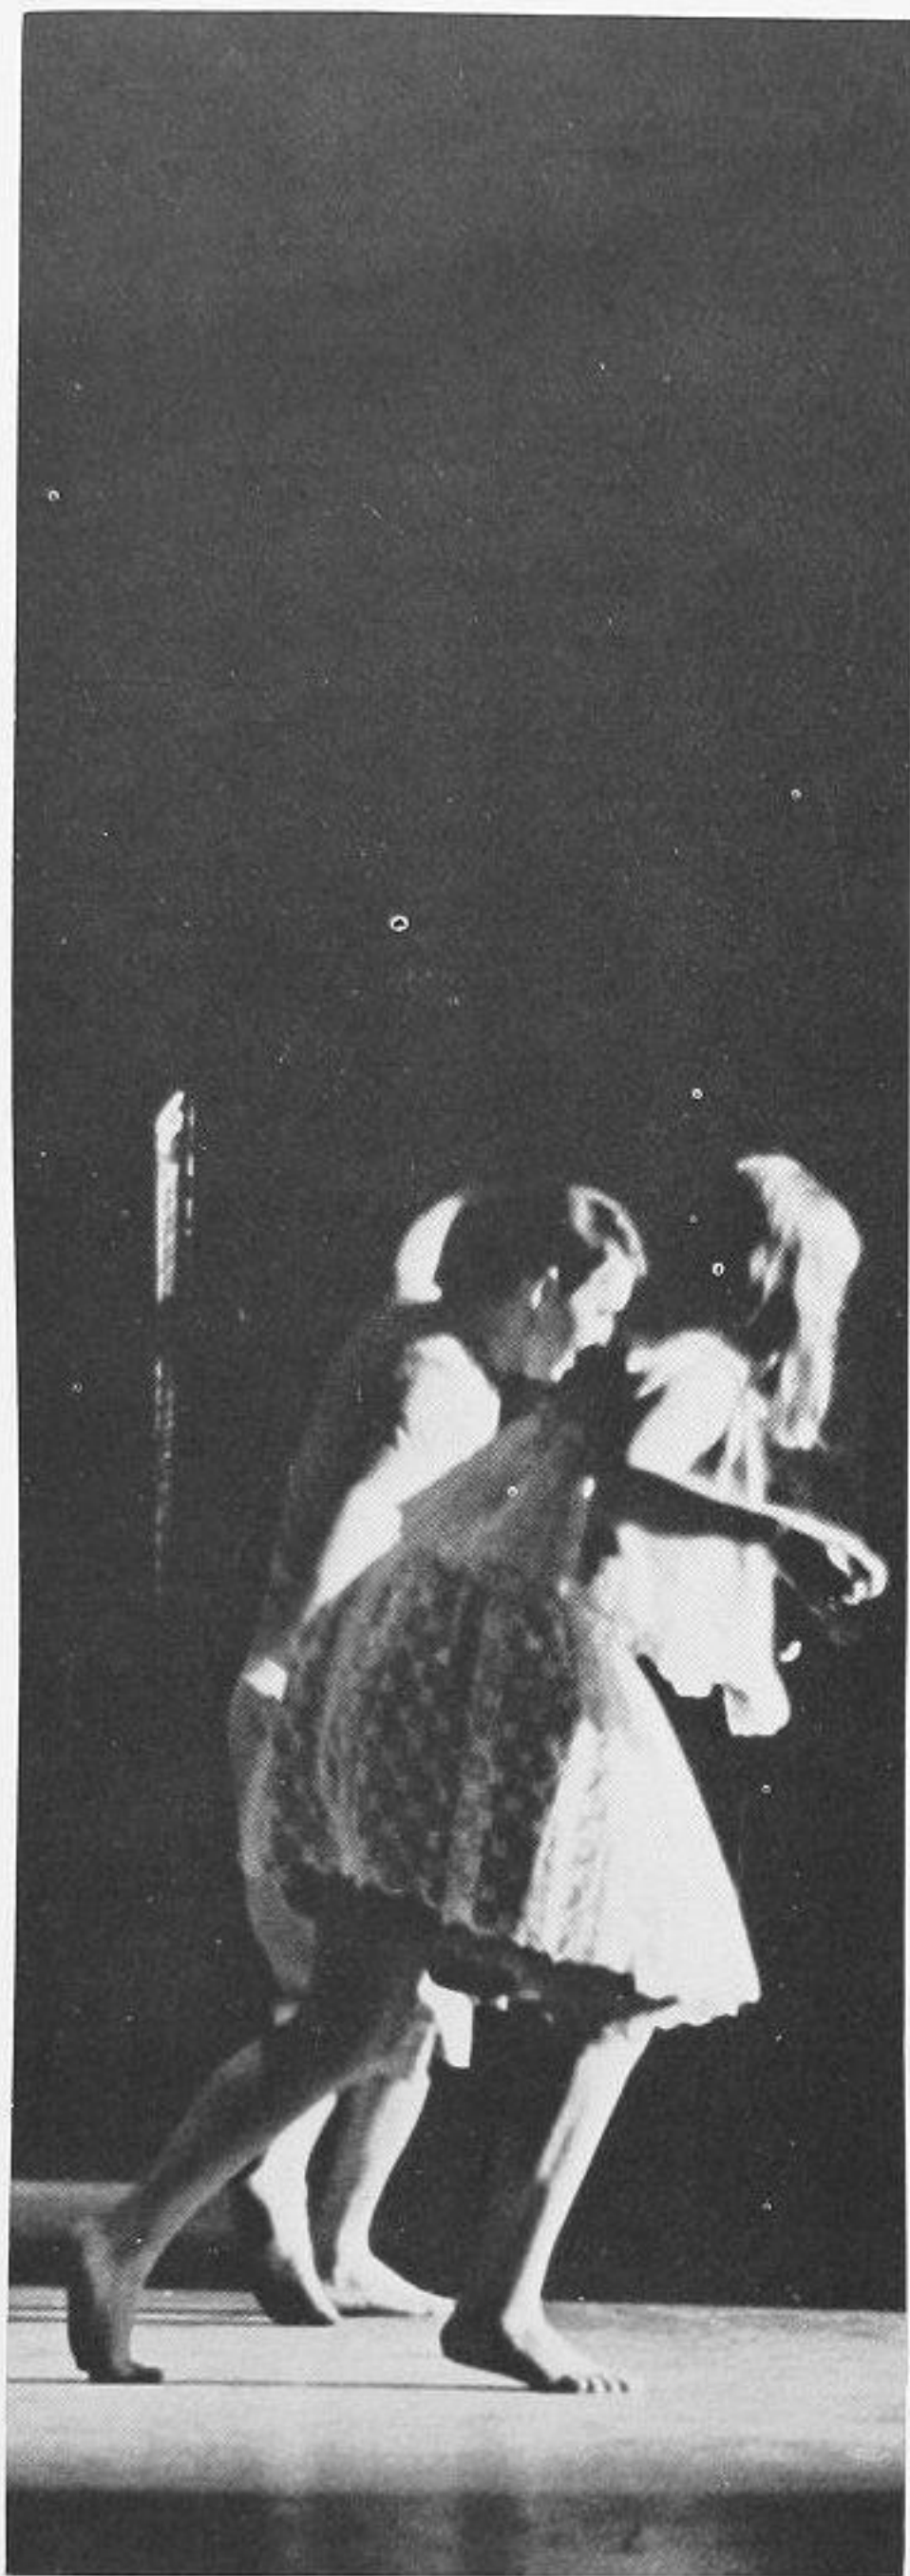

Latin American entertainers delighted the crowd with south-of-the-border songs and dances.

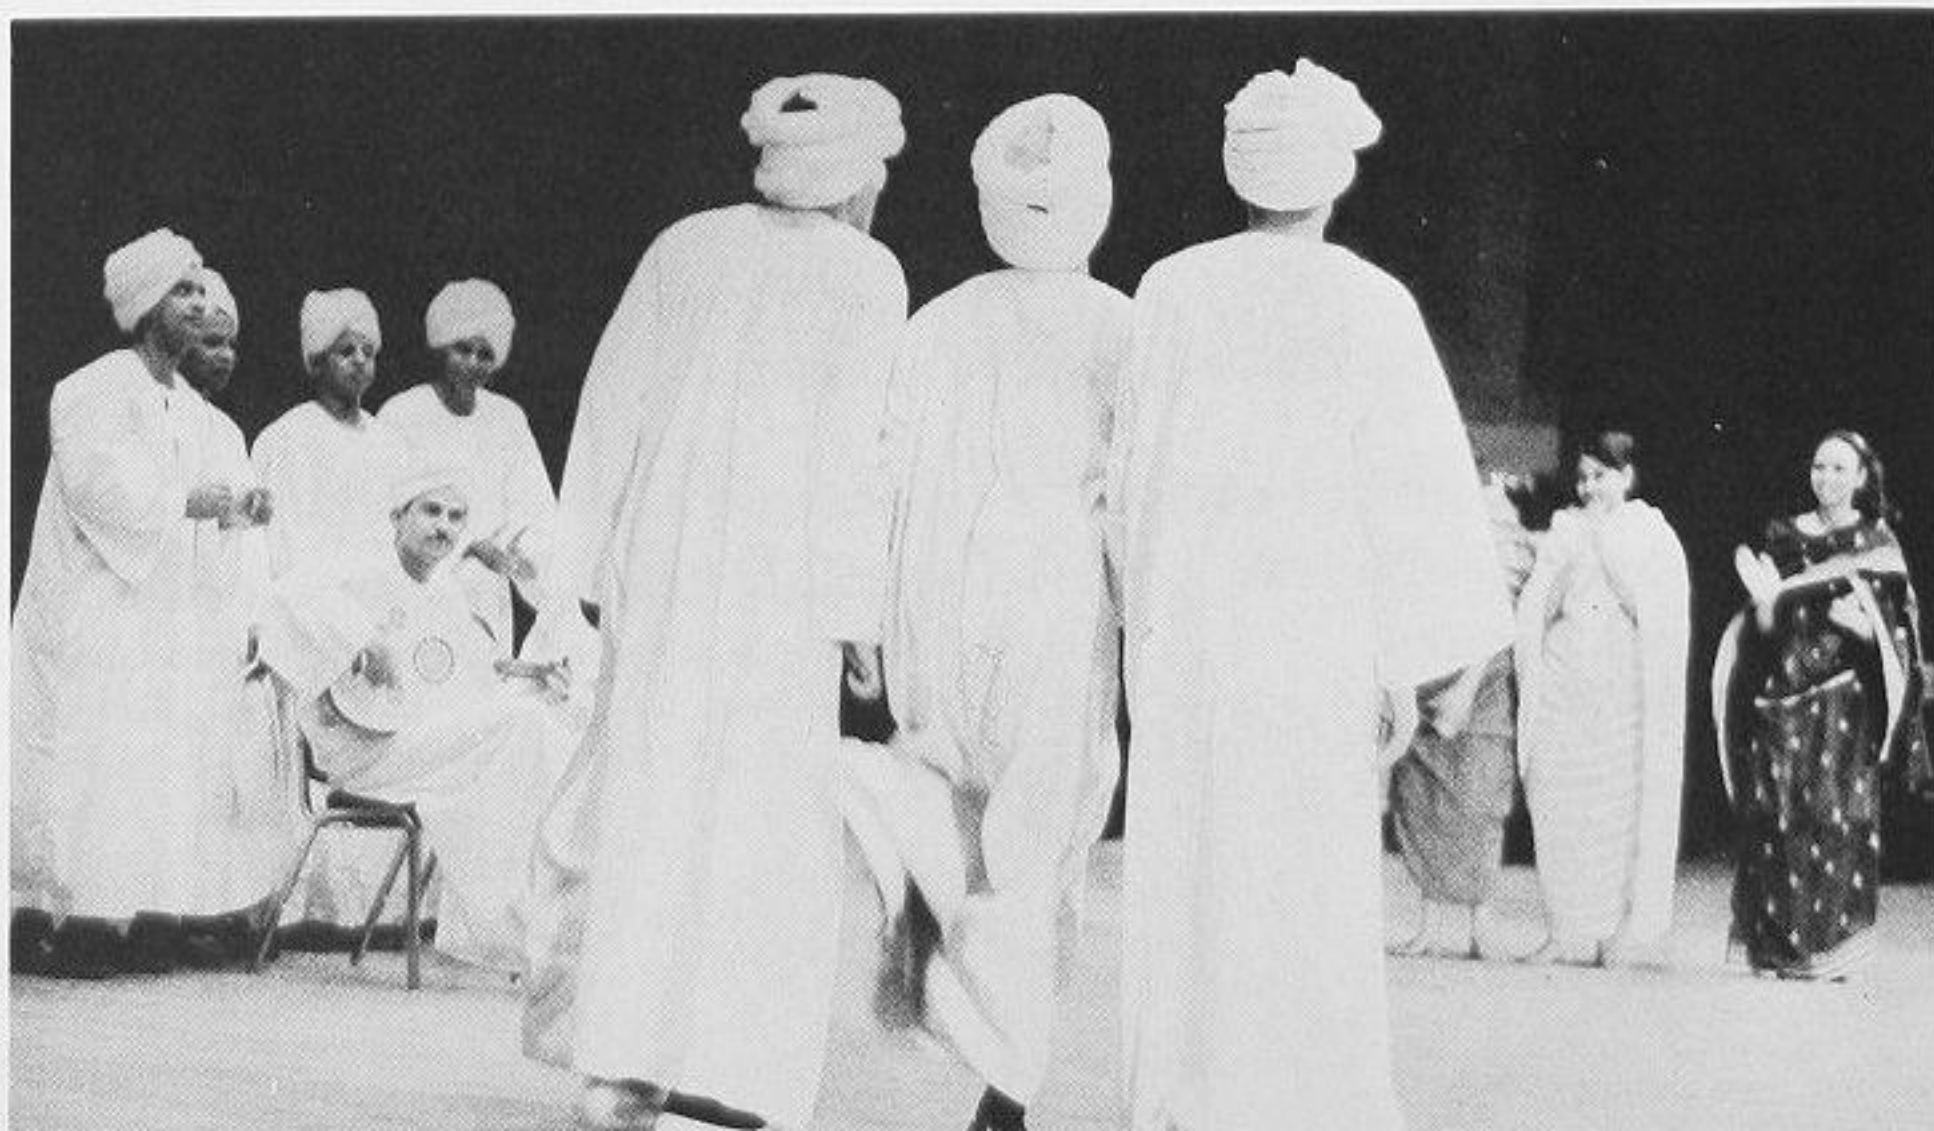

An Arabian folkdance, common to the countryside of Egypt, is performed by students from the Near East.

International Show: 200 Perform In Cultural Extravaganza

Co-sponsored by FIUTS and Cosmopolitan Club, International Show 1967 presented a song and dance tour of over seventeen different countries. The foreign students once again united their efforts to present two evenings of foreign culture to Opera House audiences. Over 200 participants from forty countries performed everything from Turkish belly dancing to Philippine bamboo stick dancing.

Linus Pauling: Political social, and economic problems that involve science.

Pauling won one of his two Nobel Prizes for his stand against war as a means of solving international problems.

Brent Bozell: Death of the Constitution.

Political analyst and former editor, Brent Bozell came to campus in November.

Edwin O. Reischauer: U.S. Policy In Asia

Former U.S. Ambassador Reischauer discussed foreign policy with interested People-to-People members during their International Fortnight in February.

Rebels . . . Thinkers . . . Leaders

Timothy Leary:
"Drop out, turn on, tune in."

Leary spoke to students in the HUB even though City Fathers refused to let him speak in the Opera House. Professor Fred Cohen and Leary debated the use of psychedelic drugs.

John Spellman:
Dynamic center of controversy.

Student protest greeted the History Department's decision not to rehire Spellman for the 1967-68 school year.

Dr. Odegaard Is Man Of Distinction

The President is not a myth. He is a man, firmly gripping the reins and the whip of this complexity called the University of Washington. And he is a human. "Knowledge must be humanized" is his argument. Dr. Charles E. Odegaard is this Man at the Top.

Board Of Regents: Wielders Of Power In Big Money Year

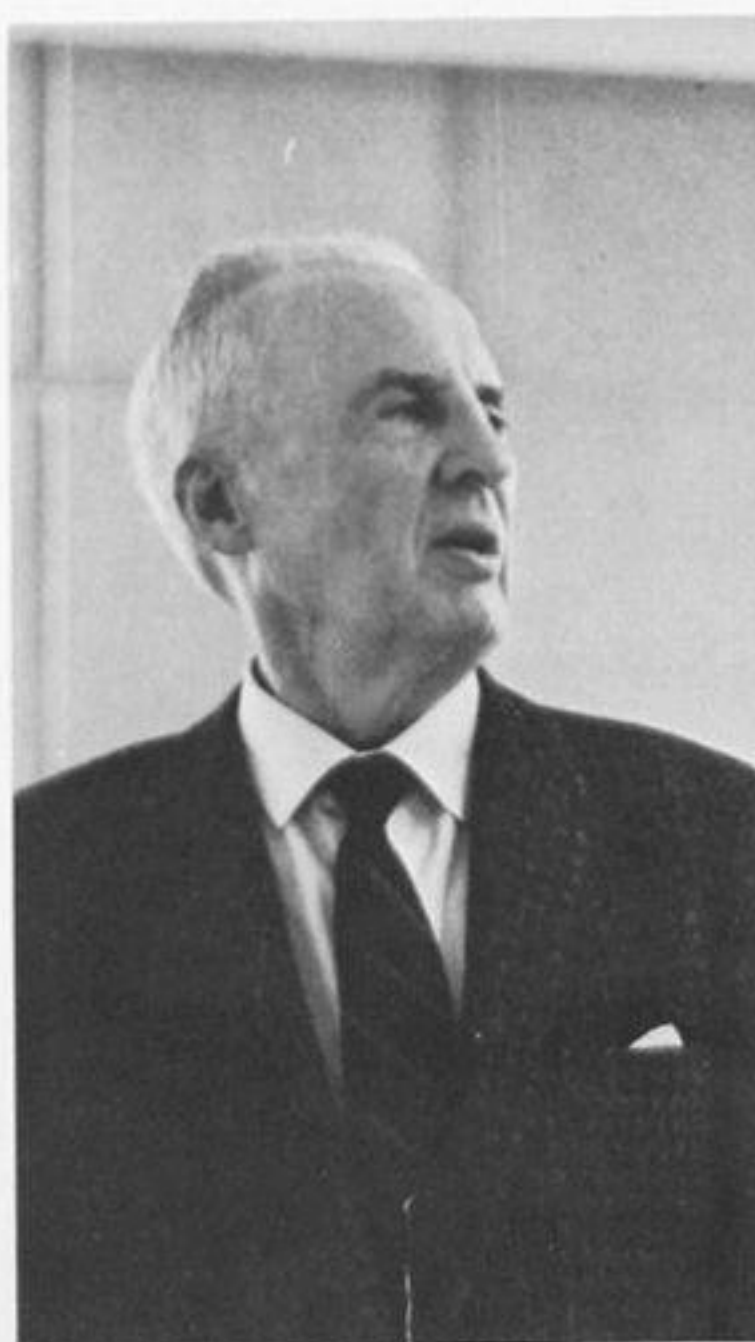

A septemvirate, seated at a conference table, wields pencils and sheaves of paper, evolves guidelines, and controls the vital processes of the multiversity.

This was the year of "big money." Referendum 15 meant millions of dollars to spend, but how? The Board of Regents decided. Construction began on a new architecture hall and an atmospheric sciences addition to Johnson Hall. A new graduate program in art history was born; the faculty increased.

As a non-salaried official appointed by the governor, each man on the board works six years to help generate the energy required to keep this business of education at its optimum.

He has no crystal ball, but long-range planning is one of University Vice President Frederick Thieme's major concerns. Functioning in a public relations capacity, Thieme is a liaison between the University and both federal and state legislative bodies.

The University has an image, and keeping it polished is the task of Robert Waldo, Director of the Office of University Relations and Development.

Legal counsel to the Board of Regents and the University officers is provided by Assistant Attorney Generals Fred Harlocker and James Wilson. The University is represented in Olympia by these two men.

Provosts Administer Summer Quarter

The list of responsibilities is long for Provost Solomon Katz. Audio-visual aids, correspondence courses, evening and extension classes, educational TV, official publications, student ratings, and summer quarter administration are the worries of Katz. Along with Marion Marts, vice provost, he coordinates policies involving faculty, students, textbooks, and curriculum.

University Budget Means Big Headache

A huge corporate complex and a big budget create an incurable headache. But Ernest Conrad, Vice President for Business and Finance, and Business Manager H. S. Thomson strive to relieve the symptoms.

Deans Of Students Interested In Total Student Development

Donald Anderson, Dean of Students, knows that all work and no play is the bane of the student. His position focuses on making students' extra-curricular activities an aid to their social and intellectual development. Problems of counsel and discipline concerning the male sector of the student body are brought to Dean of Men Reginald Root. His feminine counterpart is Dorothy Strawn. This year's big issue was the re-evaluation of women's standards regulations.

From Texts To Toes, Jobs To Loans, Services Aid Student In Hour Of Need

E. Lyle Goss, Manager of University Book Store.

From the time a student first places a freshman foot on campus until he graduates, four student services aid him if he stubs his toe, suffers financial embarrassment, needs a text, or looks for a job.

Scholarships, loans or part-time employment are secured through William Baker, Director of Financial Aid.

An apple a day doesn't always work, and Dr. Gordon Bergy, Director of Hall Health Center, works to provide the ailing student health at no charge.

One essential educational medium is the textbook, and the University owned and operated book store has the thousands of volumes required by the student populace. The manager is E. Lyle Goss.

Employment, both during school and upon graduation, are sought through the University Placement Service under James Souther.

College Of Architecture Draws Up Plans For New Structure

When a college outgrows its niche, it searches to find a more accommodating one. The College of Architecture and Urban Planning has been allotted a new lot just outside the campus boundary upon which to build its new home. The plans have already been approved and the building is scheduled to be completed in 1968. The college morale is on the upswing in growing anticipation of a new and modern home base.

Student problems and frustrations are aired at the monthly faculty-student committee meetings, a new plan to evolve recommendations and changes for the benefit of the college.

Arts And Sciences Widens Scope; New Dean, New Offices

In 1861, when the University first began, its entire repertoire of courses was in fields now included in the College of Arts and Sciences. What was once the totality of the University's scope is now subsumed in this college.

A new dean, Philip W. Cartwright, presides over the college from his new headquarters in Padelford Hall. The recently-built structure houses faculty and advisory offices for this, the largest college on campus.

Dean Cartwright and his staff have the giant task of molding the college to the needs of its more than 11,000 students. The recently revised curriculum requirements are being evaluated, as is the first batch of honors program graduates.

New directions are being followed by several departments. Nationwide scouting will be initiated this summer by the Drama Department in search of individuals with high acting potential. These students will participate in a new, strengthened acting program.

Languages and literature of the Near East with special emphasis on Islamic are now offered through the services of a new professor of Arabic. Extensive courses in African and Latin American languages, literature and culture are now in the catalogue.

The physical sciences have begun cooperative courses in biology, signalling the beginning of interdepartmental cooperation in the training of undergraduate students.

Team-teaching in the department of geology affords the introductory student the opportunity of hearing specialists in the field.

Age Of Computers Catches Up With Business Administration

The ancient abacus which served a useful purpose in early business calculations has been far surpassed by today's needs. The Age of Computers is upon the business and academic realm, and faculty and students of the School of Business Administration tax the electronic device for fast, accurate results.

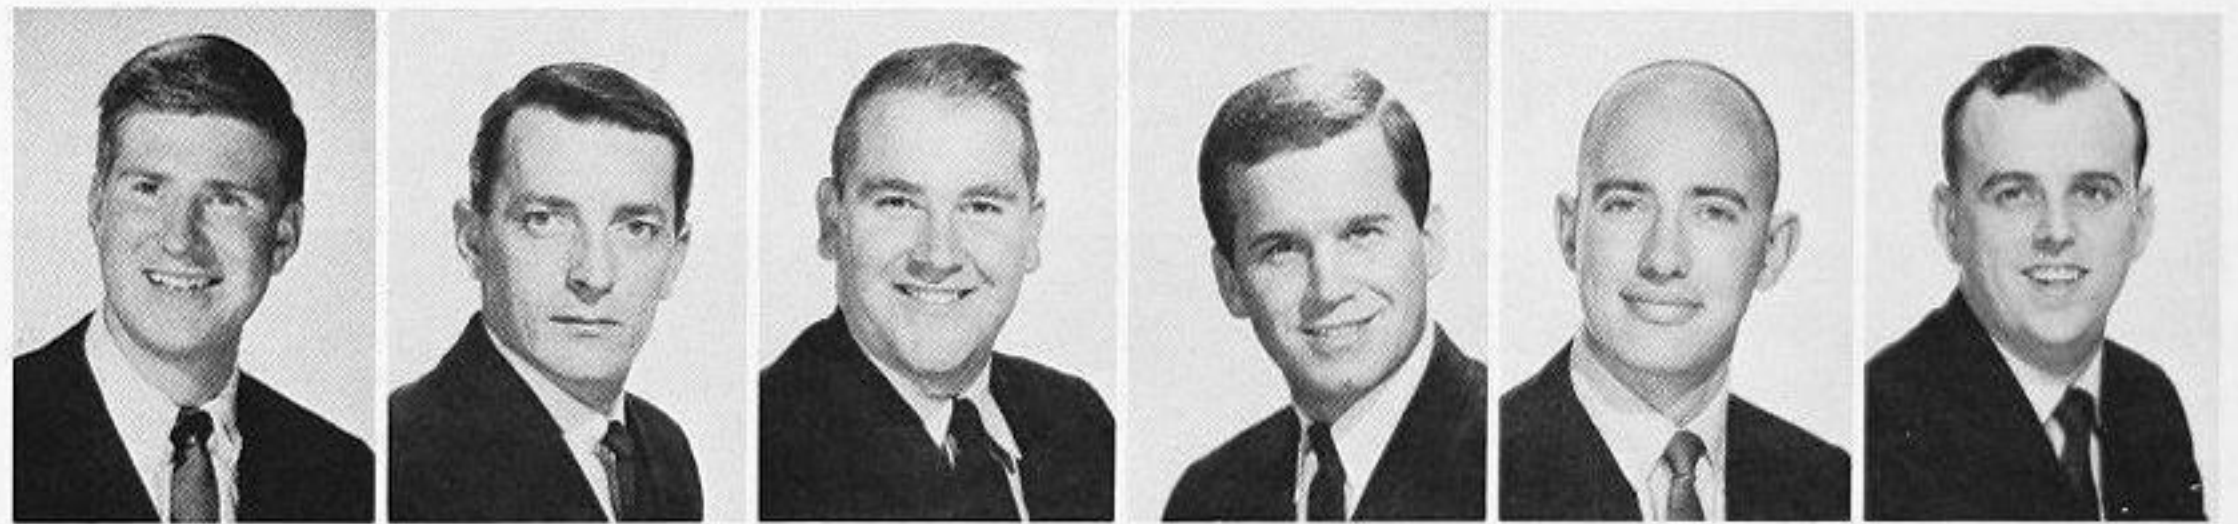

And they play games in Balmer too. Management and production are simulated with all the problems, hypertension, and ulcers of business. The mistakes are the lessons of tomorrow's executives.

Keeping one step ahead of the shrinking globe, the Marketing Department has integrated the study of domestic markets with international marketing. This approach, pioneered at the University six years ago, has revealed the importance of culture in international trade. For example, drugs packaged in white are common in America; but they would probably go unused if sent to India, where white is symbolic of death.

TV, Intern Program Provide Close-Up View Of Dentistry

A daily dose of television is prescribed for the typical Dentistry student. Through this newest teaching medium, delicate procedure is clearly observable, and an entire class is able to peer over the instructor's shoulder.

Senior Dentistry students may now elect to serve an internship in the University Hospital, providing opportunities for early practical experience.

Besides two-year preparation for their certification exams, dental hygiene students serve the community through dental health education programs in local grade schools.

Educating The Educators Proves Difficult Task

Educating the educators involves not only keeping up with the current techniques and approaches to teaching, but also maintaining proficiency in evolving fields of new knowledge. What this year's graduate learned of rockets and satellites as a child is now ancient history for today's grammar school students.

In keeping with the past decade's accelerated tempo of educational progress, the College of Education has instituted several new programs.

Established in 1966, the Reading Research Center offers diagnoses of children with reading problems.

The evolving Experimental Educational Unit participates in the activities of the Mental Retardation and Child Development Center, a state facility whose multidisciplinary staff is dedicated to training professional personnel, conducting research and providing services for children who deviate from the normal. This Unit operates a modern, scientific experimental school for children aged three to fifteen years.

Heads Up In College Of Engineering: Government Grant Makes Possible New Aerospace Research Laboratory

The direction is up! With a grant from NASA for an Aerospace Research Laboratory, the College of Engineering is meeting the demand for upward movement in the Space Age.

Scheduled to open in 1968, the lab, through its experimental programs, will fuse together the interests of such departments as mathematics, physics, chemistry, and astronomy.

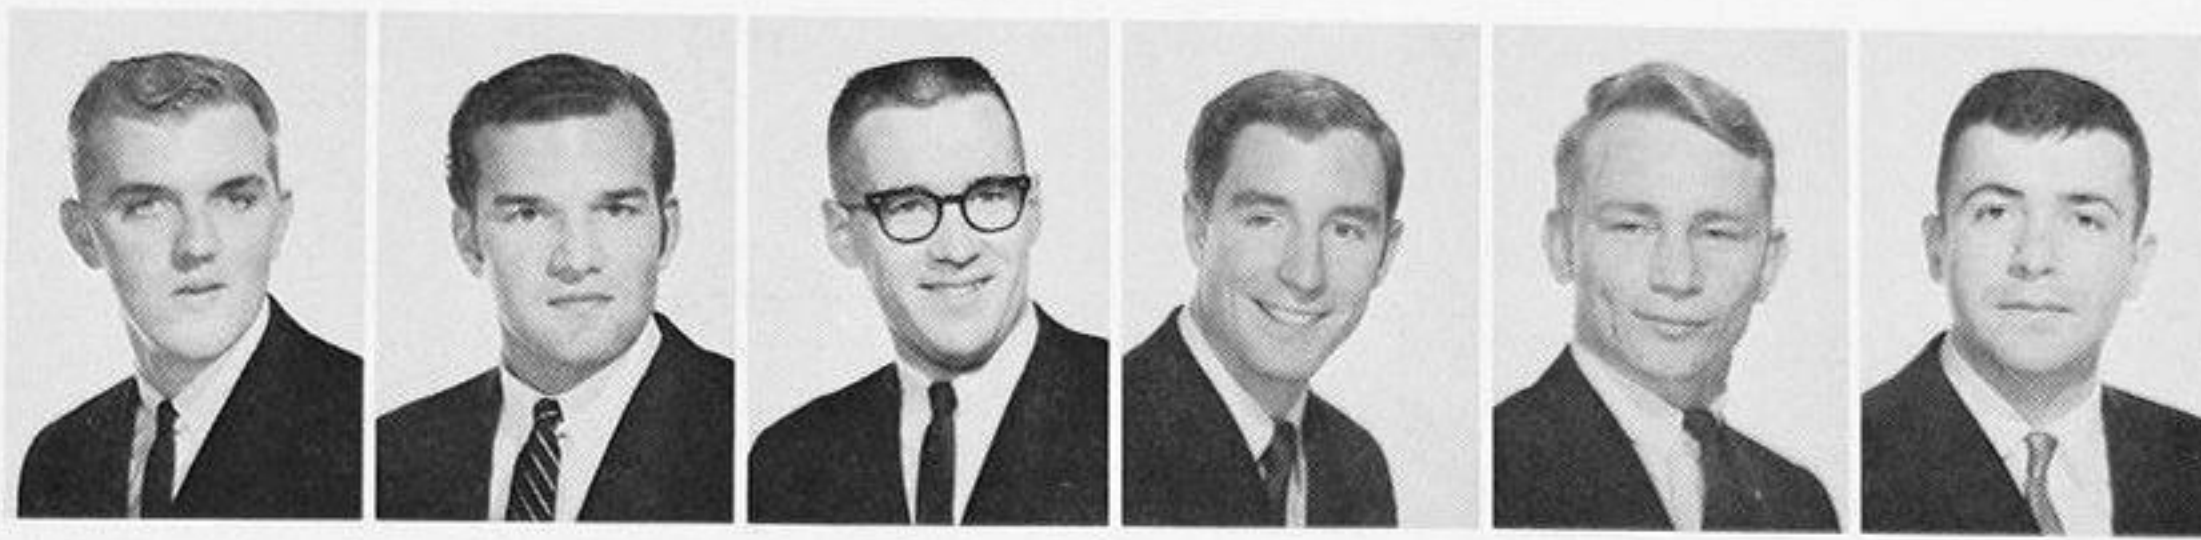

Named after one of the chemical engineering department's founders is the new Benson Hall. Tailored to suit the needs of both graduate and undergraduate students, Benson Hall also provides accommodations for research programs.

Nearly 3,000 students work in the college's eleven specialized departments.

Fisheries Concerned With Depletion Of World Fish Stocks

People and their appetites have multiplied rapidly; the fisheries stocks have failed to keep pace. This depletion in one of the world's major food sources is the vital concern of the College of Fisheries.

Equipped for instruction and research in the Northwest's waters is the vessel "Commando" operated by the College.

The Food Science Division is studying food preservation through the use of a cobalt irradiator which slows bacterial growth. This division is closely allied with the region's commercial fishing industry and its problems.

Research, particularly on salmon ecology, is conducted extensively by the Fisheries Research Institute which maintains six field stations in Alaska.

Forestry, where the classroom extends into the forest and the forest comes into the classroom.

Away from the forest the Lone Fir is a star, a symbol of Christmas.

James Bethel, Dean of Forestry.

Old Campus Elm

After weathering generations of Huskies, the old Washington Elm fell prey to disease, despite the all-out efforts of the College of Forestry to save it.

But besides attempting to cure old ills, graduates and talented undergraduate students work to create better trees and forest products.

The forestry classroom extends into the forests, industries, and government agencies of the Northwest where knowledge is gained and exchanged.

Land holdings on Mt. Rainier and in the Cascades function as experimental research centers for undergraduate classes.

He has a direction now—a purpose, an ability, and a drive. For the hand-picked elite, Graduate School is the testing ground of knowledge as well as the realm of discovery.

Assisted by many grants and fellowships, the inquiring mind of the grad student learns to seek, comprehend, and transmit knowledge. Over 1,000 investigations are being supported by funds awarded to the University by outside agencies.

Enrollment increased by 15 per cent this year. Students work not only in classrooms, but in the many allied scholarly facilities such as the Hanford Center, Friday Harbor Laboratories, Center for Radiological Sciences, and Computer Center.

Through an often tutorial relationship with a senior faculty member, the graduate focuses his attention intensely upon achieving the advanced degree.

Fine points of law are discussed both in and out of classes. (Guess where the seminar was held Tuesday night?)

Law School Will Vacate Condon Hall, Move

Once contained solely in Condon Hall, the Law School has assimilated the basement of Smith Hall and in several years will be housed in its own off-campus structure.

Offering new and better solutions to problems of the court is a judicial council composed of University personnel, practicing lawyers, and lawmakers.

The trend toward unity and co-operation among the legal, social, and economic experts will be further advanced through five summer institutes to be held on the campus. These are planned to aid lawyers, city managers, and urban planners in serving the Seattle populace.

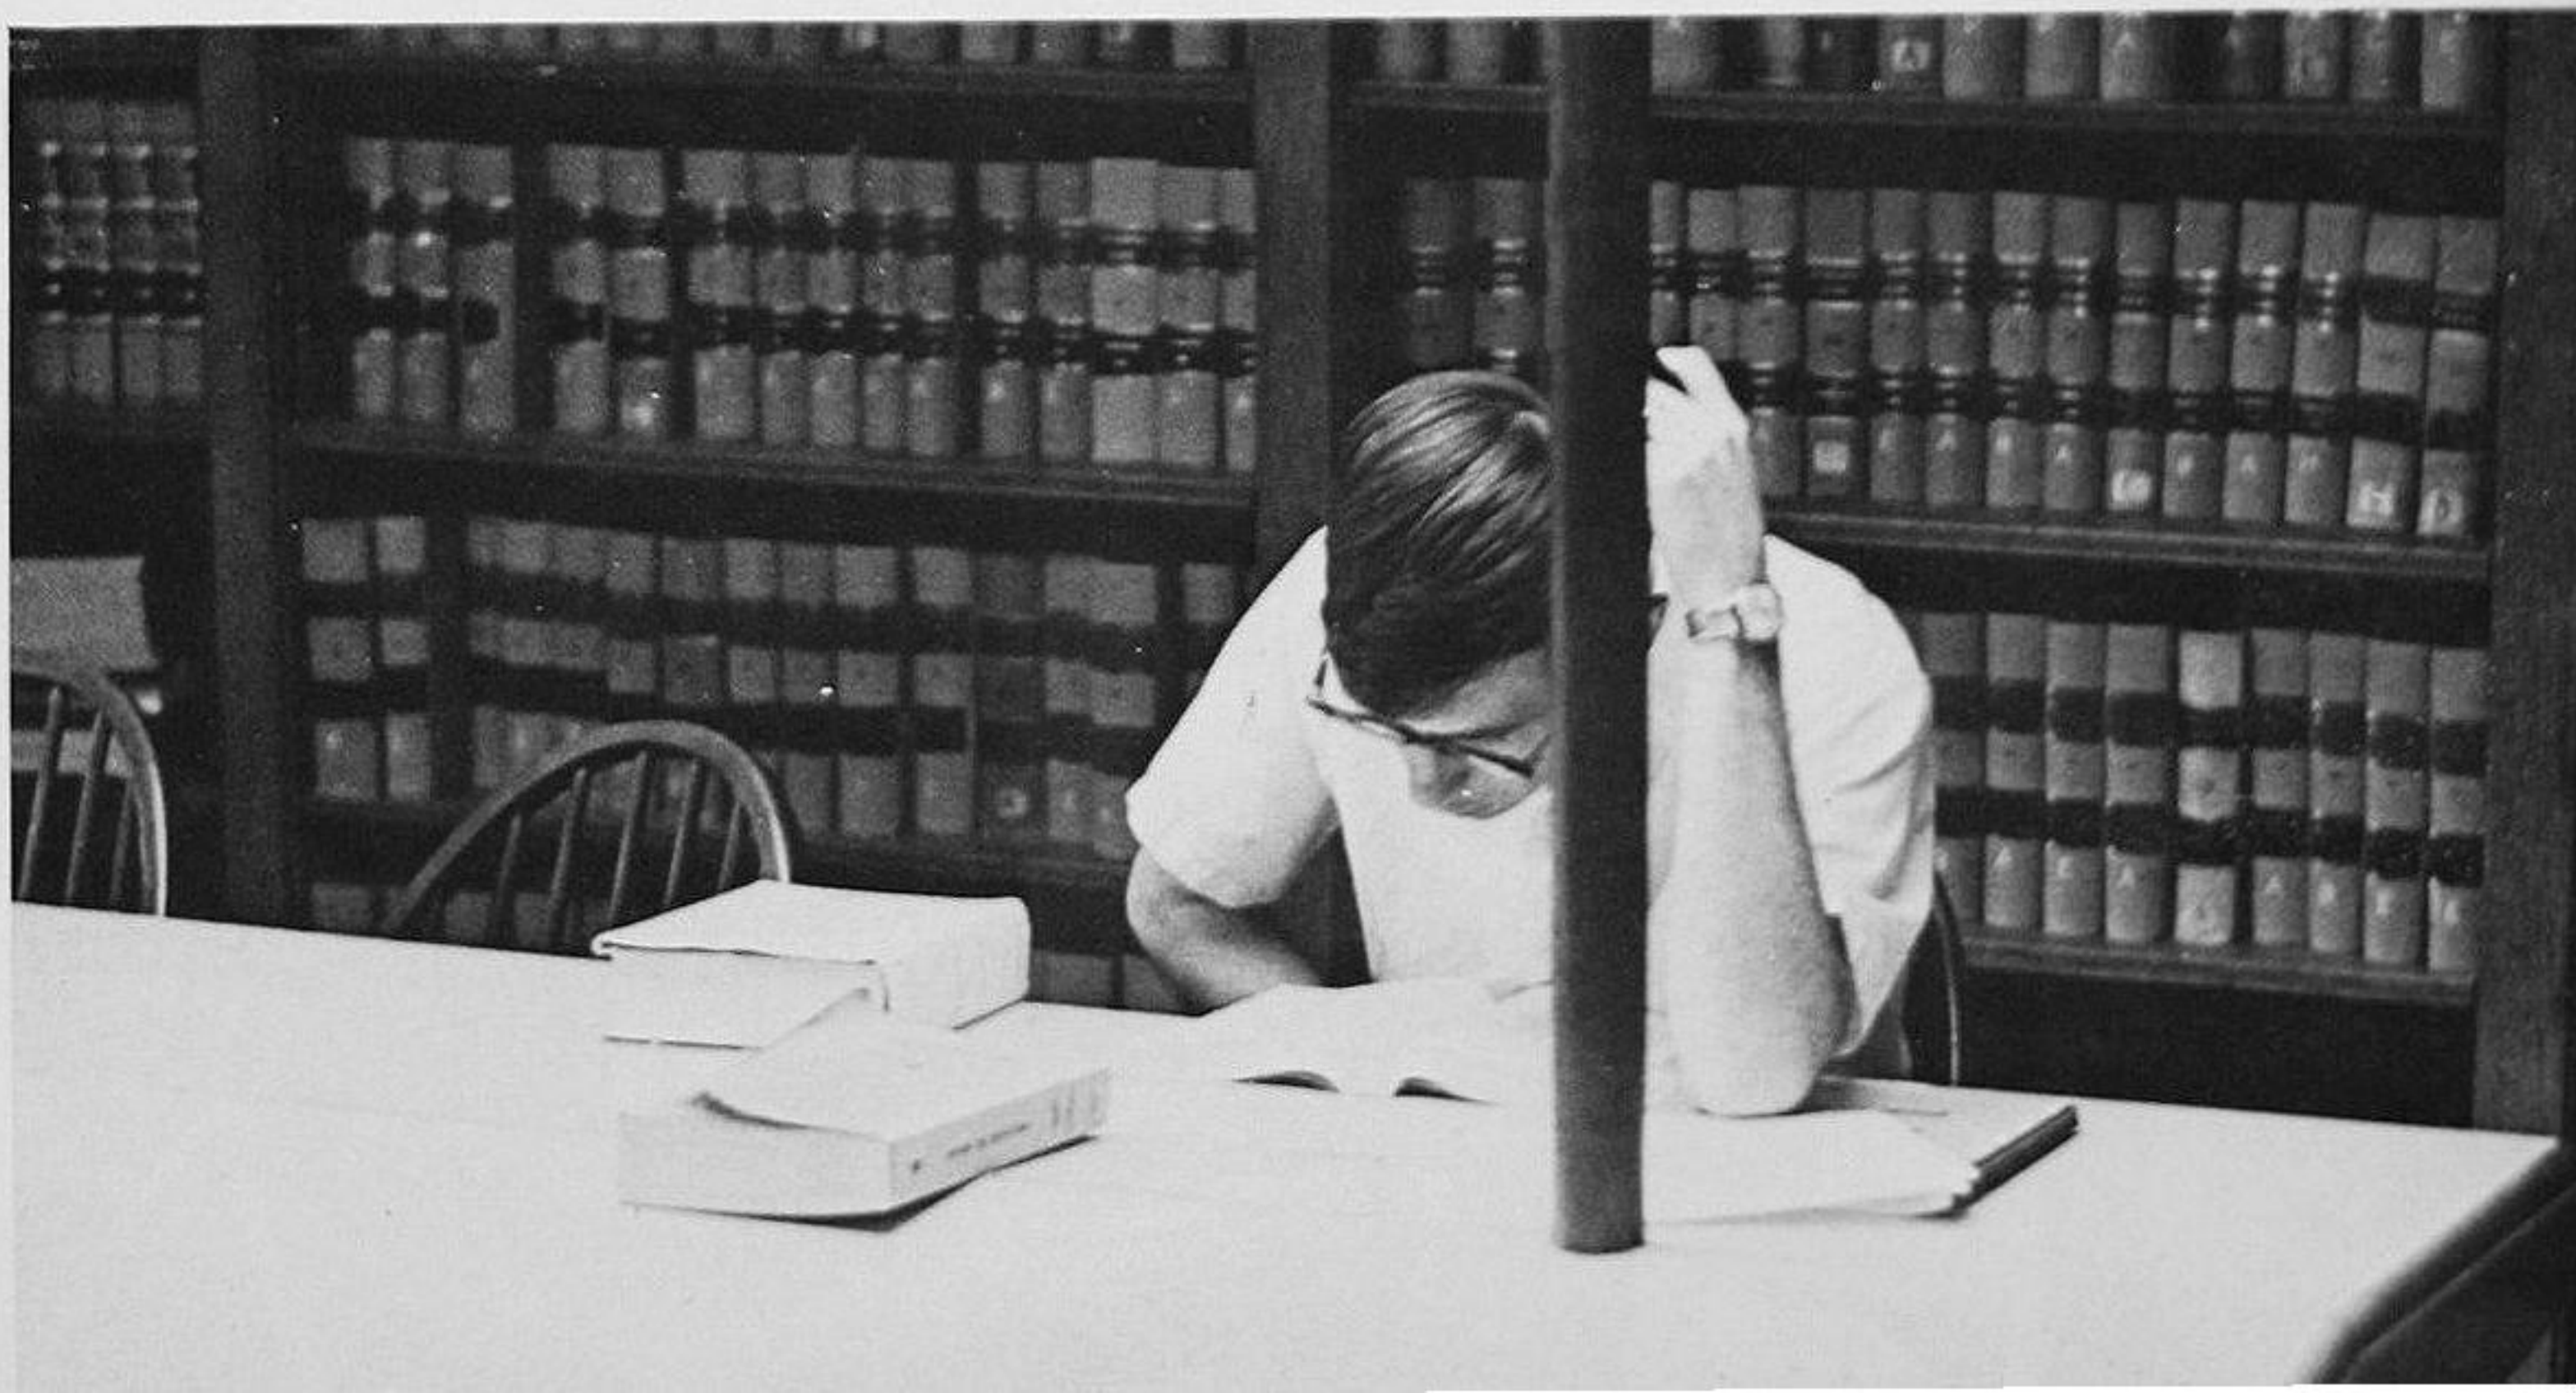

Attracting students from throughout the world is the highly specialized Asian Law program. Now offering a Ph.D., study in this field leads to an understanding of the intricacies of Japanese and Asian transactions.

Medical School In Age-Old War

Bacon once said "...the office of medicine is but to tune the curious harp of man's body." Behind this task lie vast areas of knowledge yet to be tapped, as well as application of that knowledge. The war against disease through cure and prevention is the aim of those trained in research and public health in the field of medicine.

Trains Students Against Disease

An arduous four year term, identical for each M.D. candidate, faces a class of 75 students, made up of fewer than ten women. Upon completion of their medical studies, two-thirds of the graduates remain in the state of Washington to practice. Physical and occupational therapy provide training in patient rehabilitation.

Skilled Fingers Of Surgeon's Hand Give Ailing Heart Patient

The skilled hand of a surgeon motions over the sleeping body, then in one stroke a man's chest is slit half open. The surgeon slips his hand around the rib cage, freeing adhesions. Cloths soak up body-cavity fluids, then clamps and lines pull back organs and flaps of skin until the heart itself is exposed. A closed-heart operation is being performed on a middle-age man. The man is critically ill, with a high operative risk—necessitating a standby for open-heart surgery.

Many hands and instruments are needed for the delicate act of opening a heart valve which has become dangerously narrow for the adequate flow of blood. The surgeon's fingers slip inside the heart to assess the valve. The first string

Chance To Live Longer Life

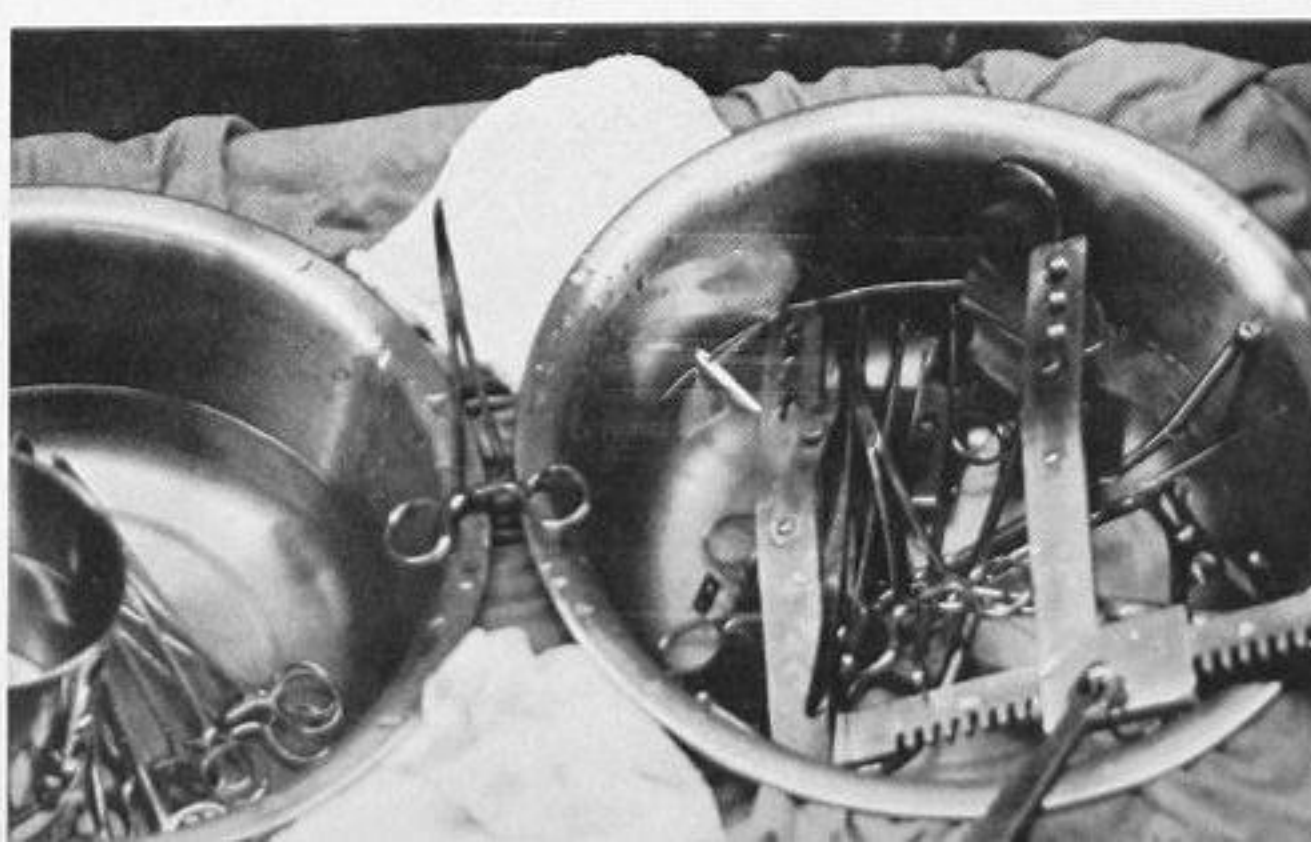

suture is cut to control bleeding. The clamps are released, with a flush of blood spurting on the hands and arms of the surgeon and assistants. Anaesthesiology students draw back from their craned positions as they watch the 2½ hour operation. An instrument heat-sears loose blood vessels, then needle and thread close the gaping hole. The sun-bright overhead lights are turned off, towels are collected, and pans of instruments wait to be cleaned.

New Doctorate Program In School Of Nursing Prepares The Nurse Who's A Nurse To Be A Nurse Who's A Doctor

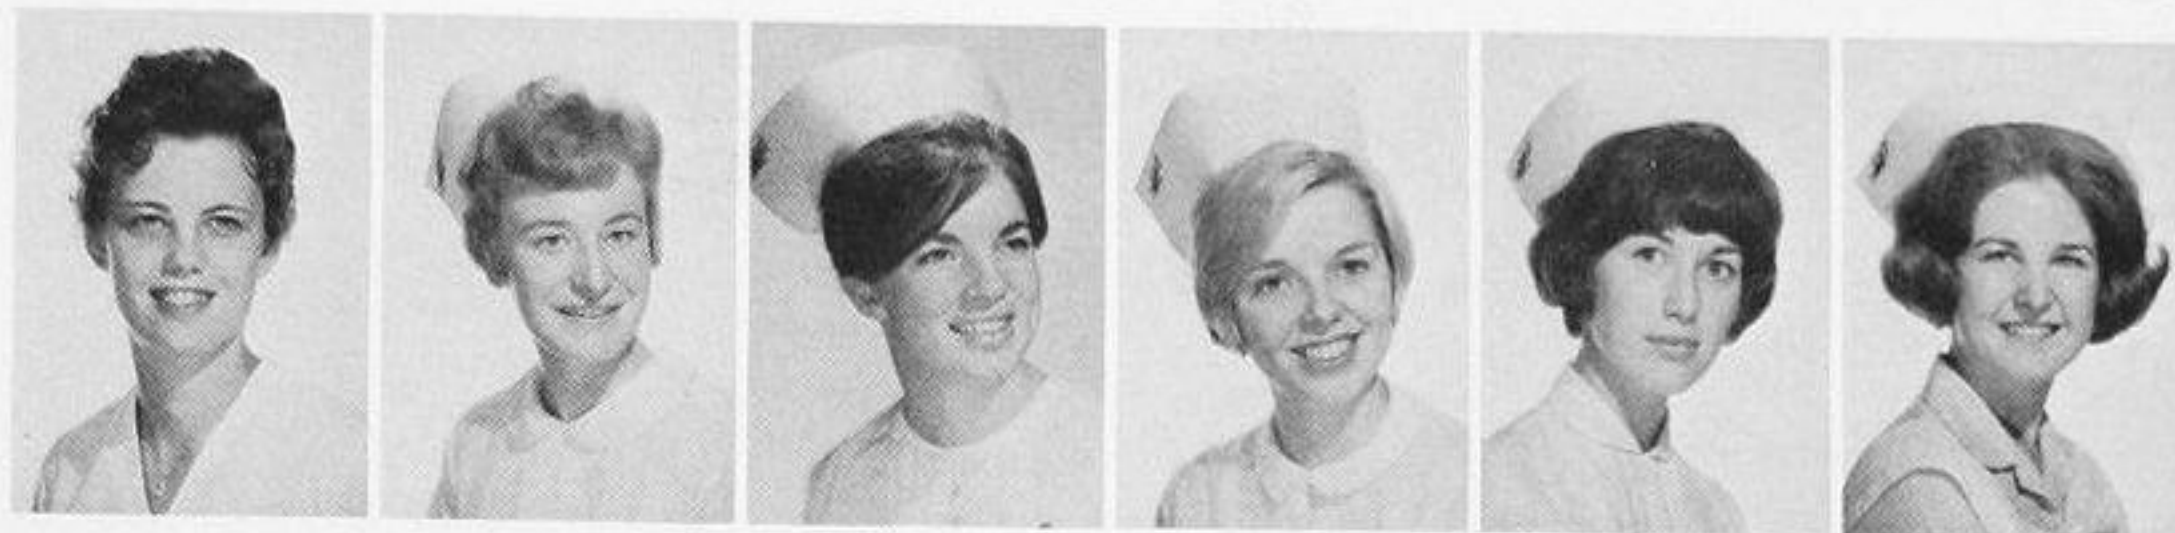

When is a nurse not a nurse?

When she is a doctor—a doctor of philosophy, that is. The expanding School of Nursing now provides post-master opportunities for advanced research in specialized fields under the Nurse-Scientist Graduate Program.

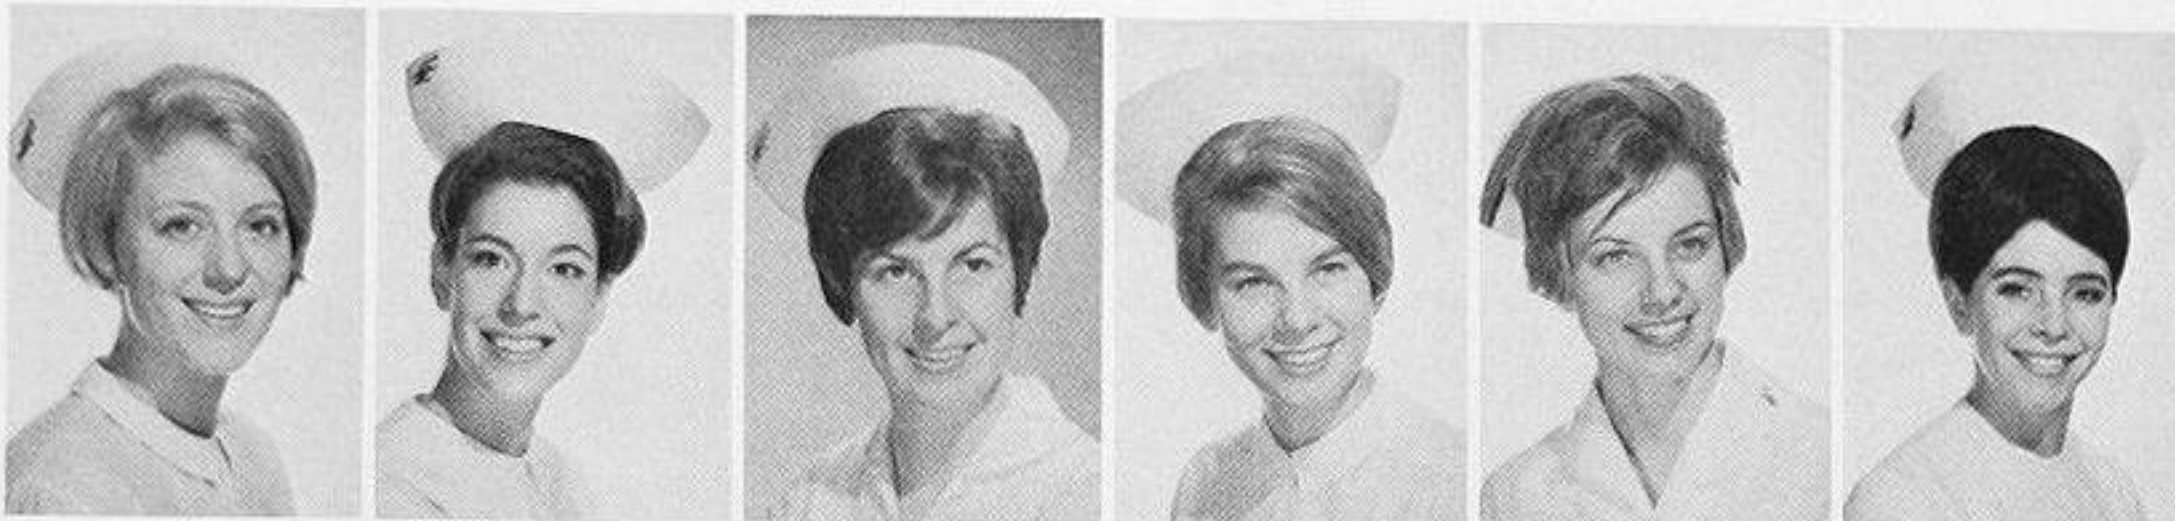

Through a Public Health Service research grant, personnel and equipment are available for further exploration of the use of the electrocardiogram as a criterion measure in nursing research.

The hospitals, medical centers, and public health services of the entire state are the clinical training grounds for over one thousand nursing students.

Females Emerge In Field Of Pharmacy

Women, once excluded from the professional field, are now a potent influence in the College of Pharmacy.

Not only does the University have a 35 per cent female enrollment in pharmacy, but the state of Washington boasts the highest per cent of practicing female pharmacists in the nation.

Bolstered by a U.S. Public Health Service grant, the college is expanding its research and development in the budding area of bionucleonics, and the application of radio isotopes in studying drug action.

Baseball Squad Records First Winning Season In Years—20 Wins, 16 Losses

Despite Outstanding Individual Efforts,
Cinder Team Trails the Pack

Undoubtedly the best crews on the West Coast, the three unbeaten Husky rowing teams were overwhelming favorites to sweep their first IRA race since 1950. But on June 18, 1966, in Syracuse, N.Y., the Husky crews turned in the poorest performance in Washington crew history. JV's finished fourth and the Varsity eleventh behind such crews as Stanford and California which had been easily beaten earlier in the year.

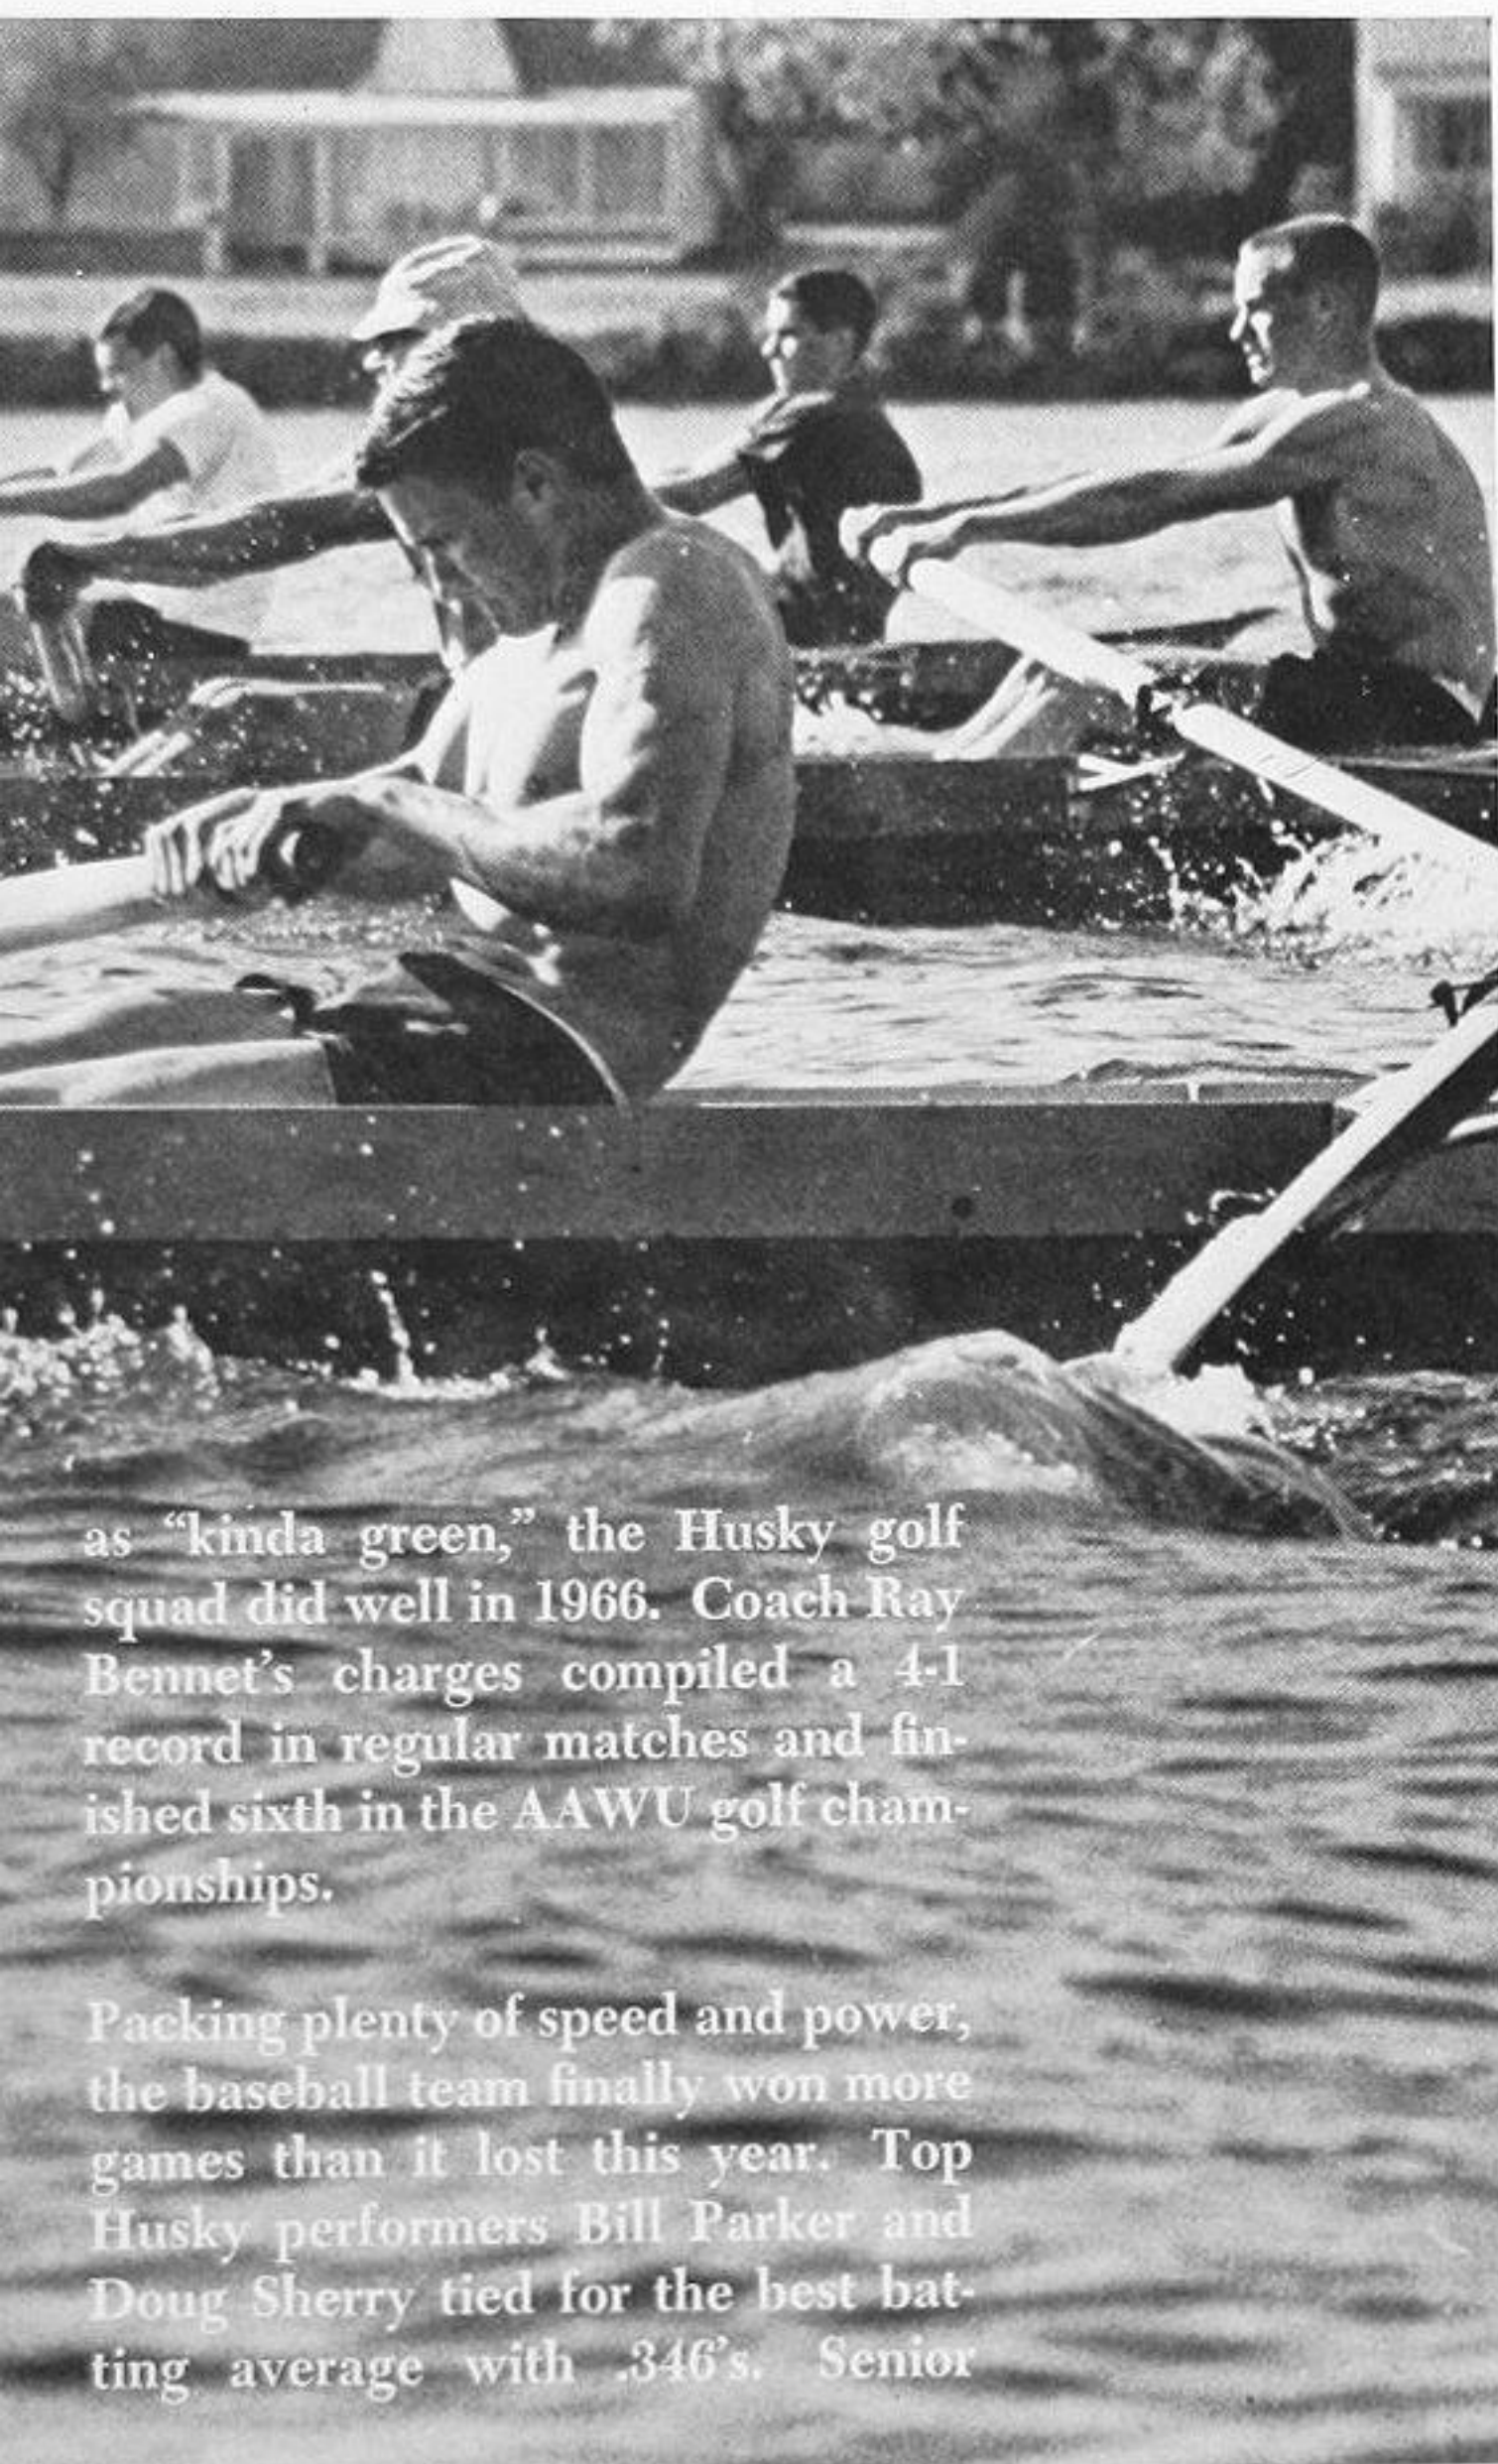

One of the finest Husky tennis teams that Coach Bill Quillian has had in years, posted a 7-1 record in regular meets and won the Northern Division Tennis Championship. In the AAWU tennis meet, the Huskies had a tough time and finished sixth. Outstanding performers for the Huskies were Clyde Witt, Jeff Stewart, Karl Blom and Nick Lapins.

For a team described by their coach

Golf, Tennis, Crew Try To Regain Ground

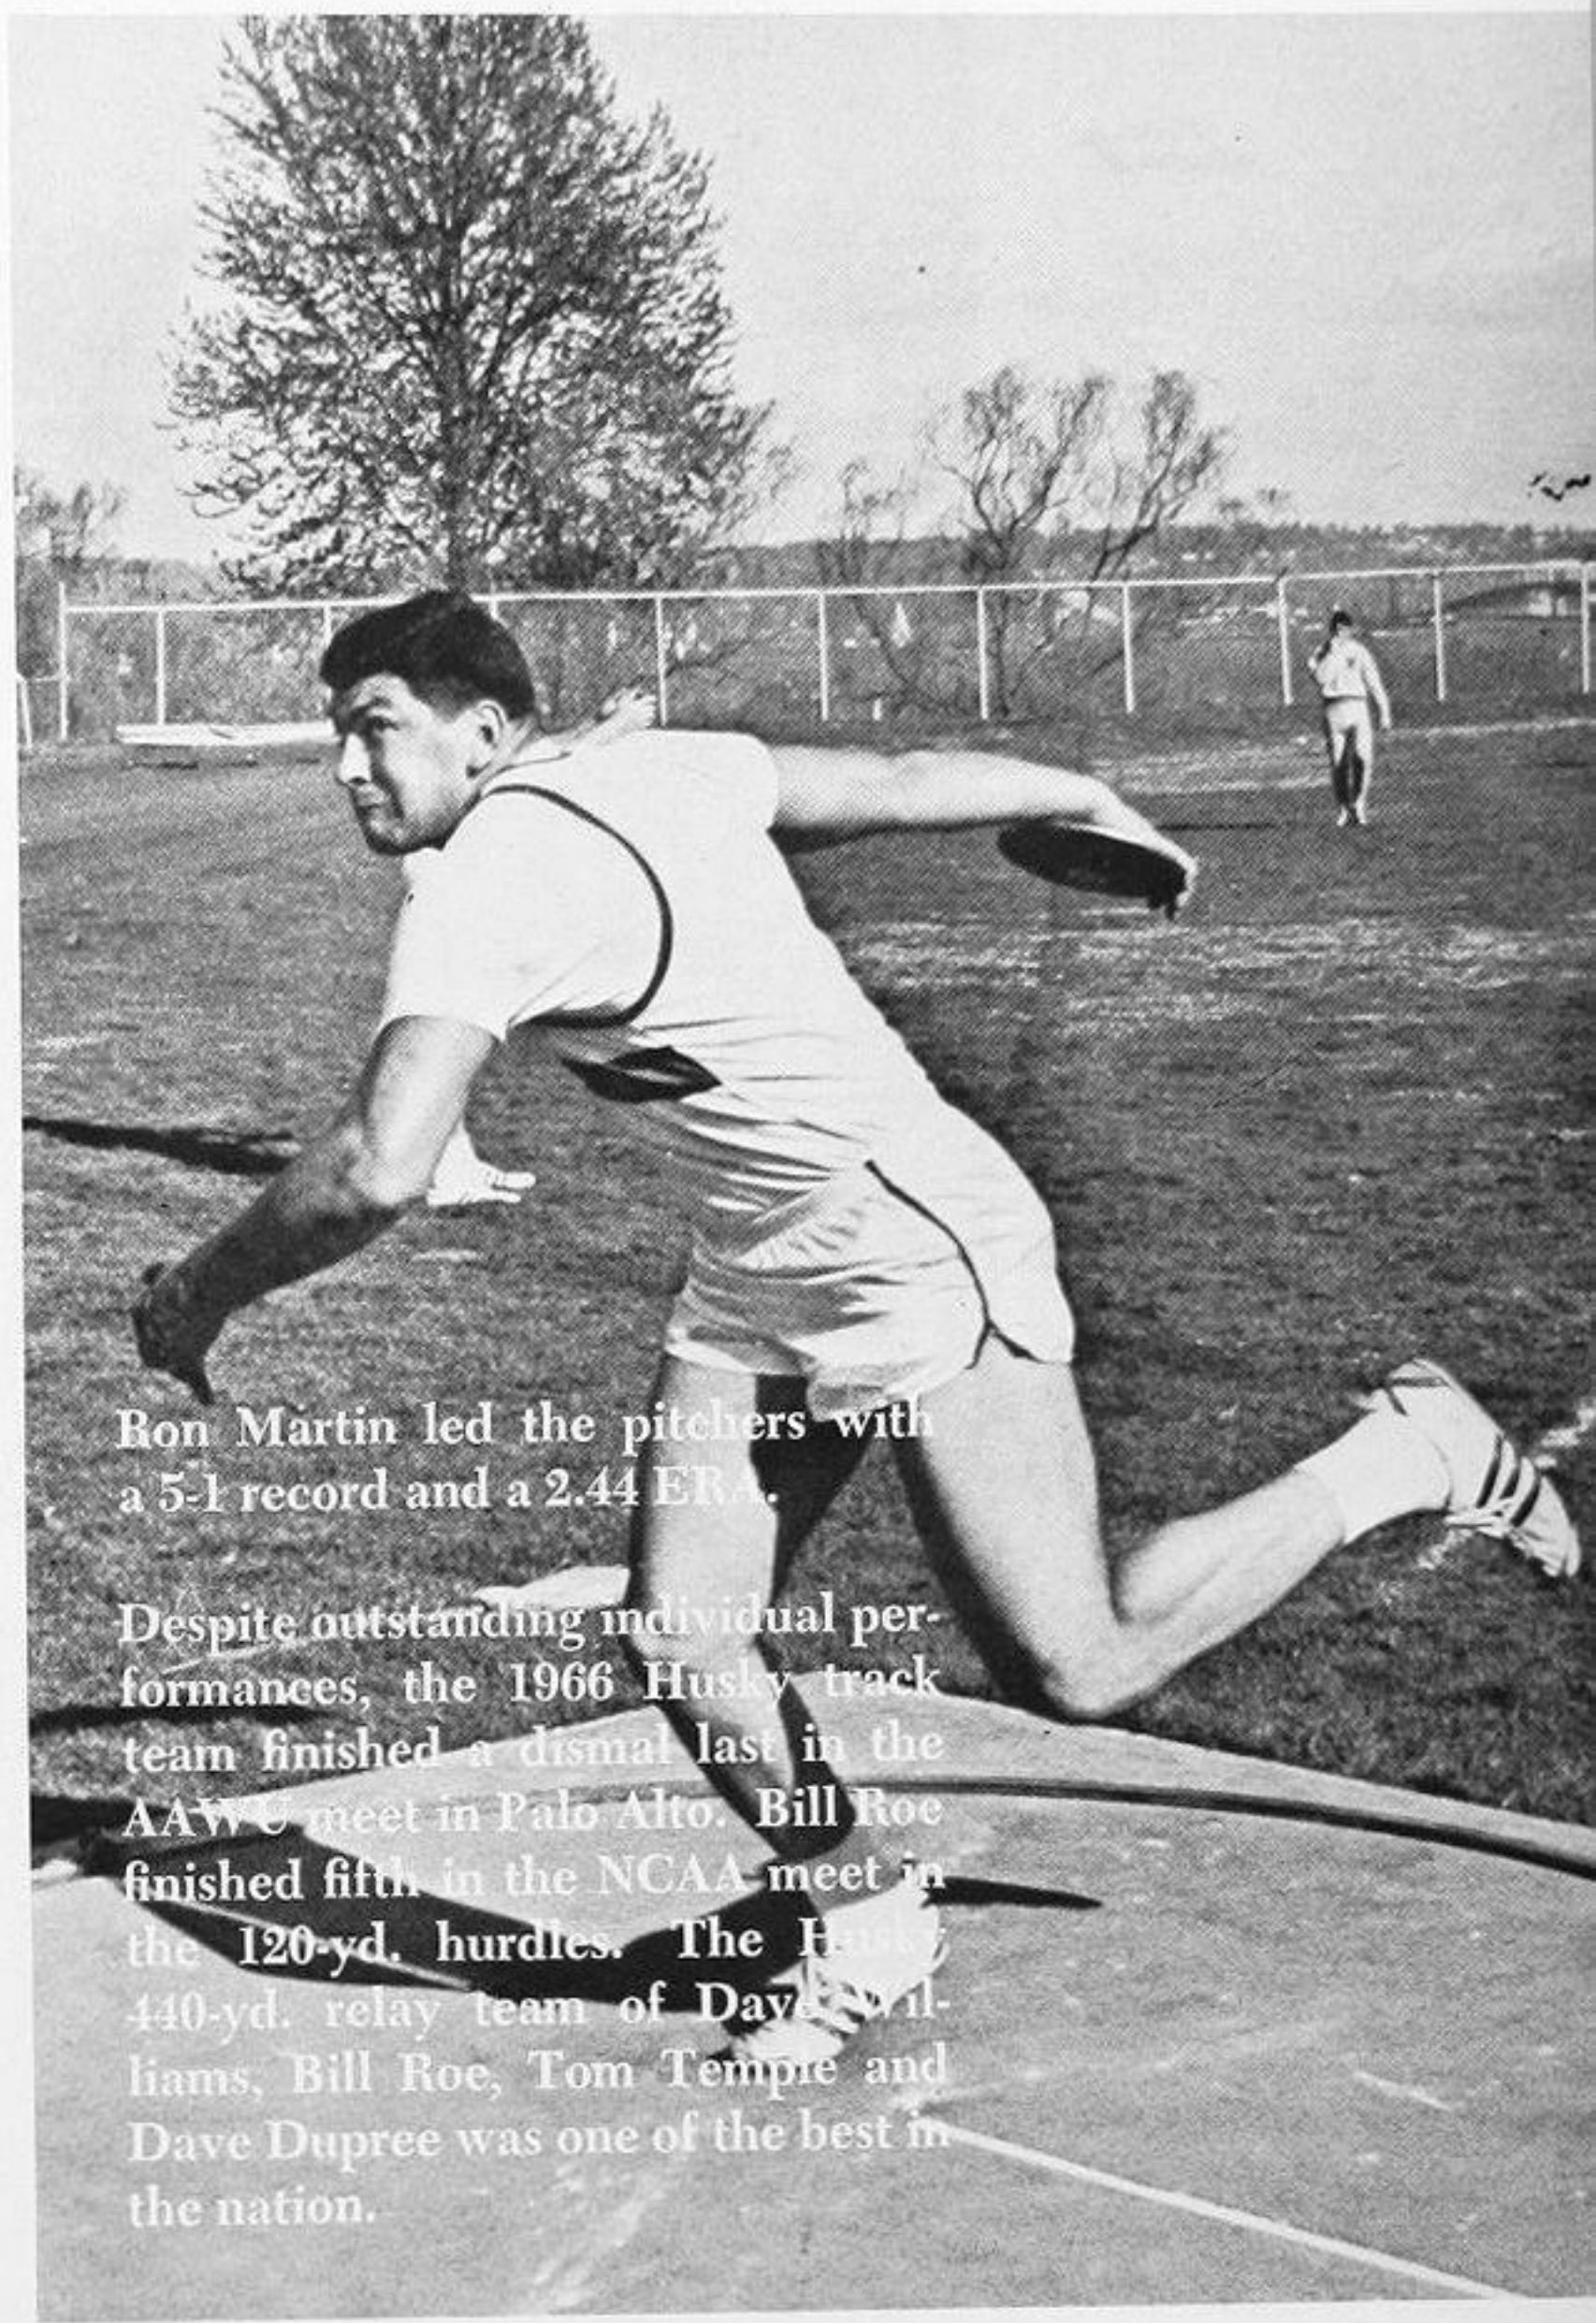

Huskies pull ahead of UCLA and UBC to show the crew's technique that was unbeatable until the IRA Regatta.

as "kinda green," the Husky golf squad did well in 1966. Coach Ray Bennet's charges compiled a 4-1 record in regular matches and finished sixth in the AAWU golf championships.

Packing plenty of speed and power, the baseball team finally won more games than it lost this year. Top Husky performers Bill Parker and Doug Sherry tied for the best batting average with .346's. Senior Ron Martin led the pitchers with a 5-1 record and a 2.44 ERA.

Despite outstanding individual performances, the 1966 Husky track team finished a dismal last in the AAWU meet in Palo Alto. Bill Roe finished fifth in the NCAA meet in the 120-yd. hurdles. The Husky 440-yd. relay team of Dave Williams, Bill Roe, Tom Temple and Dave Dupree was one of the best in the nation.

Lost By Track And Baseball

A 6-4 Record An Upset Win But No Roses For The Huskies

To say that football is a contact sport is inaccurate. For, as one coach once said, "Dancing is a contact sport too." Football is a sport of physical violence, and under Jim Owens, Washington football teams have always been violent. A Husky football player is easily recognized by the patched forehead or the scar on the bridge of his nose.

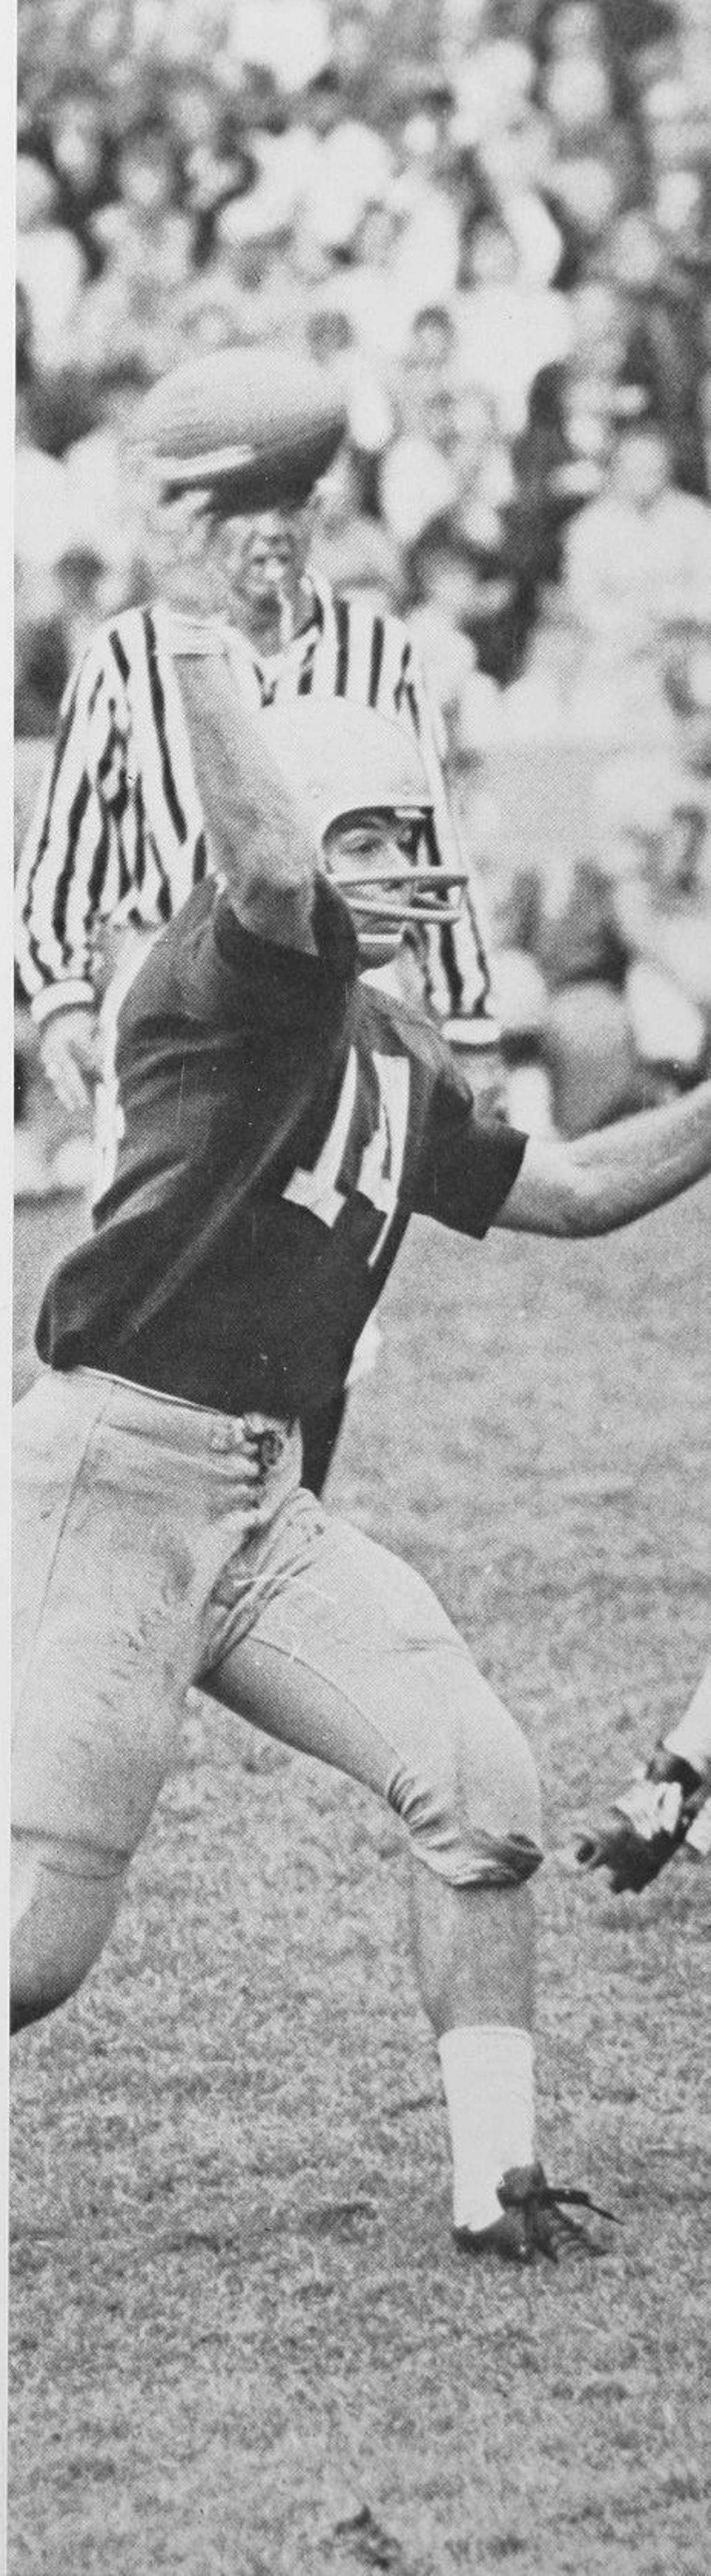

Washington opened the 1966 season at home with a 19-7 win over Idaho. Coach Owens called this the best opening game in six years.

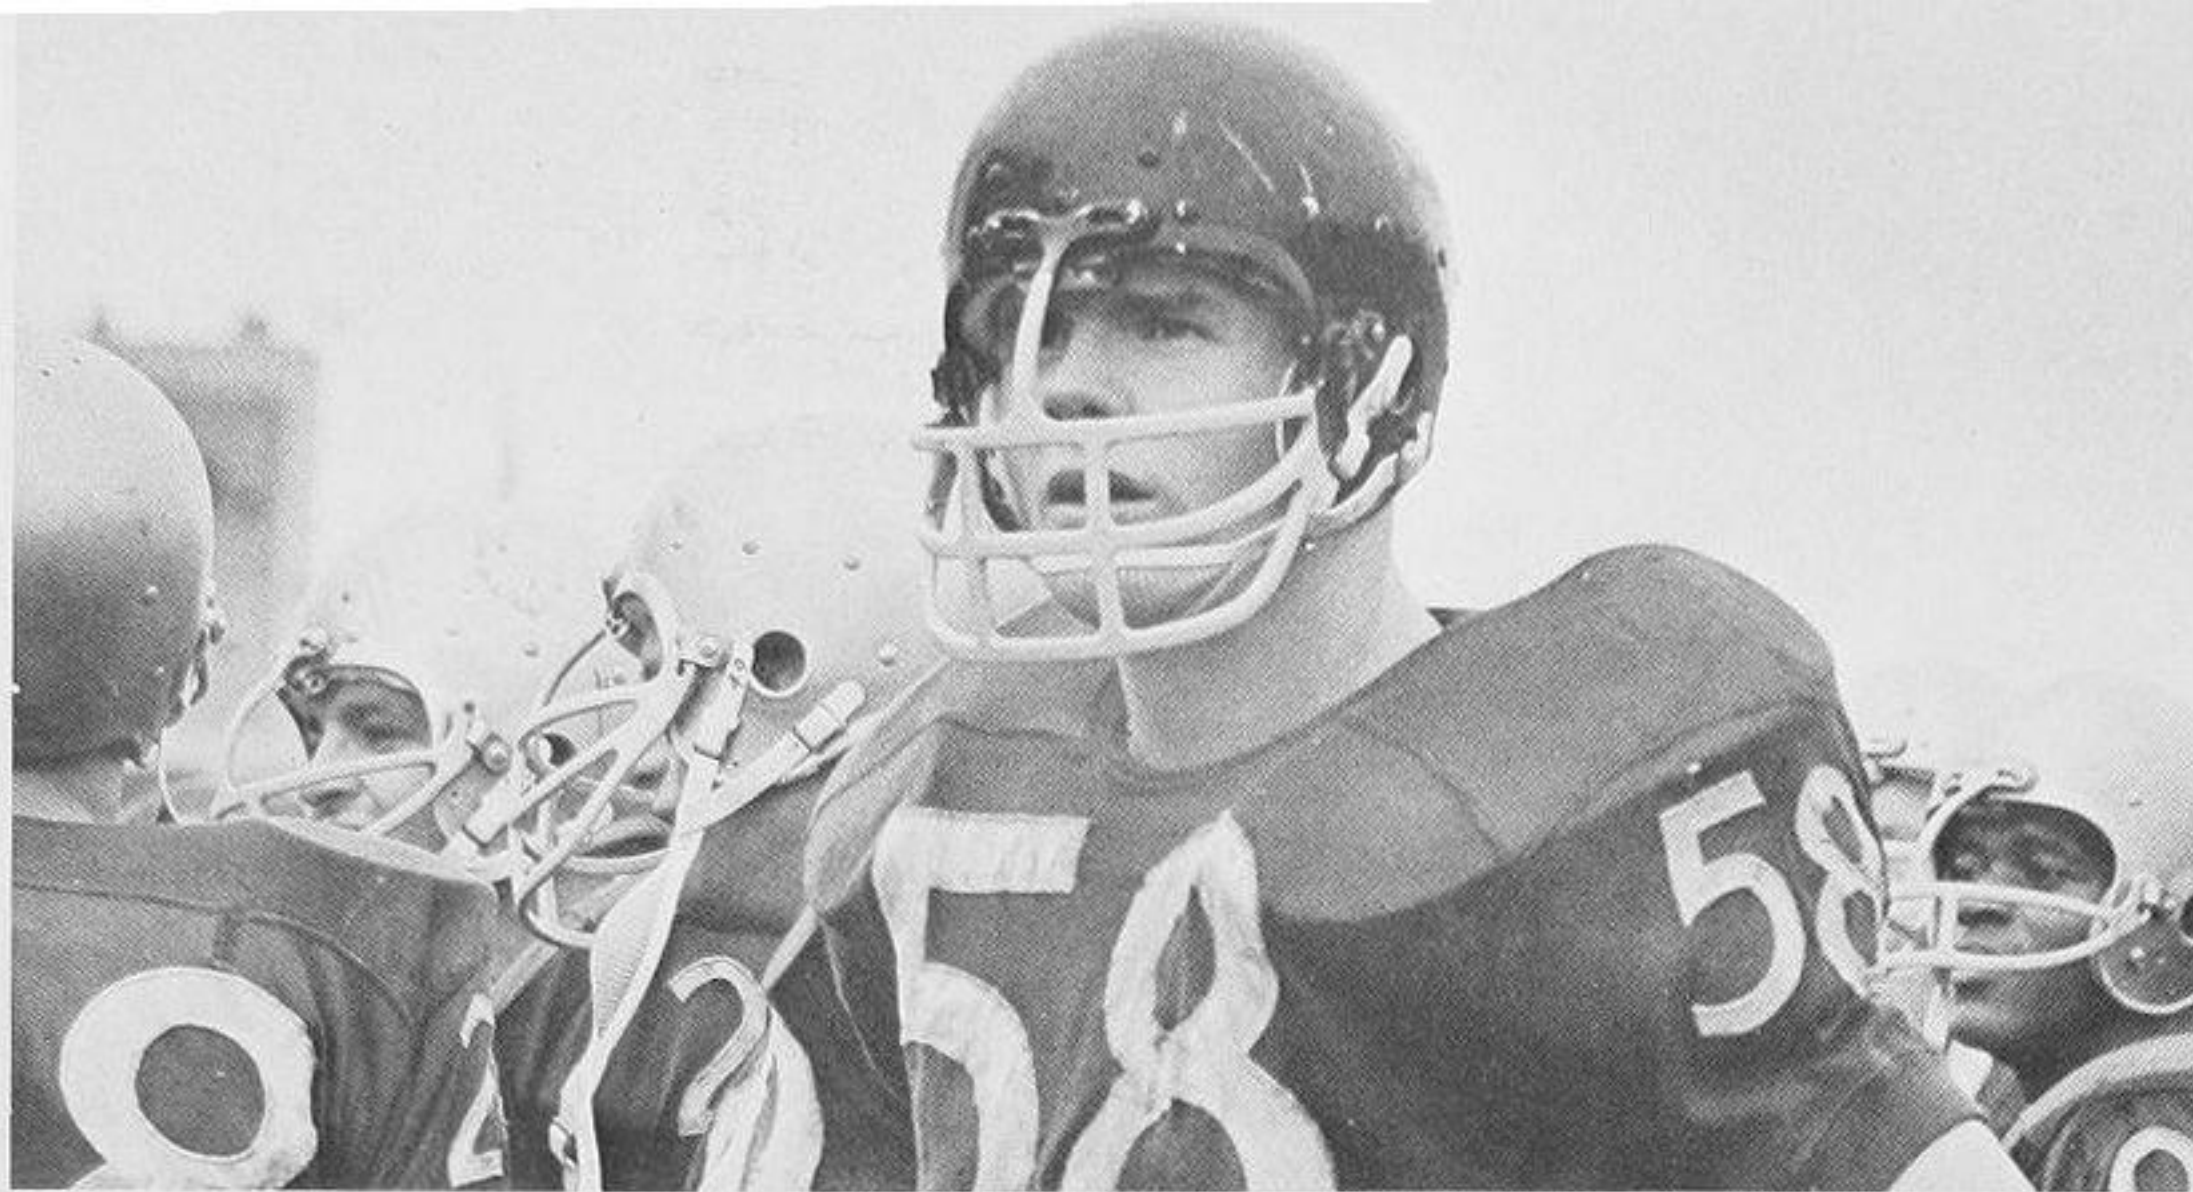

Sartoris Sparks Upset; Third-Ranked UCLA Falls

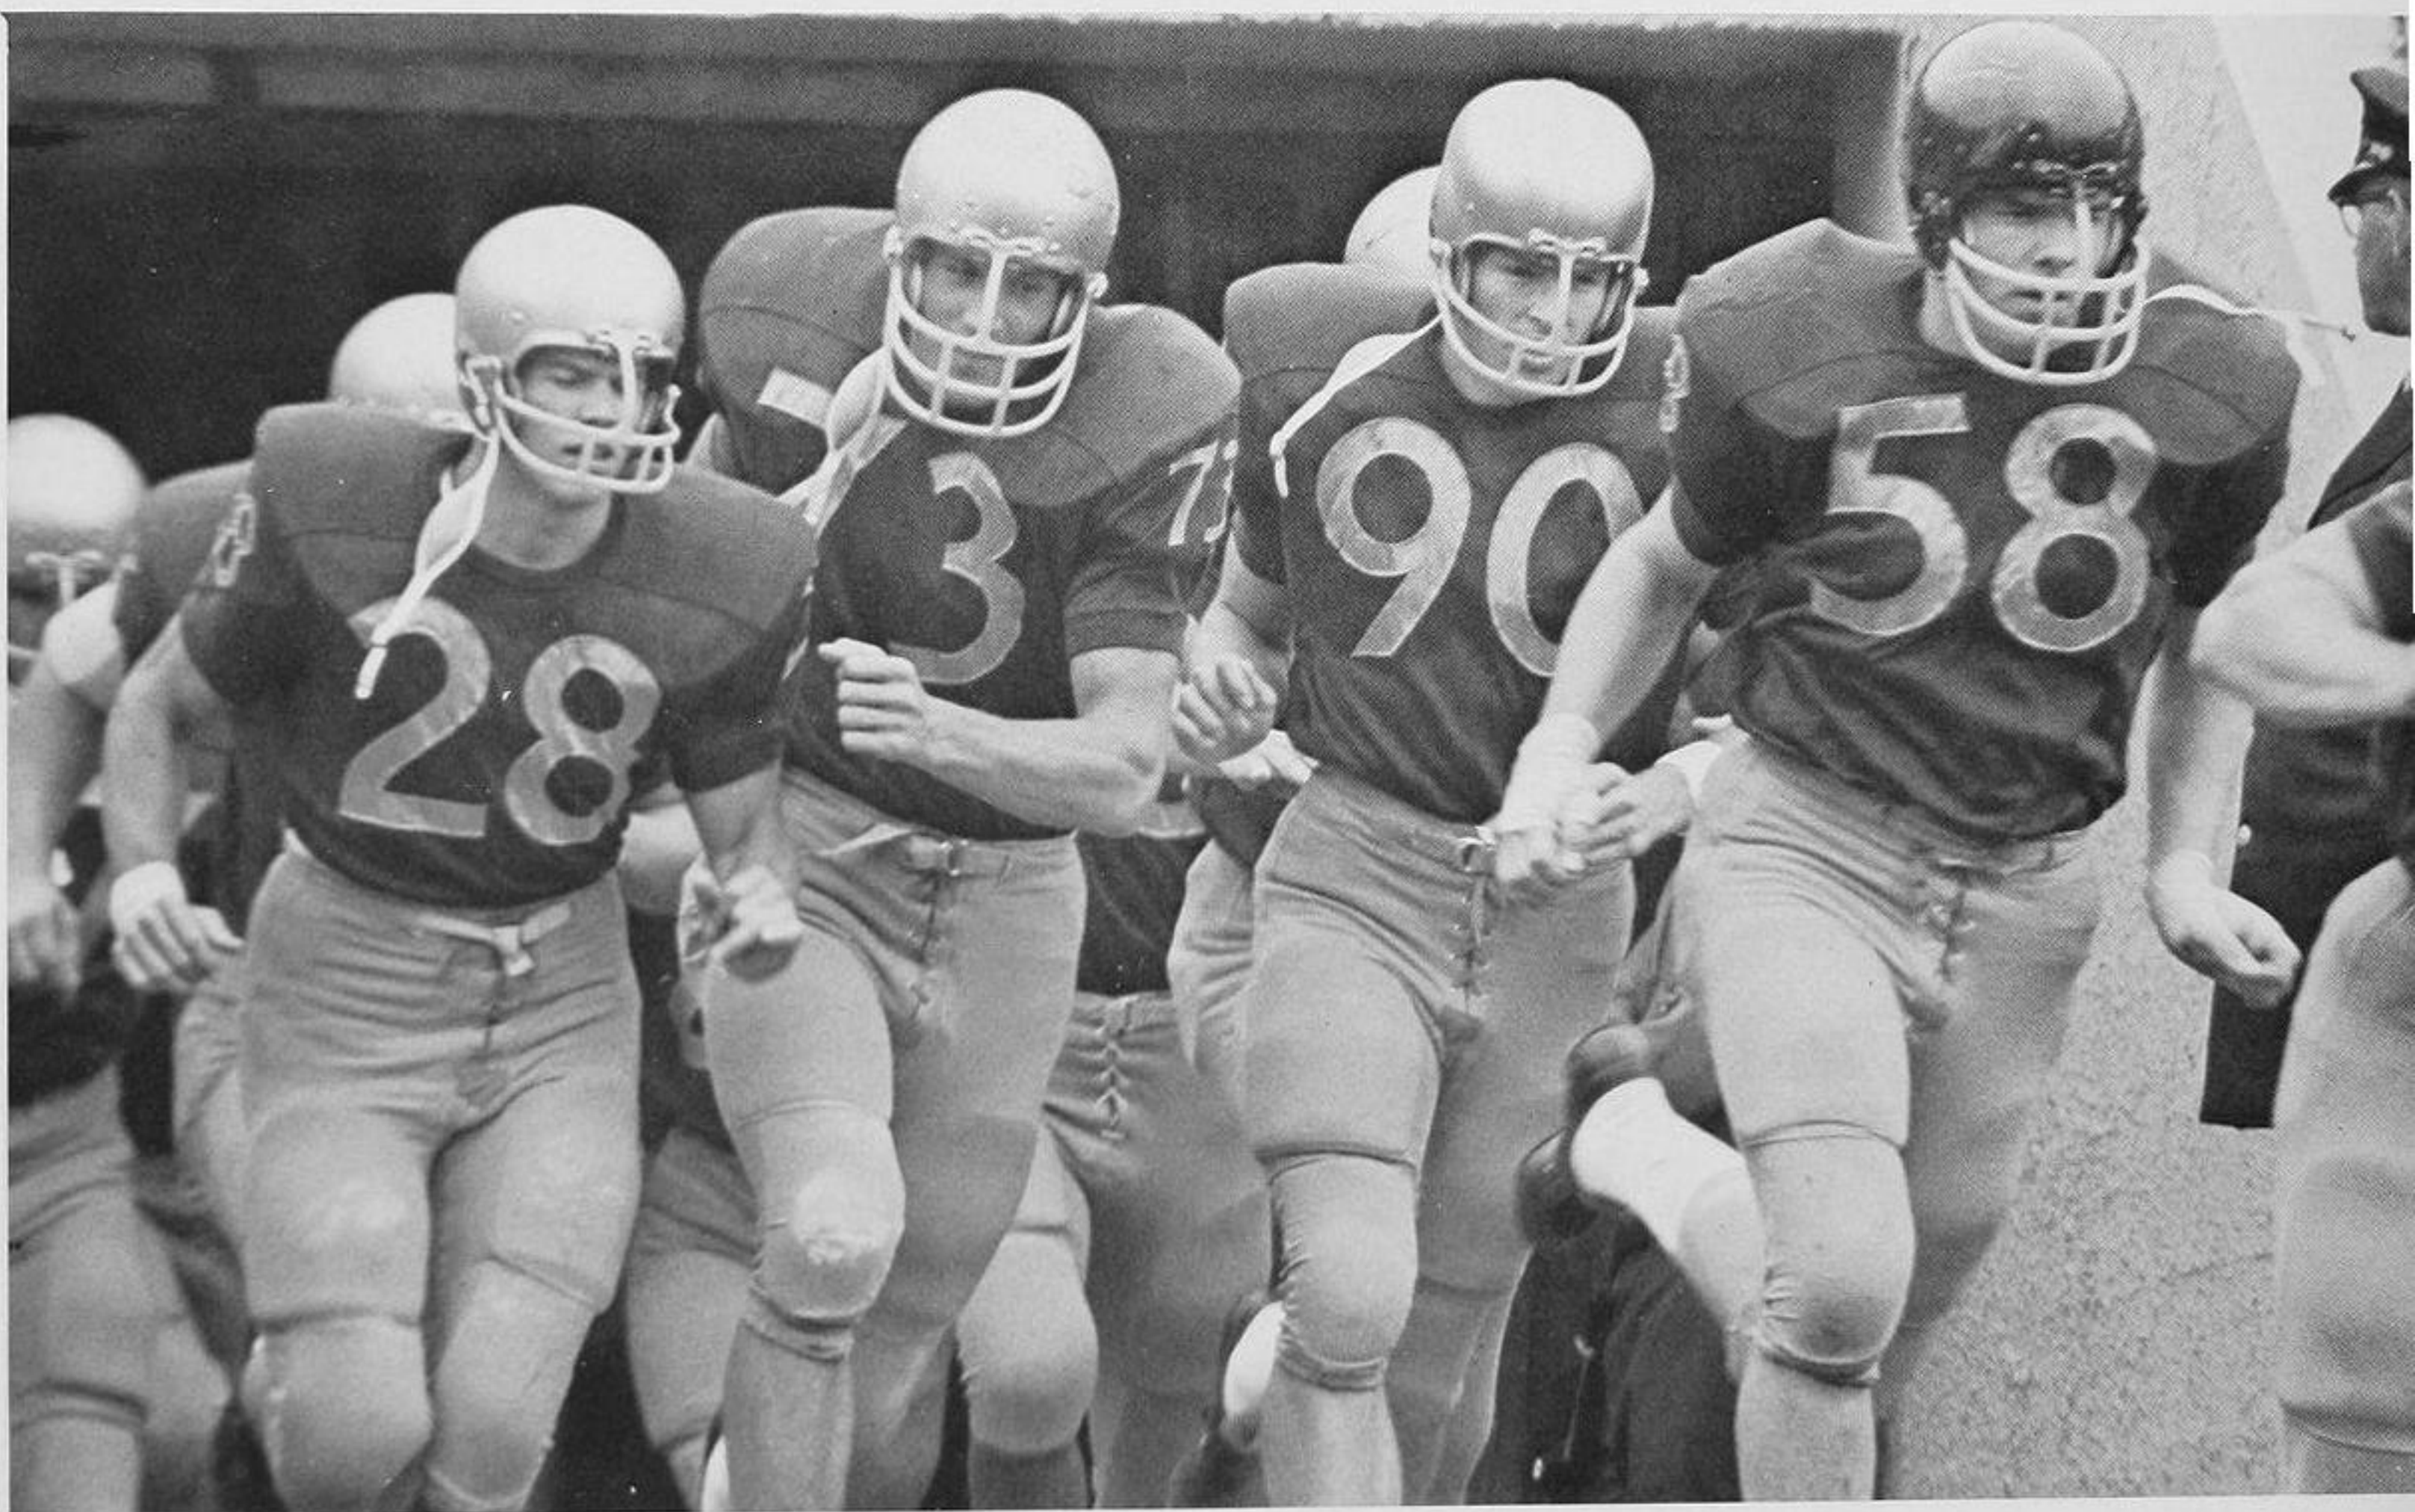

He ran and ran and when finally brought down, Jim Sartoris had gone 82 yards on a kickoff return against UCLA.

A bad ankle sidelined Tom Sparlin for much of the Air Force game, but the starting quarterback was still total offense leader for the season.

Clad in fresh new jerseys, Washington players charge onto the field for the season's opener against Idaho.

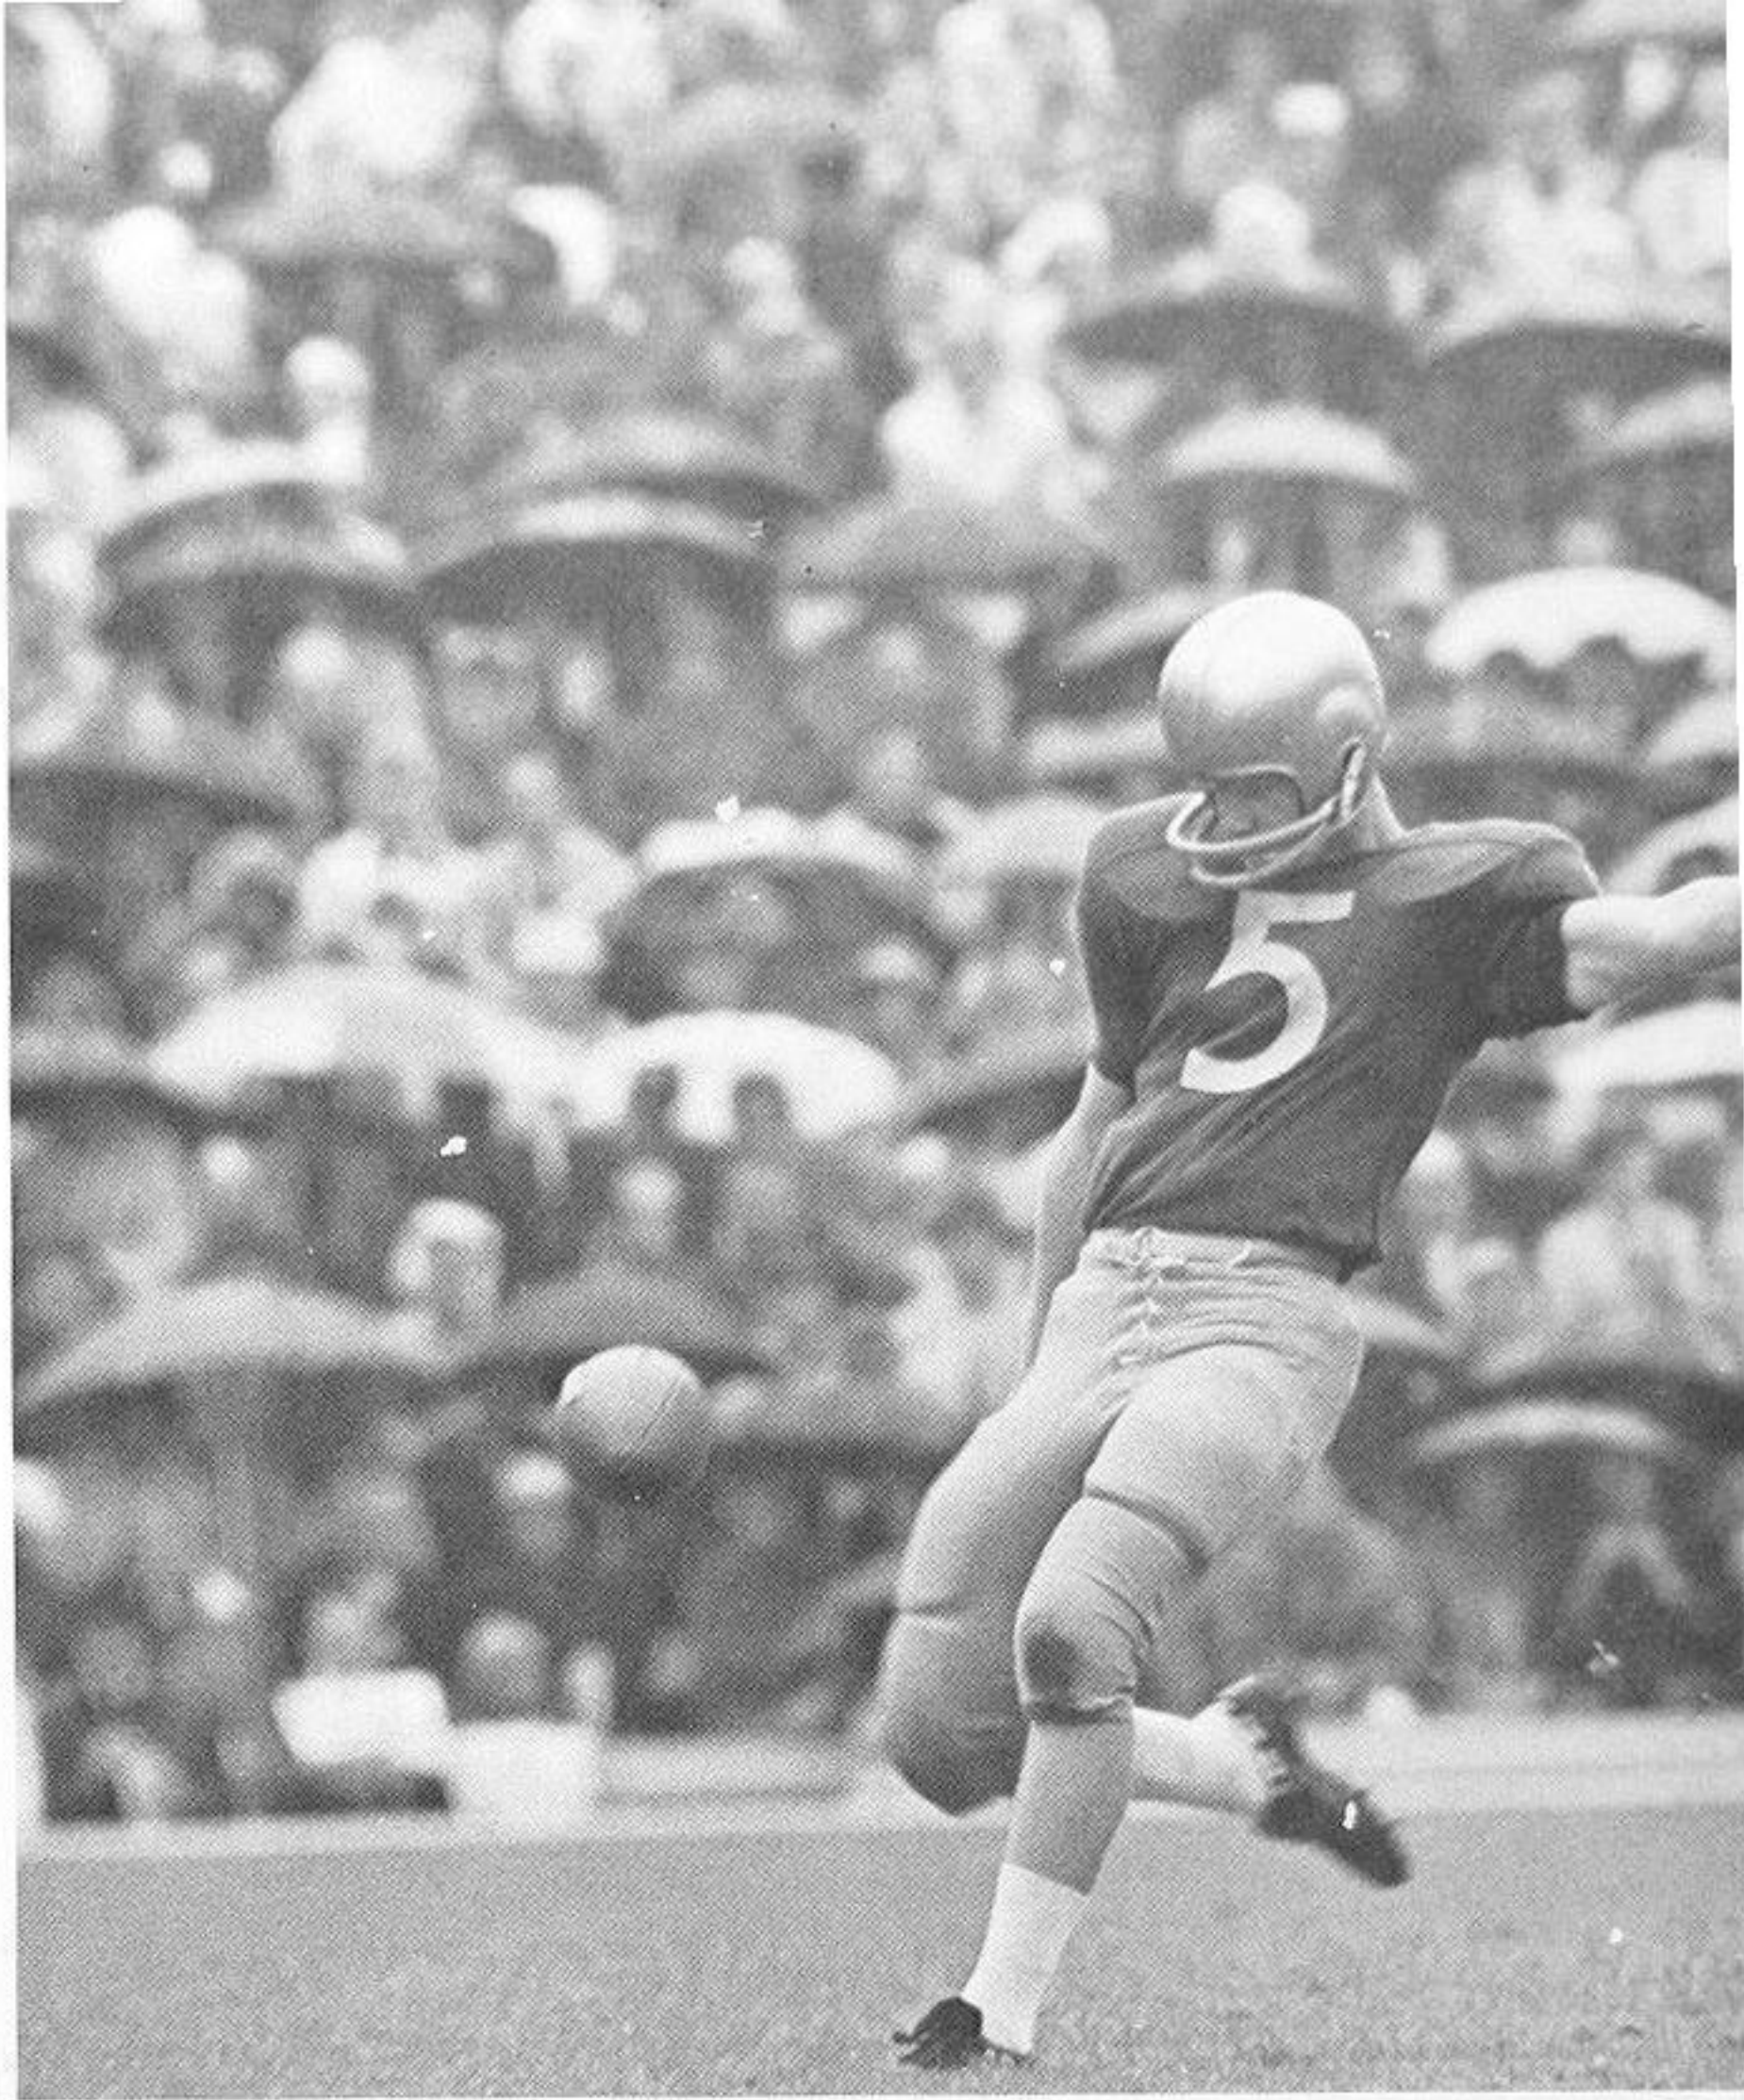

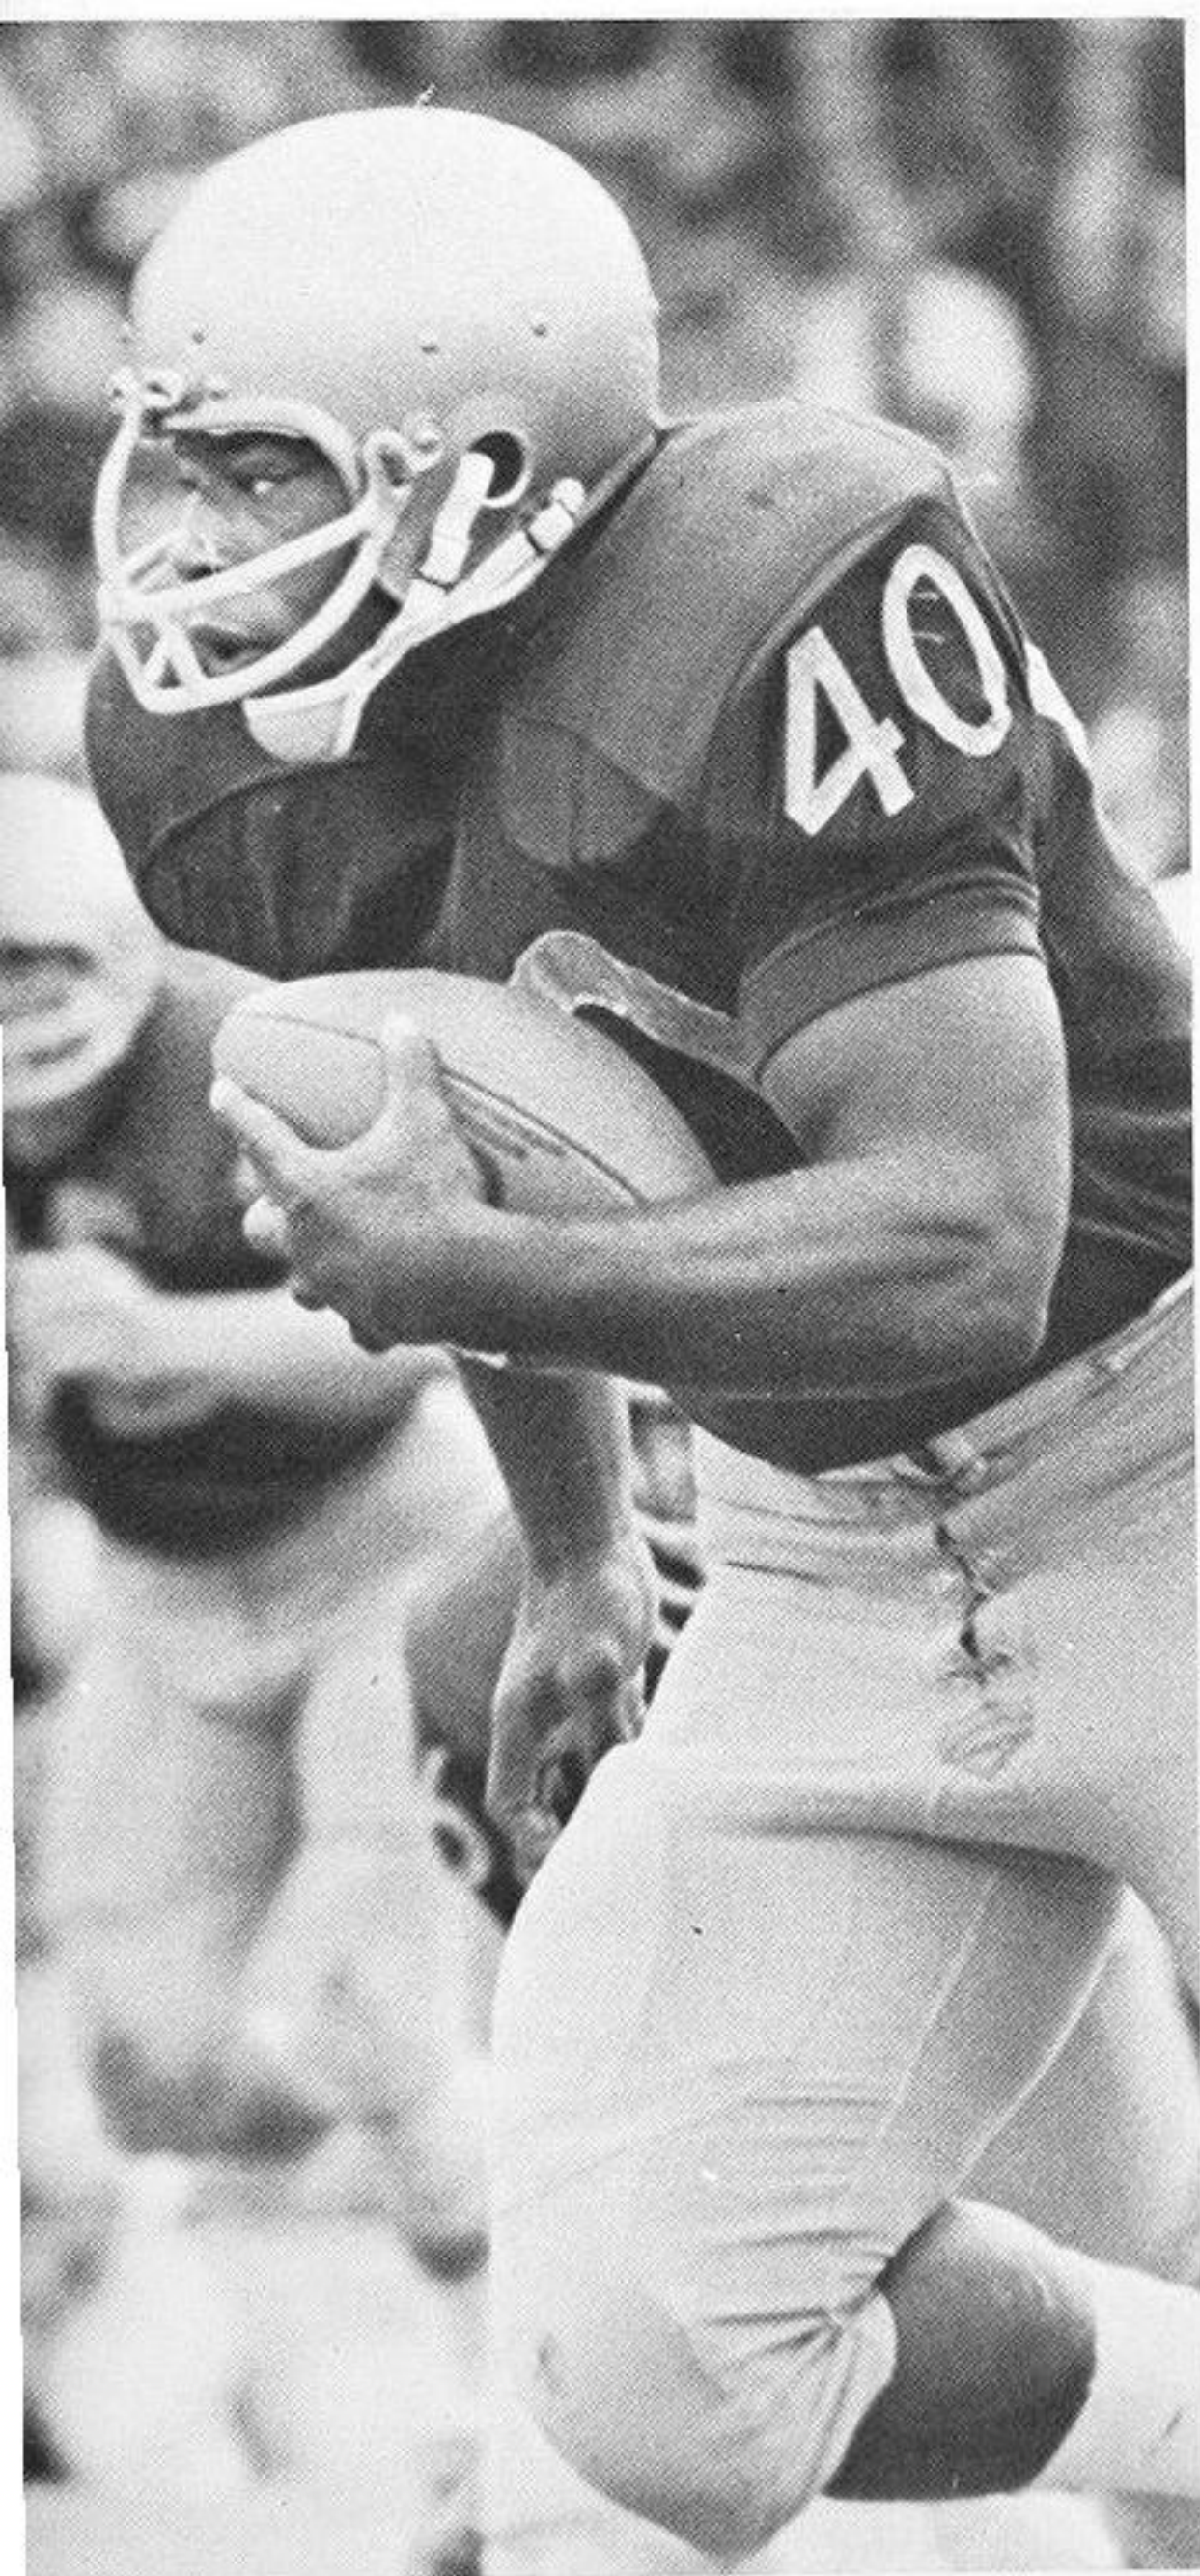

Fans hoped King Chinook's duck feast was symbolic of the game to come. Washington didn't exactly devour Oregon's Ducks but won the game 10-7.

Even though Don Moore played in only five games, he was the Huskies' leading ground-gainer.

Don Martin, Washington's punter, was the team's leading scorer.

Linebacker George Jugum (49) and tackle Steve Thompson (79) close in on Air Force halfback Larry Cook.

Fullback Gerald Wea, who broke his ankle in the Oregon game, was one of many injured Huskies in 1966.

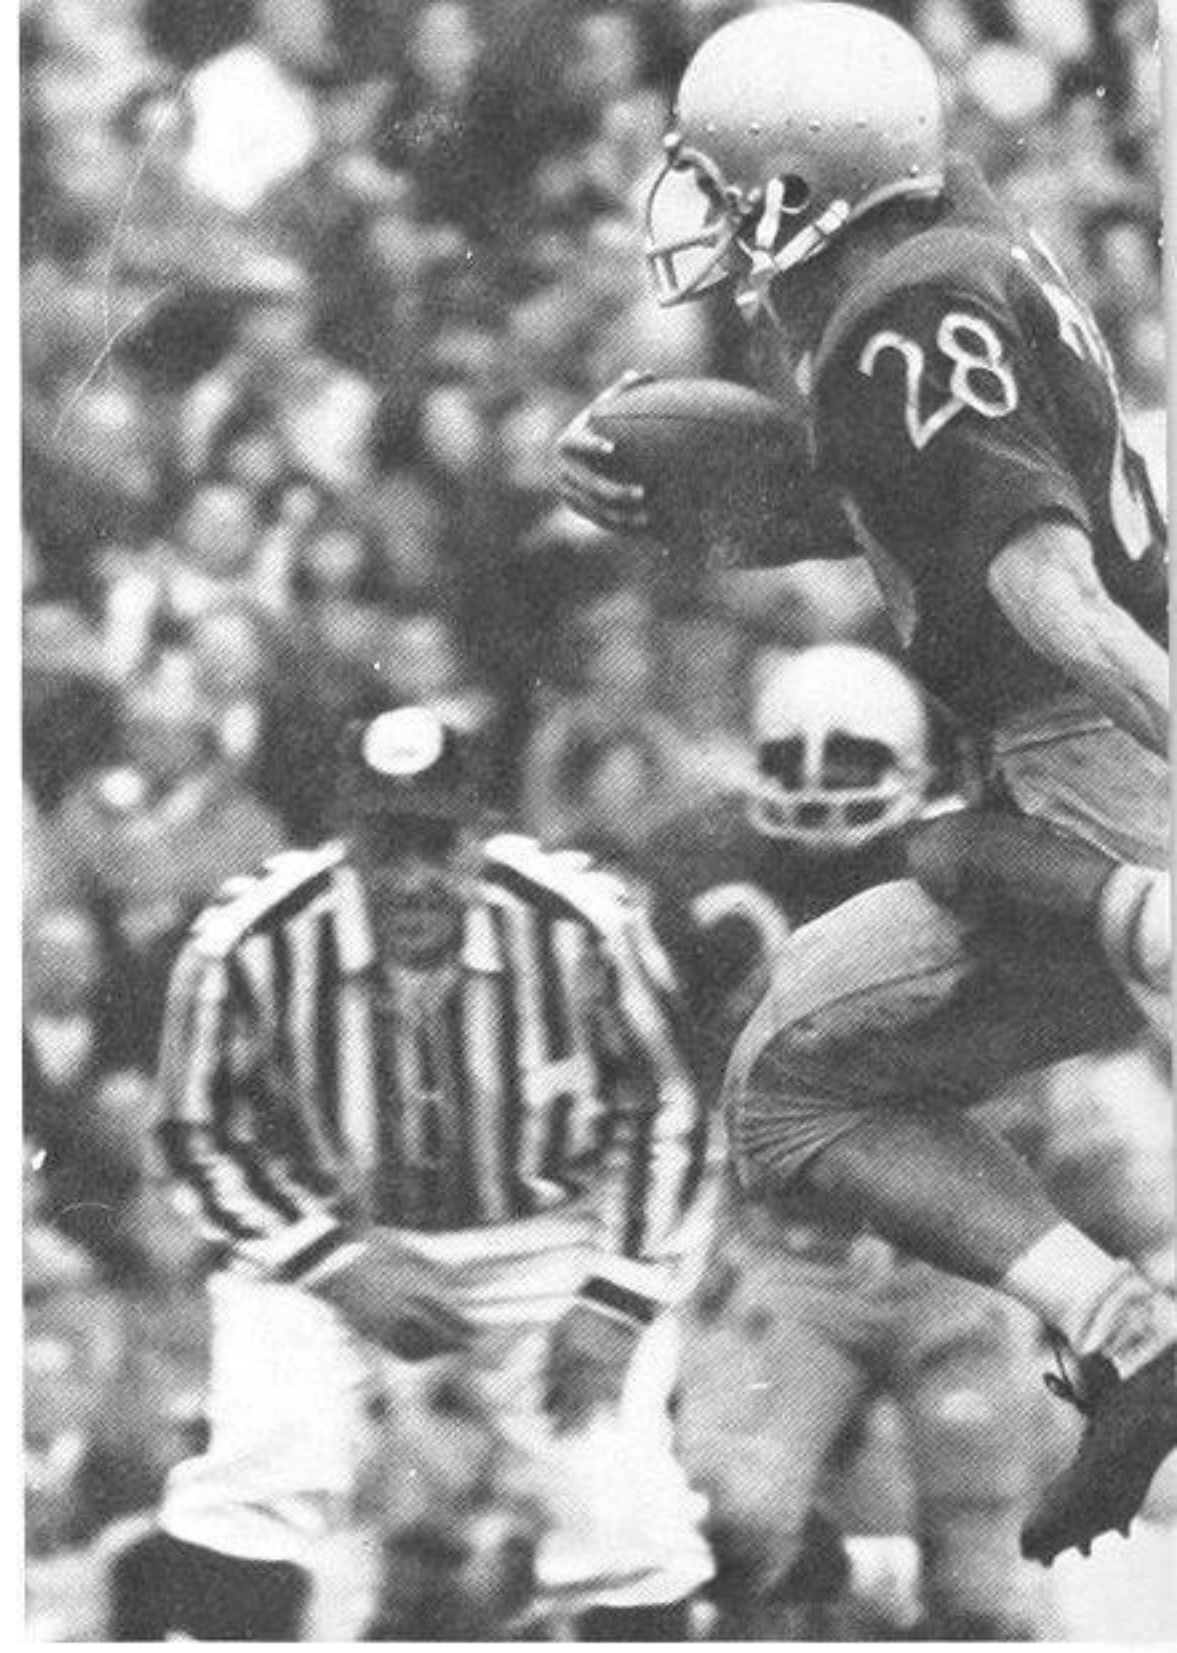

Injuries Gave Third-Stringers

A Chance To Play

POW! CRASH! BANG! ZAP! CRUNCH!

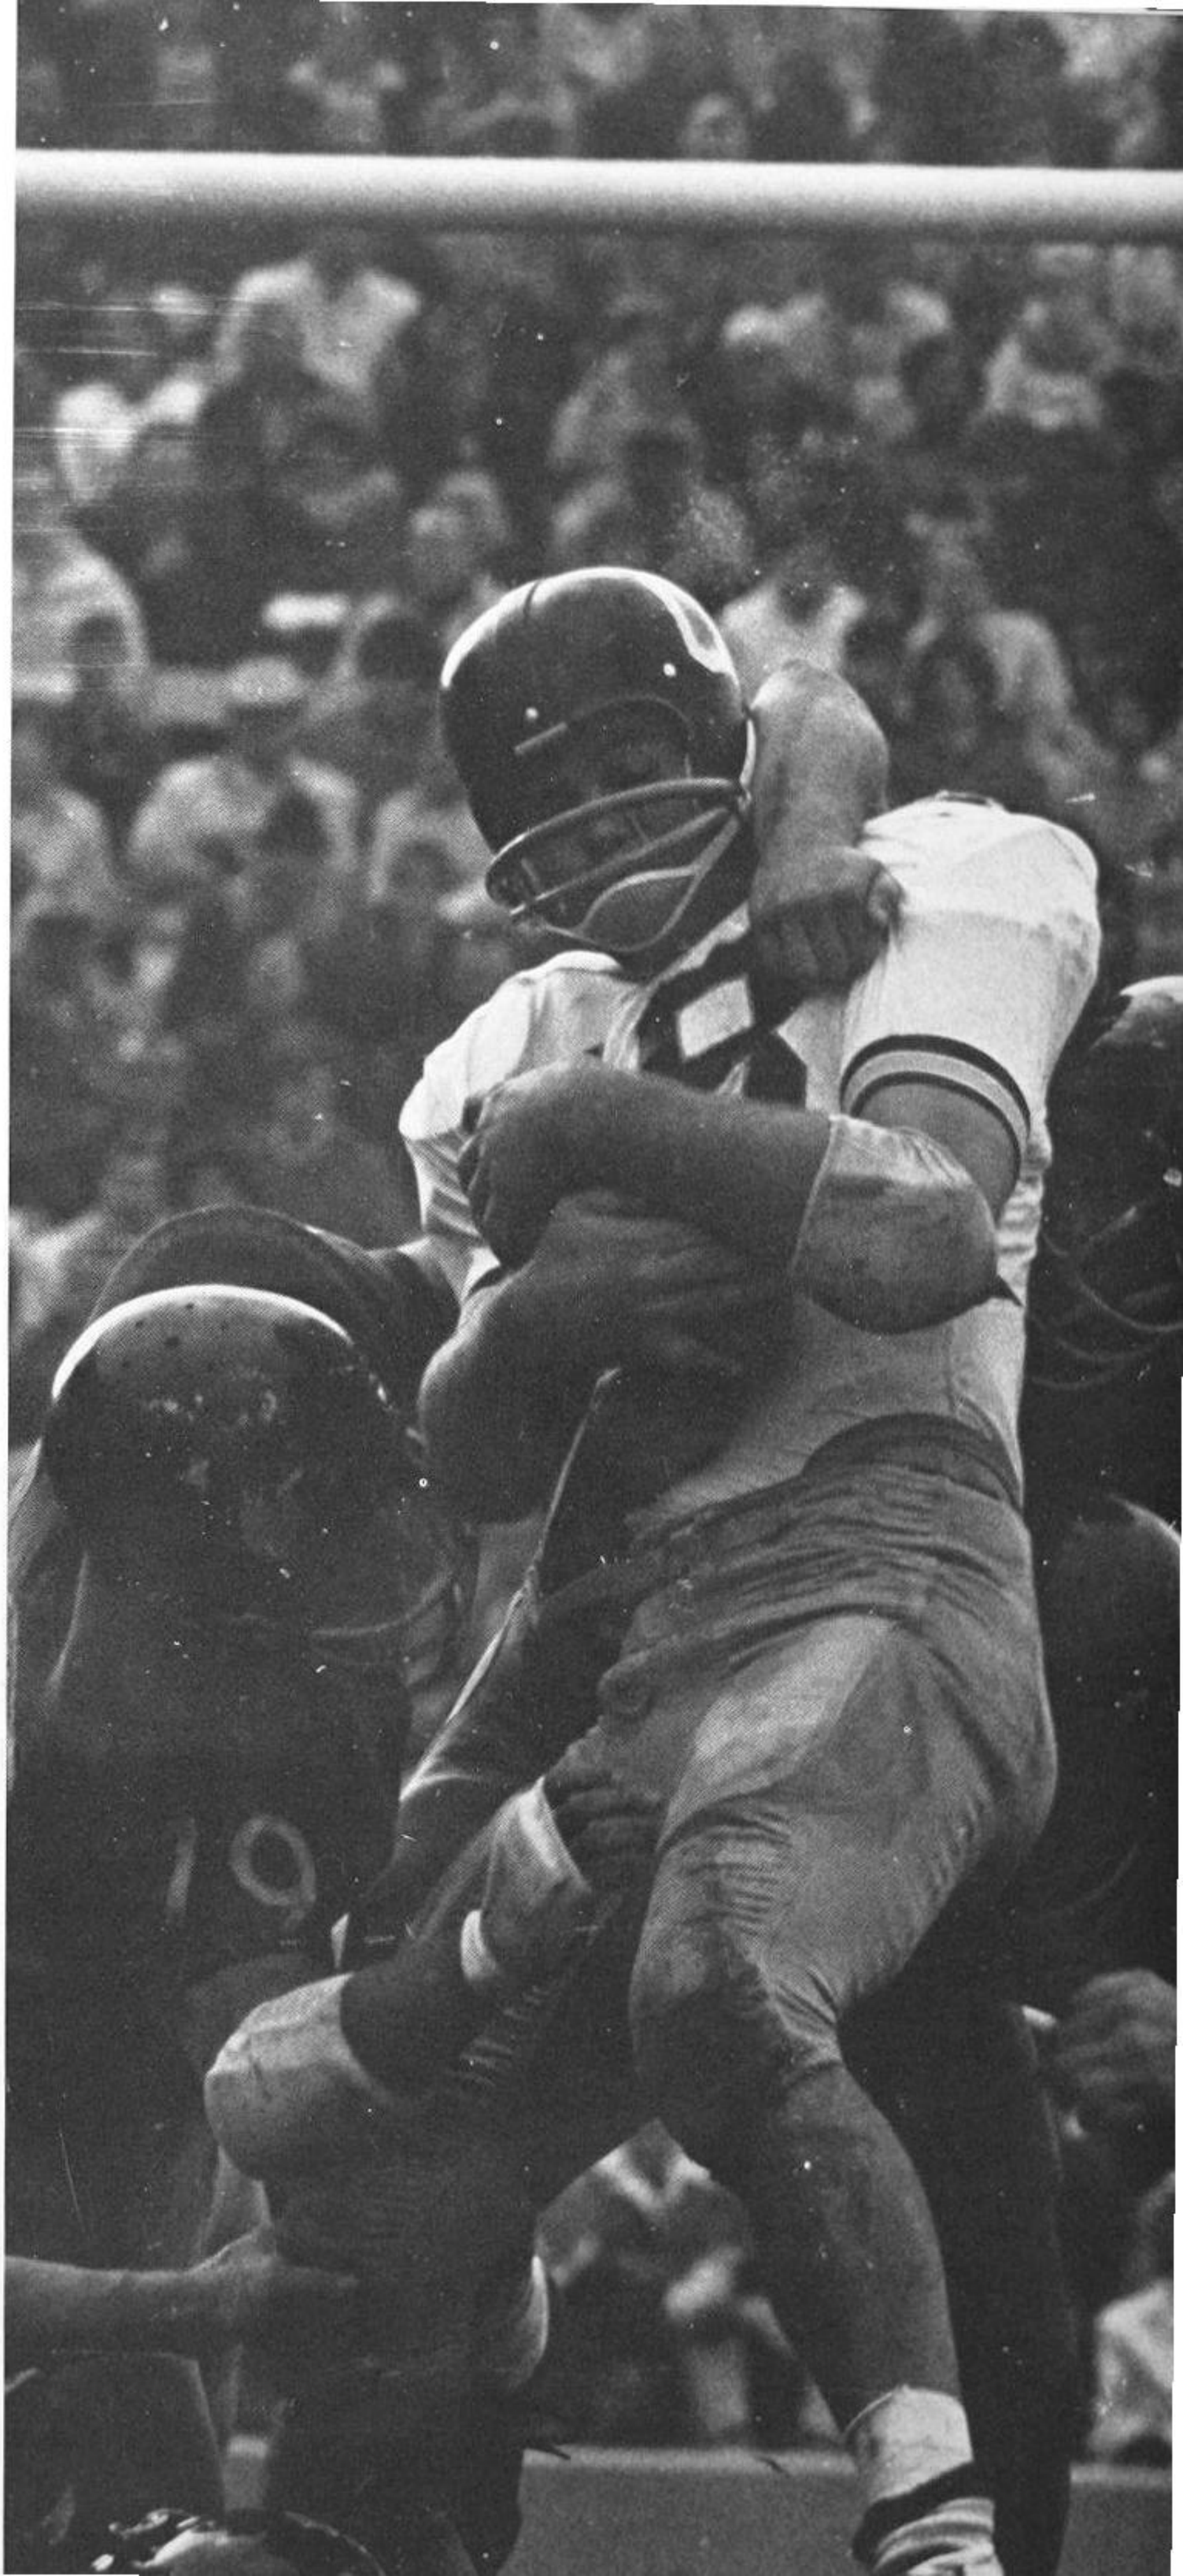

KABOOM!

The Huskies had never beaten a military school in football, and this year they kept their record intact. Air Force won the second game of the season 10-0 by squelching Washington's running and passing offense.

In Columbus, Ohio, Washington's offense moved into high gear against Ohio State. With the offensive line opening huge holes in the Buckeye defense, Husky backs Don Moore, Gerald Wea and Bill Parker had a field day along with guard Gary Brandt. The final score: Washington 38, Ohio State 22.

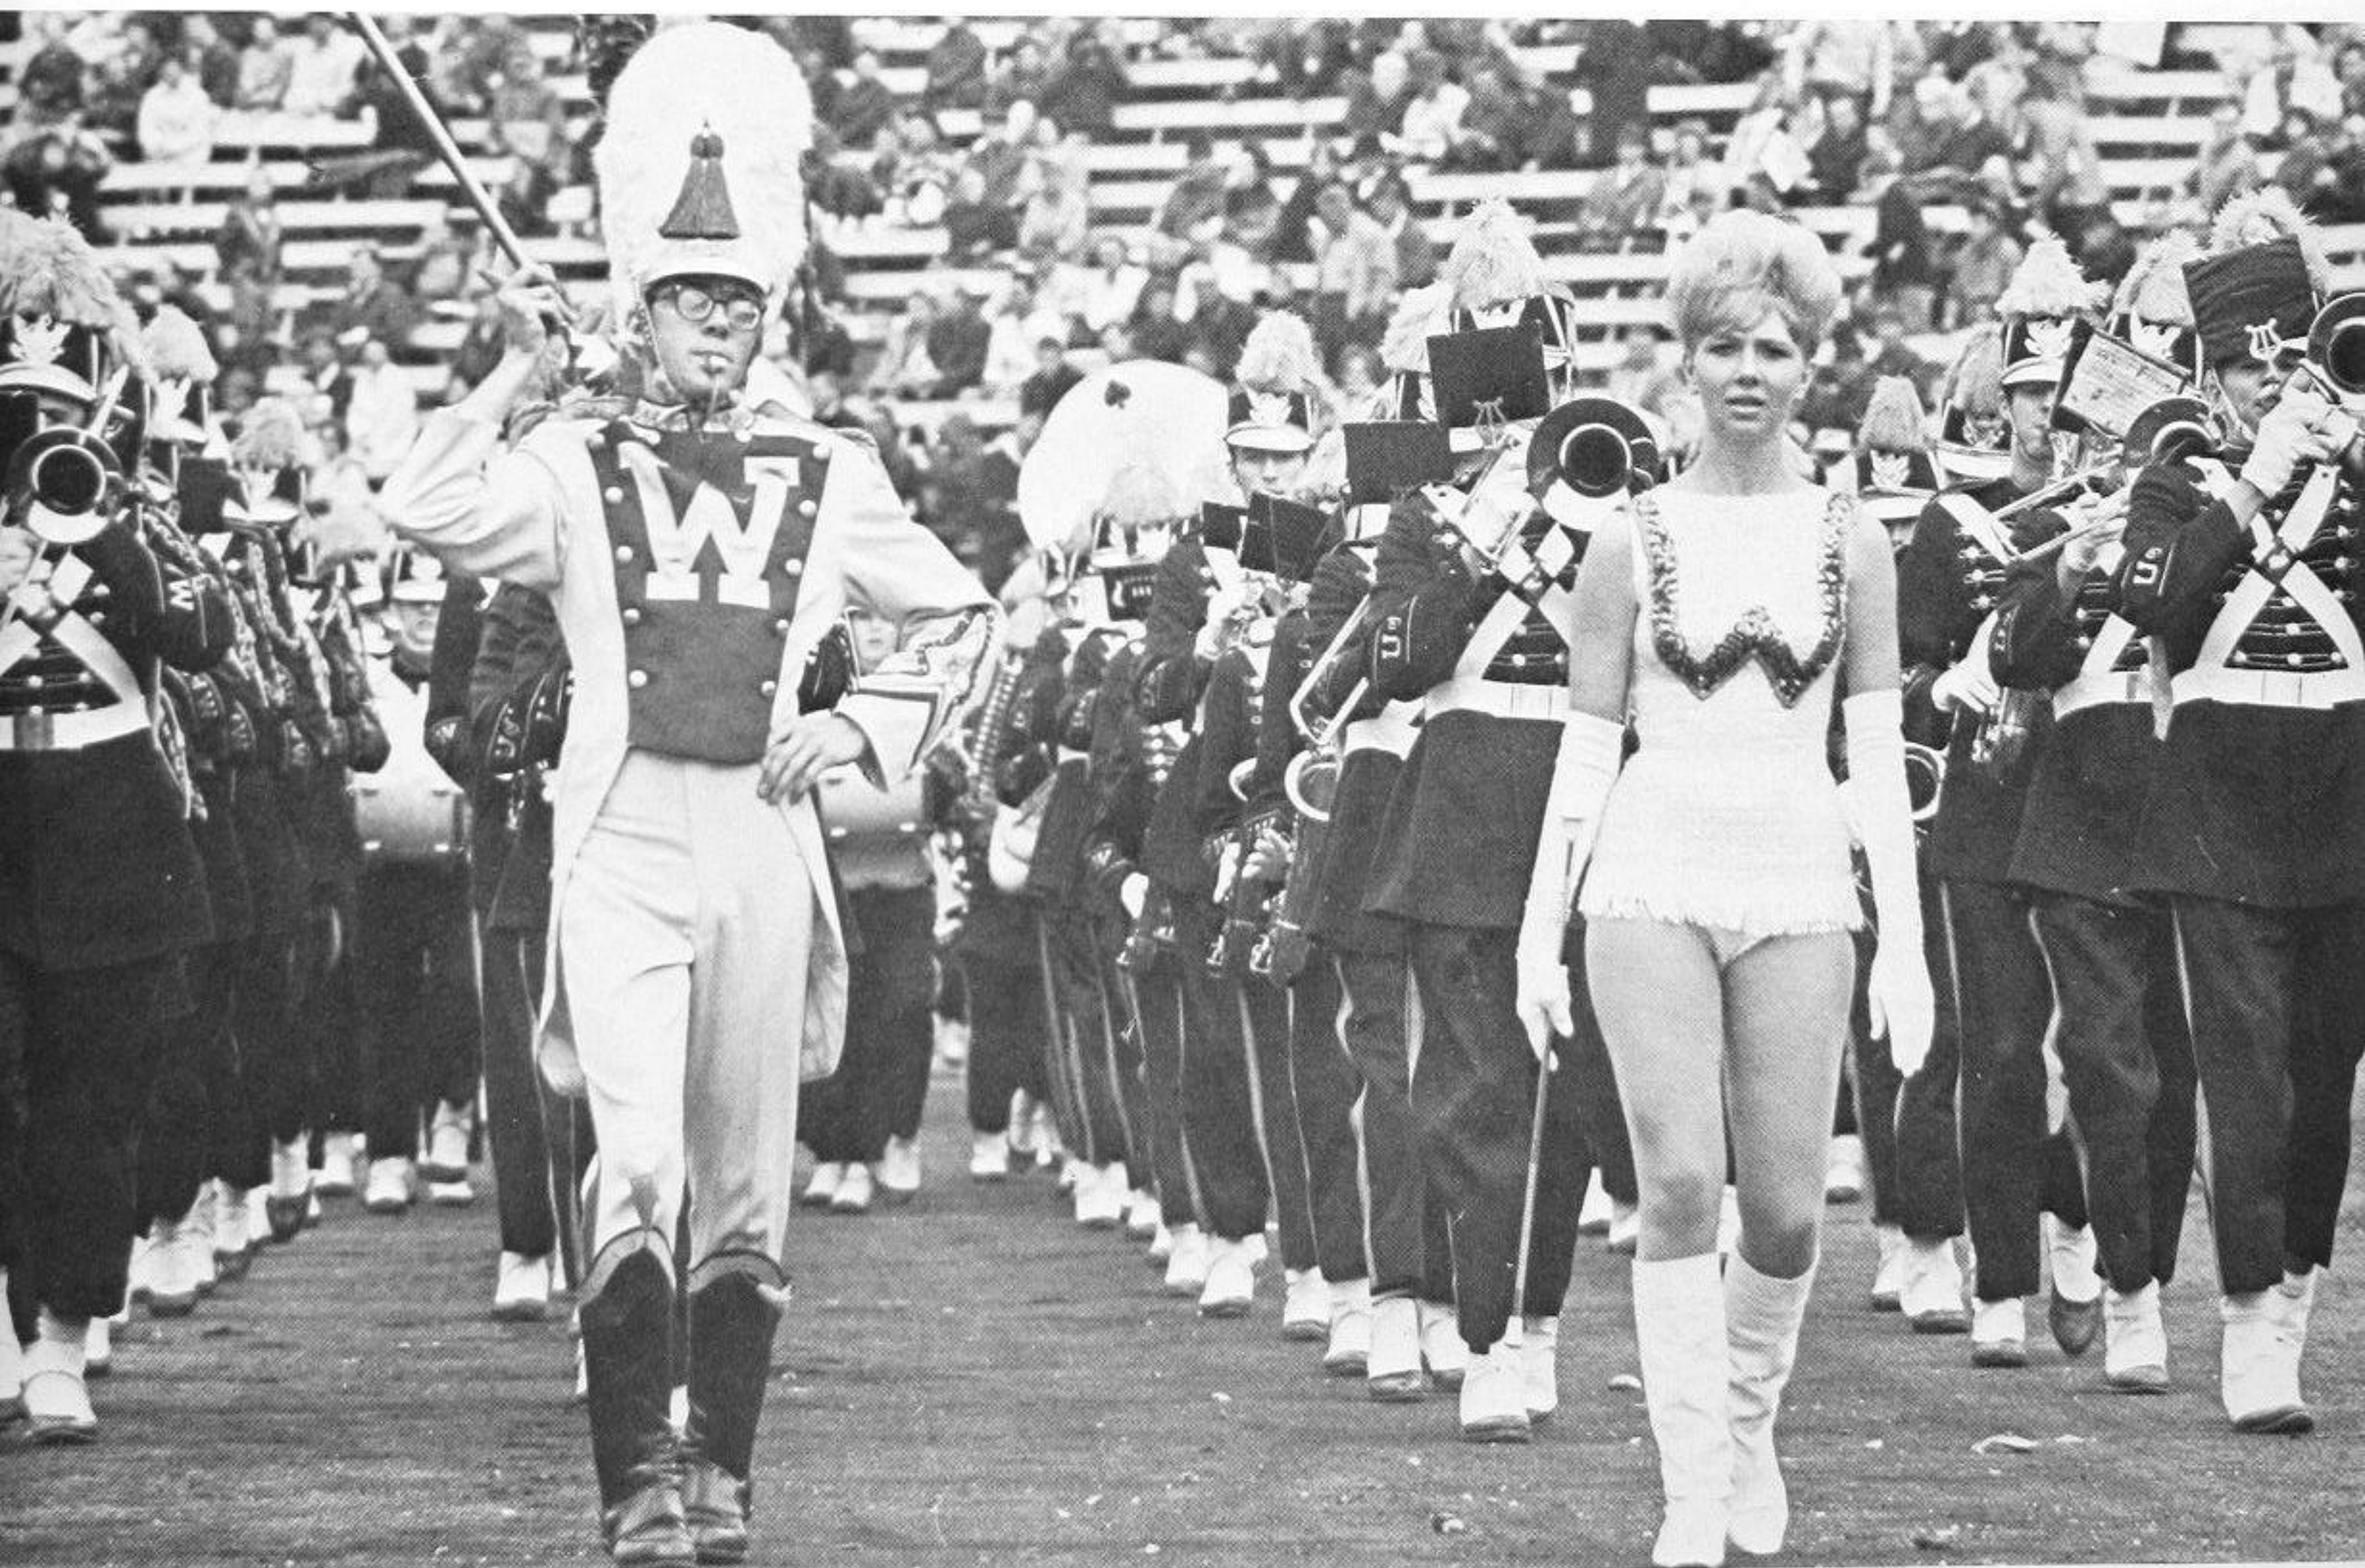

Next the Huskies journeyed to Los Angeles for a game with the USC Trojans, ranked first on the Coast. Despite a 17-14 loss for Washington, halfback Jim Cope set a school record of 11 pass receptions.

The Huskies then battled California in Seattle. Despite a 14-0 lead after two quarters, it was the most disheartening game of the season for the Huskies, as they faltered in the second half and lost 24-20.

The Marching Band: Lots Of Toil For One Credit

Quarterback Sparlin eludes Jeff MacRae, a defensive tackle for the Oregon Ducks.

During the following week injuries and training violations sidelined four Husky performers. With the offense decimated the Husky defense rallied to pull off a 10-7 victory against Oregon.

After the Oregon win, Washington traveled to Palo Alto to play Stanford where Don Martin's kicking played the most important part in the 22-20 Husky victory.

Homecoming with the UCLA Bruins provided Washington a chance to get even. Revenge was sweet for Washington as the Huskies won 16-3 after losing to the Rose Bowl champs last year on a trick pass play. A happy crowd of 56,000 saw third-ranked UCLA fall and lose the opportunity for a second Rose Bowl trip.

Oregon State did not seem snowed by the Huskies' big upset win. Before a regional TV audience, the Beavers picked apart the Husky defenses for a 24-13 Husky loss.

Husky Success: Hit Hard, Quick

Top: Jim Owens has been head football coach at Washington since 1957 and athletic director since 1960.

Bottom: Vince Lorrain (20) tries unsuccessfully to block a Cal extra point attempt.

In the season finale Don Martin kicked a school record of four field goals as Washington beat cross-state rival Washington State 19-7.

It was the eighth year in a row that the Huskies had overcome the Cougars.

The 1966 Huskies compiled a 6-4 record, a good showing considering the number of injuries to key personnel. Once again, Washington played better football during the second half of the season, compiling a 4-1 record, as against a 2-3 record for the first five games.

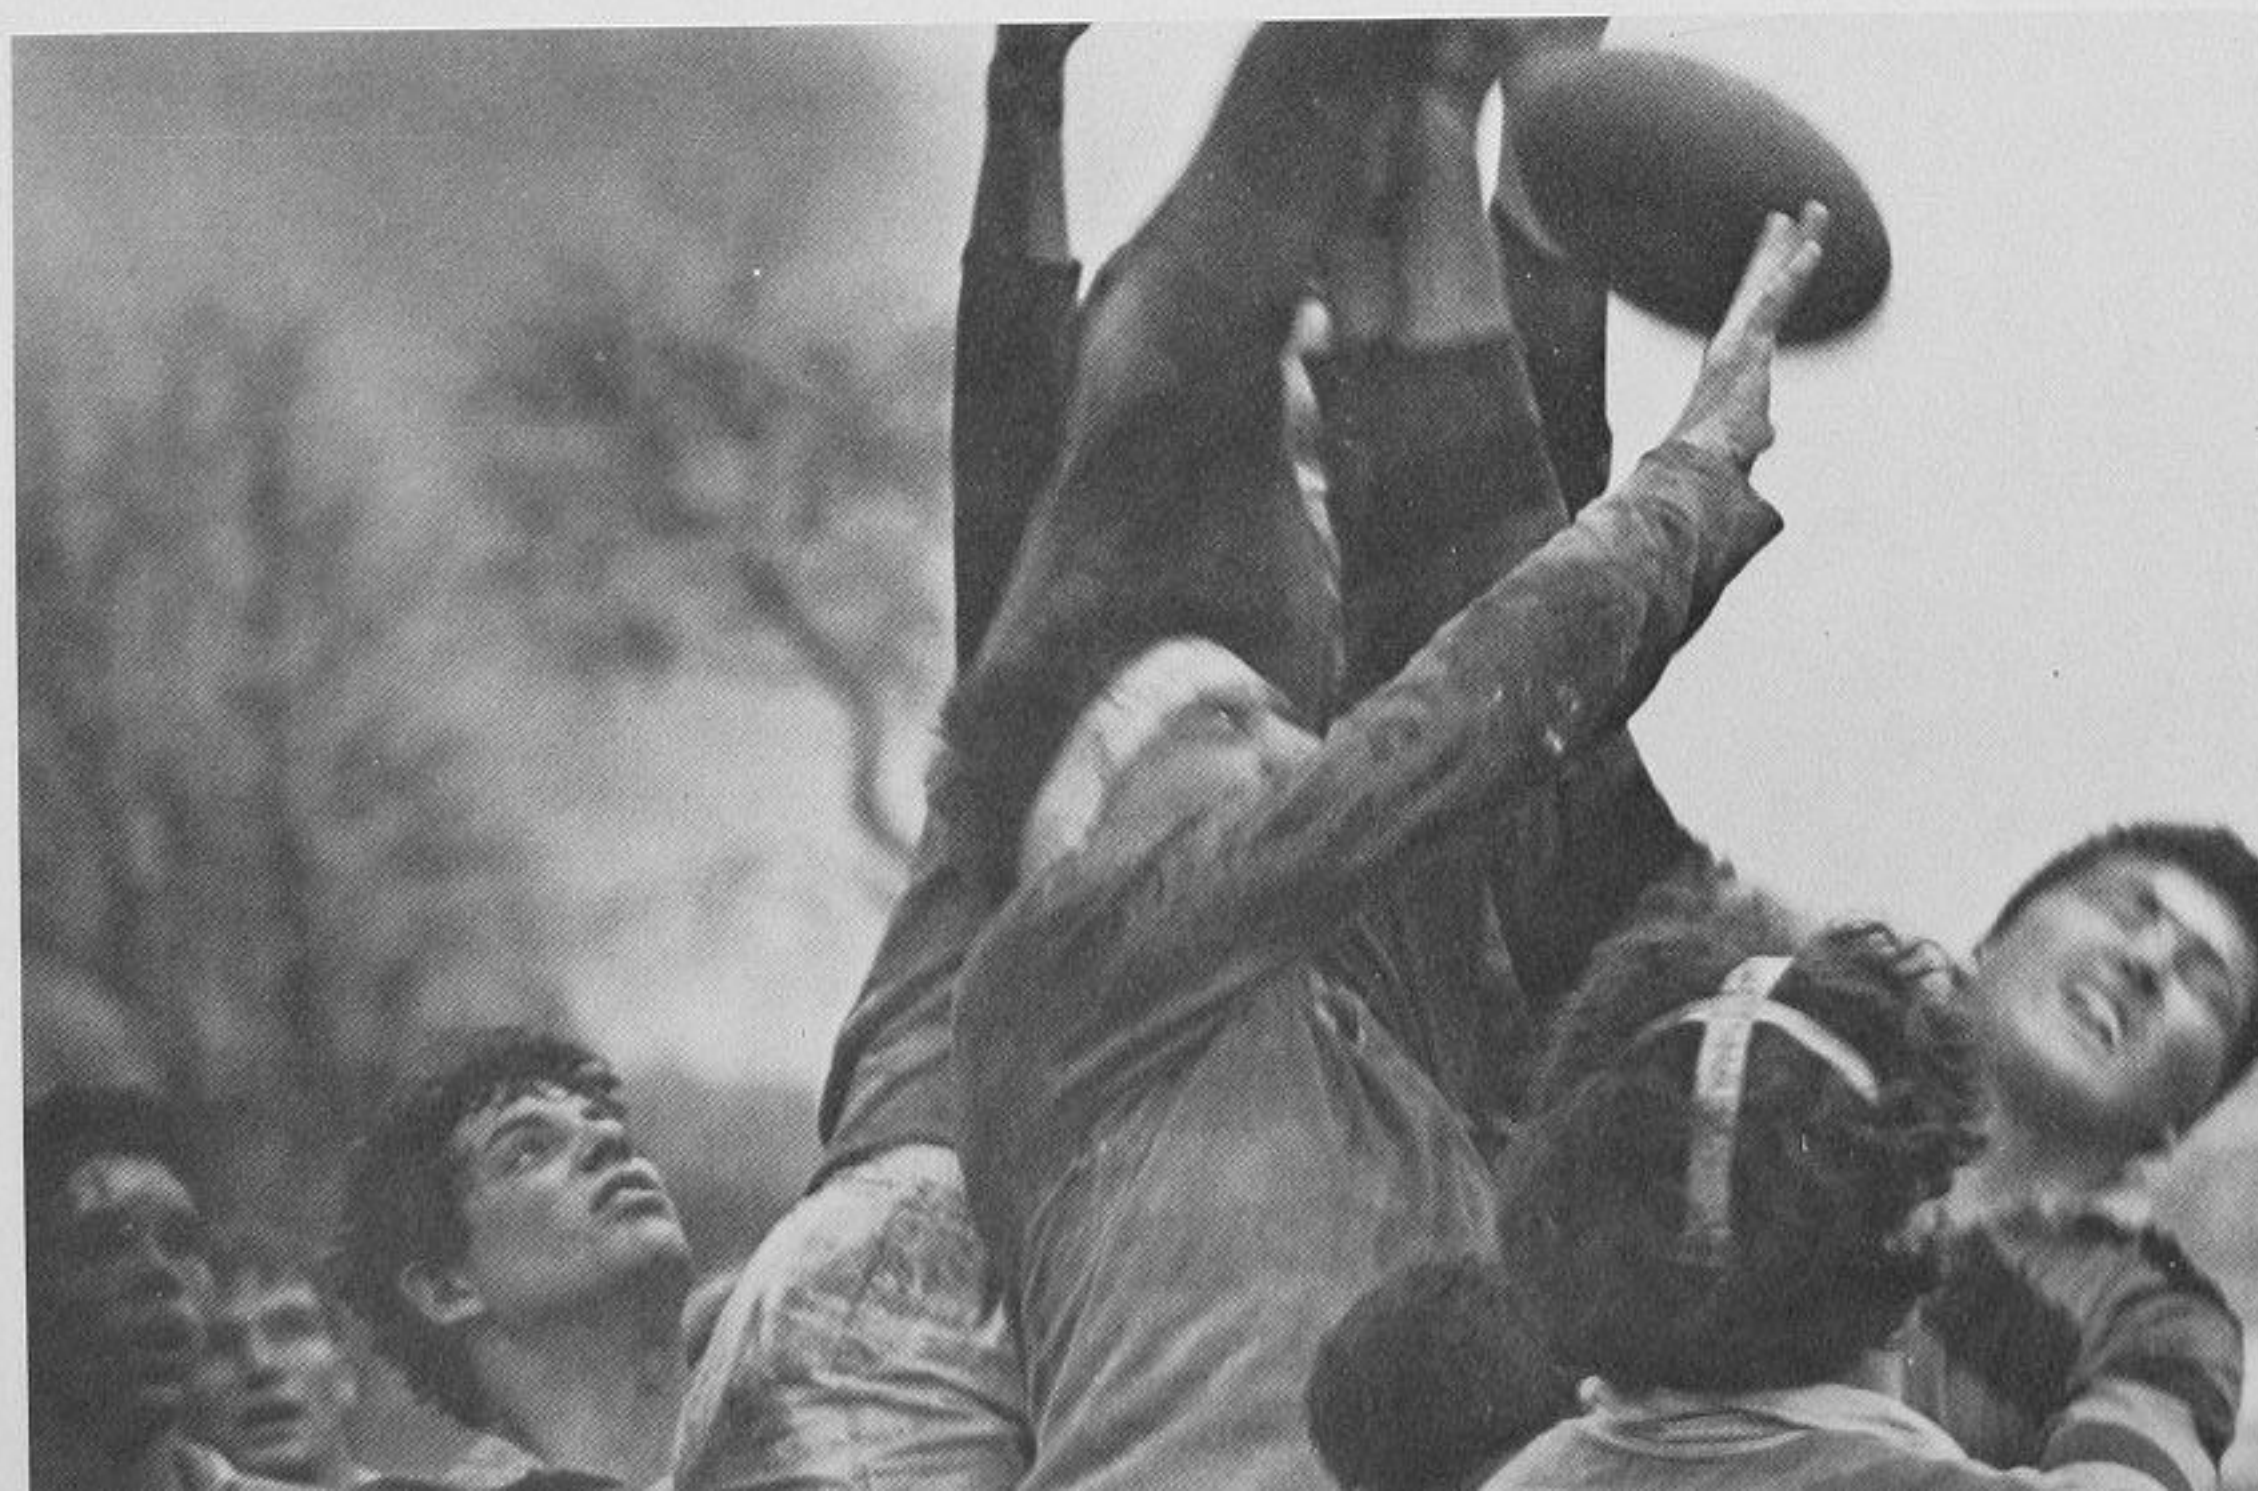

Rugby's Second Season: Constant Running, No Time Outs

Rugby is a cross between football and keep-away. Like football, it is a game of tackling and body contact; like keep-away, it is a game of constant running with no time outs. Rugby at Washington is a new sport, but the Husky ruggers have had two successful seasons under Coach Bob McGavin. Although the team receives only nominal support from the Athletic Department, enthusiasm is high and more men turn out for rugby every year. Washington competes against colleges and rugby clubs from all over the Pacific Northwest. The climax of the rugby season is the trip to Monterey, Calif., to play in a tournament against the California schools.

They Were Good, But At Times Fans Wondered

Washington's 1966-67 basketball season was a mixture of brilliance and ineptness.

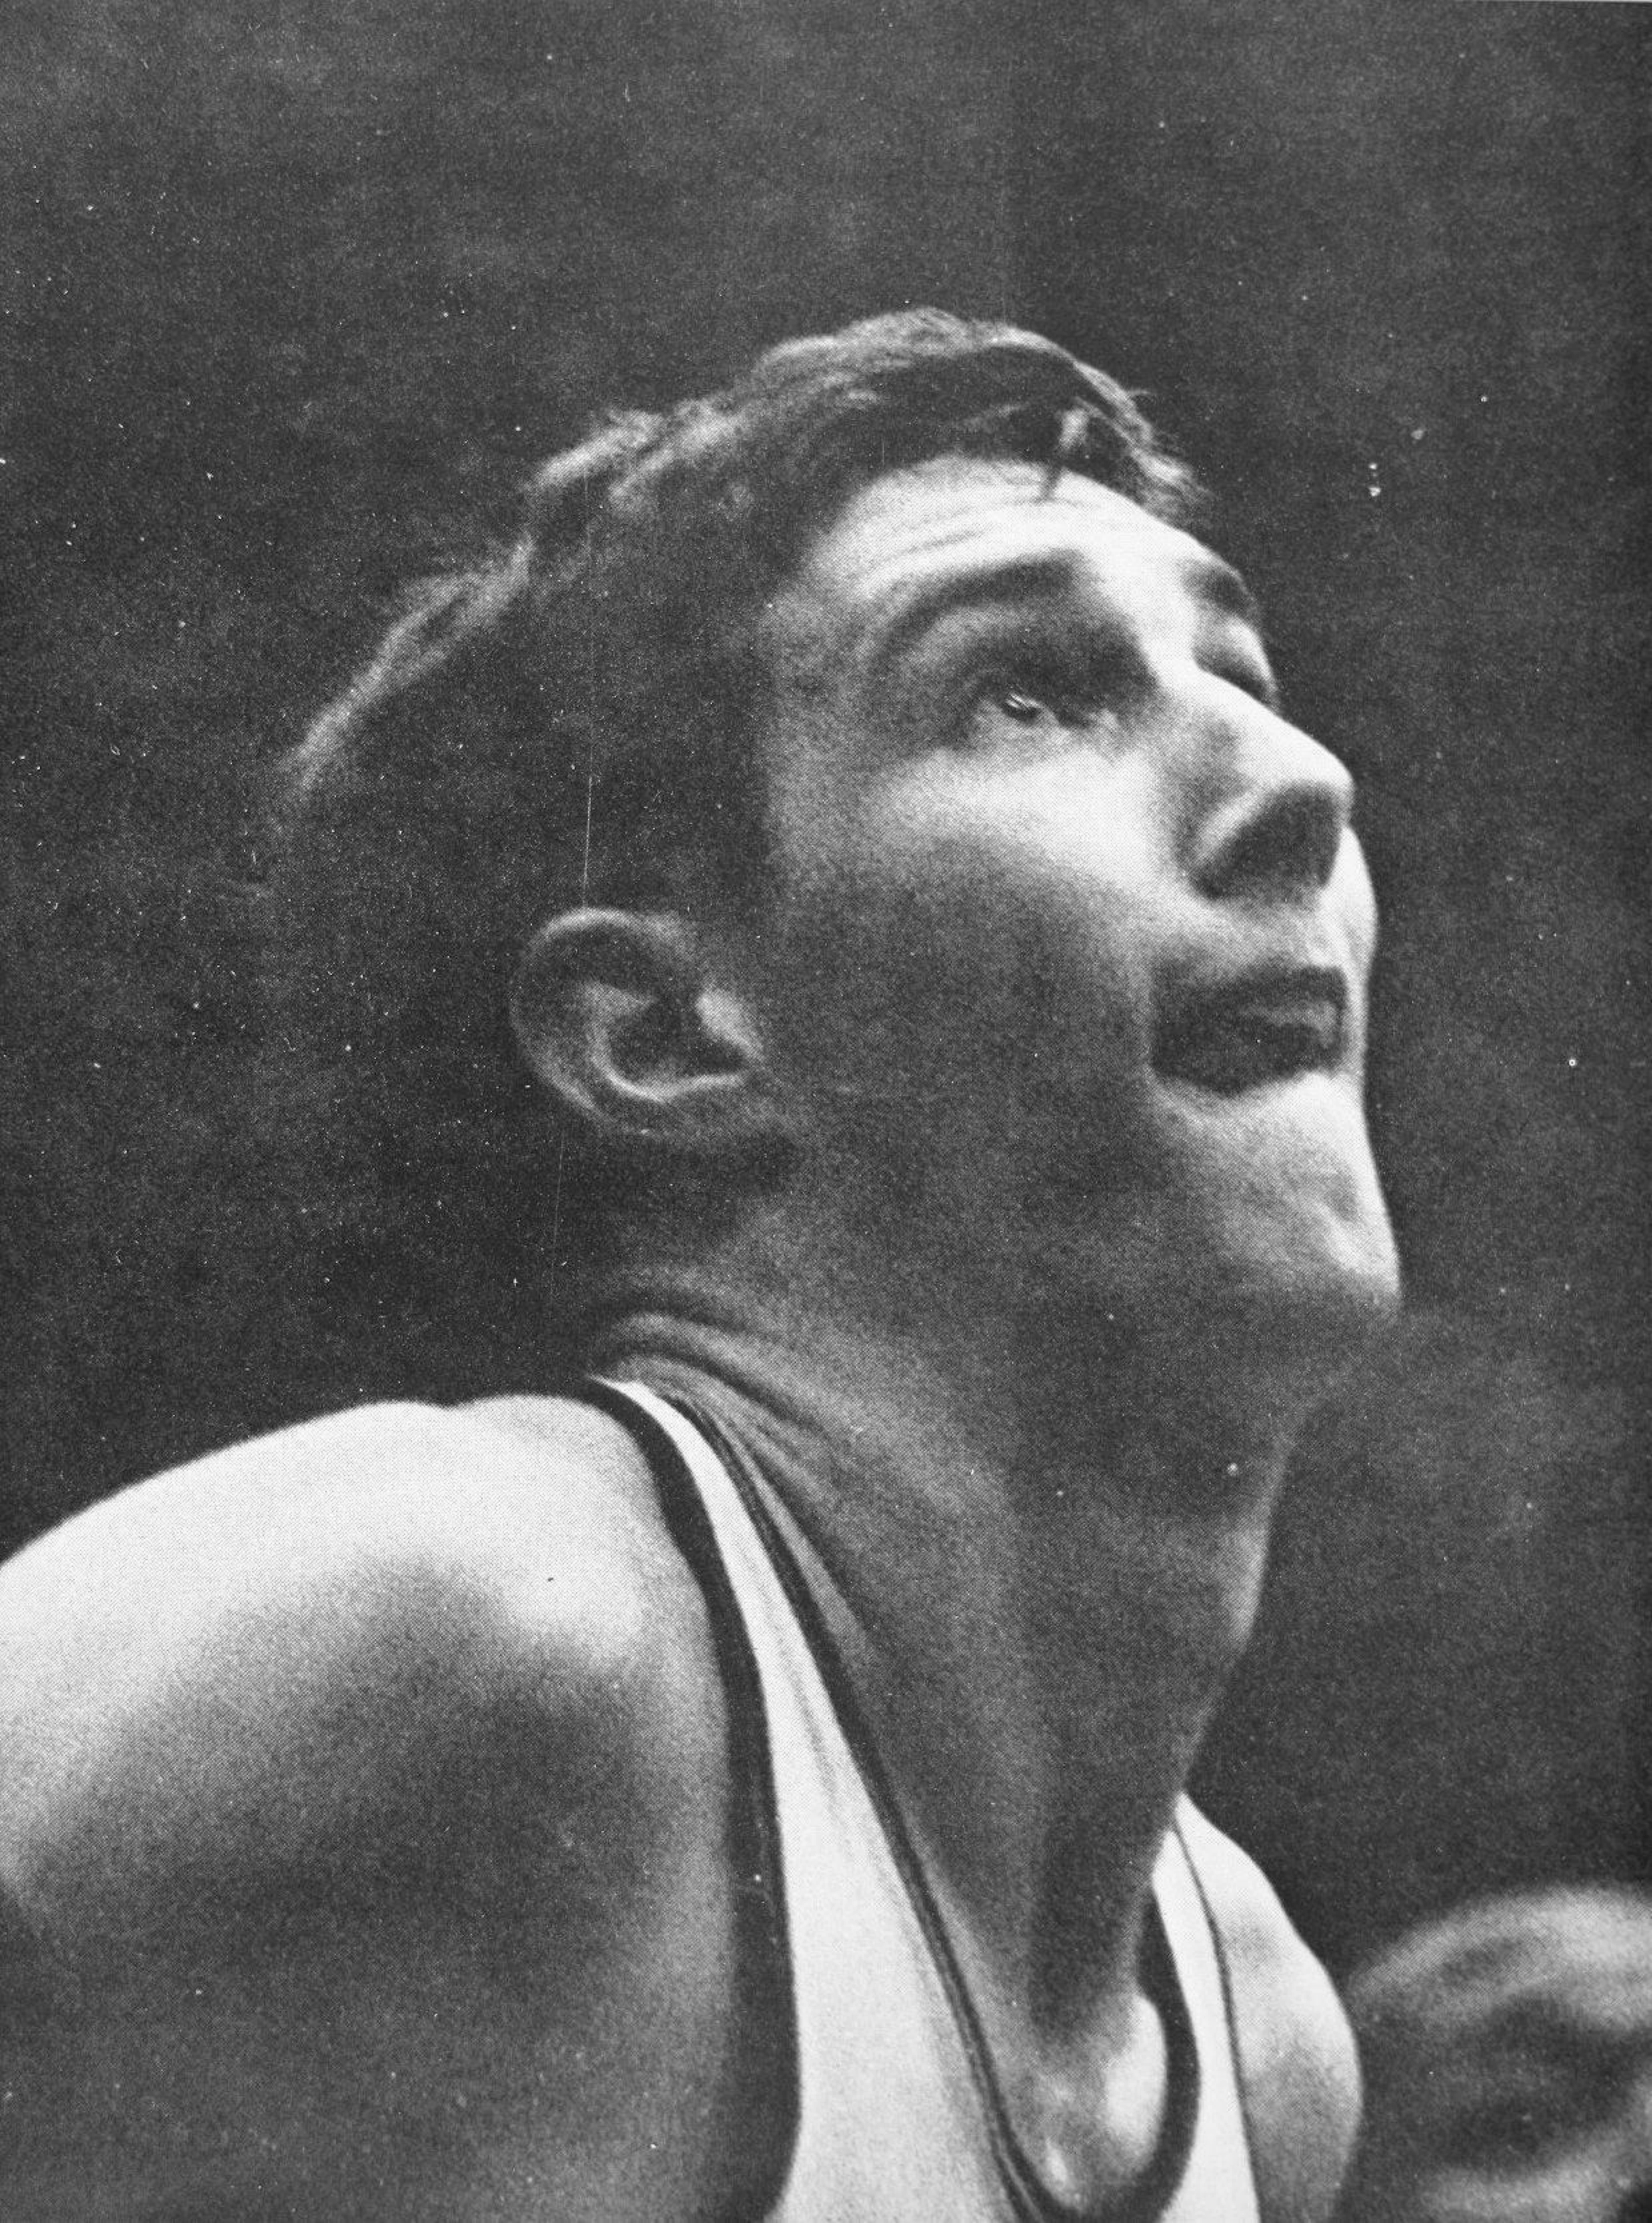

The Huskies started the season slowly, winning only one of their first five ball games. Washington went into the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., as a definite dark-horse, but won the tournament, becoming the first basketball team other than Oregon State to win the championship.

After their three straight wins in Portland, Washington proceeded to lose four of its next five ball games. But Washington soon hit a hot streak. With Dave Carr and Gordy Harris hitting regularly and Dave Hovde playing up to his pre-season expectations, the Huskies won their next seven games, including an 81-78 win over Houston, then the nation's third ranked team. This was Washington's longest winning streak in basketball since 1959, but it ended with a defeat by Cal and a disastrous road trip to Los Angeles.

Number-one ranked UCLA whipped Washington 71-43 and the next night USC humiliated the Huskies 106-69. The 37-point margin that Southern Cal rolled up against the Huskies was the biggest loss Washington had ever suffered in basketball. It was that kind of a season for Washington.

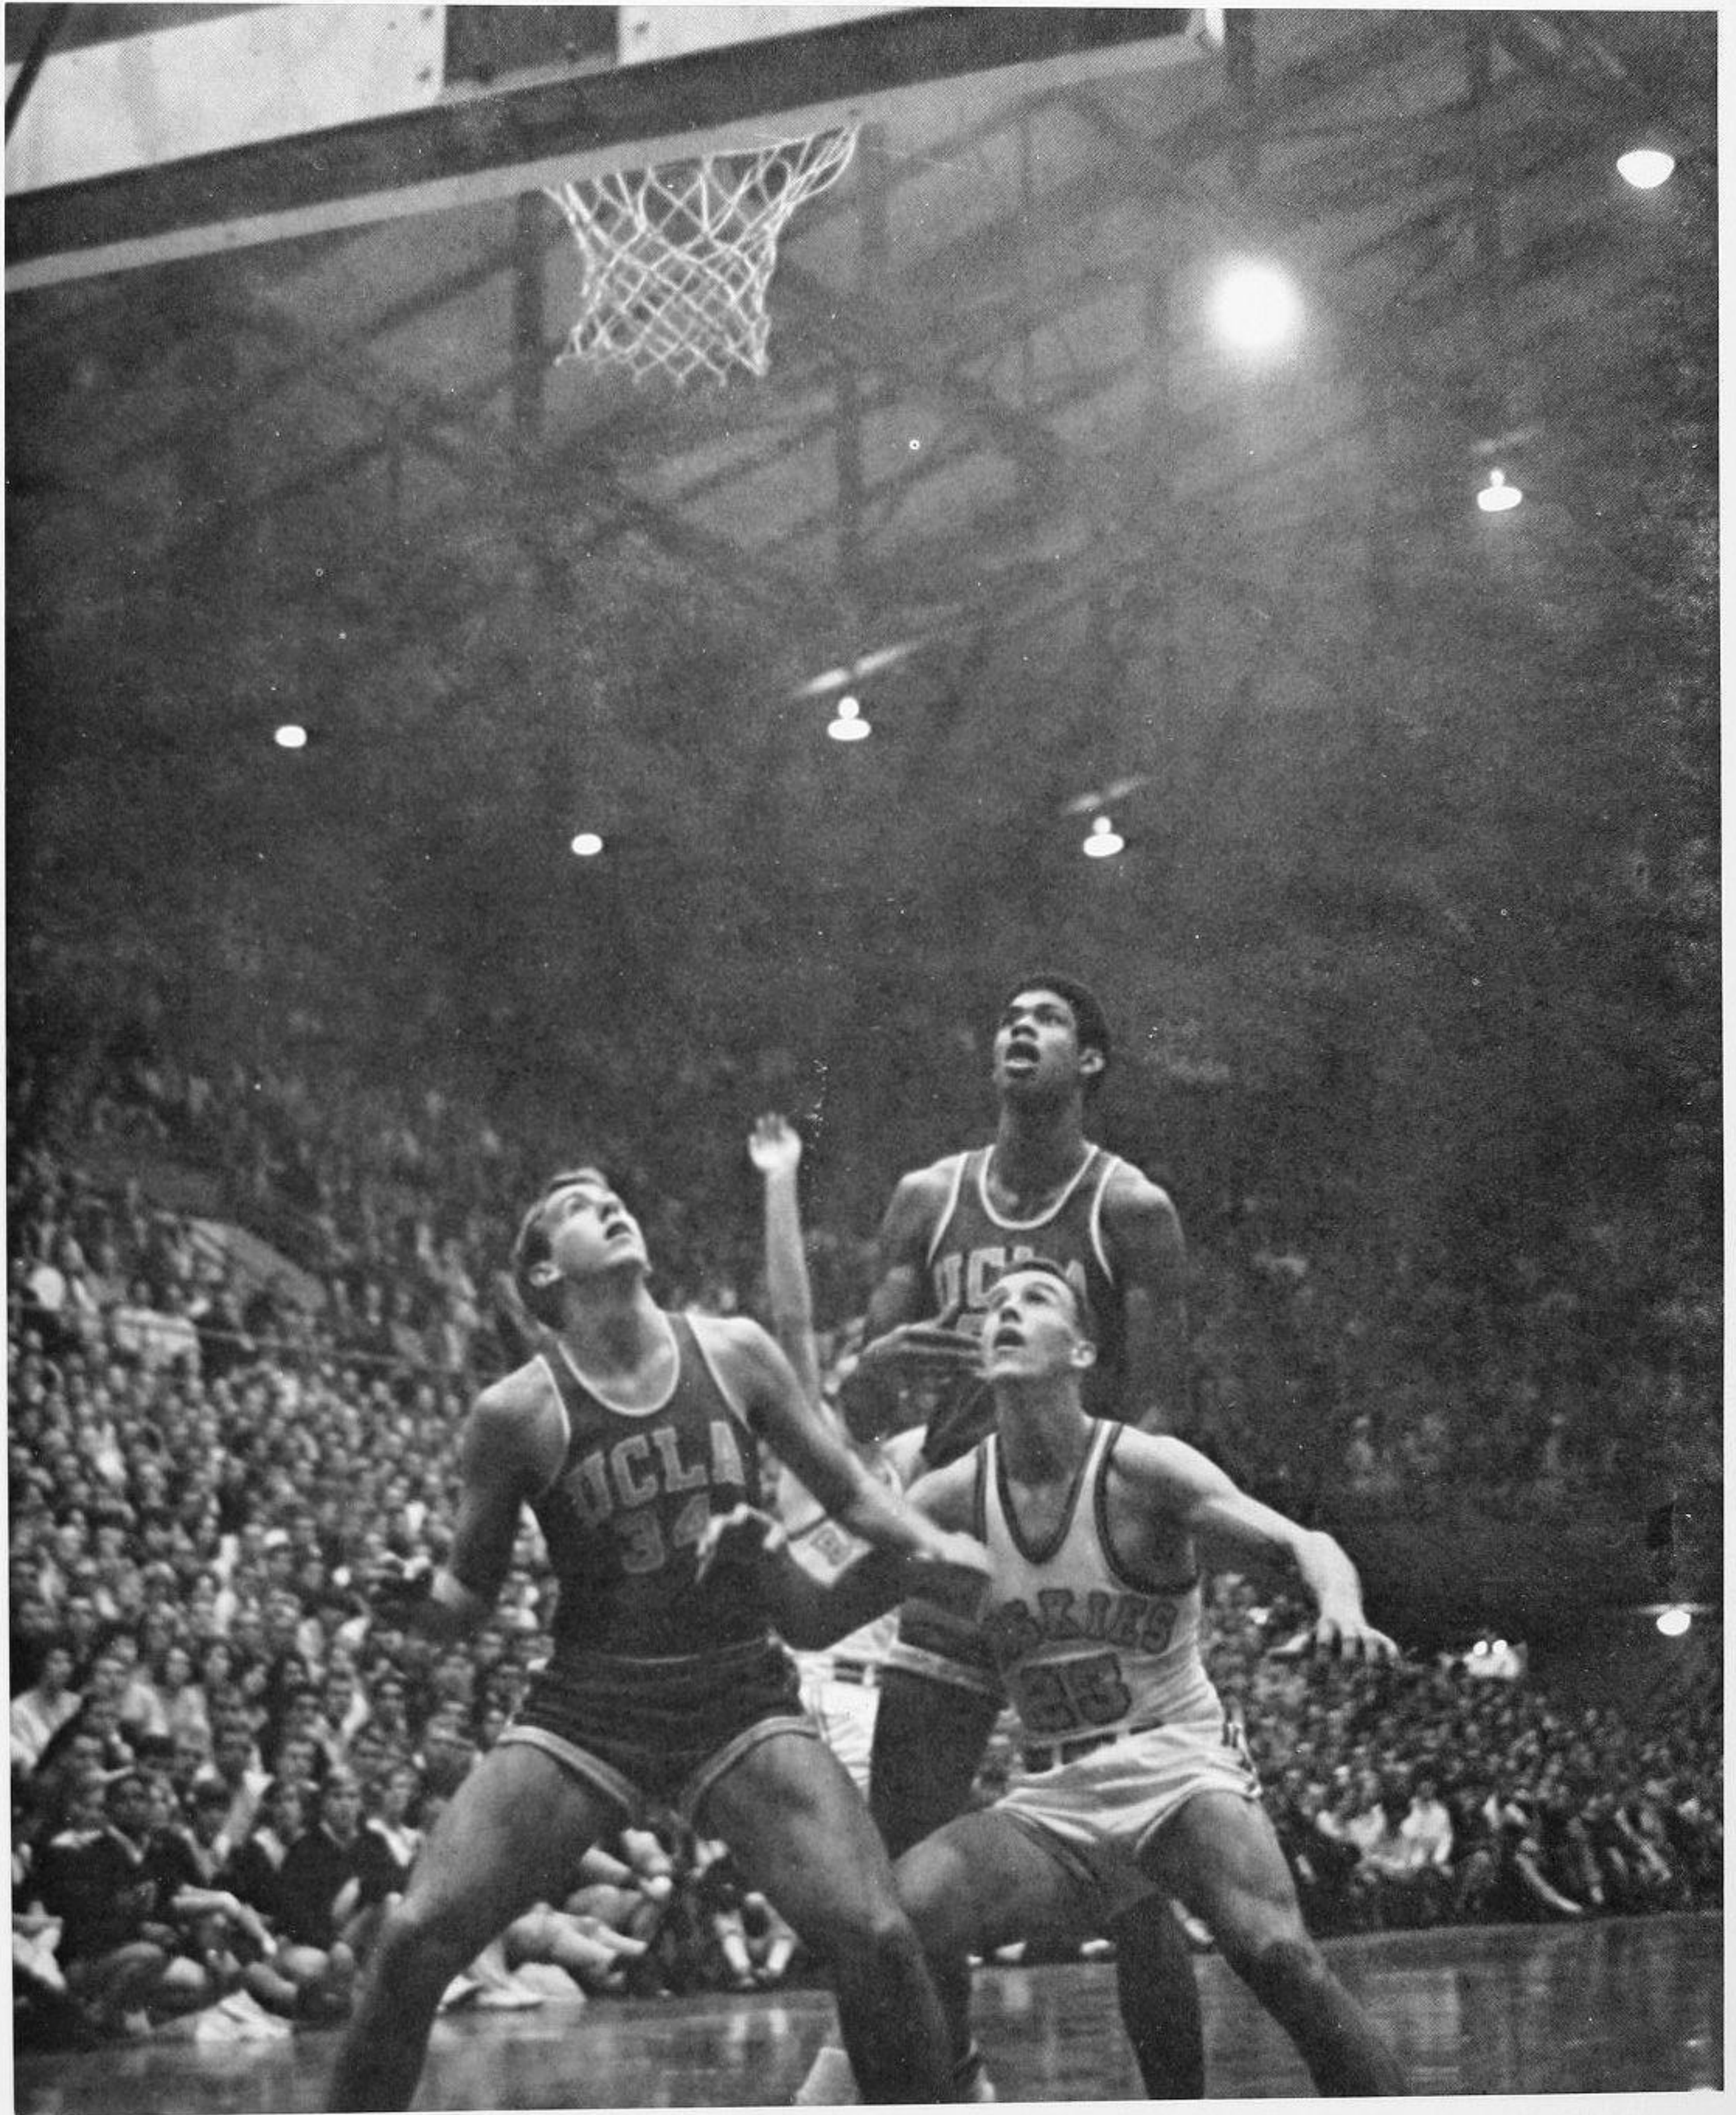

The Huskies finished out their year at home, winning two out of their three last games. With the 13-12 record that the Huskies compiled, it was Washington's first winning season since 1962.

Compared To Other Years The '67 Season Wasn't Too Bad

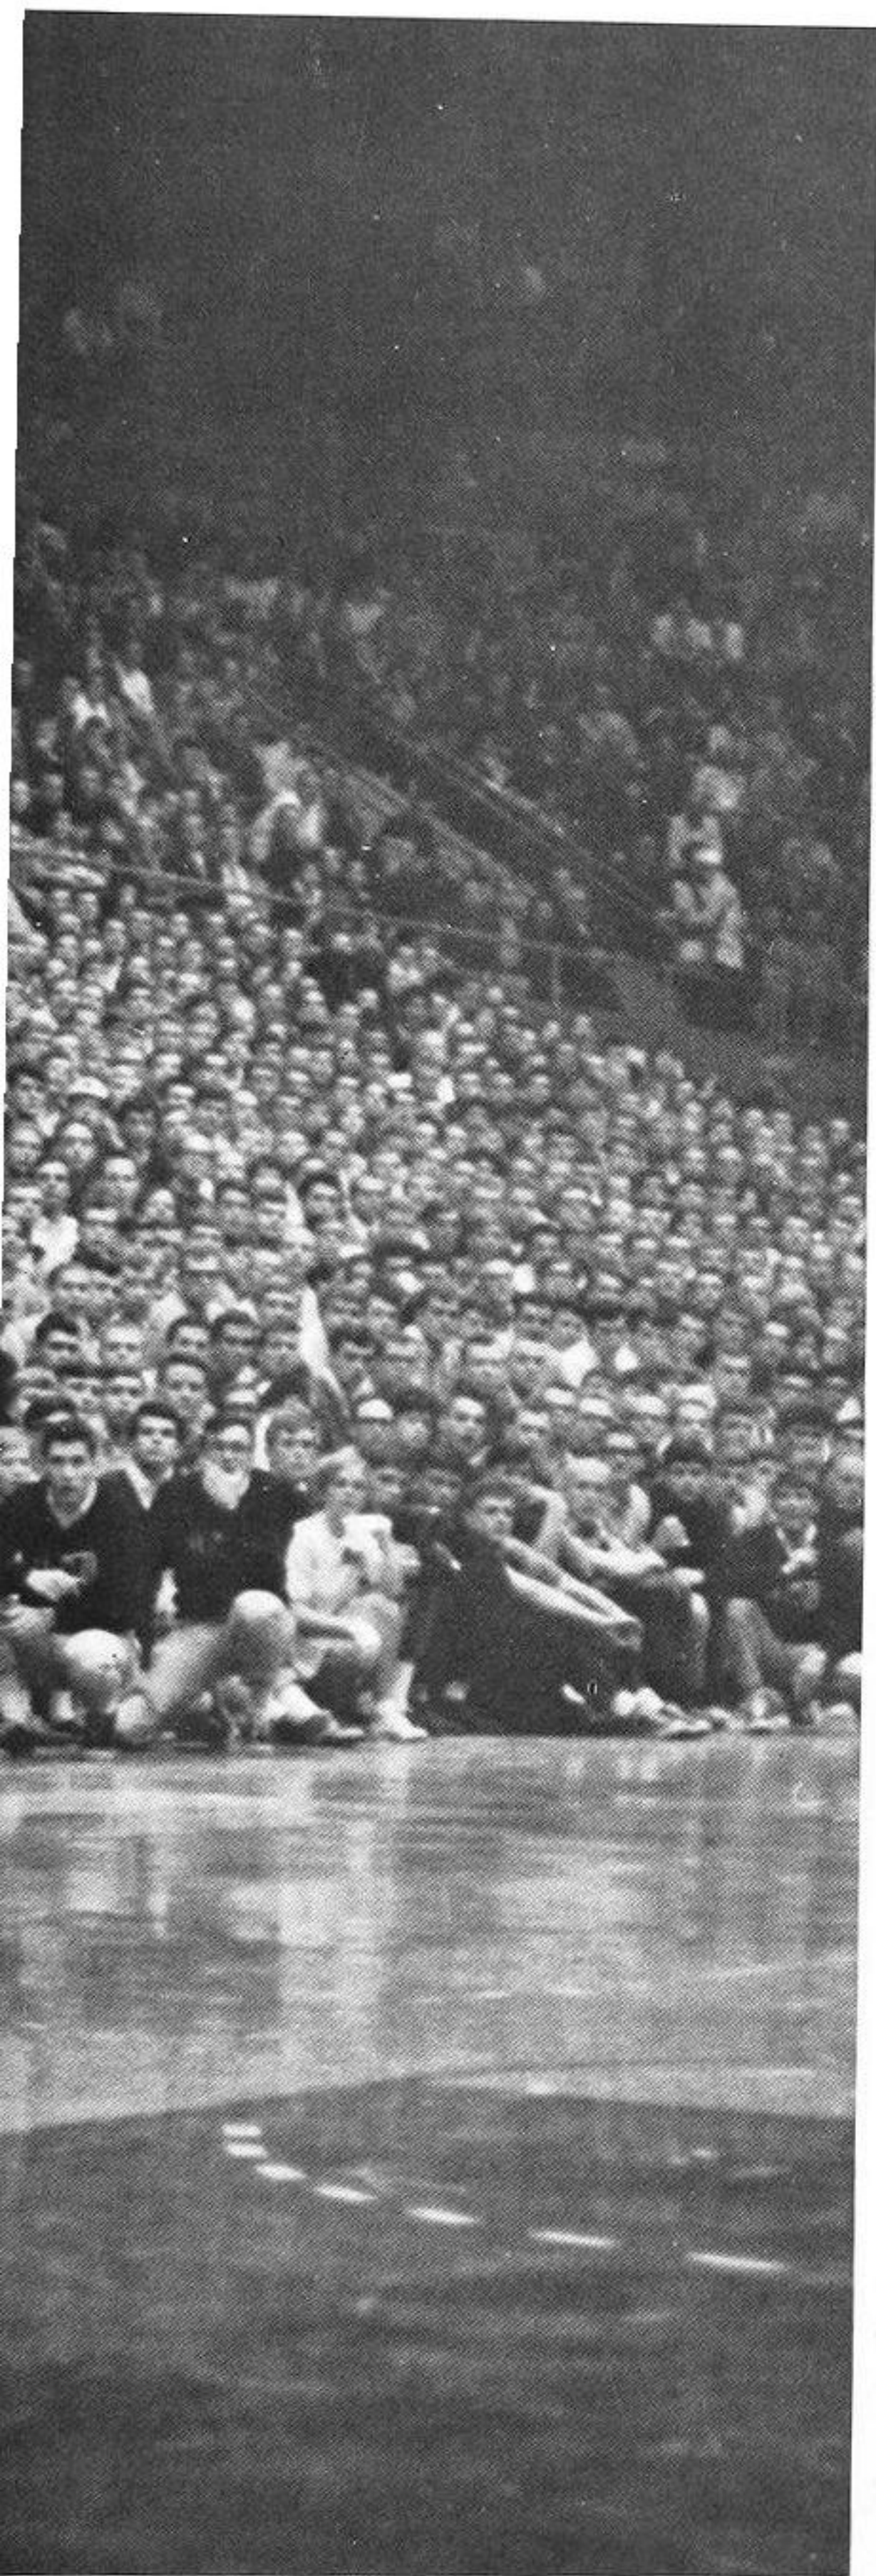

UCLA's All-American center Lew Alcindor drives toward the basket for an easy two points (left) and pulls off a rebound (right).

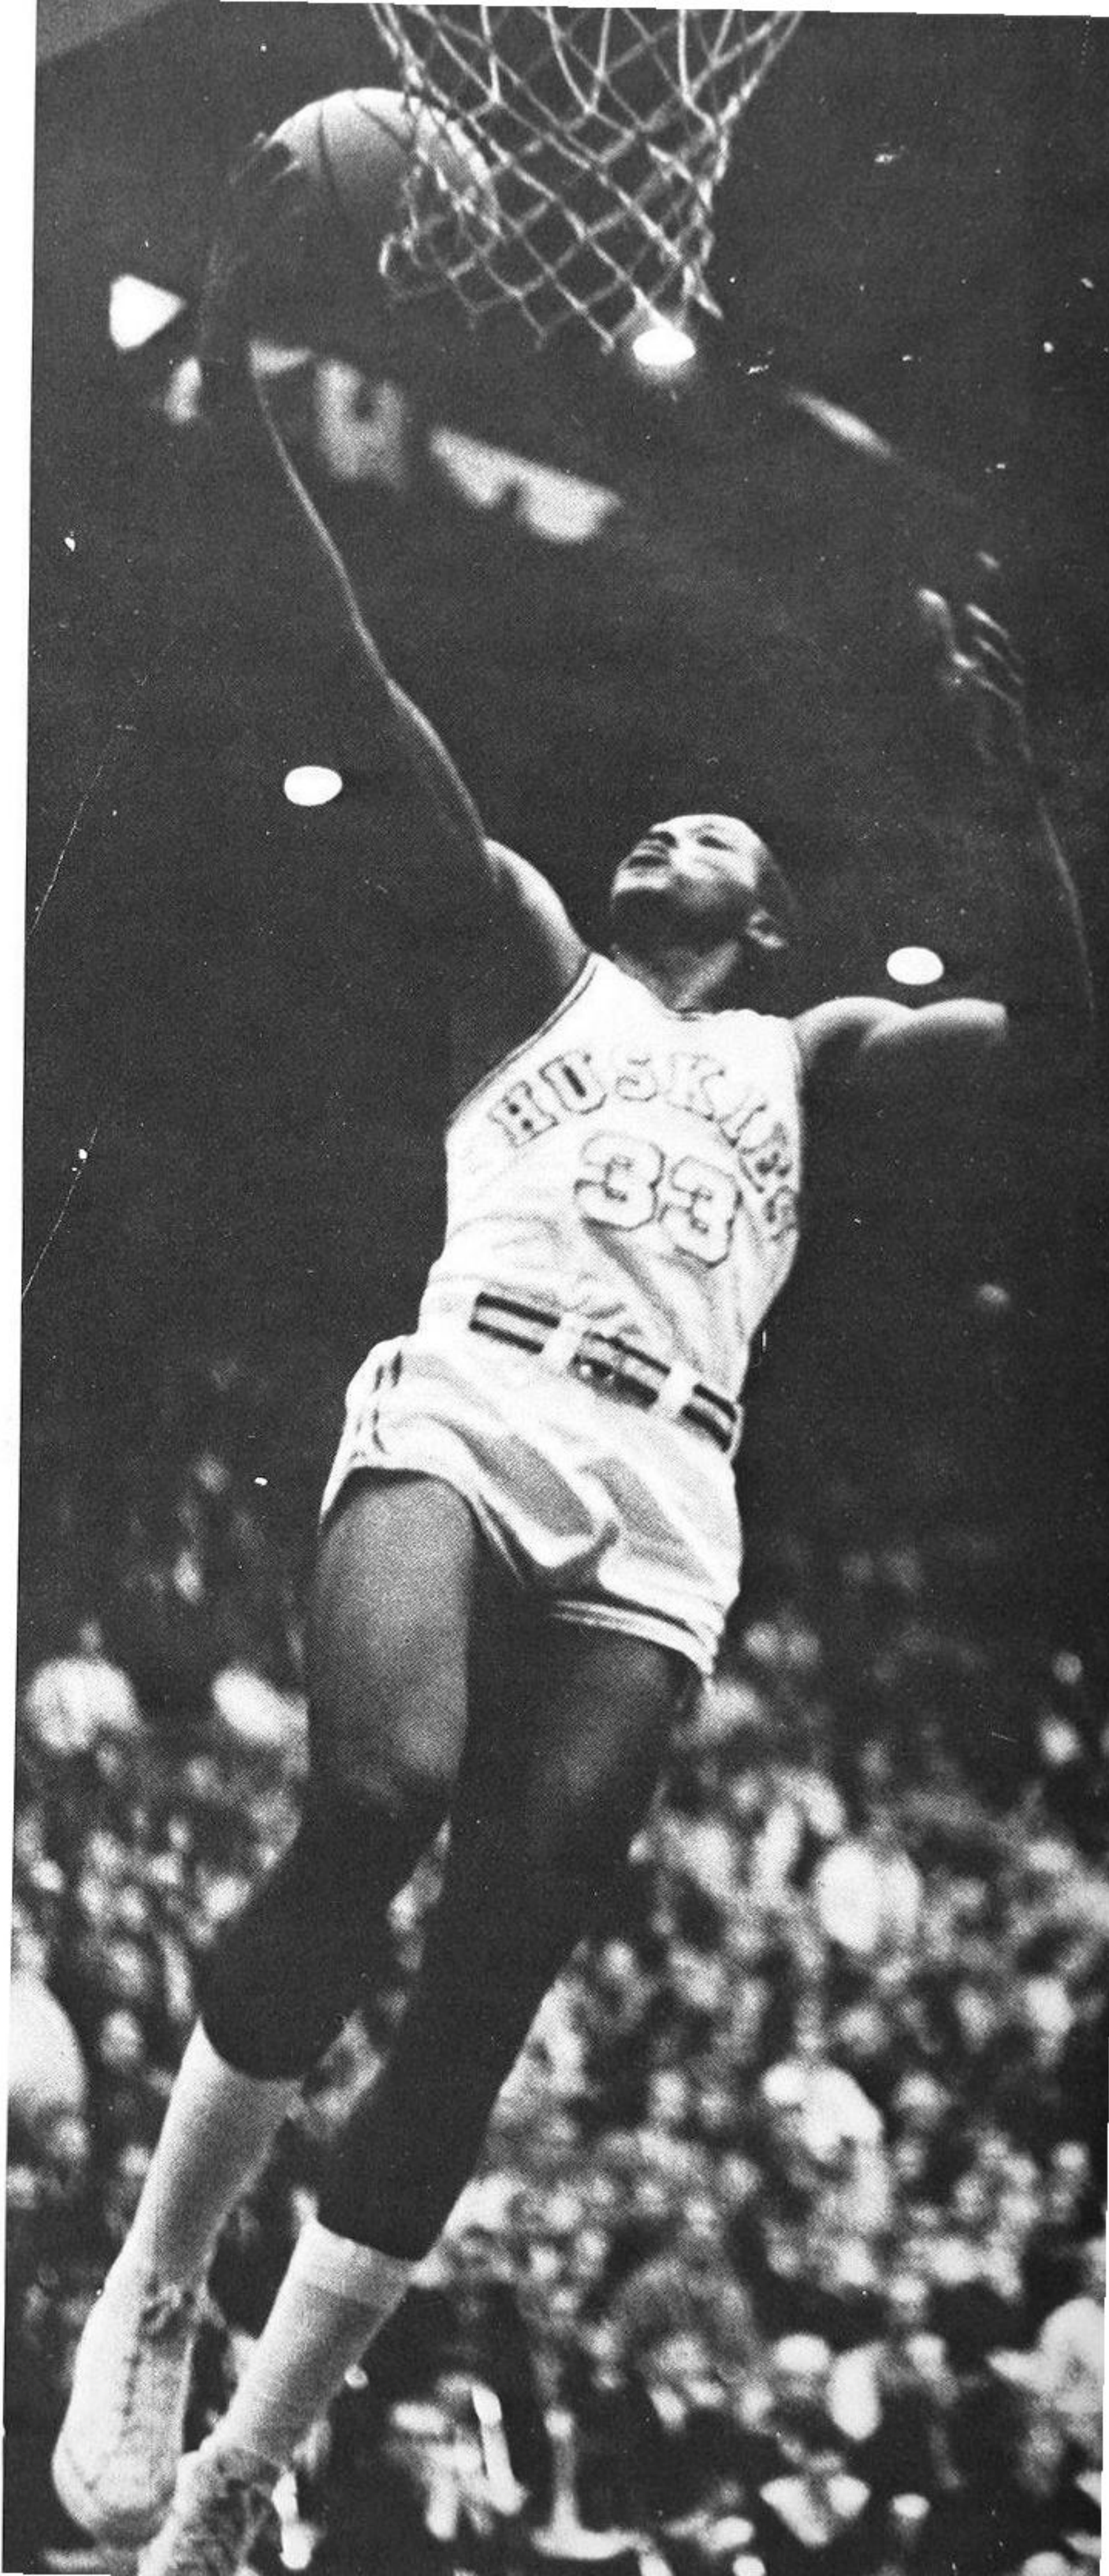

Husky Basketball: More Running And Shooting This Year

Washington center Gordy Harris prepares to pass-off to Dave Carr who had beaten his man.

Dave Carr, junior forward and second-highest Husky scorer, gets an easy lay-up against California.

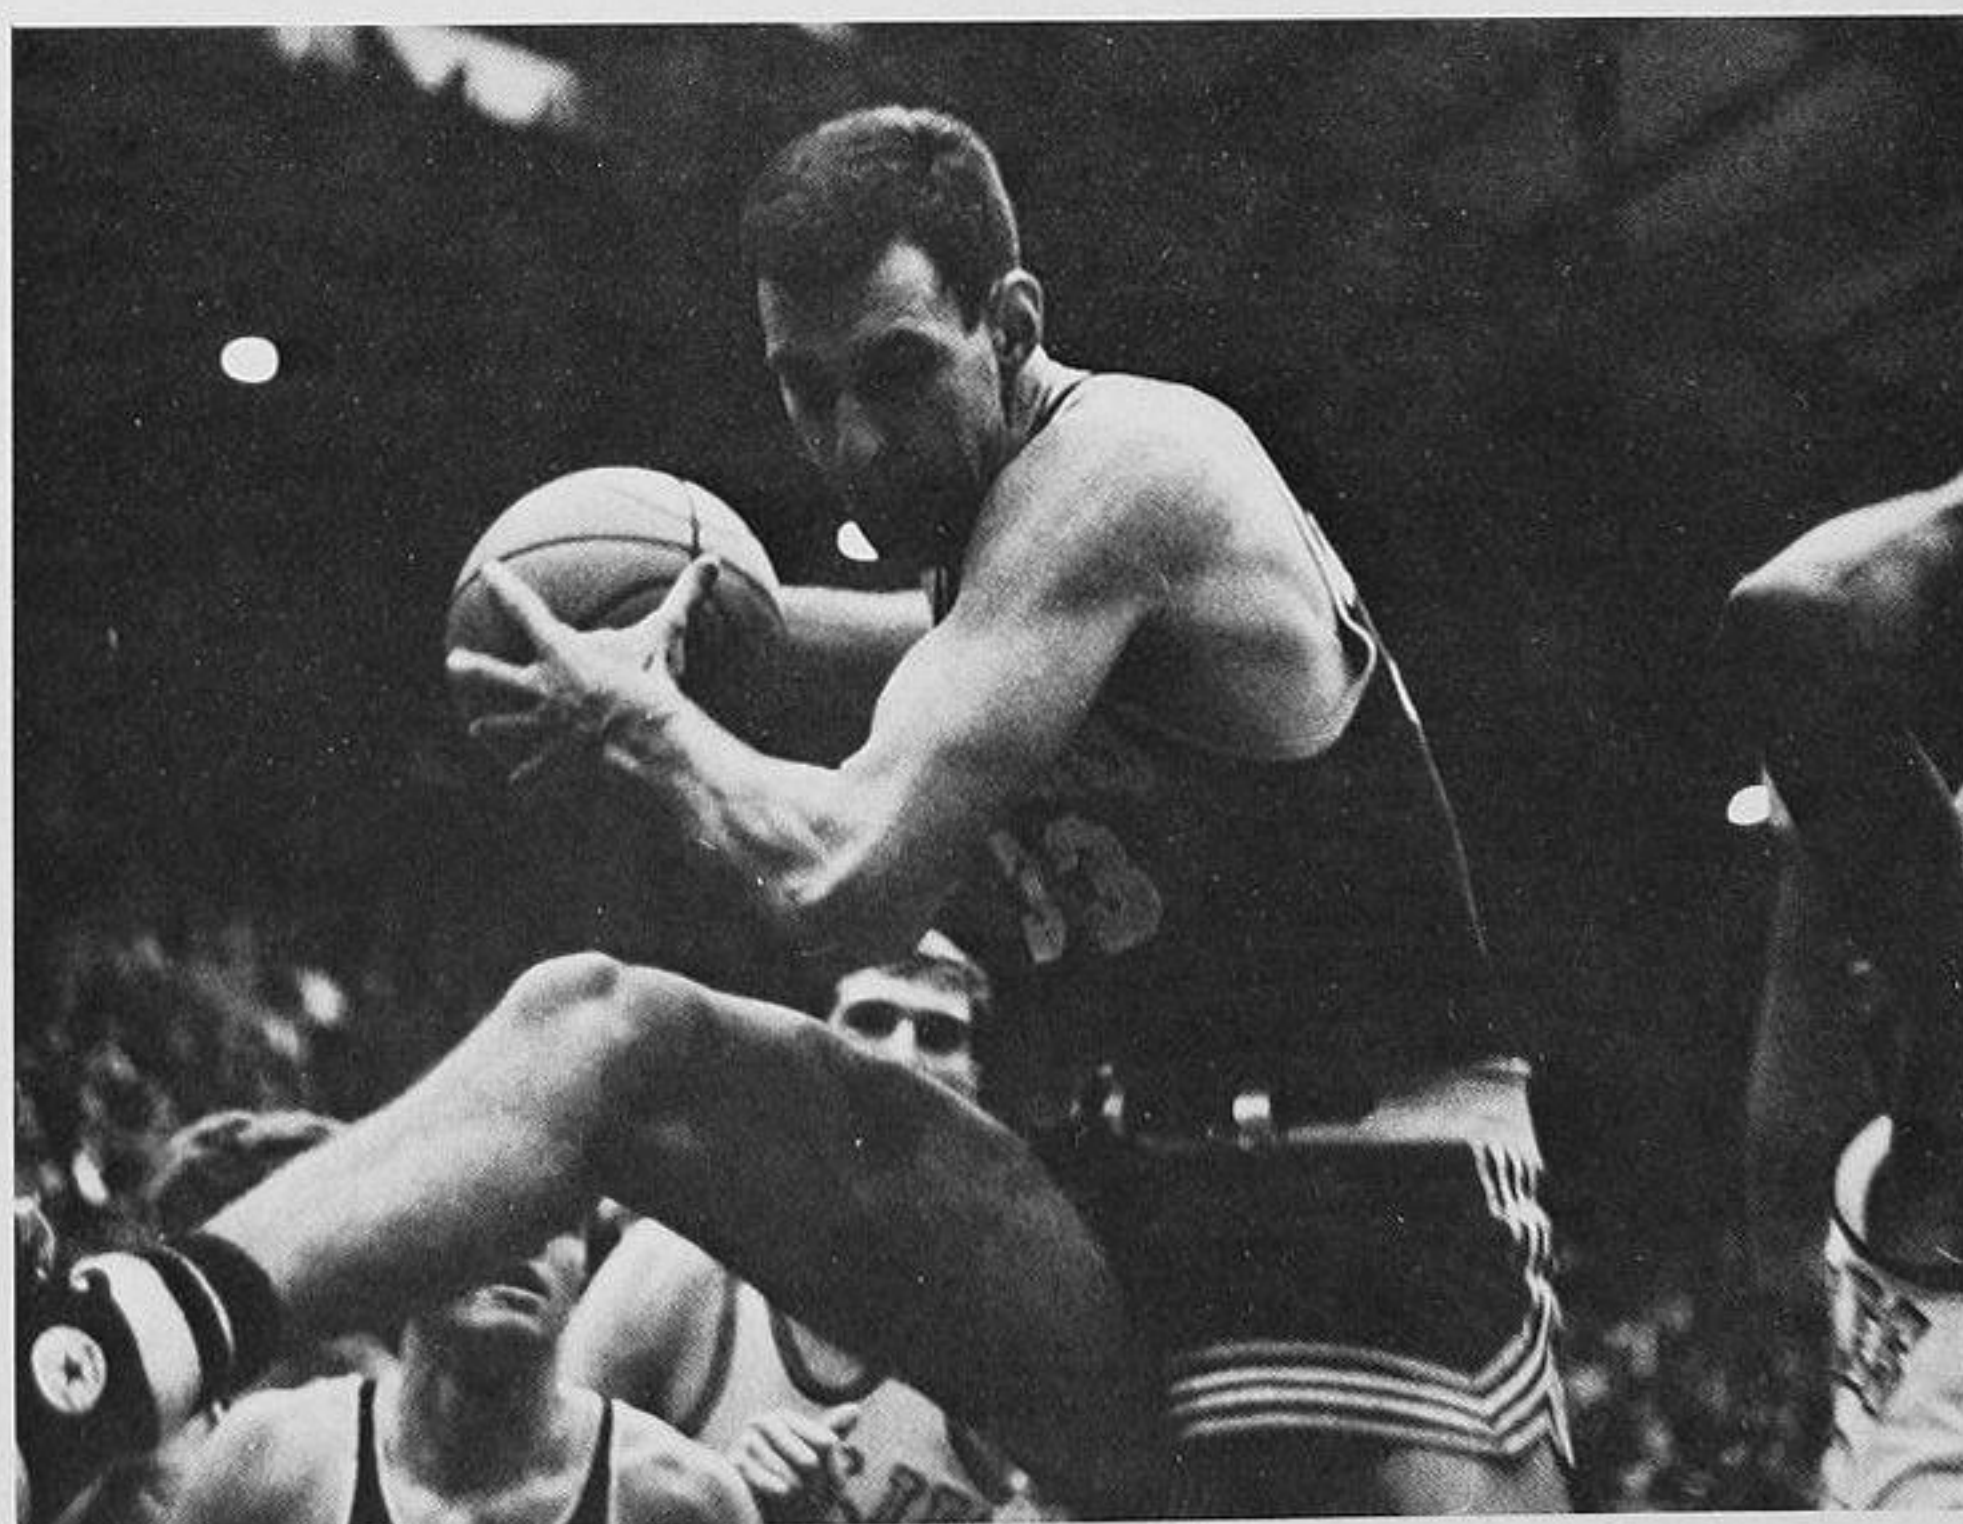

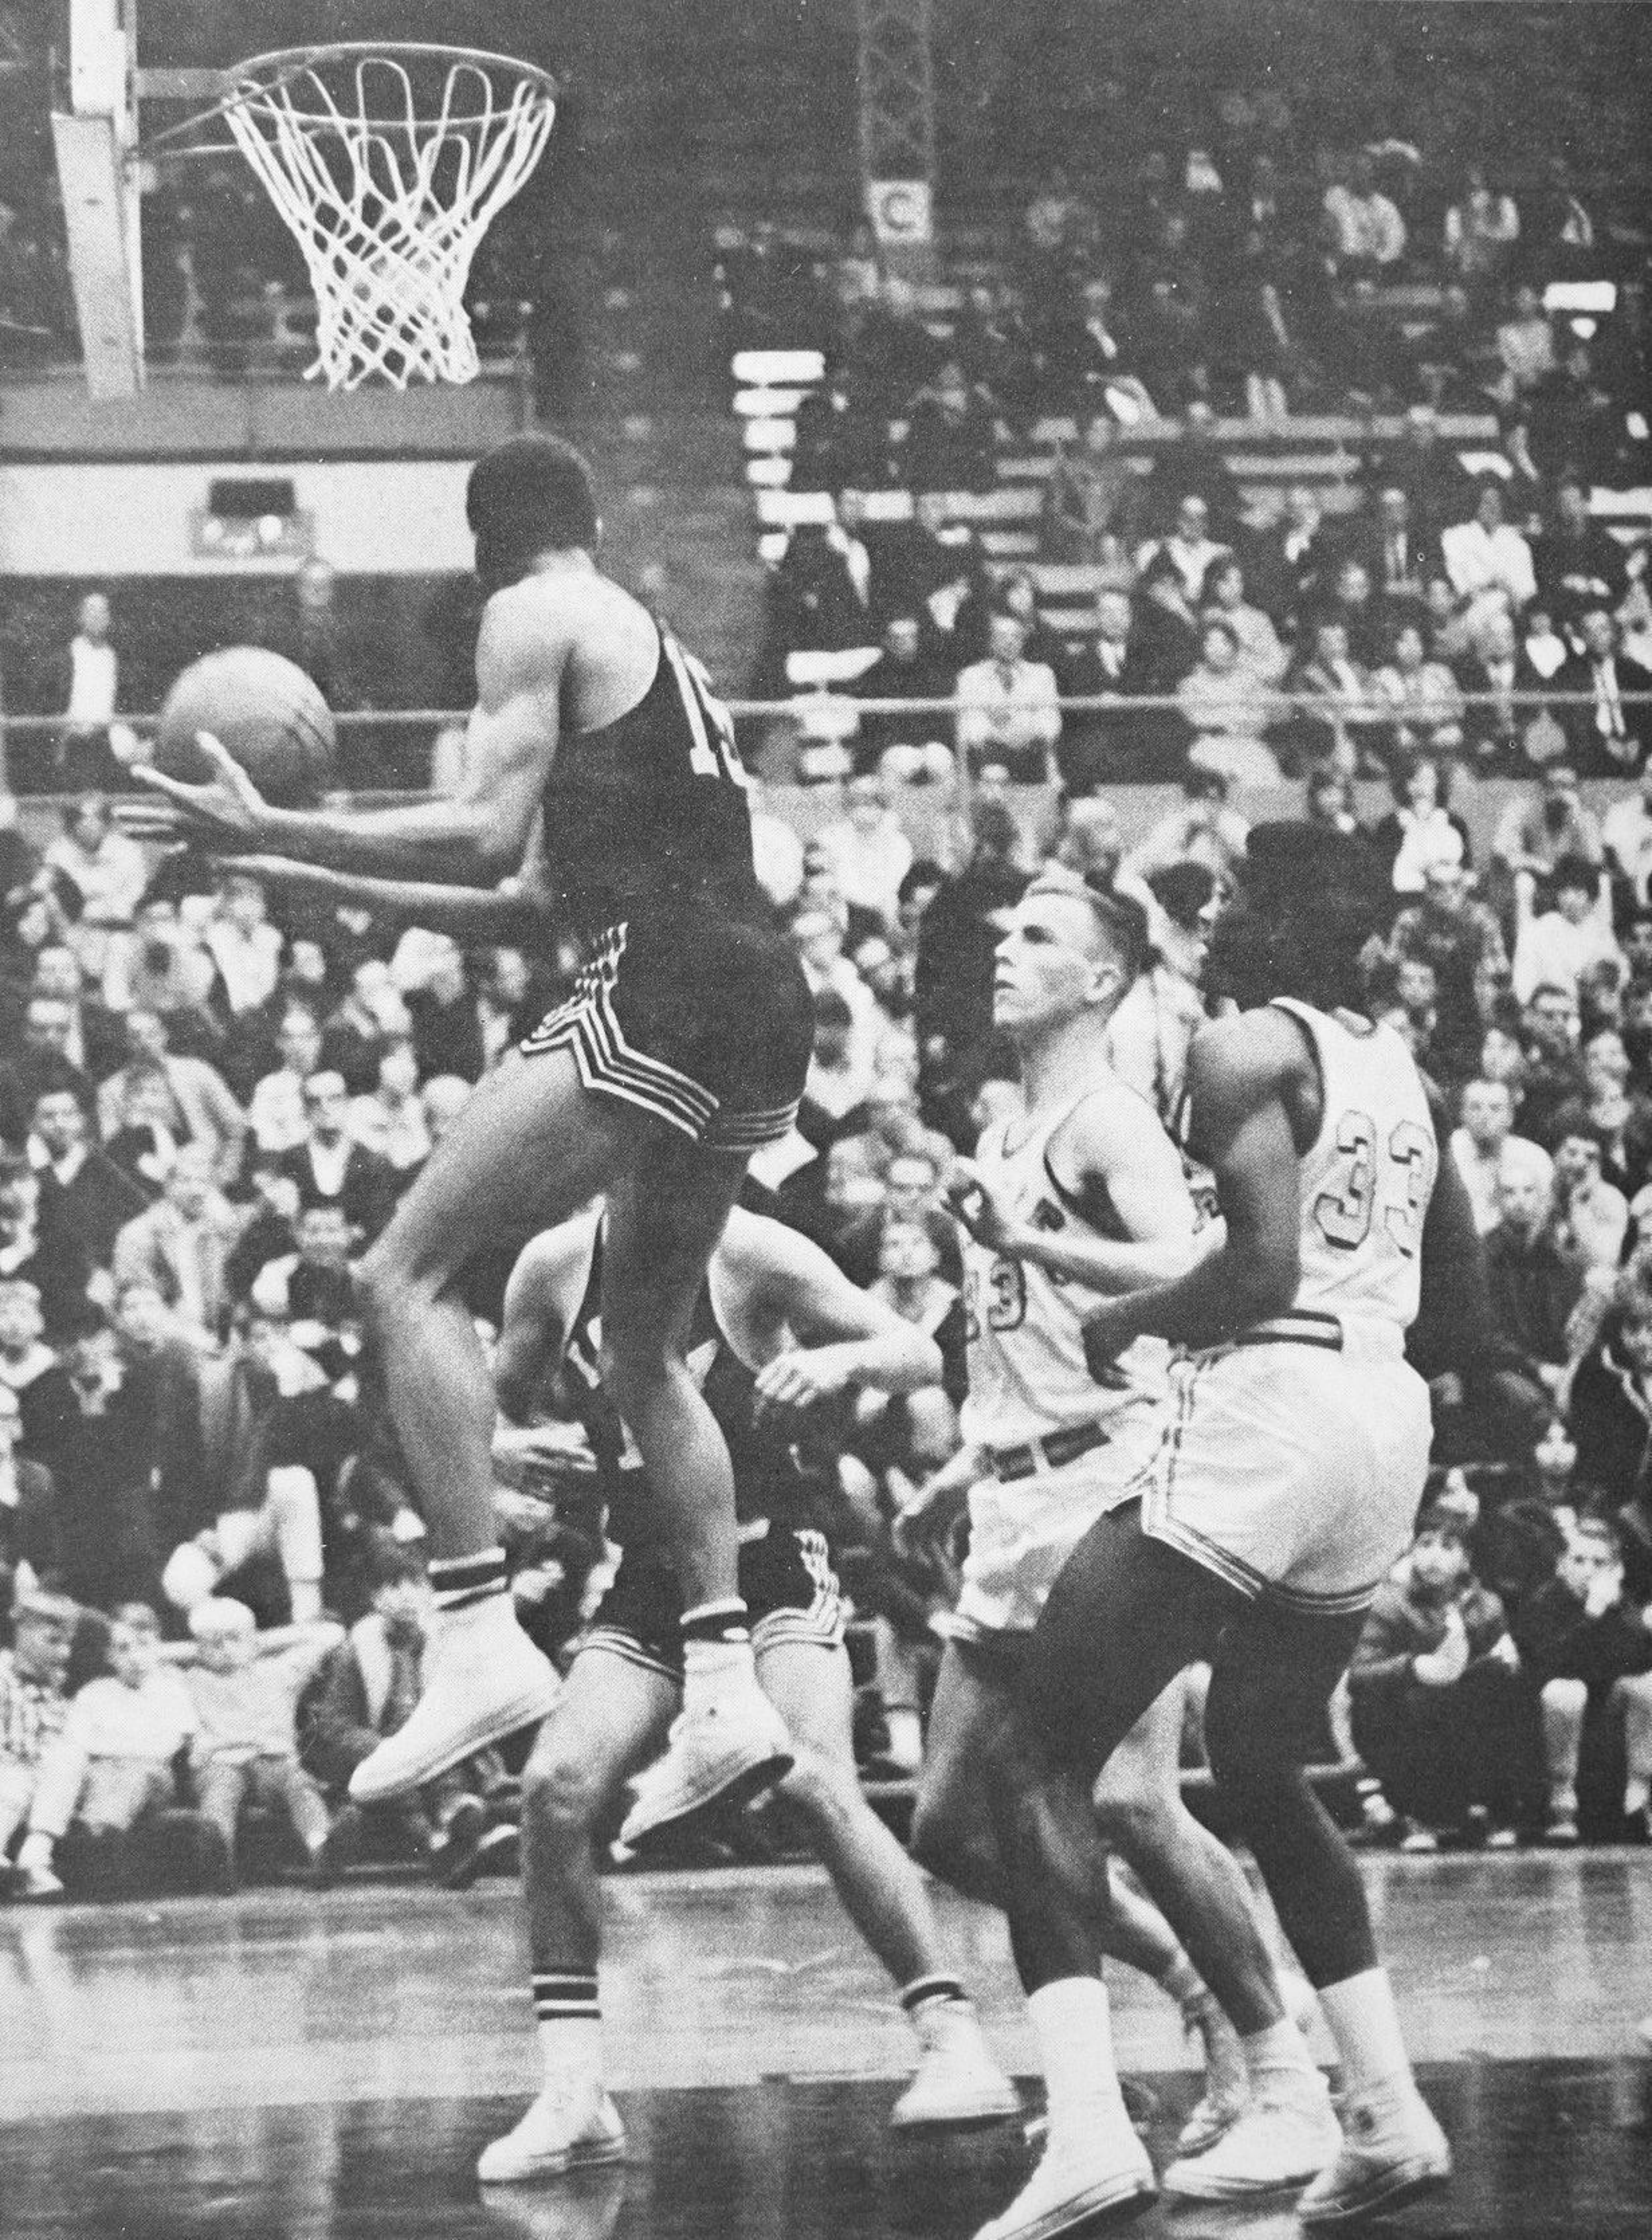

Dave Hovde (23), the Husky's leading rebounder, didn't have a chance to get this rebound against Cal.

Skiers Grab Sixth In NCAA Championships At Sugarloaf Mt.

A skier competes against one thing that remains constant—the clock. A fraction of a second is often the difference between winning and losing. Thus it is important for skiers to master the racing techniques which only a good coach can teach.

ton once again won all three of its regular season meets. In the NCAA Championships at Sugarloaf Mountain, Maine, the Huskies finished sixth.

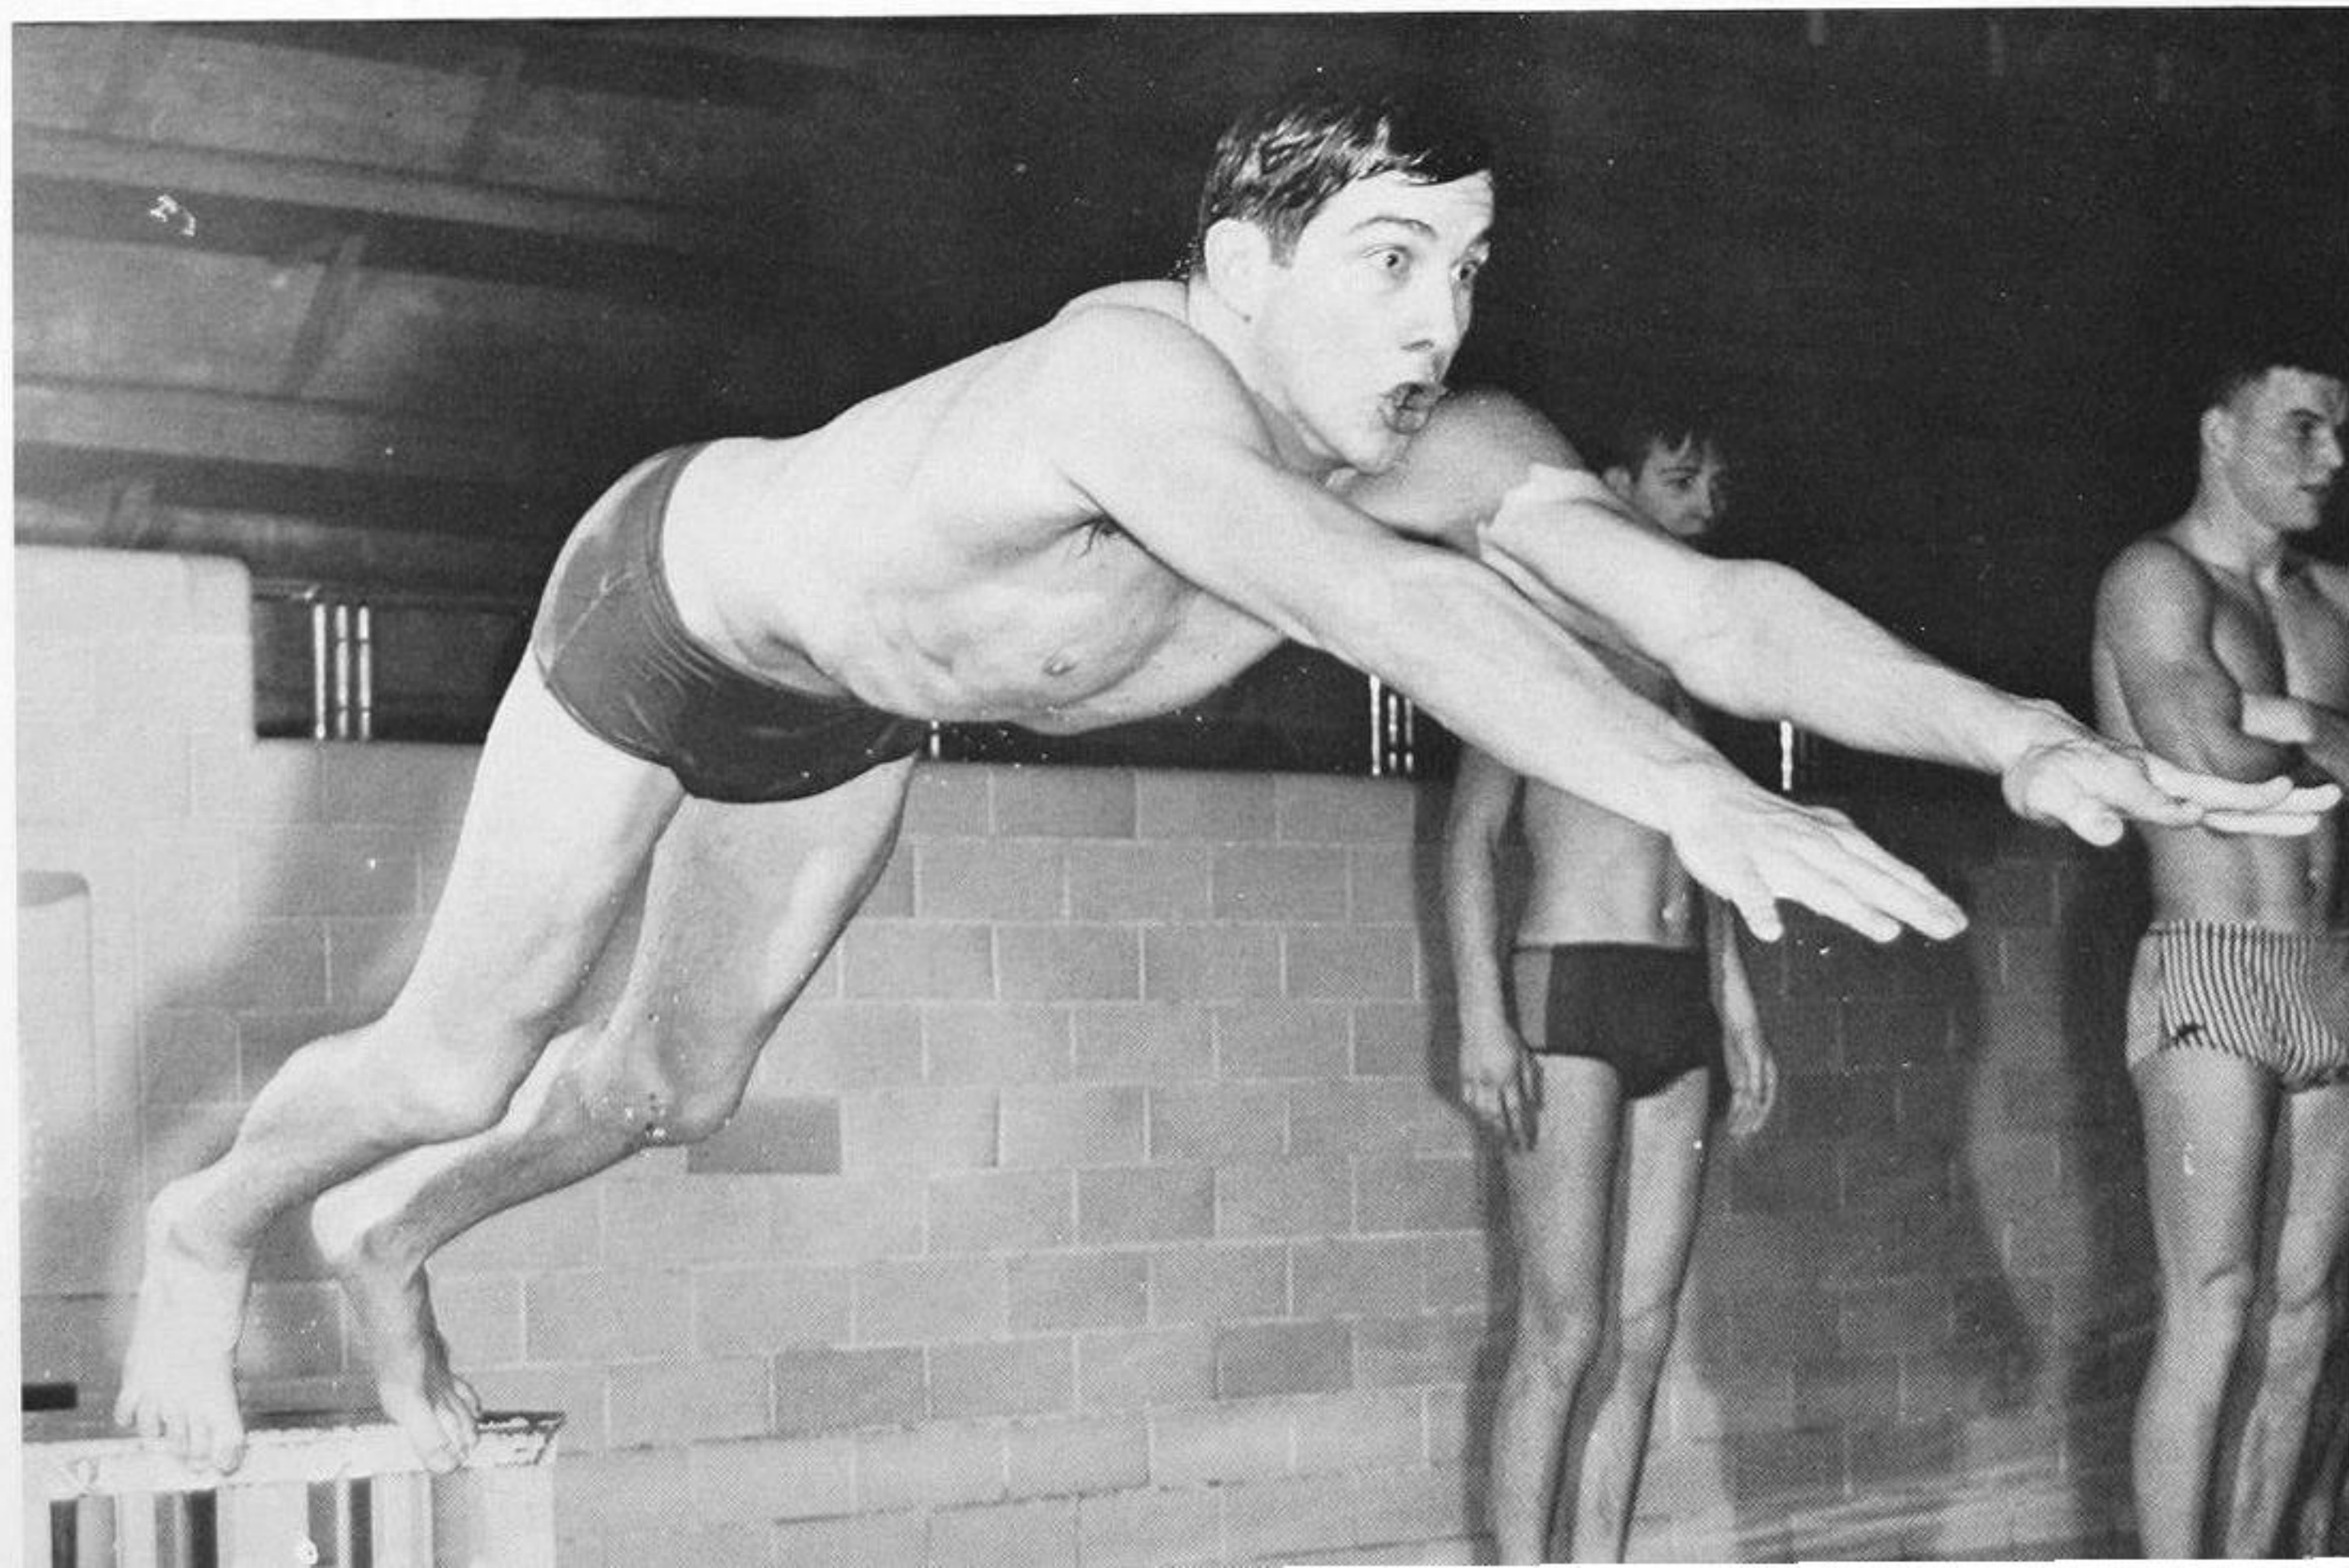

Outstanding on this year's ski team were Thor Mjoen, Malcolm Orkney, and Jay Jalbert in the alpine events; Kris Guttormsen in the four way event, Norm Zachary in the downhill and Nils Sjoeborg in the cross-country.

Skiing to a victory is Jay Jalbert, one of three outstanding UW alpinists.

Winning Is Hard When You Are Swimming Against Nation's Best

Washington swimmers have the dubious honor of competing in the toughest swimming conference in the nation. It wasn't that Washington didn't have a good team; it was just that Stanford, USC and UCLA — also conference members — had the three best swimming teams in the nation.

Head Coach John Tallman won only four of ten dual meets this season, but several individuals did outstanding jobs for the Huskies. Diver Dan Hull was one of the best in the AAWU; Tim Roarke holds several Washington records in the free-style and individual medley, and Aldy Meinhardt was Washington's best in the freestyle and butterfly events.

Gymnasts Among Nation's Best

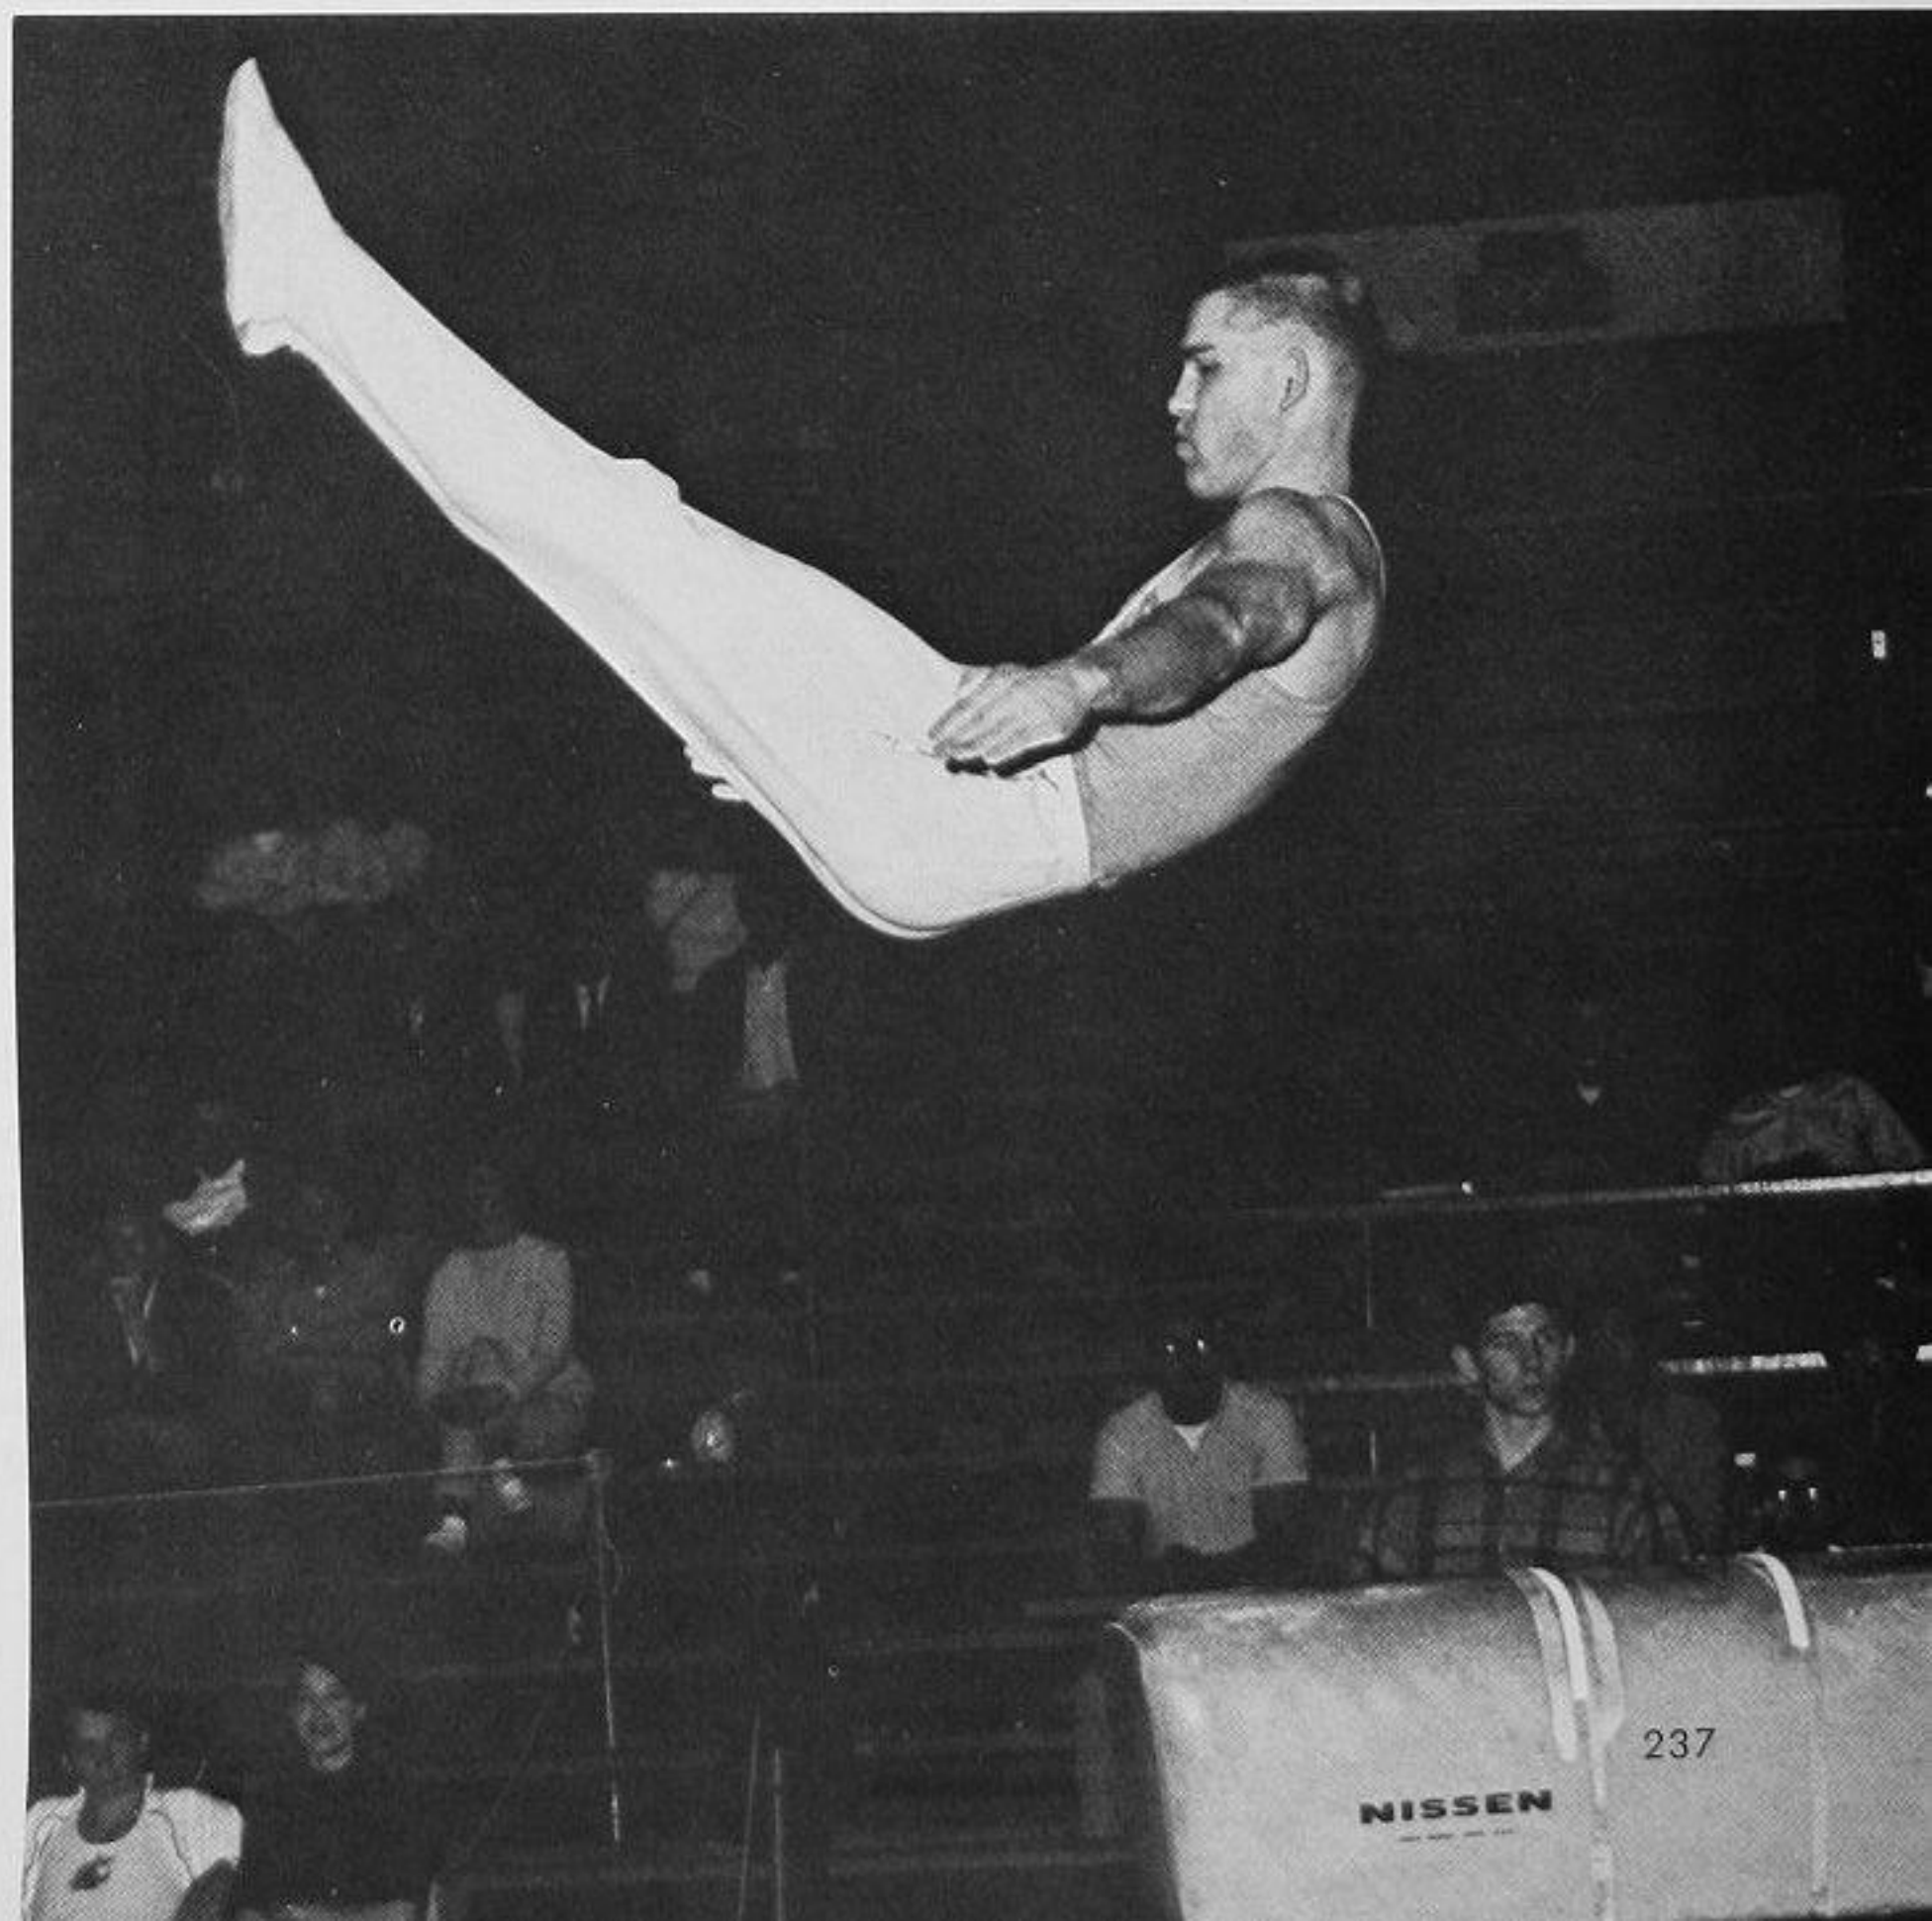

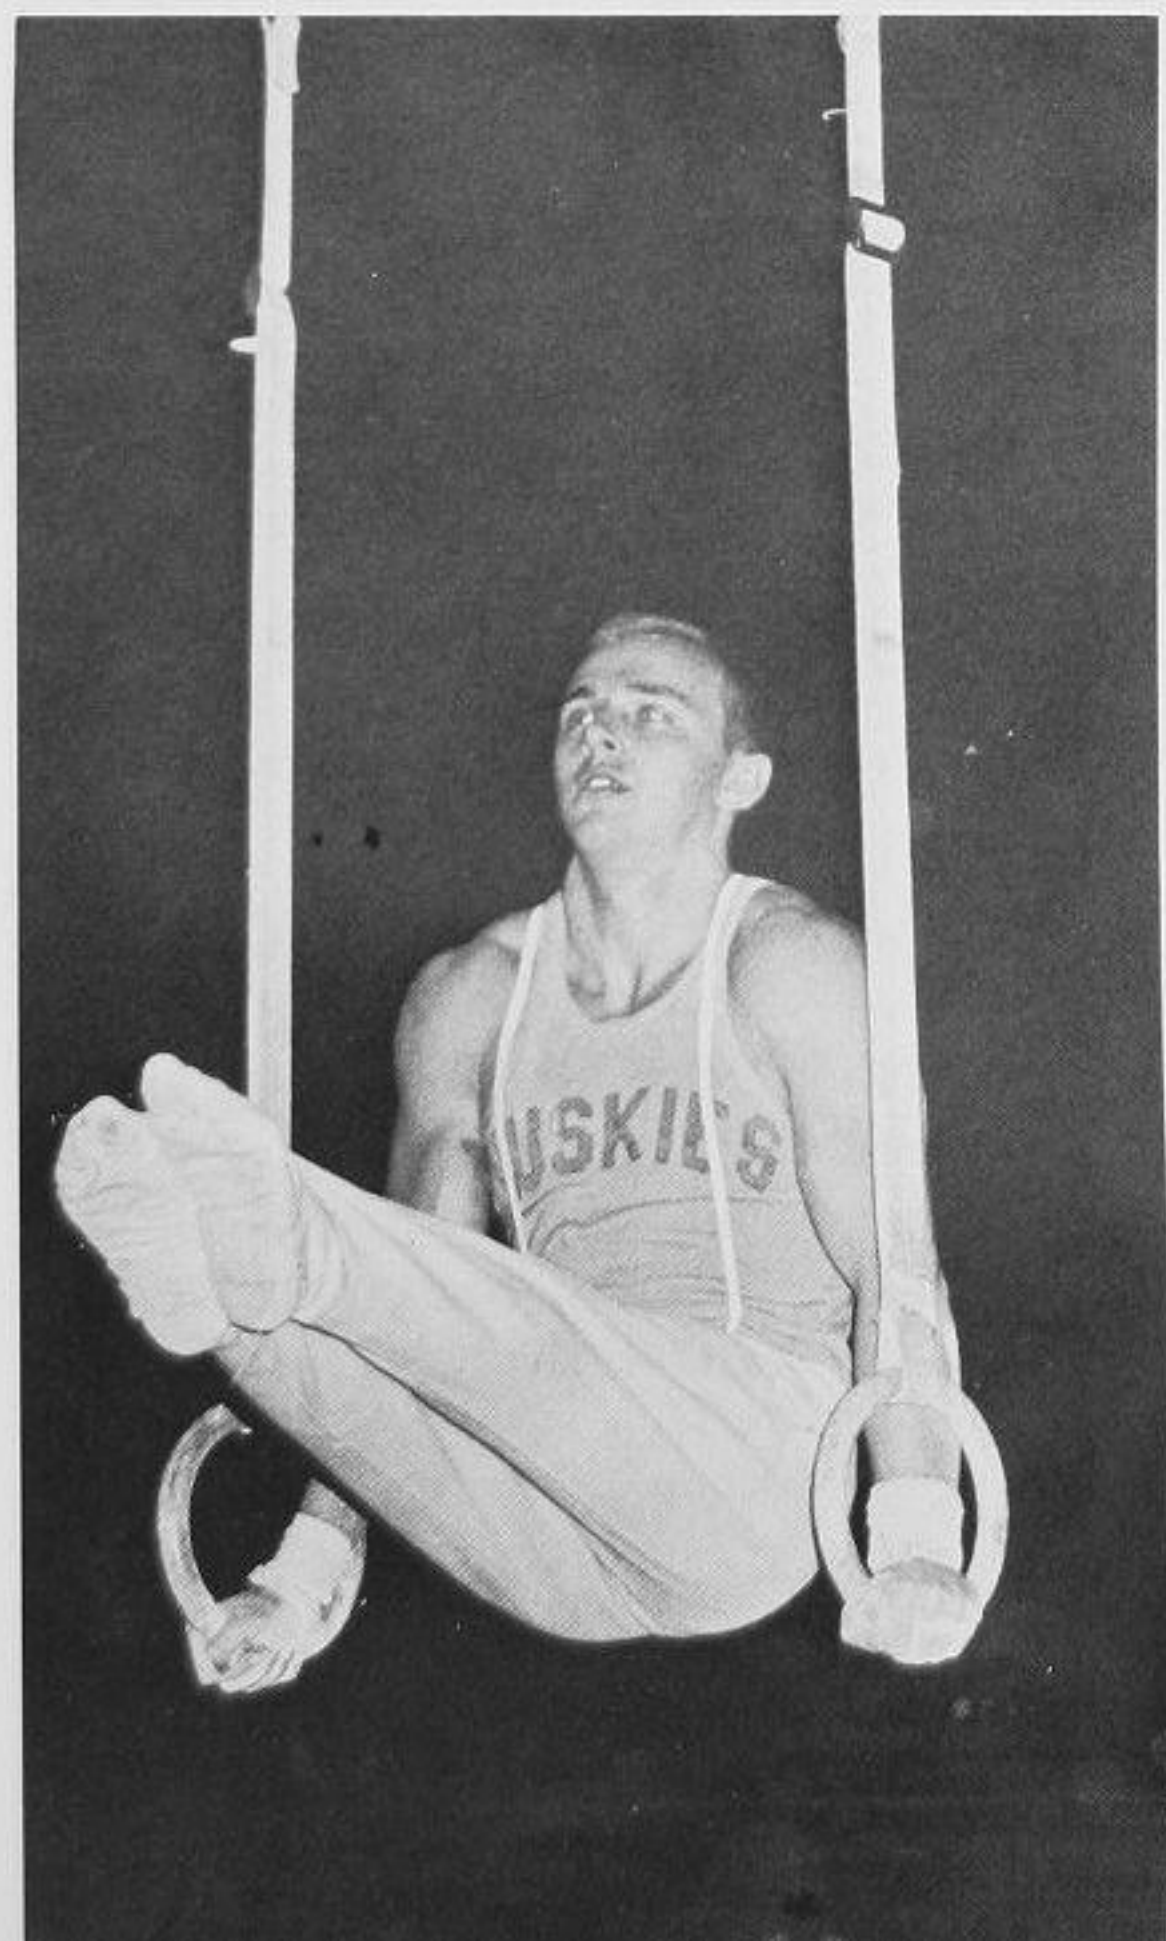

Gymnastics is a sport that takes all-around athletic ability. Not only must a successful gymnast have strength and coordination, but he must have poise as well.

For the past few years Washington's gymnastics teams have been extremely successful. In 1965 Washington gymnasts were second in the nation: last year they were seventh. Again this year Washington was ranked among the nation's top schools.

Eigel Flaathen and Mike Flansaas in the all-around events and Rick Fonceca in the trampoline were the most consistent performers for the varsity. And with freshman stars Yoshi Hayasaki and Bo Bennett, it appeared that Washington's gymnastics team would continue to be one of the best in the nation.

Wrestling Team Goes Up, Up, Up— From Last In

After a 1966 season record of 0 wins and 10 losses and a last place finish in the AAWU, Washington's wrestling team had no place to go but up. And up the 1967 wrestling team did go.

Under first-year coach Jim Smith,

Washington's grapplers did not transform into a championship team, but they made great improvement. The dual meet season record was 5-11-1, and the Huskies surprised everyone by coming in fourth in the AAWU championships at UCLA.

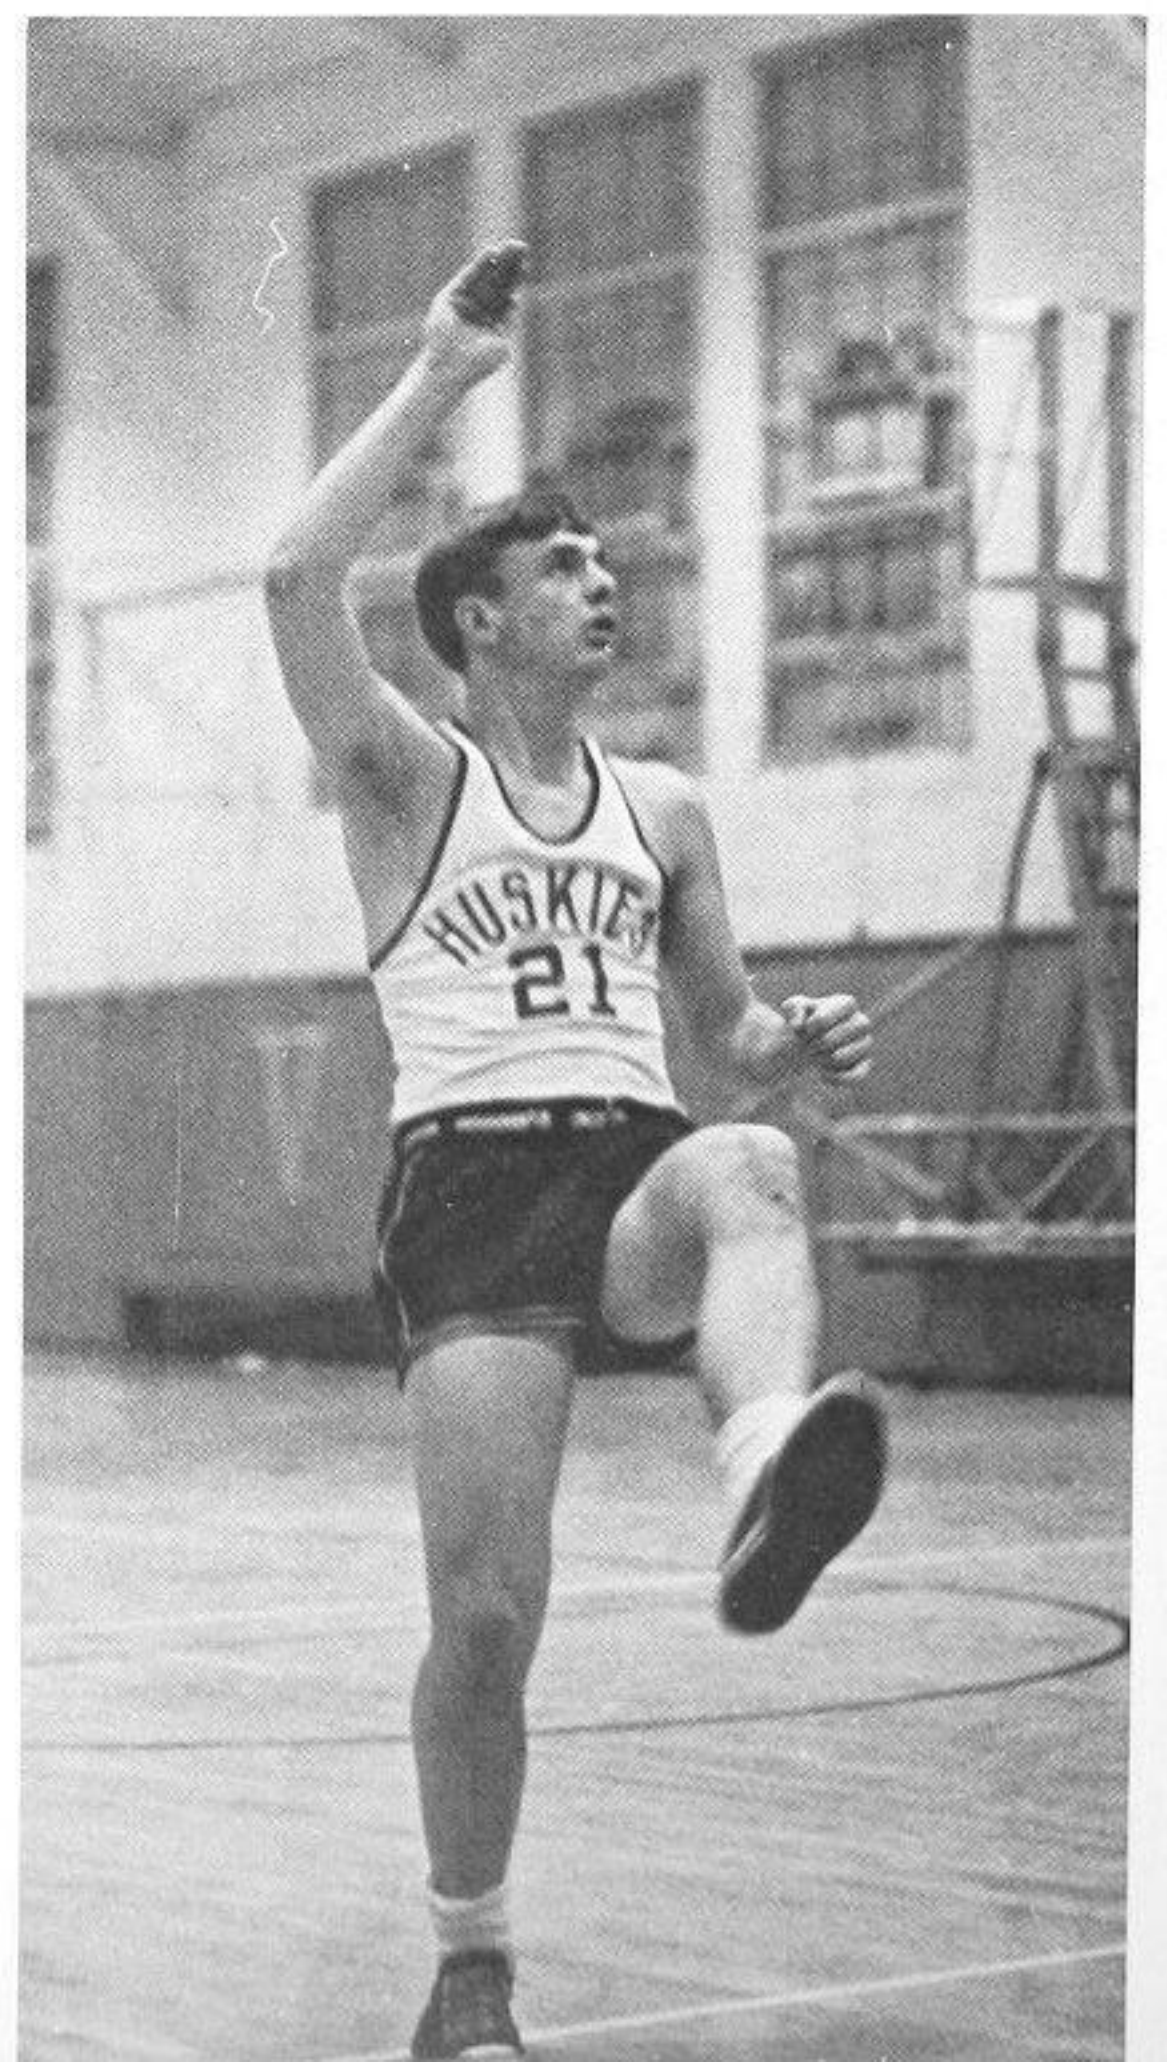

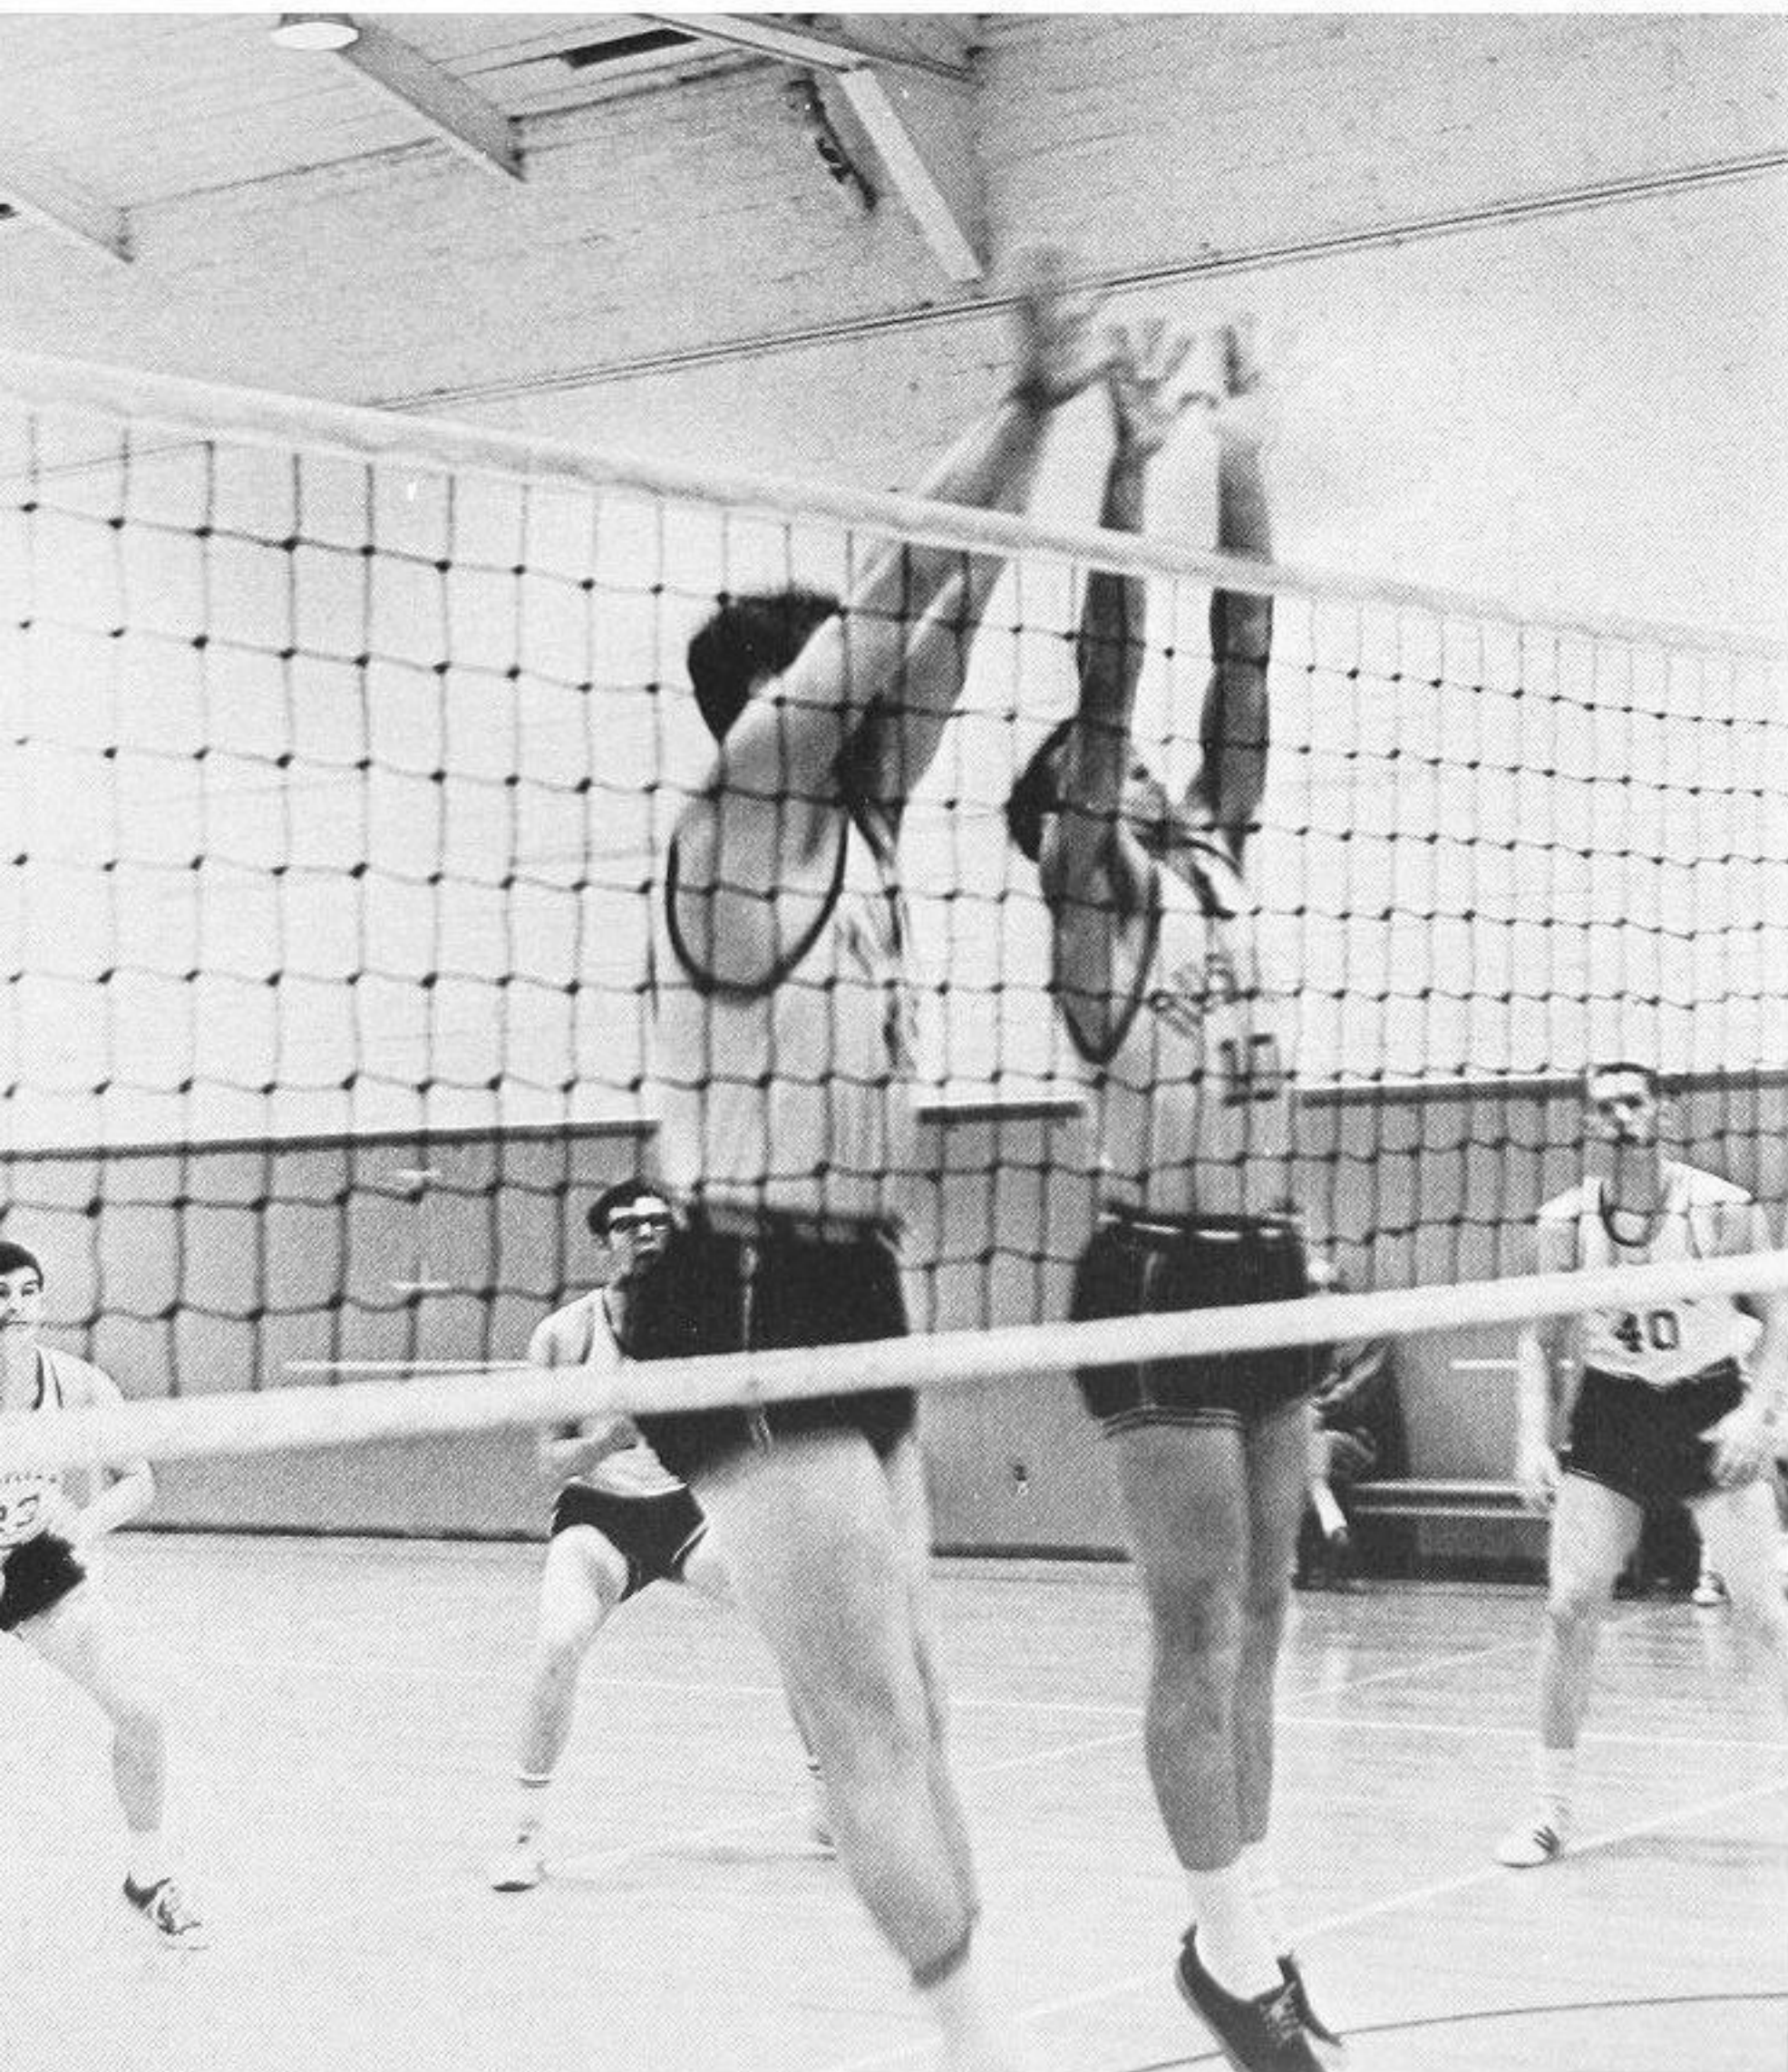

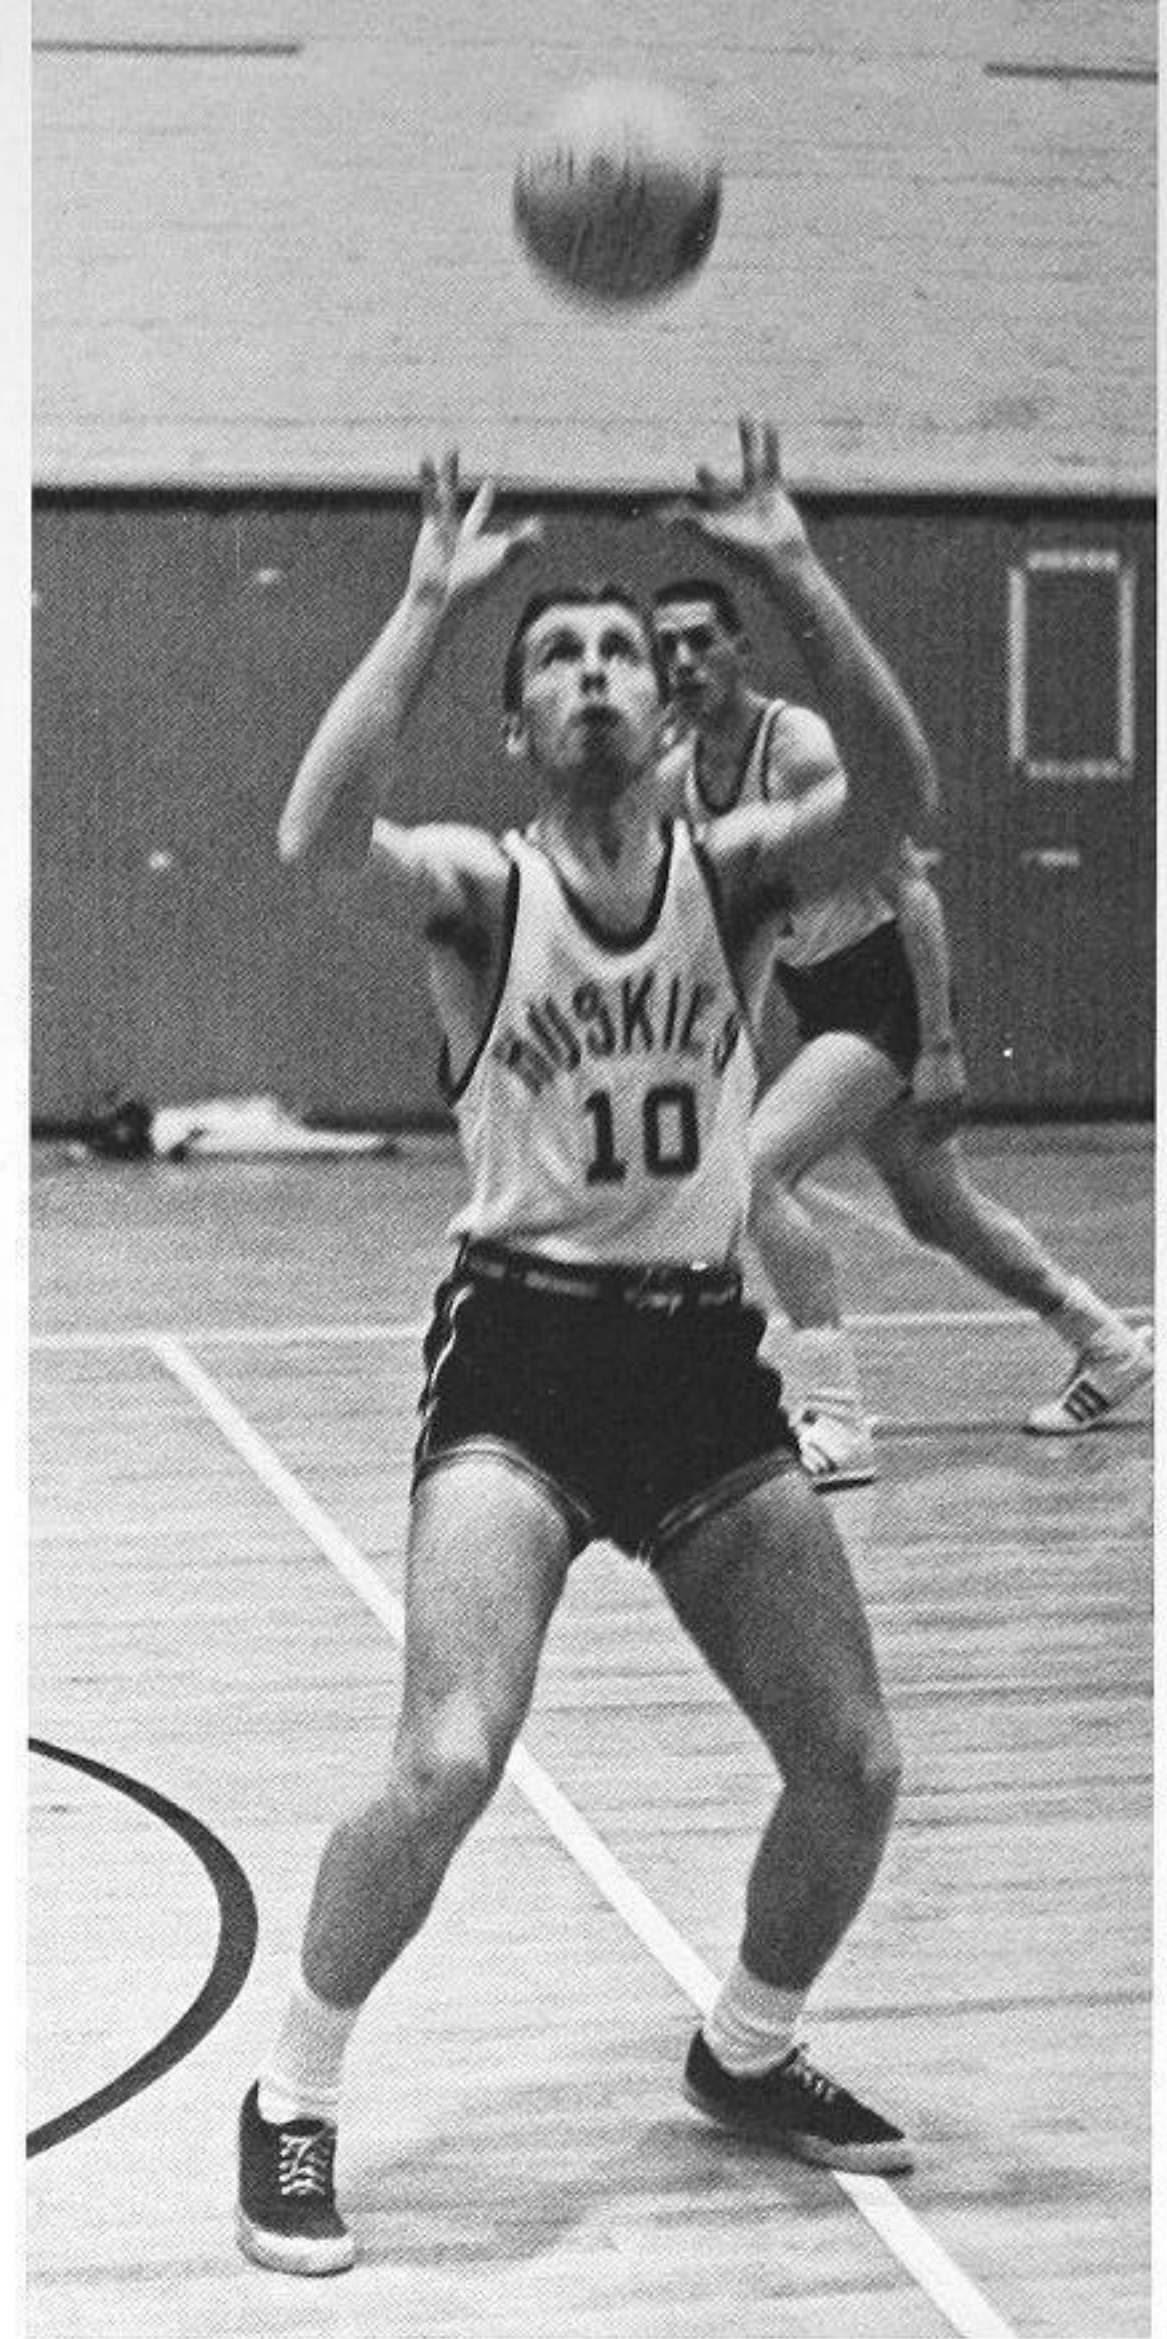

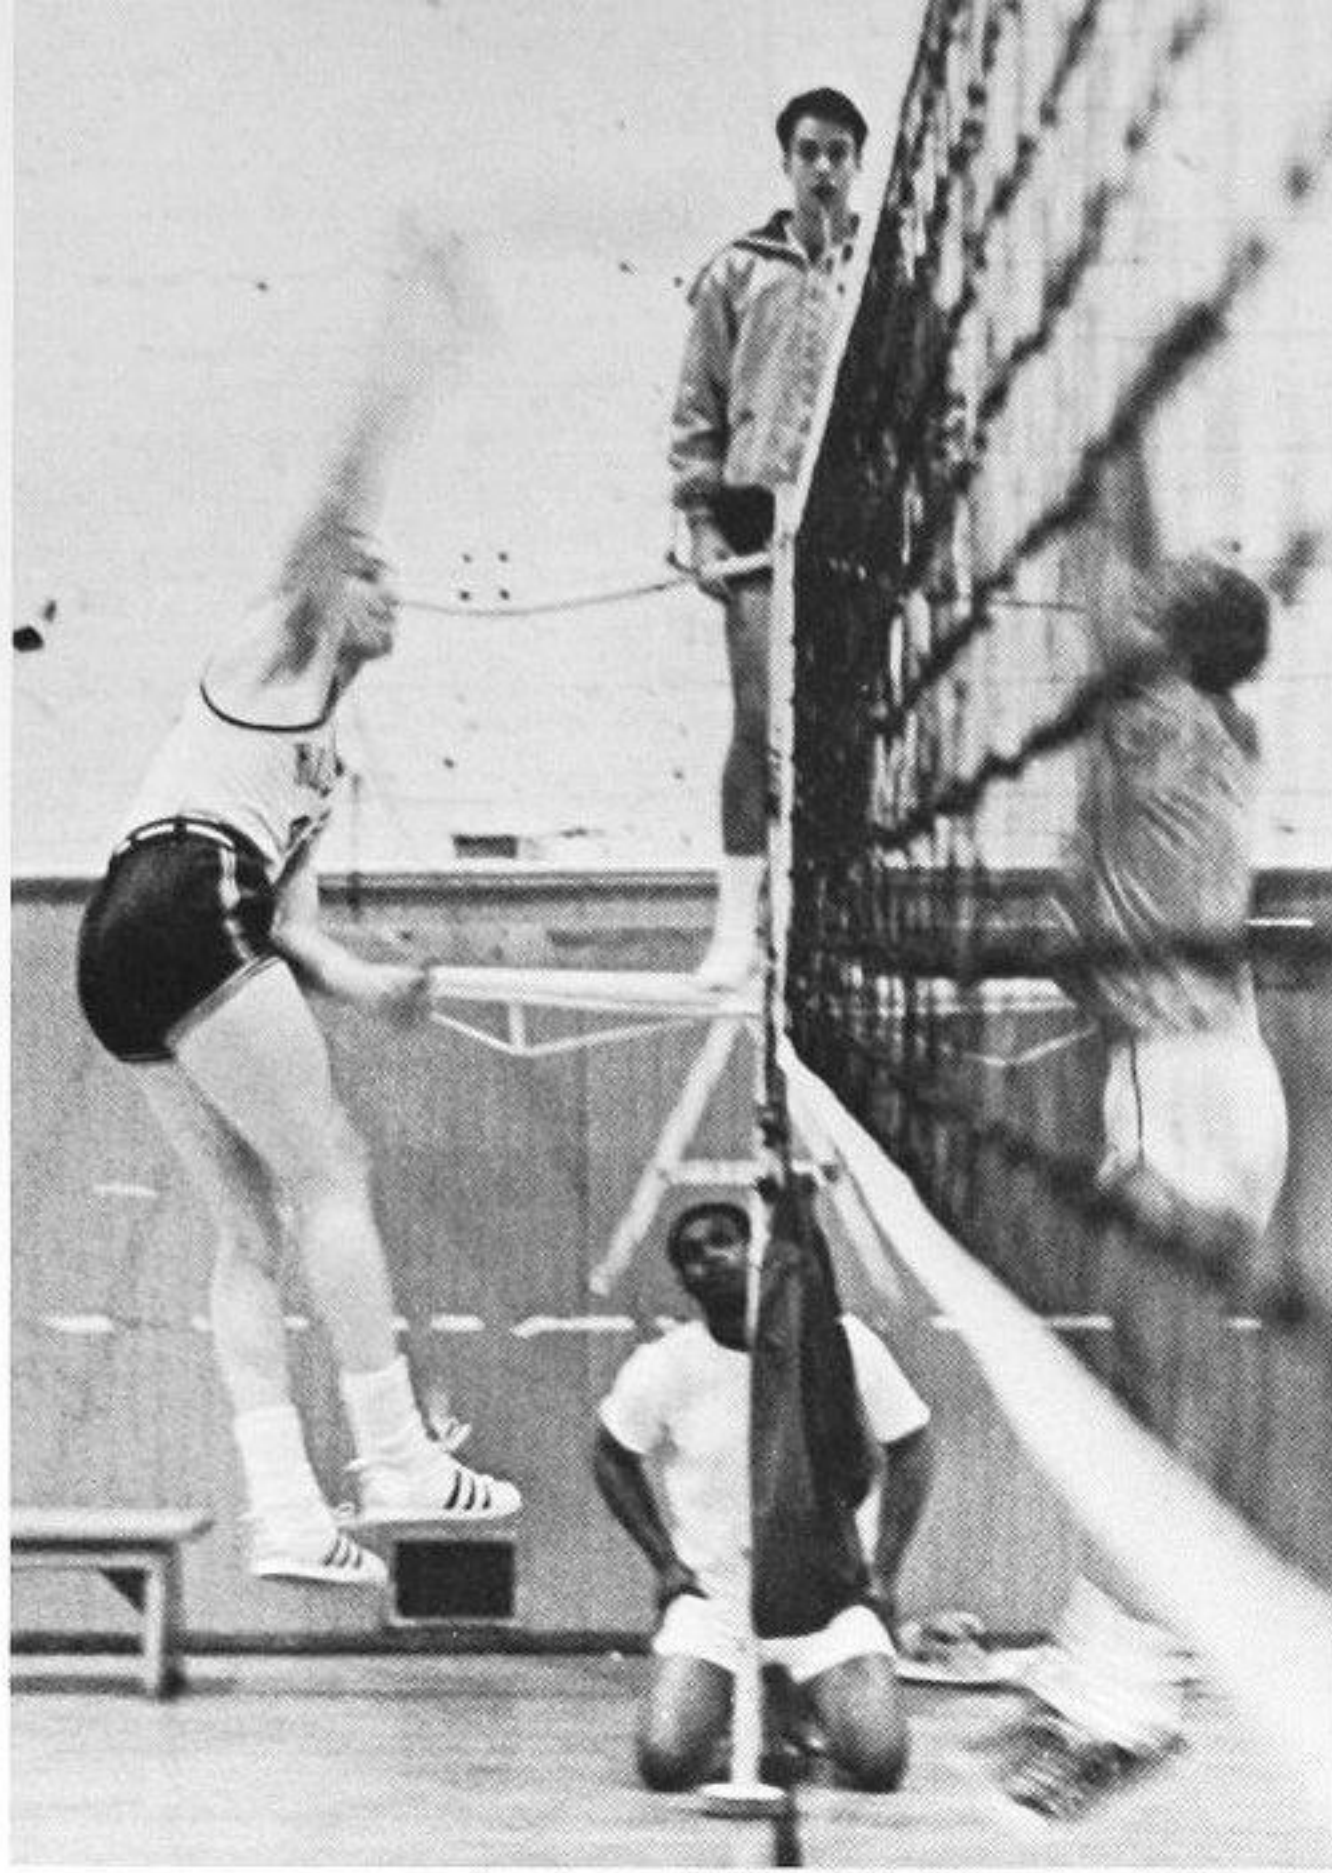

Roger Tennants was AAWU champ in the 123-pound division and a standout for the Huskies all year long. Others who performed well throughout the year were Bruce Shults, Jim Moore, Doug Smith, Jim Kennedy and Charlie Locke.

Kunde's Spikers Remain On Top

Those who think that volleyball is a game designed mainly for girls have never seen intercollegiate volleyball. A volleyball that is well spiked often attains a speed of over 90 miles an hour. Competition in volleyball requires quick reflexes, balance, and a good sense of timing.

For 34 years Dr. Norman Kunde has coached the volleyball teams at Washington. During this time UW volleyball teams have suffered only one losing season. Dr. Kunde has won over 380 games in dual competition.

With six varsity letter-winners returning this year, Washington again did well in volleyball, losing only one of their dual meets.

Intramurals Offer Thirty-One Team, Individual Sports

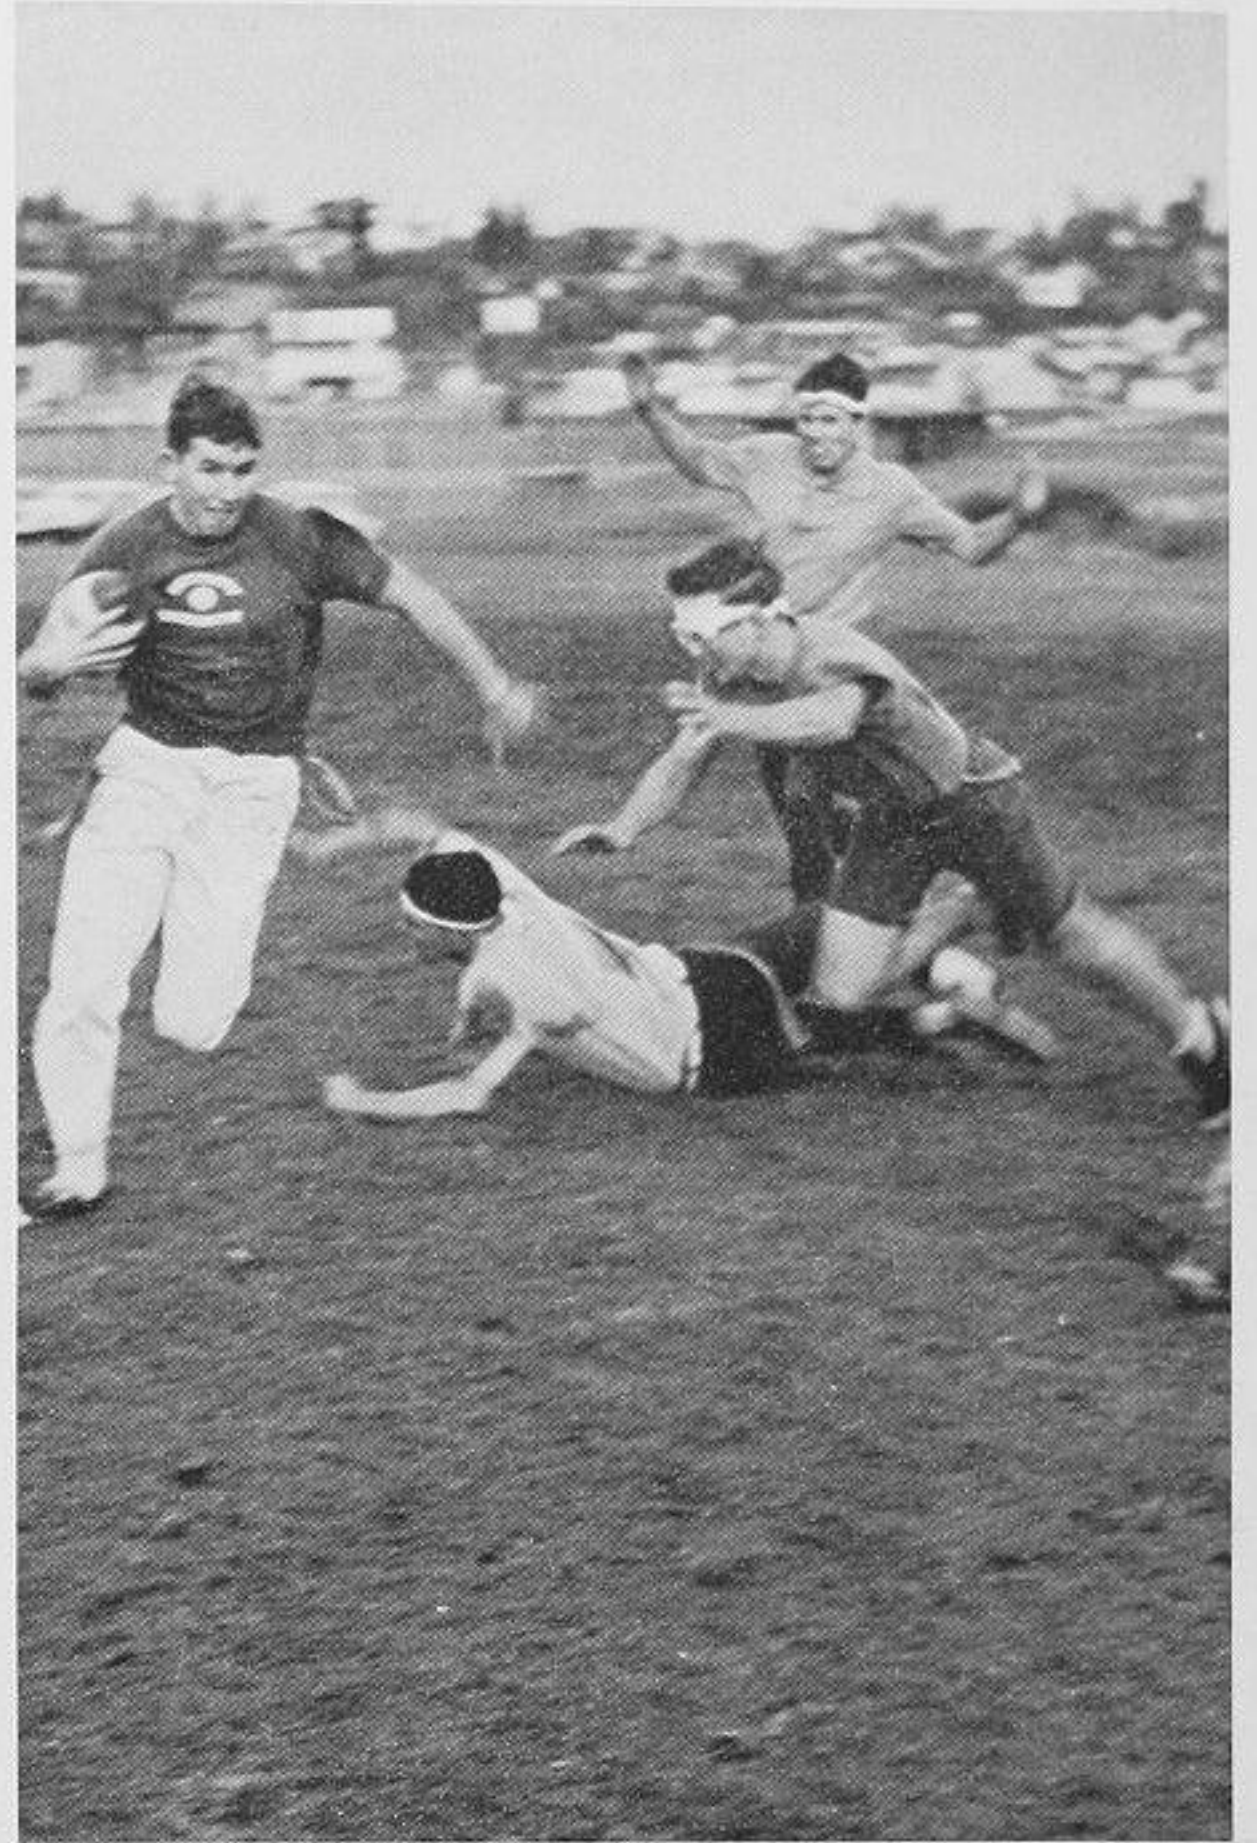

Not everyone at Washington is a varsity athlete. But the intramural program offers the great majority of men who are not varsity athletes a chance to compete in any of 31 different team or individual sports.

Each year about 3,000 University men participate in intramurals. Some are ex-high school stars, others have never played the sport before. It's not the crowds, the glory or a tuition-free ride through school that entices the participants, but the inherent fun found in each sport.

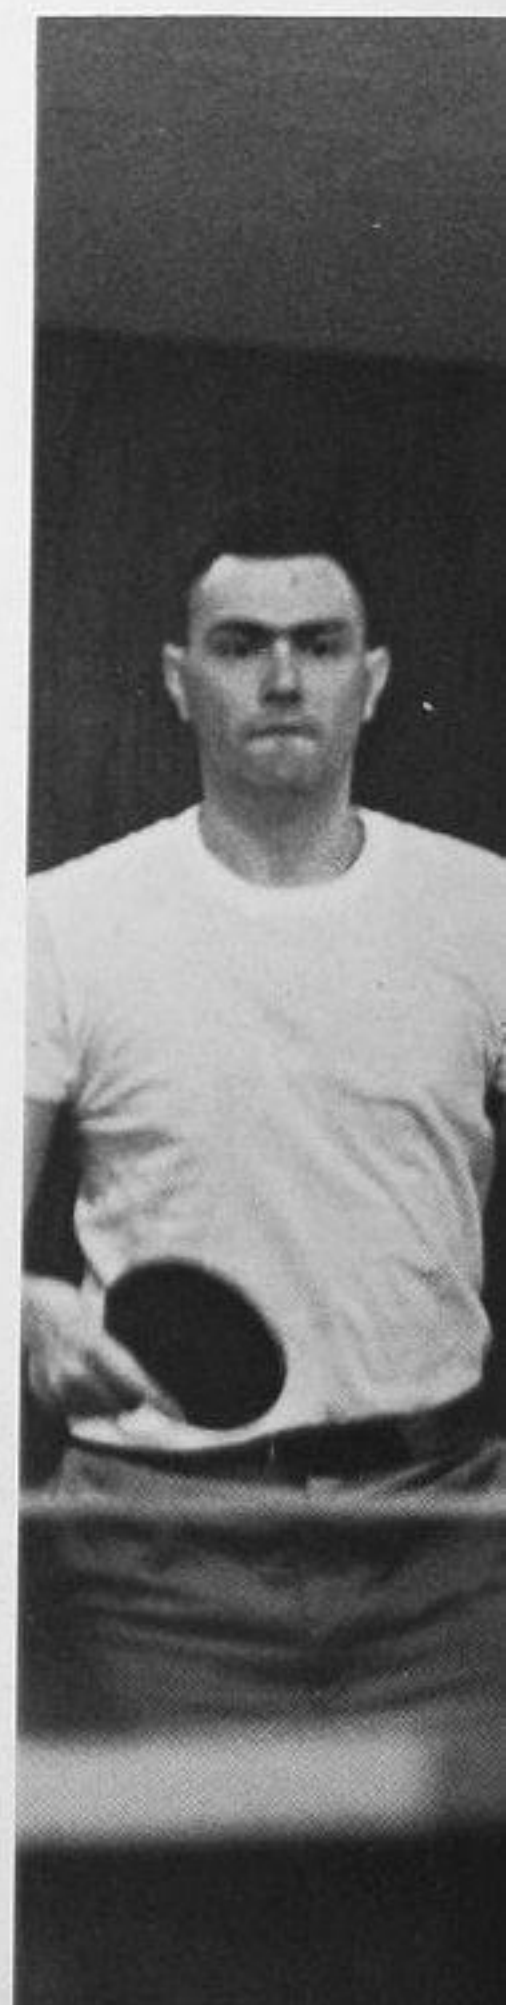

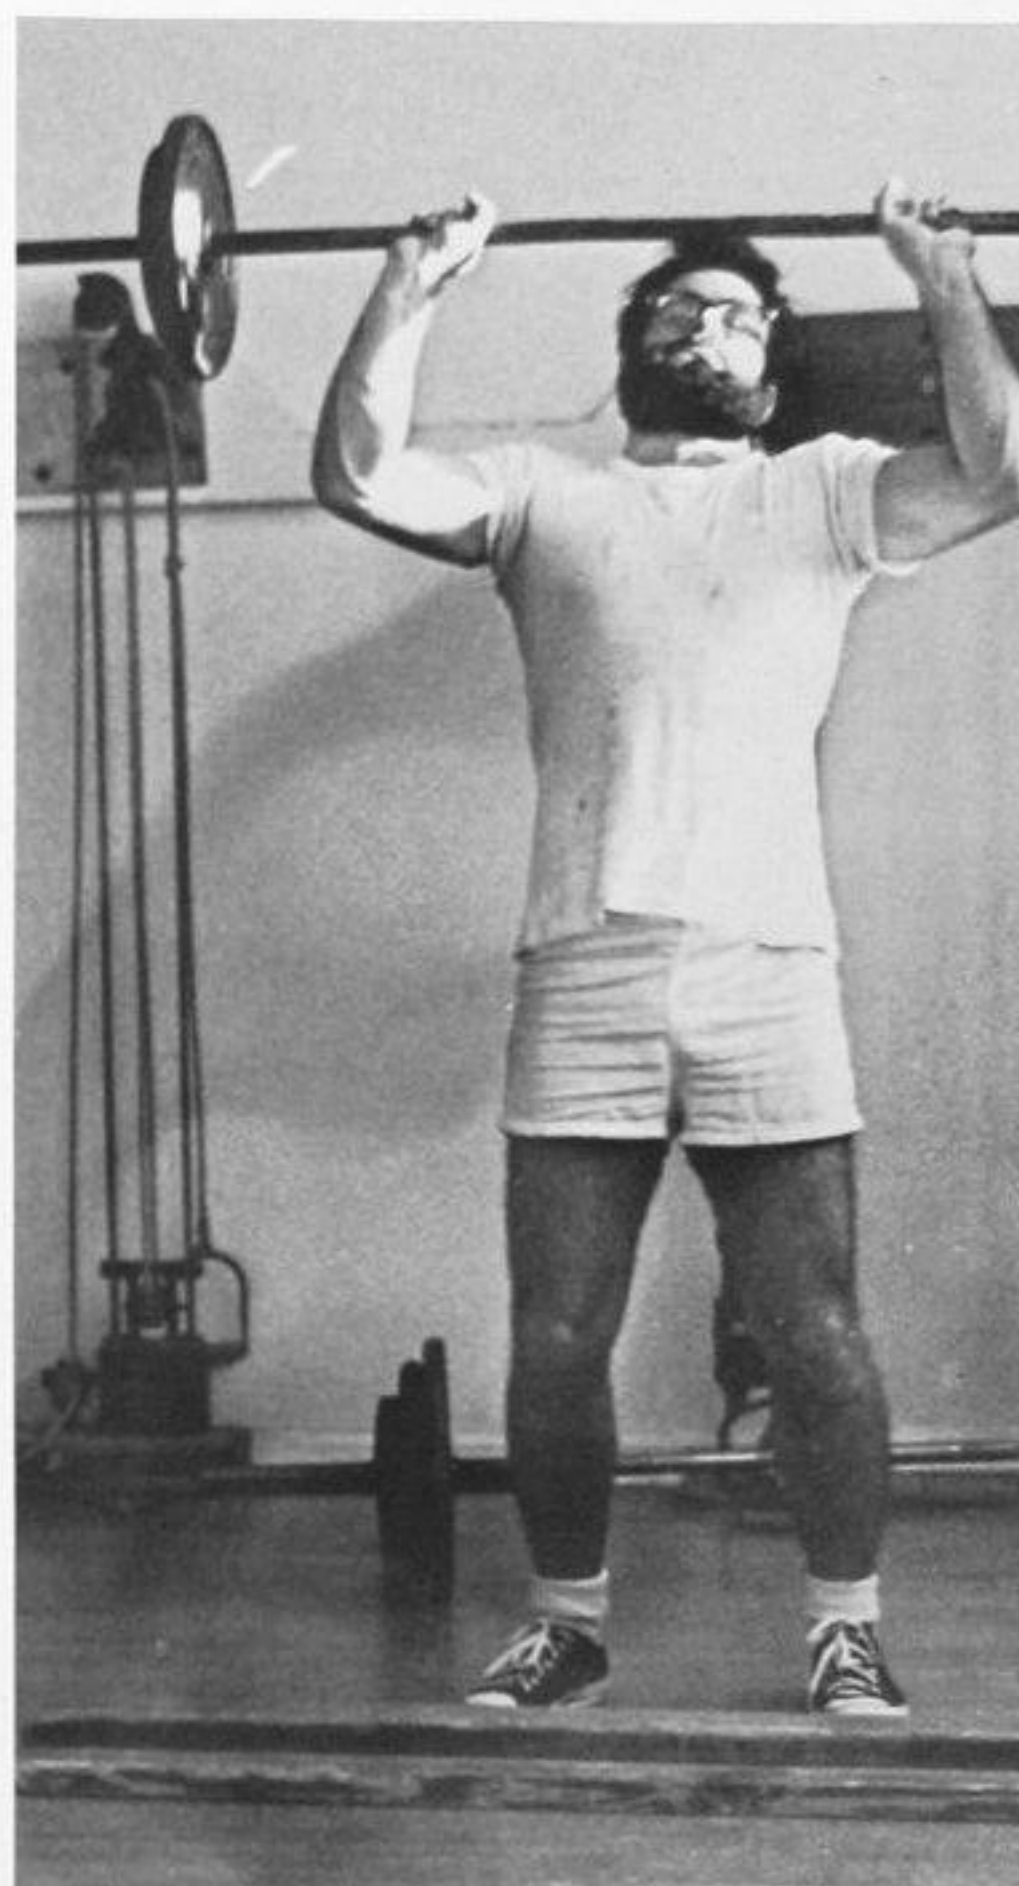

Although conditions in Edmundson Pavilion, the present home of intramurals, are generally good, the completion next fall of a new Intramural Building should give Washington one of the best intramural programs in the country.

Women's Rec Council: Don't Have To Wear T-Shirt To Excel

Conspicuously absent from the University scene are women who wear jock T-shirts or who play intramural basketball against fraternities. But this doesn't mean that women athletes have no place at Washington.

The Women's Recreational Council in Hutchinson Hall offers all women the chance to gain proficiency in many team and individual sports. Archery, basketball, bowling, fencing, gymnastics, and swimming are some of the sports in which women excel at Hutchinson.

Seattle Lakes Offer Good Sailing

Sailing is the only sport at Washington in which both men and women compete. And because the waters of Lake Washington and Lake Union offer excellent wind and water conditions for sailing, Washington's sailing teams usually have had fine records throughout the years. Washington's team competes against other Northwest schools such as University of British Columbia, Seattle University, and Western Washington State College.

Independent Men Plan Social, Athletic Programs In Adelphi

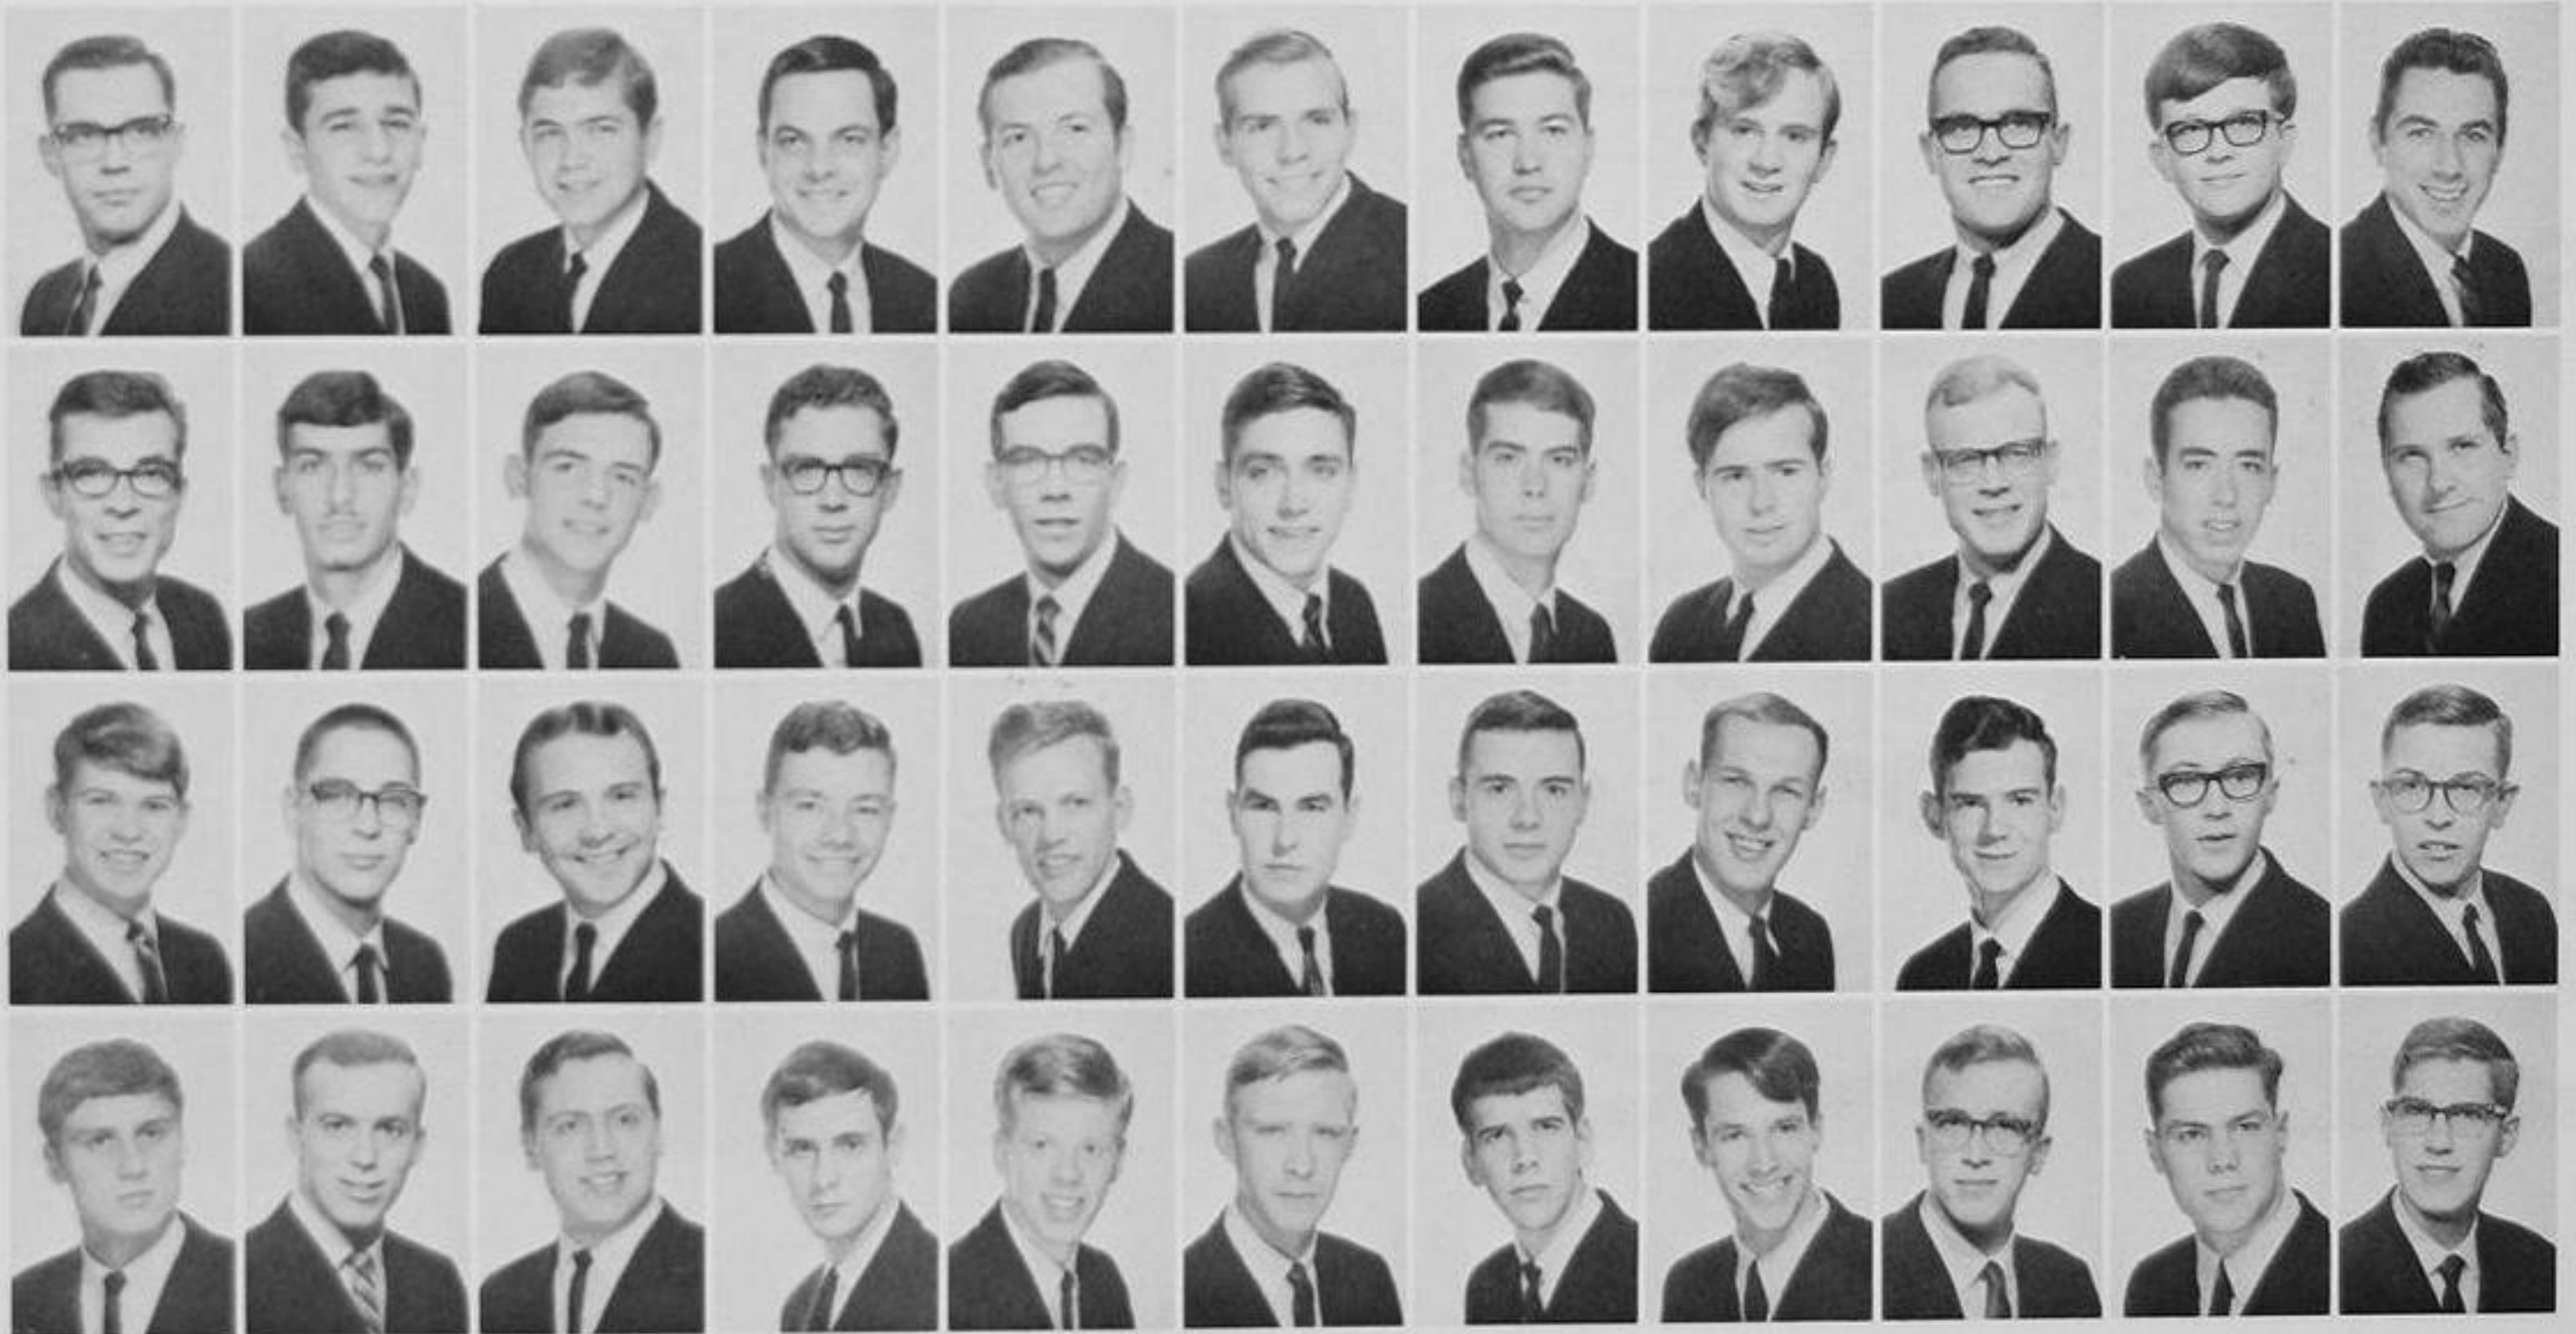

Adelphi is the independent men's organization on campus. It provides for the interested student a well-rounded social and athletic program. This year the social events included exchanges, parties, a pledge banquet, initiation banquet and ball, Roman Orgy, and spring cruise. Other activities included an Ugly Man, sponsoring a HUB dance, and donating service to the Seattle Children's Home. Athletic teams placed third in all-University football and volleyball and first in their leagues in baseball, basketball, and bowling.

Providing Adelphi leadership after fall quarter elections were Brad Morrison, Al Miller, President Ed Steele, Bill Jeude and Chuck Sanderson.

Alpha Delta Sigma, the men's national advertising fraternity, bridges the gap between advertising theory and practice. This year the Robert W. Jones Chapter of ADS had a full schedule. There were tours of Kraft, Smith and Ehrig Advertising and the Burnley School of Art and Design. Speakers included a national food advertising manager for a metropolitan newspaper, a media director, agency presidents and account executives, and the advertising manager for one of the West Coast's largest breweries.

But ADS isn't all business. There were functions: a stomp at the Bothell "hidden hideaway;" initiation at the Benjamin Franklin with a post function at the Firelite Room (complete with confiscated camera). ADS'ers also played host to more than 250 high school students from around the state at the UW's annual Communications Seminar.

But the real capper was the hosting of the Alpha Delta Sigma Regional Convention with delegates from universities throughout the West.

Alpha Epsilon Delta—Students In The Health Sciences

Active on campus since 1958, Beta Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta has endeavored to bring to pre-medical, pre-dental, and pre-medical technology students programs which will spark interest and provide information concerning careers in the health sciences. Besides its activity on campus, AED also sponsored a Health Careers Day for interested college students from all over the state. Membership is decided on the basis of a 3.01 GPA in 75 hours of pre-medical work in college.

Alpha Kappa Psi Has "Day On The Job" For B.A. Majors

Alpha Kappa Psi operates under the basic principle that a business student should have the opportunity to supplement his education through association—both socially and professionally—with present and future businessmen. Regular business and professional meetings with noted speakers from the northwest business world are the backbone of Alpha Kappa Psi's program.

One of the club's most interesting activities is "Day On The Job." The members spend a day or so on the job with various alumni or interested businessmen in the area of a student's particular interest. The club publishes the B.A. Newsletter quarterly, operates a continuing simulated computerized business game, and takes occasional business tours to major firms in the Seattle area.

Alpha Lambda Delta Honors Freshmen

Alpha Lambda Delta honors women who attain a 3.5 GPA during their freshman year. Since it is primarily an honorary, the main activities consist of tapping, pledging, and initiating new members.

This year the honorary encouraged members to participate in Neighborhood House, a tutoring program primarily serving students of minority groups of low income background. Prominent campus speakers are featured at initiation ceremonies. A spring tea honors women who have maintained a 3.5 GPA throughout their four years of college. A book award is also presented by Alpha Lambda Delta to the senior woman with the highest GPA.

Chemical Engineers Host Northwest Chapter Regional Meet

The campus chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers seeks to broaden the professional interests of the chemical engineering student by providing field trips to local industries, speakers from companies throughout the country, and films of current interest. The chapter maintains a lounge for undergraduate use.

The highlight of this year's activities came in May when the UW chapter hosted the three-day Northwest Regional Conference of student chapters. Chemical engineering students met, exchanged ideas, and presented technical papers.

Society Of ME

Promotes Interest, Professionalism

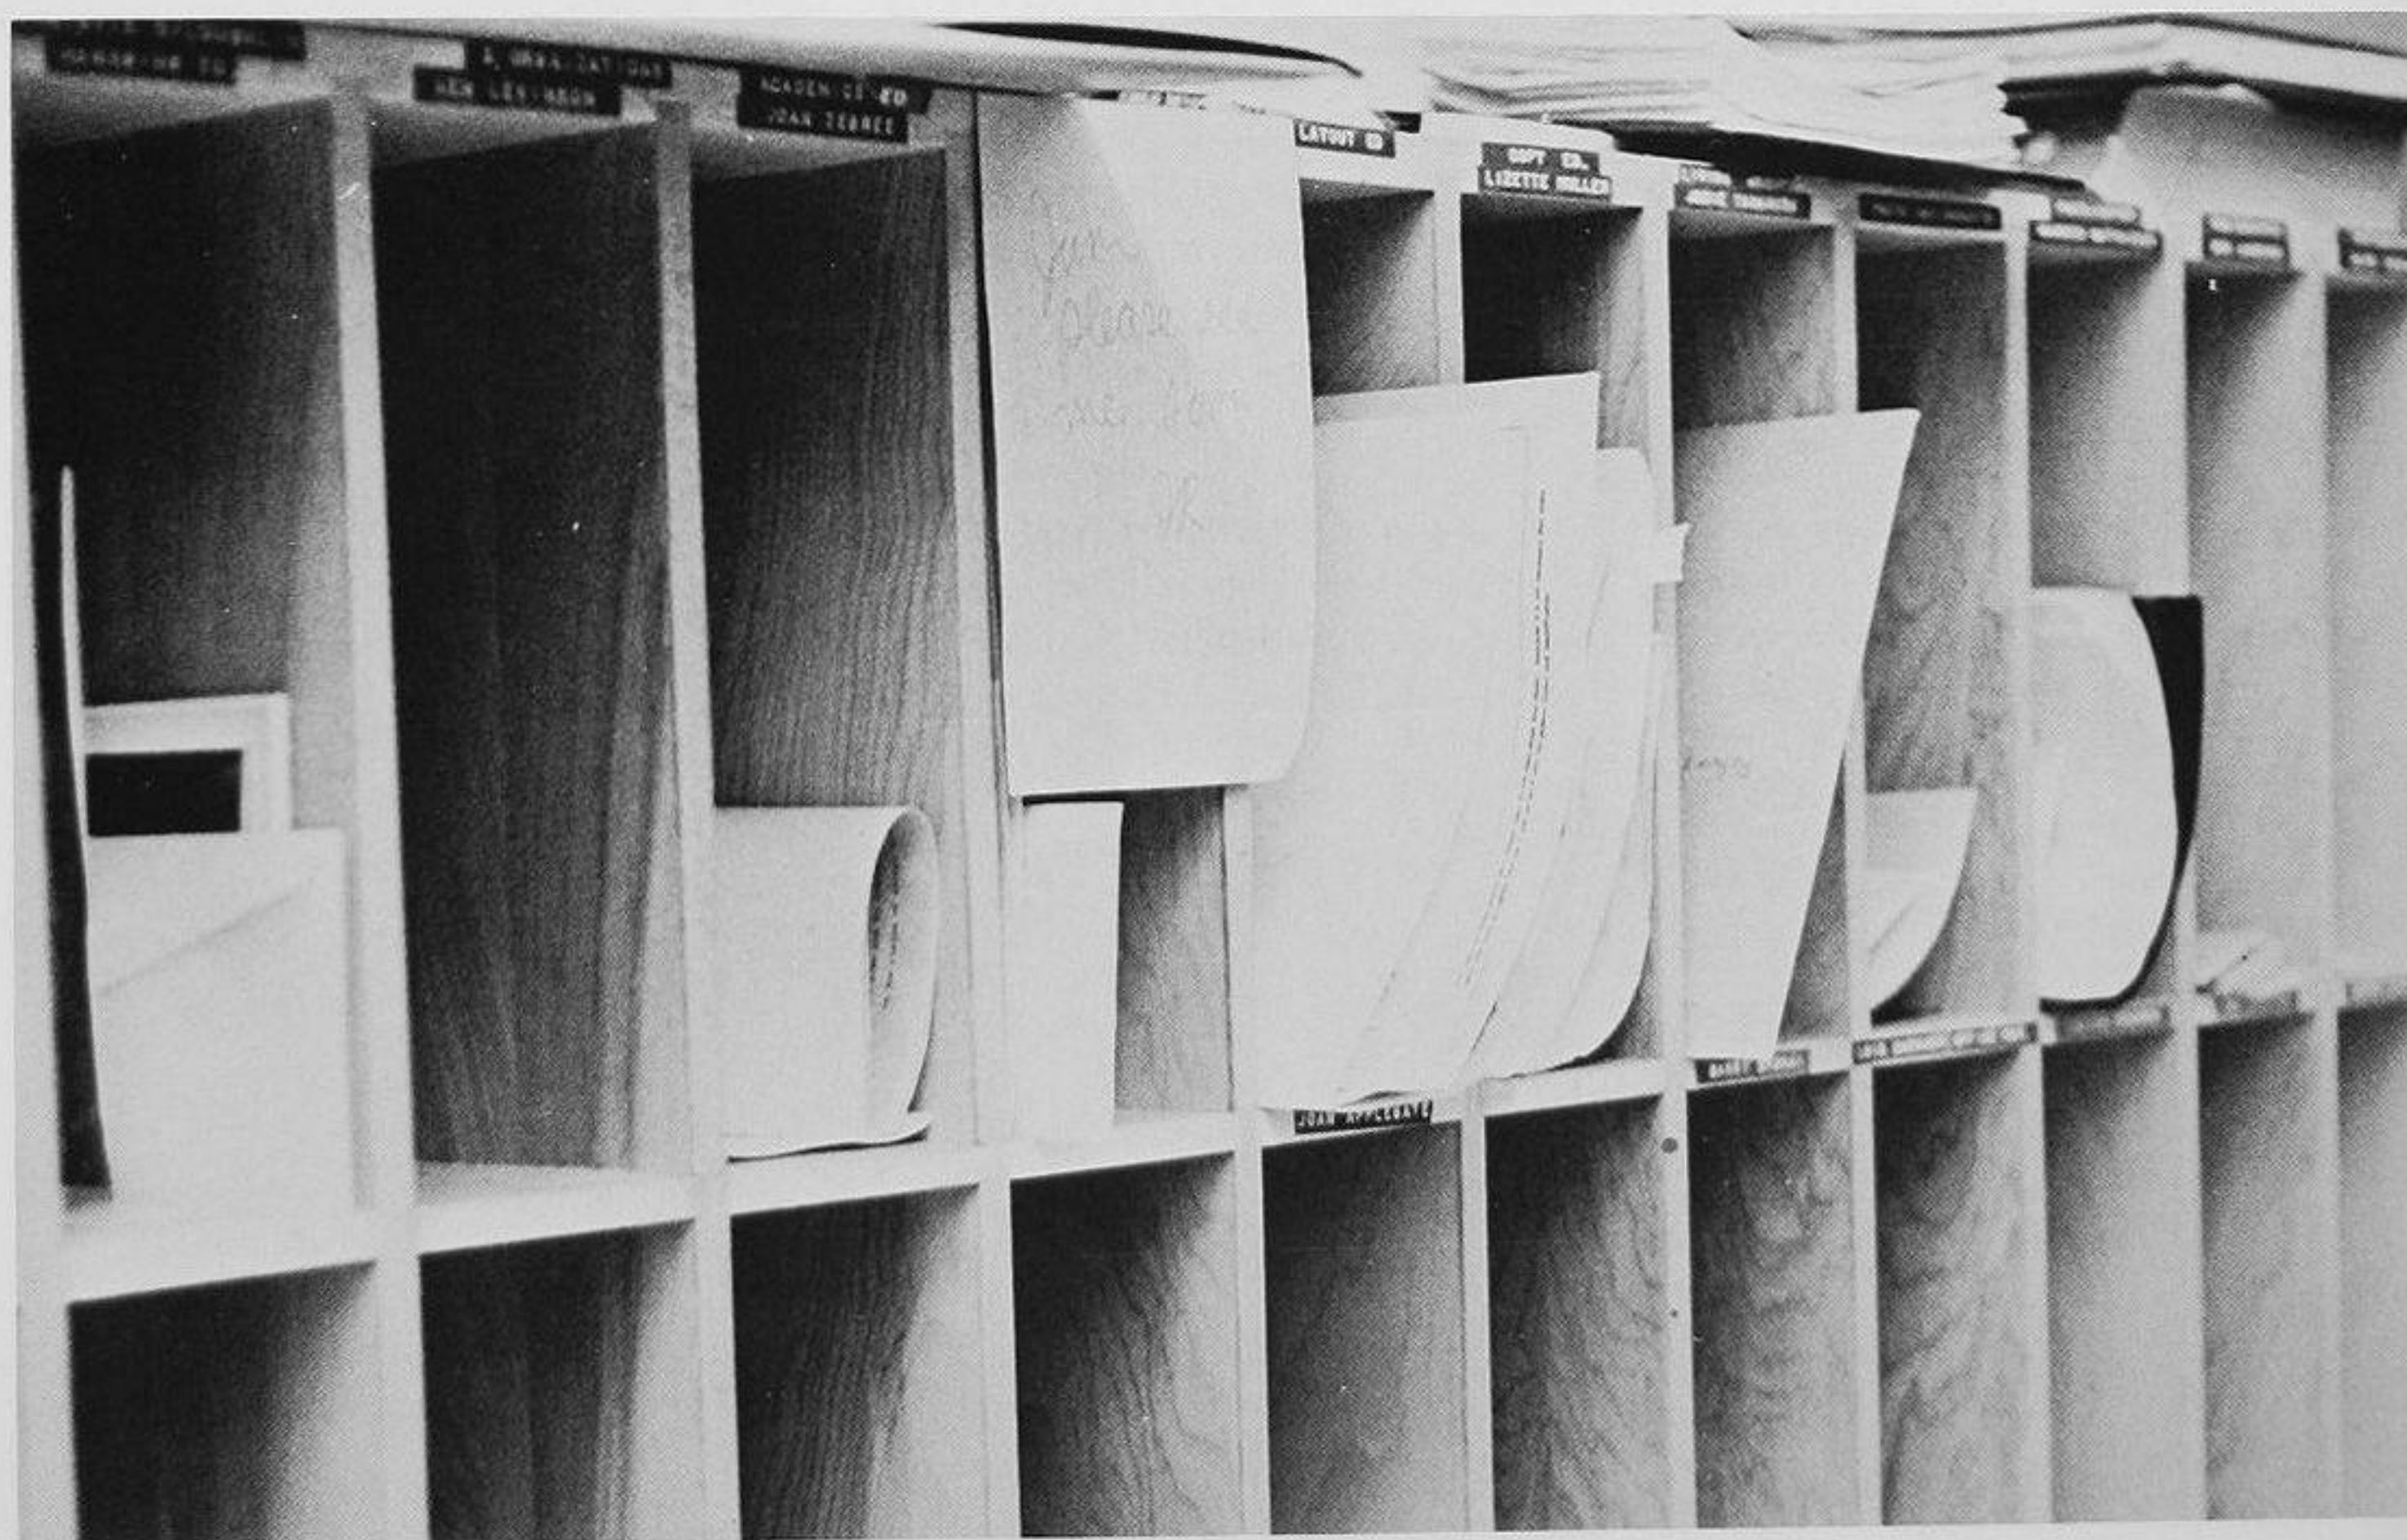

The Society of Mechanical Engineers promotes interest and professional attitudes within its membership of engineering students and establishes communication between the student and professional engineers.

Field trips, speakers, and related films are scheduled for the group throughout the school year.

The annual engineers picnic, the student paper night meeting with the downtown senior society, and the regional paper contest and section meeting, which was held at Oregon State University this year, are their principal functions.

Officers of the Society of Mechanical Engineers were Chuck Allen, Tom Clarke, Dale DePriest, George Van Bodegraven, and George Ringstad.

Angel Flight officers for 1966-67 were Judy Hill, Kathy Thompson, Jane Mutschler, Luann Billington, Sharon Whitaker and Karen Stokes.

Air Force ROTC 'Angel' Is Special Kind Of Person, Devoted To University And Community Service

An Angel is a special kind of person. The coeds in Angel Flight participate in activities for the promotion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps on campus and in the community.

These activities range from social activities, such as the Angel Flight Presentation Ball, to service activities, including the support of a Korean orphan.

Angels on this campus are a part of the only national organization of its kind. Rushees go through a graded selection process and are chosen by Angels and Cadets to become members.

Many hours are given by Angels to the March of Dimes, University hostessing, the Seattle Children's Home, and the Angel Flight breakfast.

Angels served as hostesses for Air Force cadets after the Air Force game this year.

Cadets entertain coeds at one of the "rush" functions at which Angel Flight members are chosen.

Goals Of Army ROTC: Preparing College Men To Be Army Officers, Developing Leadership Qualities

In preparing college men to be officers for the U.S. Army, the Army ROTC Cadet Brigade is a valuable educational tool which provides both classroom and practical experience. The command, administrative, and operational responsibilities of the Cadet Brigade are delegated entirely to cadets.

The Brigade is composed of four battalions of two companies each. Freshmen, low on the totem pole, usually are privates; sophomores, noncommissioned officers; juniors, company grade officers and seniors, field grade officers. The commanders and staff officers, besides running the Brigade, plan and execute activities of the ROTC extra curricular organizations (including Rifle Team, Drill Team and Color Guard, Rangers, Marauders, Society of American Military Engineers, Scabbard and Blade and the coed organization, Brigadears).

"O.K., now rub the two sticks together."

Junior ROTC cadets received first aid training during their six week summer camp at Fort Lewis after their junior year.

The Army ROTC drill team, commanded by Cadet Maj. Felix Vargas, participates in a competitive drill meet.

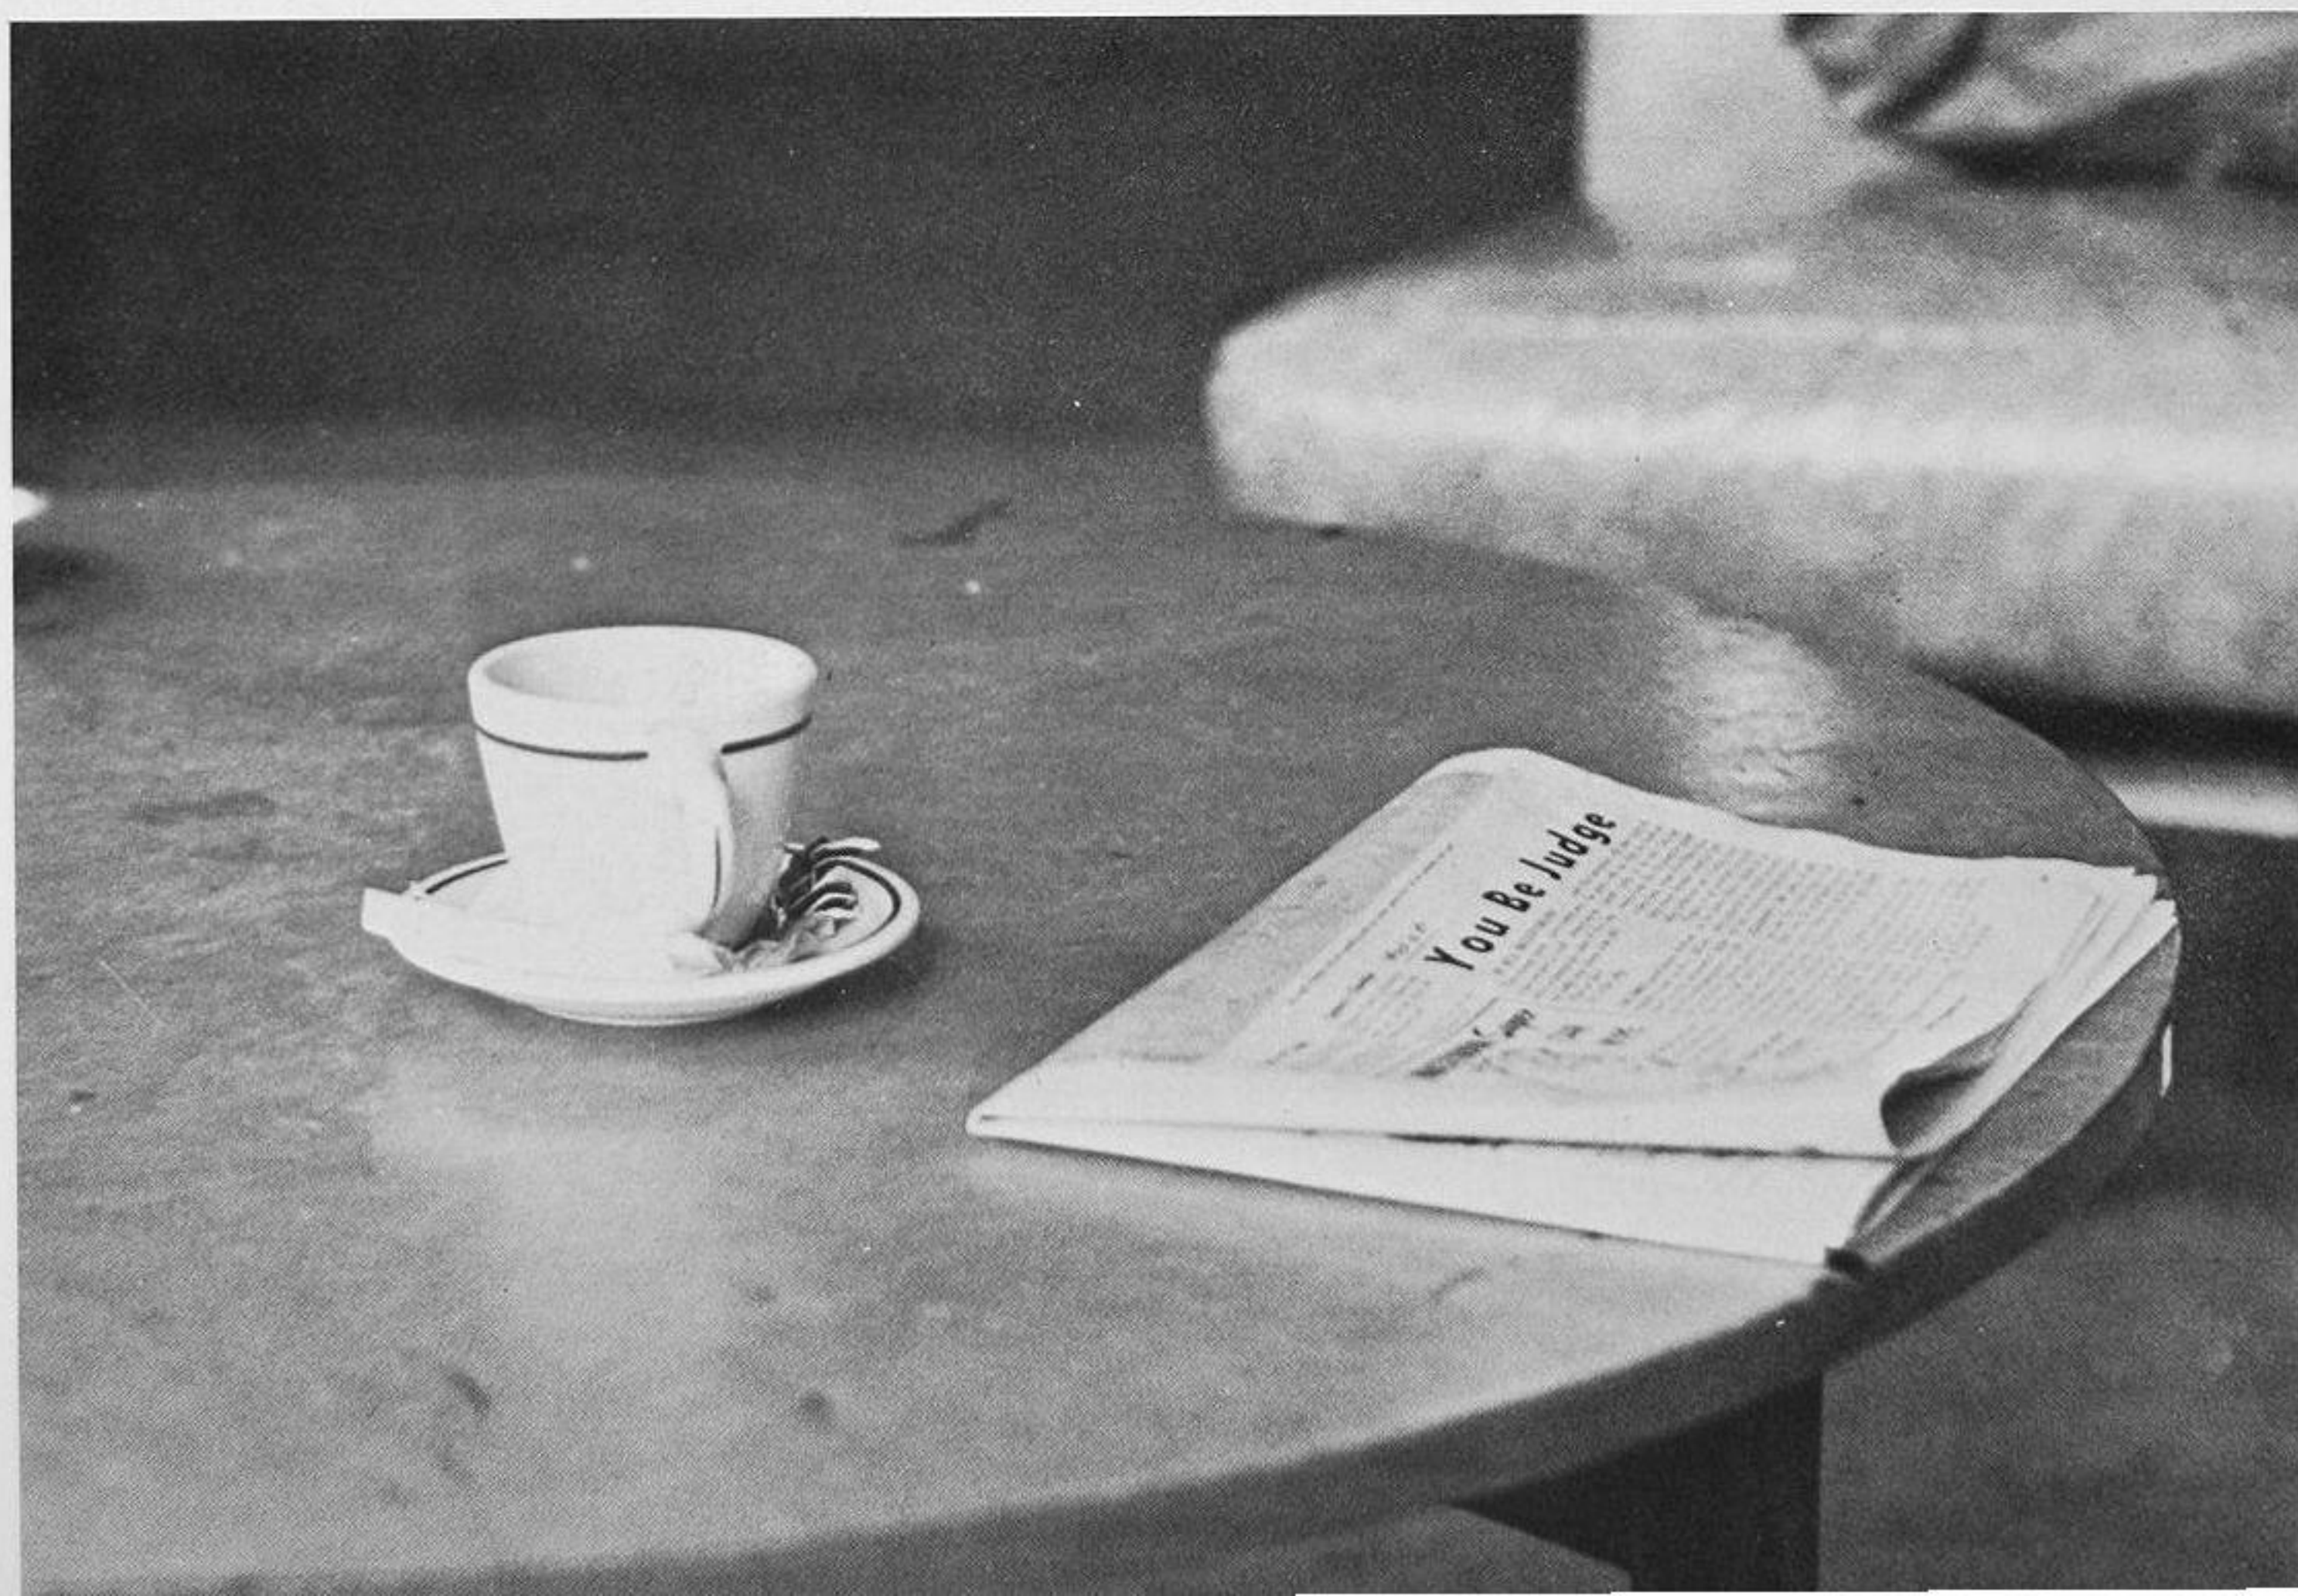

Beta Alpha Psi officers included Ken Gordner, Martin Lybecker, Professor Gerald Cleveland, adviser; Gale Case, Jim Suttell, and Brian Jones.

Beta Alpha Psi Accounting Fraternity Hears Profession Speakers Weekly

Beta Alpha Psi, the national accounting honorary, is among the oldest student organizations at the University. Delta Chapter was formed in 1921 by the late Professor William Cox.

Weekly meetings usually include dinner in the HUB with members of the public accounting firms, representatives of governmental agencies, and industrial firms and members of the faculty. The group also meets twice yearly with the Washington State Society of CPA's, once each year with the Financial Executives Institute, once with the National Association of Accountants and once with the Institute of Internal Auditors.

Among the group's other activities are tutoring for students in elementary accounting courses, income tax counseling for students, and social gatherings for the members. Membership is open to juniors with a 3.0 in 12 or more accounting hours.

Guiding Brigadears through their maneuvers this year were Jerene Rutherford, Claudia Records, Gail Perdue, Linda Eloranta, and Sheila Scott.

"You're in the army now." This is the case for a group of University coeds who call themselves the Brigadears.

they find that serving as hostesses at the Army ROTC functions on campus is much more fun—and the guys think so too.

But the coeds perform duties quite unlike their male counterparts. They don't attend rifle practice or try to figure out army maneuvers to surround the enemy. Instead,

This year the Brigadears planned a Christmas party for the brigade and promoted campus interest in the Army Cadet program.

Christian Science Organization: Place Of Quiet For Sermon Study

Active membership in the Christian Science Organization provides students of Christian Science with the opportunity to share their faith with interested members of the University community. Weekly testimonial meetings are held by the organization to share experiences in Christian Science healing and practice. The organization building provides facilities for quiet study of the weekly lesson sermon and maintains a library where Christian Science books and periodicals may be checked out.

At least once each year the organization sponsors a free public lecture by a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Massachusetts.

Compass and Chart is the social and fraternal organization for Navy ROTC Midshipmen. The group provides a change of pace from academics.

Midshipmen, in addition to university courses, study professional naval science subjects such as weapons, navigation, basic aerodynamics, and military justice.

Each summer Midshipmen supplement their classroom knowledge with practical experience such as training aboard ships of the fleet.

Midshipmen are commissioned Ensign.

Corvettes Launch Year With Splash In Frosh Pond

"Corvette overboard!" was the cry when their social chairman was ponded after the first Corvette-Midshipman exchange. But they pulled her out and she went on to plan the rest of the year's social events.

Being the NROTC women's auxiliary meant certain obligations had to be met—decorating for the Navy dances, eating spaghetti, attending Scabbard and Blade Drill Team competition and acting as the Battalion's official hostesses at Governor's Day.

Thirty Corvette pledges were initiated spring quarter to carry on the blue and gold tradition.

A ready smile and a nod of encouragement are essentials for the Corvette personality.

The life of a Corvette is multi-faceted. She rushes for new members in the fall and is crowned Battalion Queen in the spring. She learns Navy protocol in her spare time and goes on Midshipman-Corvette exchanges any time.

Cosmo Spreads World Cultures

Besides the myriad of American students at the University, there are enough foreign students to form a United Nations in miniature.

Cosmopolitan Club is the composite of the many organized ethnic clubs on campus. Each national or regional group is designed to share its culture with American students and to give them opportunities to learn about the food, politics, music, and dances of the foreign country.

Working cooperatively through Cosmopolitan Club, the groups sponsor such events as the snow party and the International Show, as well as Friday night social hours throughout the year. Besides the over 1,200 foreign students at the University, all American students are welcomed to membership.

Ethnic group presidents are instrumental in planning and organizing the International Show held winter quarter.

The Engineering Student's Council is composed of the president and a senior and junior representative from each of the student branches of the national professional societies and the presidents of Theta

Tau and Tau Beta Pi.

Designed to promote the educational welfare of the students in the College of Engineering, they sponsor the Engineering Open House and the refresher lecture series for the Engineers in Training exam. The programs aim to foster a better spirit among engineers and to aid in the development of the vocational, social and cultural life of the technology students.

Once again this year the Husky Swim Club was successful in promoting swimming and other related sports on campus, as well as in the Seattle area. The Swim Club helped officiate at swim meets, held swim parties and staged an aqua show for Parent's Day.

Synchronized swimming skills, combined with a taste of show biz and a host of new friendships—that's what Silver Fish offers its members.

Requiring discipline, hard work and the ability to work as a team, producing a show gives the members a chance to develop initiative, leadership and artistic skills. Members are selected fall and winter quarters—the only prerequisite is to be an excellent swimmer. A Fantasy Swim Show is presented on Parent's Weekend in conjunction with the Husky Swim Club.

This year Silver Fish organized a traveling troupe to give demonstrations and participate in regional competition.

How Many Sitzmarks Can The Nation's Largest Collegiate

And when those tow lines get too long, it's the relaxation and companionship that make skiing a truly great sport.

If everyone in the Husky Winter Sports Club made a sitzmark, how many sitzmarks would be made? Roughly, 2,000 holes would have to be filled in. The club is indisputably the largest collegiate ski club in the nation and boasts the largest ski school of its kind in the world.

The snowy season is welcomed in November by a top-flight ski movie and ski fashion show, followed by the annual ski swap in the HUB.

The most exciting aspect of the club is the ski school—900 strong. All forty of the club's instructors are members of PNSIA. Offered new this year were semi-private lessons.

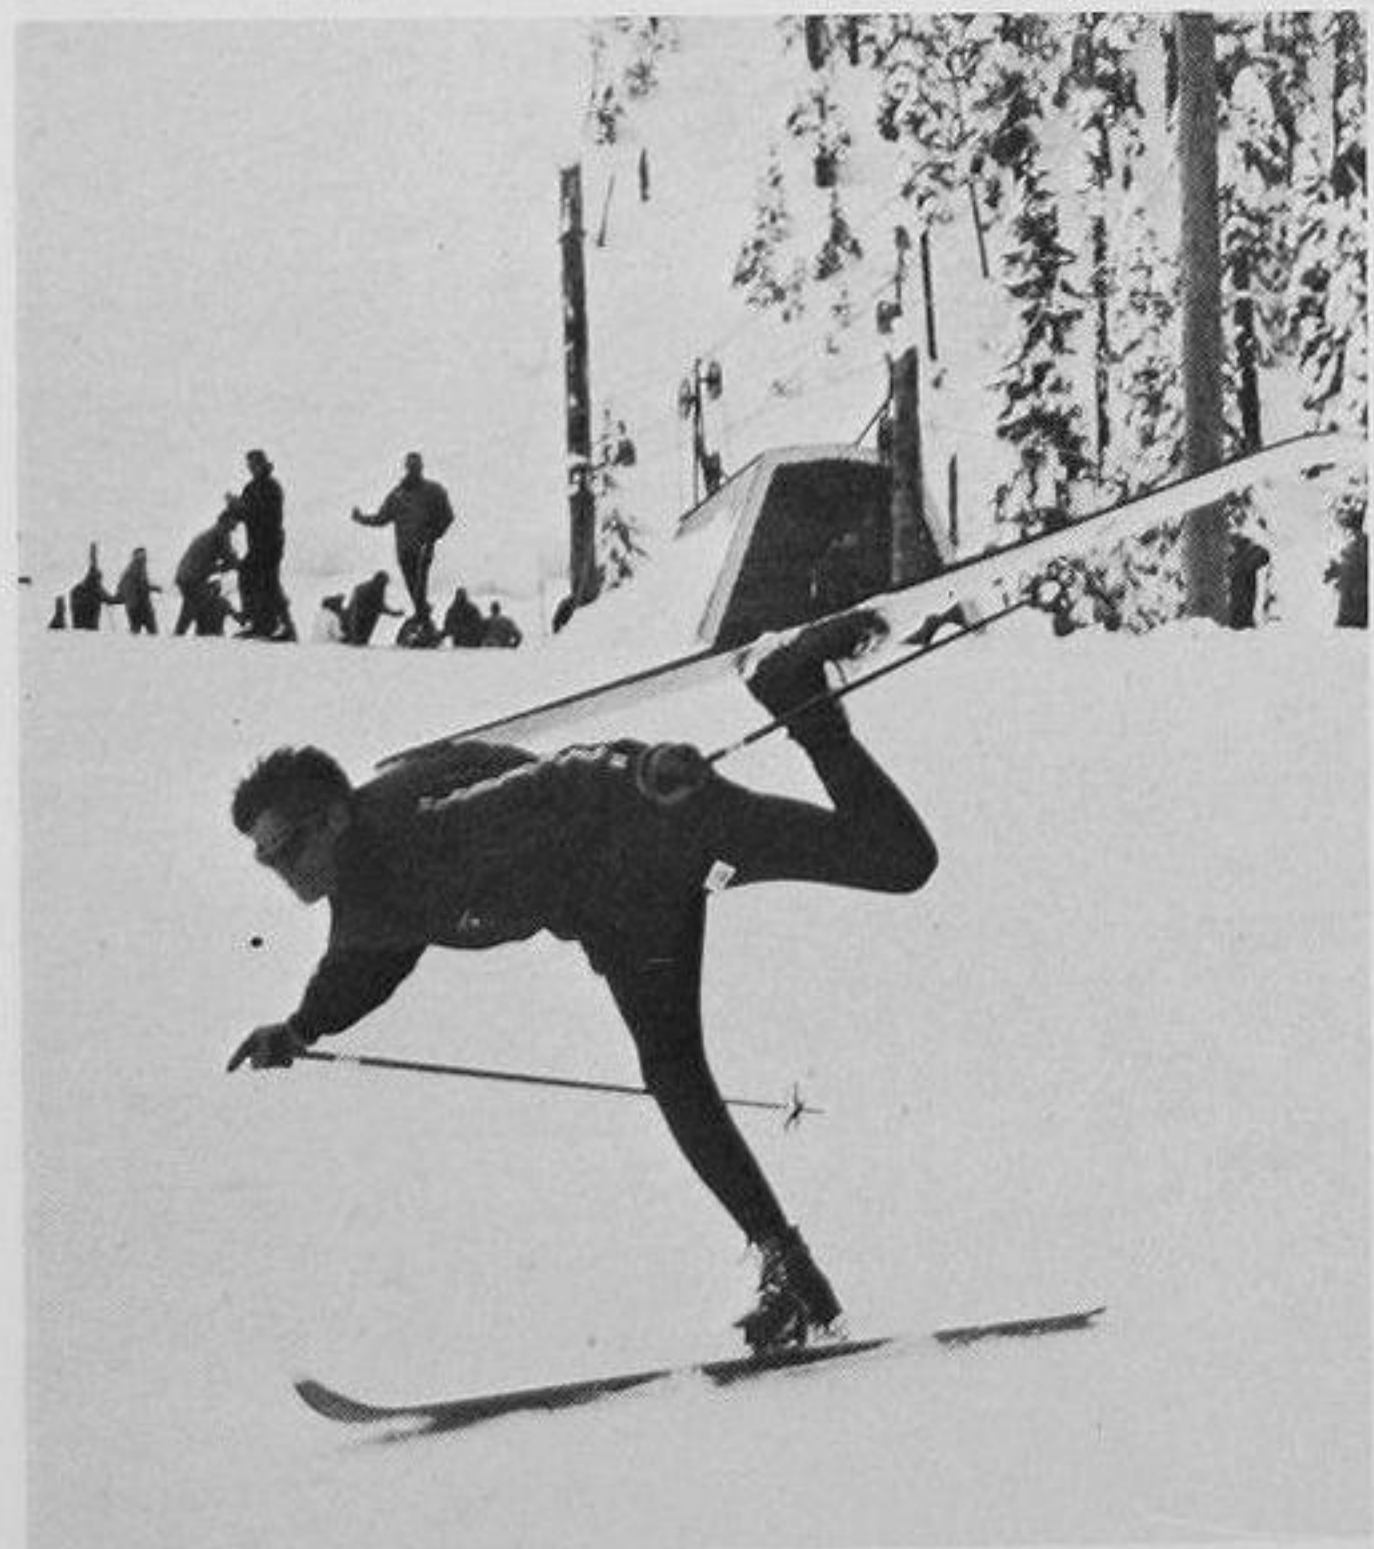

Besides the six weeks of lessons, the club sponsors the annual end-of-season Wine Wipe, the Winter Carnival coronation of Queen Kathy, and a year's end kegger.

Dental Hygienists Promote Profession, Visit High Schools

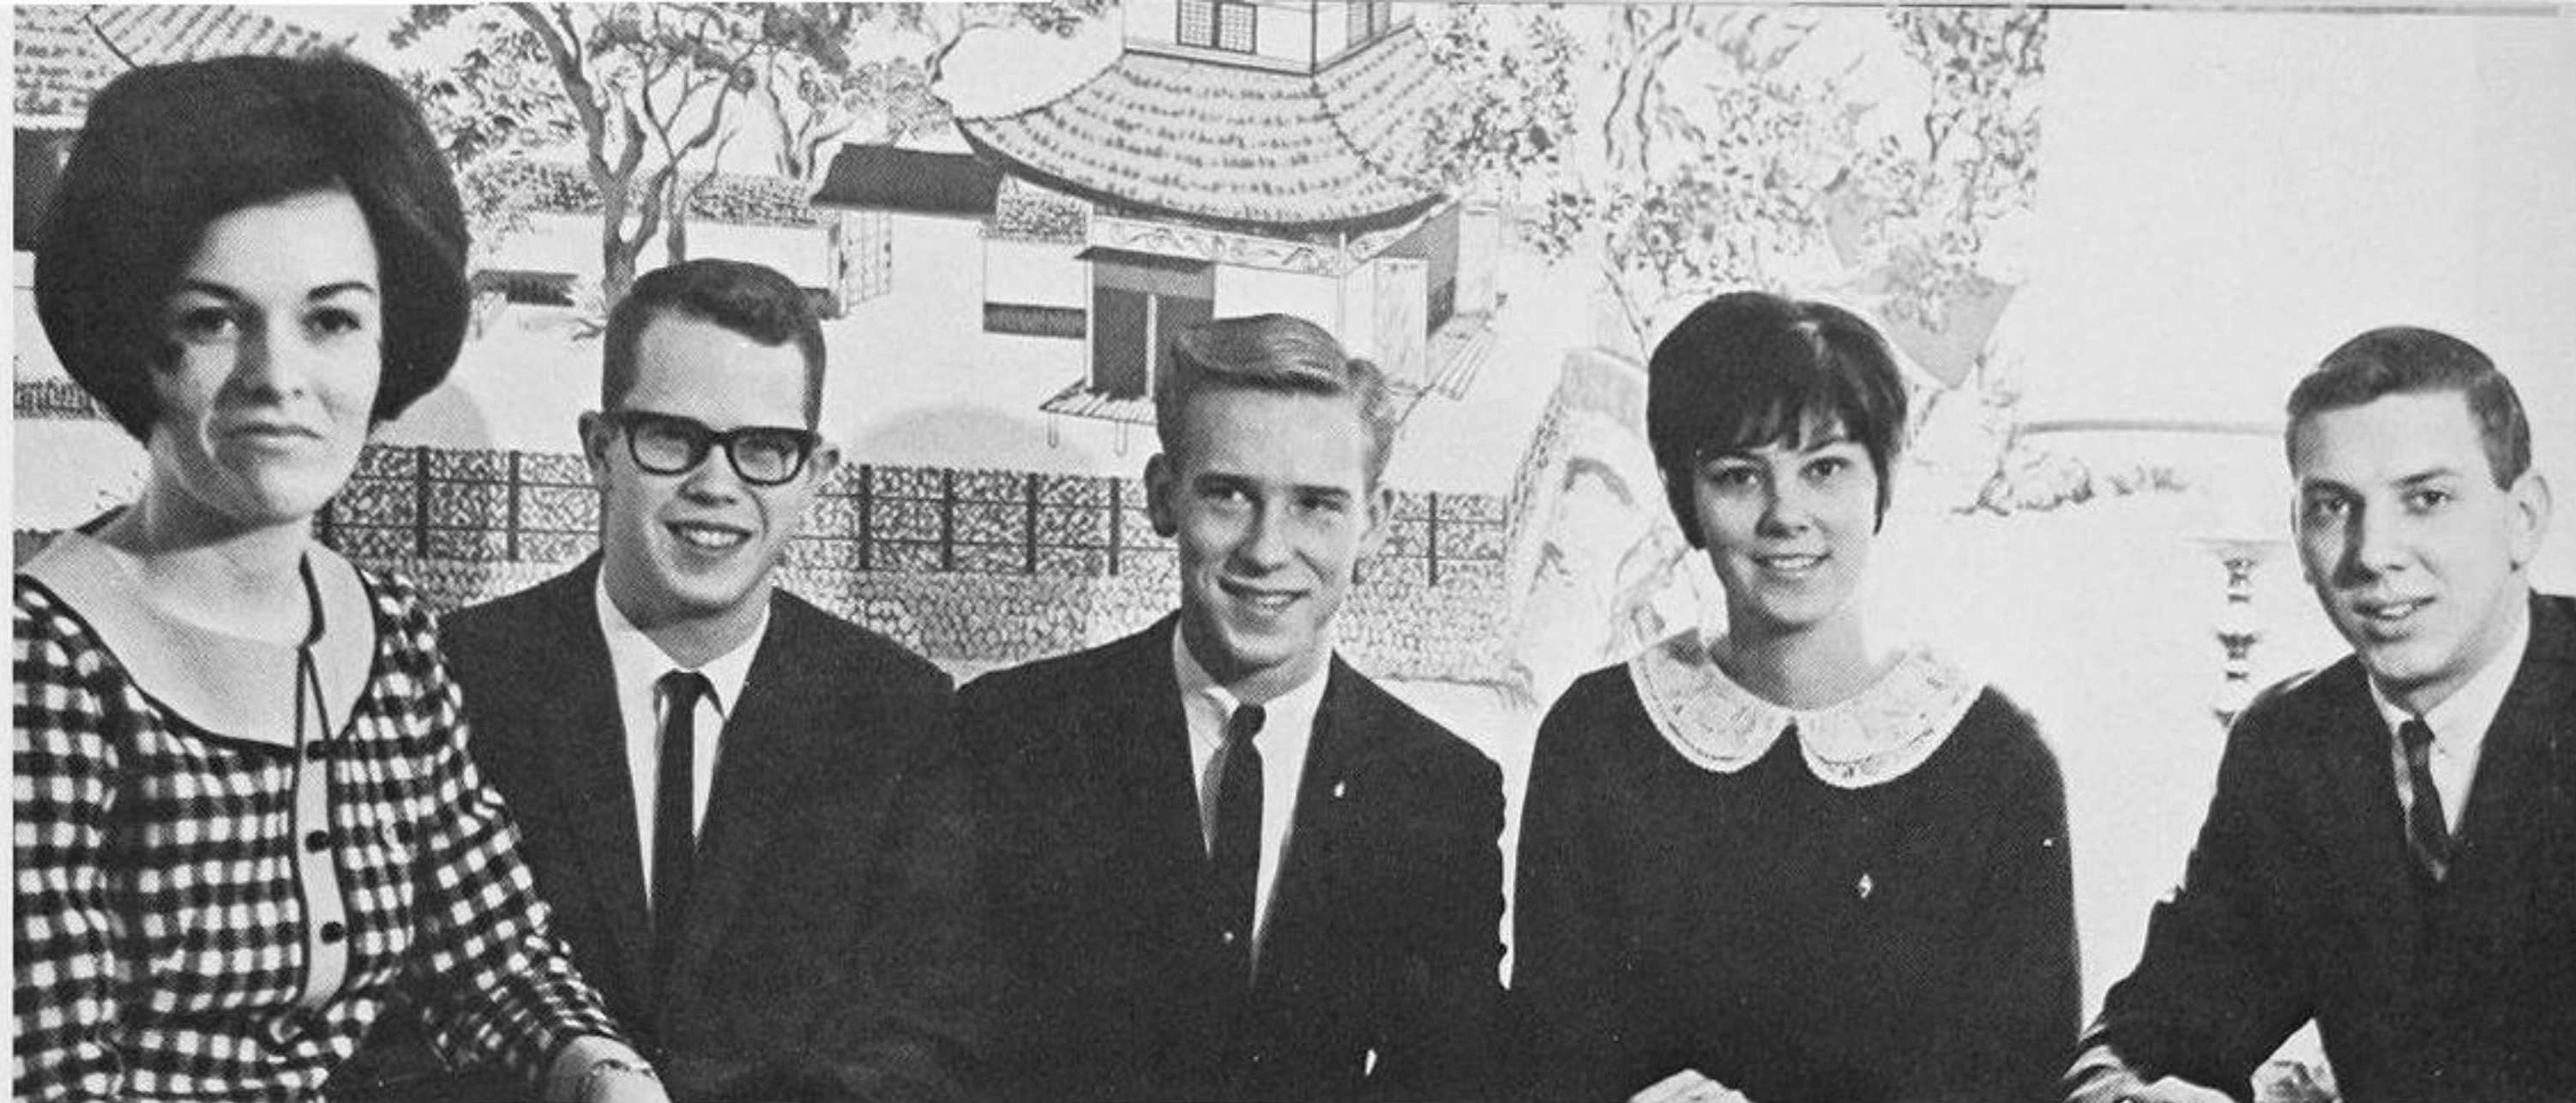

This campus organization includes the junior members of the American Dental Hygiene Association. In order to qualify for membership, the student must be enrolled in dental school in the department of dental hygiene at the University.

The purposes of the organization are to contribute to the health of the public; to cultivate, promote, and sustain the art and science of dental hygiene and to represent and safeguard the common interests of the members of the dental hygiene profession. To complement these purposes, the Hygiene Association visited high schools to promote interest in the field of dental hygiene.

Instructors and students enjoyed a dental hygiene tea winter quarter.

Chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership and service to the University and the community, 25 senior women are tapped annually into the national honorary, Mortar Board. Cap and gown tapping ceremonies in living groups are followed by the traditional spring initiation in the Sylvan Theatre.

The goal of Tolo Chapter of Mortar Board is service to the University of Washington. This year the honorary worked with the UW alumni organization as a student sounding board by installing a high school information program where women from Mortar Board met with high school honor societies.

The Occupational Therapy Club is primarily an interest group for all students working toward their bachelor of science degree in Occupational Therapy in the School of Medicine.

The club enables members to meet on an informal level with their professors and others in the field.

The main purpose of the club is to acquaint the public with this relatively new profession. The occupational therapist is part of the medical team devoted to the evaluation and treatment of the physically, emotionally, and mentally handicapped. Various arts and crafts as well as other functional activities are employed to improve the patient and to help him develop daily living skills and become more independent. Work in the field is concentrated in three basic areas: pediatrics, psychiatry, and physical disabilities.

Wrapping jam and jelly for their annual (you guessed it) jam and jelly sale are Omicron Nu members Edith Kilgren, Pat Wilson, and Tina Kawaguchi, standing; and Judy Baxter, Bonnie Worthington, Virginia Petry, Lydia Siemens, Peggy Brown, and Leann Peterson.

Omicron Nu is the organization which promotes leadership, scholarship, and research in the field of home economics. The members—juniors, seniors, and graduate students—are selected for their superior scholarship. The major project of the group is an annual jam and jelly sale, proceeds of which enable a representative to be sent to the national Omicron Nu conclave. This sale follows an initiation of new members. In the spring a tea is held to honor all the girls in Home Economics with a GPA of 3.00 or above.

Oval Club Taps Junior, Senior Outstanding Men

Oval Club taps about 25 junior and senior men during winter and spring quarters in recognition of their outstanding contributions to the U.W. in athletics or campus activities and in academic excellence. The club strengthens a greater Washington spirit of service and loyalty. Its major activities are the dinner with the Mortar Board and the banquet following the winter and spring initiation ceremonies.

Dr. Odegaard chats with Judy Winn, Mortar Board president, and John John, Oval Club president, about current University problems and issues.

Kappa Psi Creates High Ideals For 'Drug Activities'

The Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity fosters high ideals and high scholarship and promotes pharmaceutical research. Its members are selected by invitation for academic achievement. Activities for the group fall into three categories; professional, with the graduate chapter; social, with dances and initiation banquets and inter-organizational, with Alpha and Lambda Kappa Sigma.

APHA Concern: Student Today, Trained Pharmacist Tomorrow

"Pharmacy student today . . . professional practitioner tomorrow." This is the major concern of the American Pharmaceutical Association, which recognizes that the pharmacy student of today is preparing for a lifetime career.

The activities of APHA, the national professional society of pharmacy, include producing the Pharmacell, the annual student APHA publication of the College of Pharmacy, and the PRN, the bi-quarterly student APHA newsletter. The APHA sponsors professional programs and guest speakers and takes an active role in College of Pharmacy programs, such as Pharmacy Open House and Pharmacy Day.

Rho Chi leadership was provided by William Hayton, Ronalee Smith, and Brent Olson.

Rho Chi Stresses High Scholarship

The fundamental objective of Rho Chi is to promote the pharmaceutical sciences through encouragement and recognition of sound scholarship. High standards of intellectual and scholarly attainment have been demanded for election to membership, and such election, symbolized by the award of the Rho Chi key, supplies a unique scholarship incentive. Members of Rho Chi seek to promote scholarly fellowship in pharmacy.

Members must have completed 60 per cent of their graduation requirements with a 3.0 GPA.

Four Pharmacy Associations Promote High Professional Standards, Stimulate Scholarship, Fellowship, Appreciation

Coeds Form Lambda Kappa Sigma

The purpose of Lambda Kappa Sigma is to instill in the woman pharmacist an appreciation of her chosen profession—helping her in every way to understand the fine qualities of pharmacy, while at the same time seeking ways to correct its shortcomings. The sorority seeks to promote lasting, helpful friendships among its members.

Lambda Kappa Sigma holds parties during Rush Week, performs services regularly for the College of Pharmacy and the community. In order to become a member of Lambda Kappa Sigma, a woman must be a second year student in the College of Pharmacy, maintain the grade requirements of the College and possess a healthy attitude toward the profession.

Founded in 1776, Phi Beta Kappa is the oldest honorary society in the United States. Its purpose is to promote and recognize excellence in liberal scholarship. Each year the Washington Alpha Chapter invites to membership those seniors whose grade point is above 3.5 and whose education is judged to be liberal in character, regardless of their major. Junior honors recognize those students who have earned a 3.7 at the end of their junior year.

Members of Phi Beta Kappa in the Puget Sound area have formed an association which works to encourage liberal intellectual achievement by granting Book Awards to outstanding high school students and by presenting an annual Outstanding Teacher Award.

The association joins Washington Alpha in awarding annual scholarships, equivalent to full resident tuition, to an outstanding senior and freshman each year. Phi Beta Kappa also brings distinguished scholars to the campus for lecture series.

wald, Allan Israel.

Bottom Row: John Kirkpatrick, Richard Kirkpatrick, Gary Martin, John Parshall,

The University of Washington Chapter of Phi Eta Sigma is a dynamic organization devoted to recognition of academic excellence on campus. Rigid entrance requirements limit membership to male scholars receiving a 3.5 GPA or better for either their first quarter or first full year of college. In the tradition of the national Phi Eta Sigma Fraternity, the campus chapter holds periodic social and intellectual functions, attempting to bring scholars from the various departments together for an intellectual exchange.

Gathered for a short "singspiel" are William Cole, John Goldsmith, Larry Brownell, David Beard, Terry Bakken, Donald Manildi, Ray Blank, and David Harris, back row; and Chuck Lund, Walt Timpe, Chris Schindler, Dale Colbert, Miles Woodworth, Randy Dary, Dan Dunbar, Lew Gray, and Brian Conrad.

Advancement of music, mutual welfare and brotherhood among music students and loyalty to the Alma Mater are the purposes of Phi Mu Alpha, professional music honorary.

To further these ideals Phi Mu Alpha held a concert each quarter, with a traditional all-American composers concert in the spring. These concerts gave the members a chance to express themselves instrumentally and vocally as well as to give the composers in the group an opportunity to be recognized.

They also served as ushers at the Friends of Music Series and at the Faculty-Scholarship Concerts.

Majors and non-majors alike shared their interest in music, the organization being open to those with a 2.5 GPA and a 3.0 in music courses.

Phrateres: Famous For Friendship

Phrateres is an international social and service organization which aims to uphold the standards and ideals of the University, to develop a friendly spirit among the women of the campus and to fulfill its motto "Famous for Friendship."

Throughout the year Phrateres sponsored many social activities including the pledge dance, initiation banquet and ball, spring dance, house party, and the mother-daughter tea. Sub-chapters helped to keep the social calendar filled by having their own parties.

Phrateres women sponsored at least one community project each quarter. In the past these have included Thanksgiving food baskets, drives for clothing and books for Korean orphans, and caroling at hospitals at Christmas.

This year Phrateres at Washington were hostesses to sister chapters for the 1967 International Convention held this June.

Phrateres is open to all women students choosing membership in any one of its six sub-chapters provided that they pass a pledge test and earn activity points and a cumulative grade-point average of 2.00 before initiation.

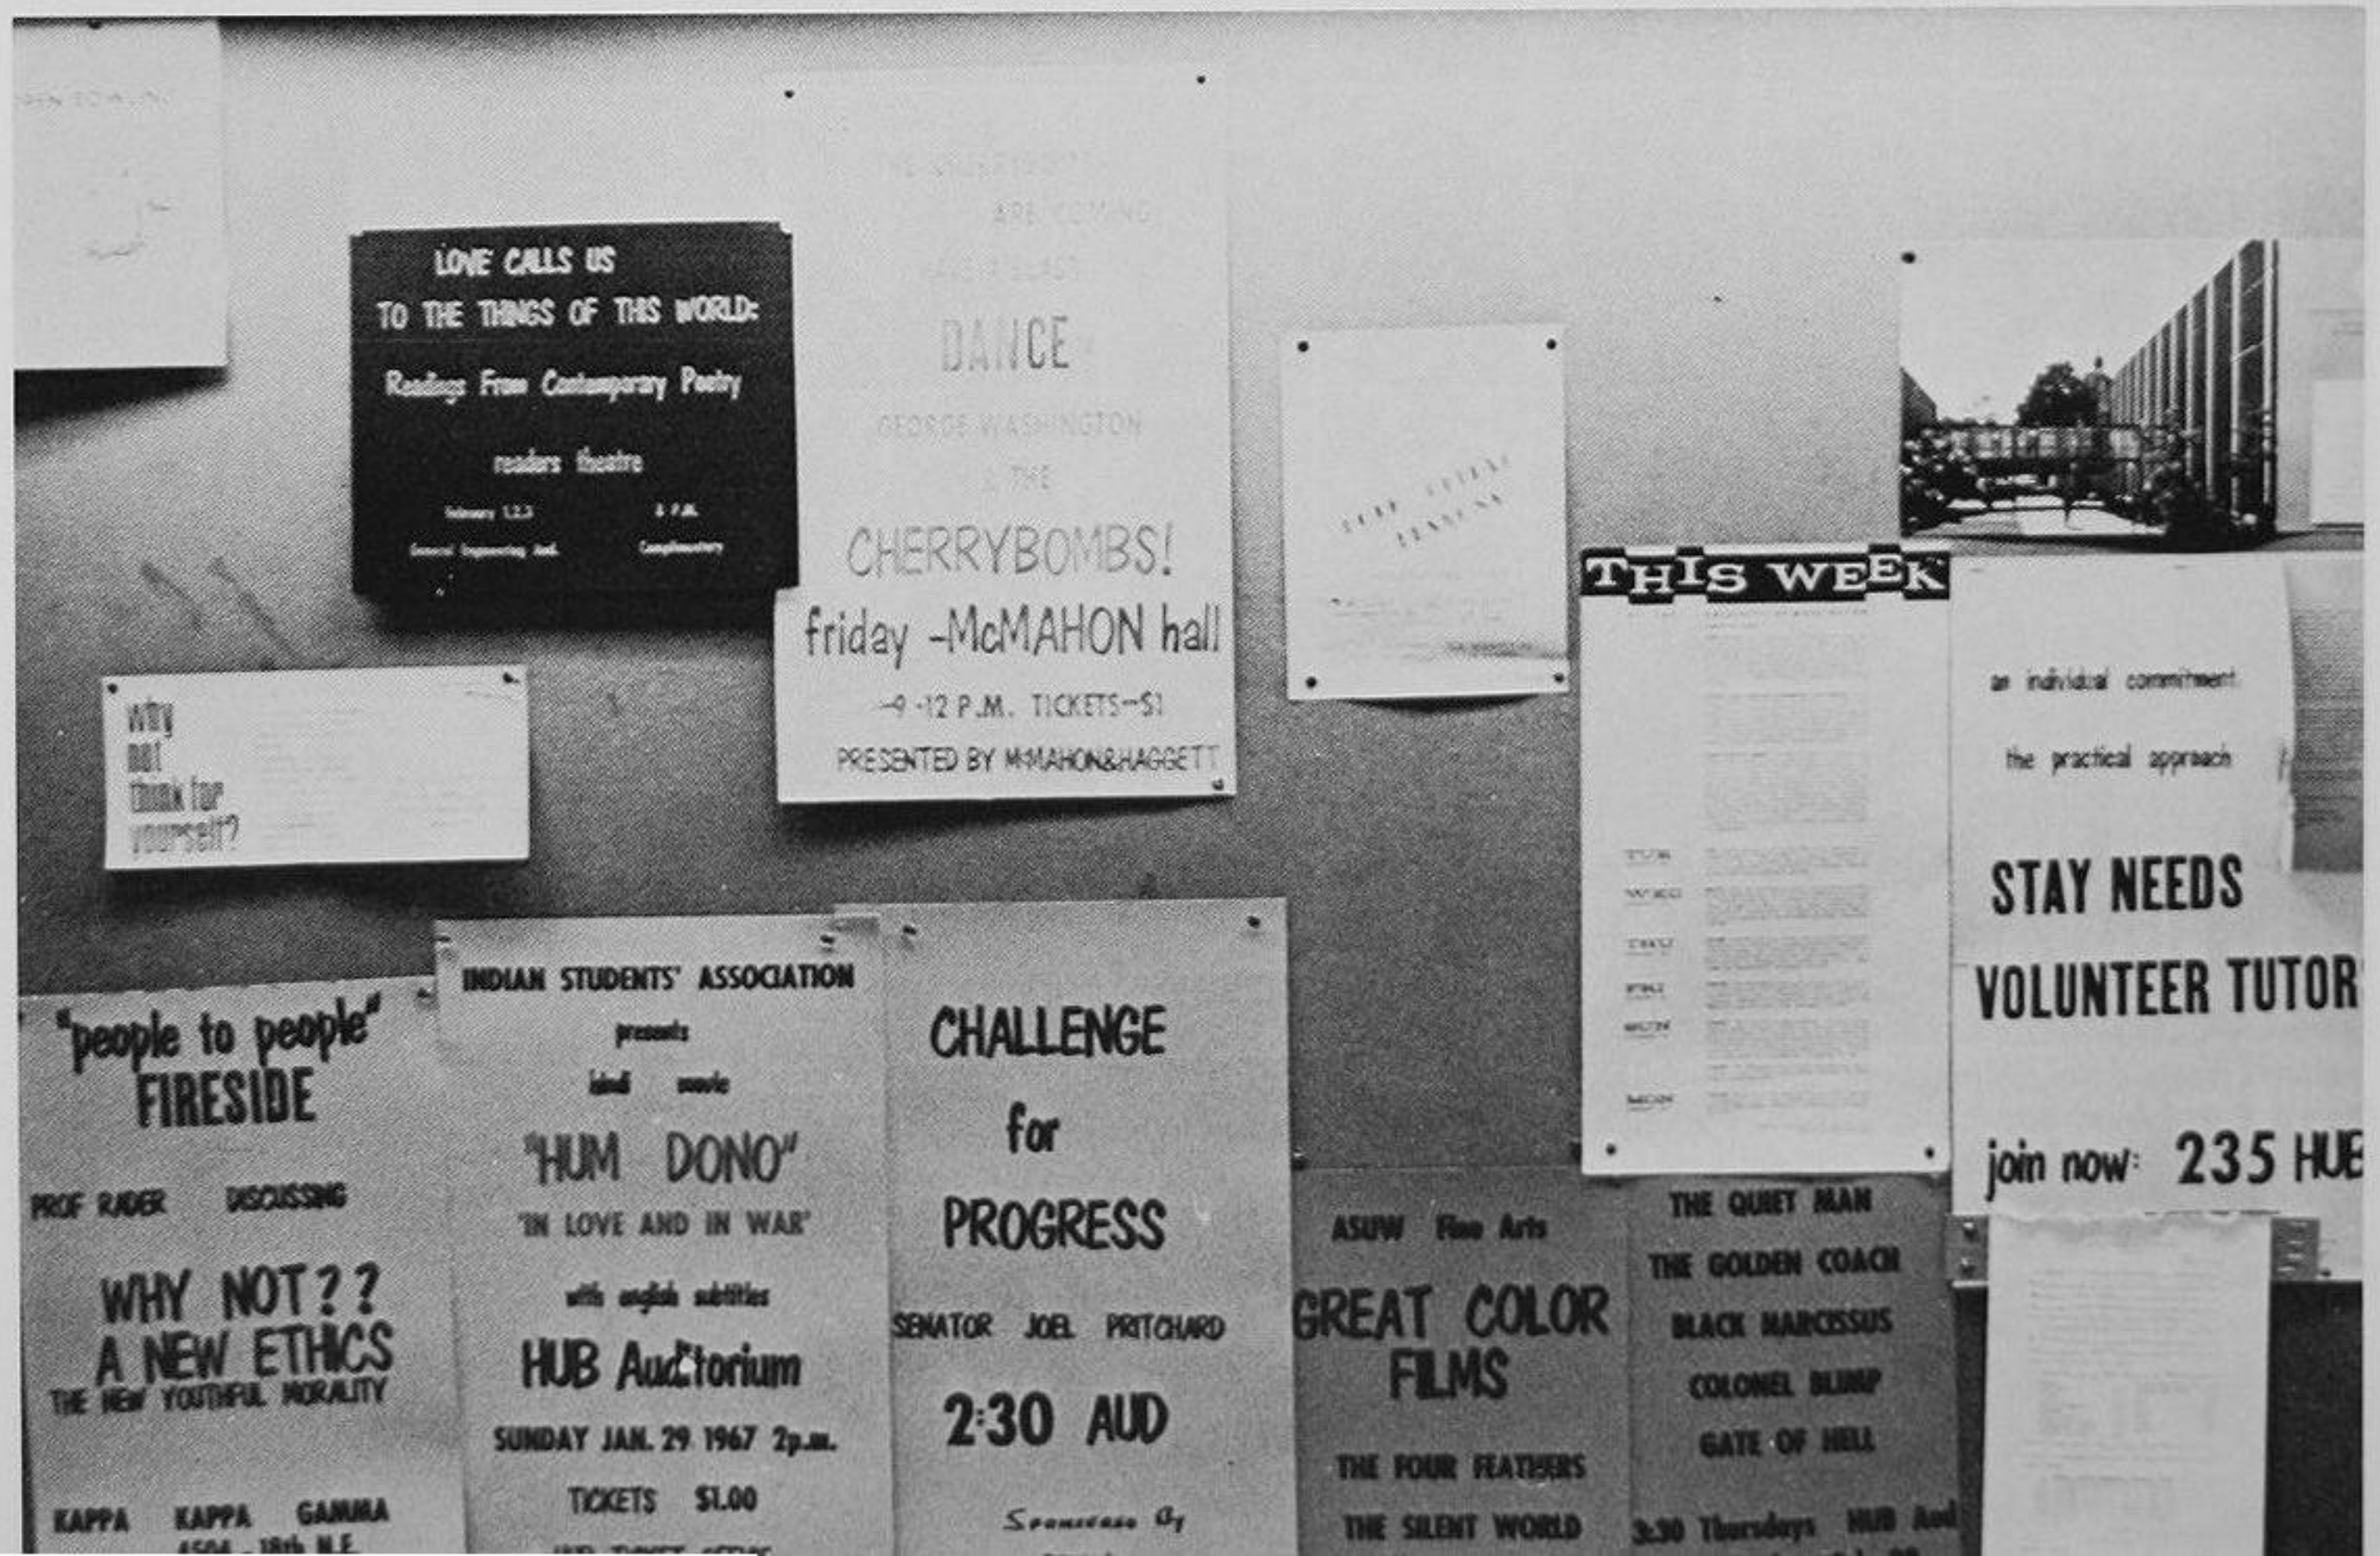

When the women's ed honorary has a banquet, they do it up big. Attending last fall's Founder's Day Banquet were National President Miriam Bryan, speaking, and National Vice President Dr. Alice Hayden, far left.

Pi Lambda Theta, Women's Education Honorary, Promotes Professionalism, High Scholarship; Stimulates Research

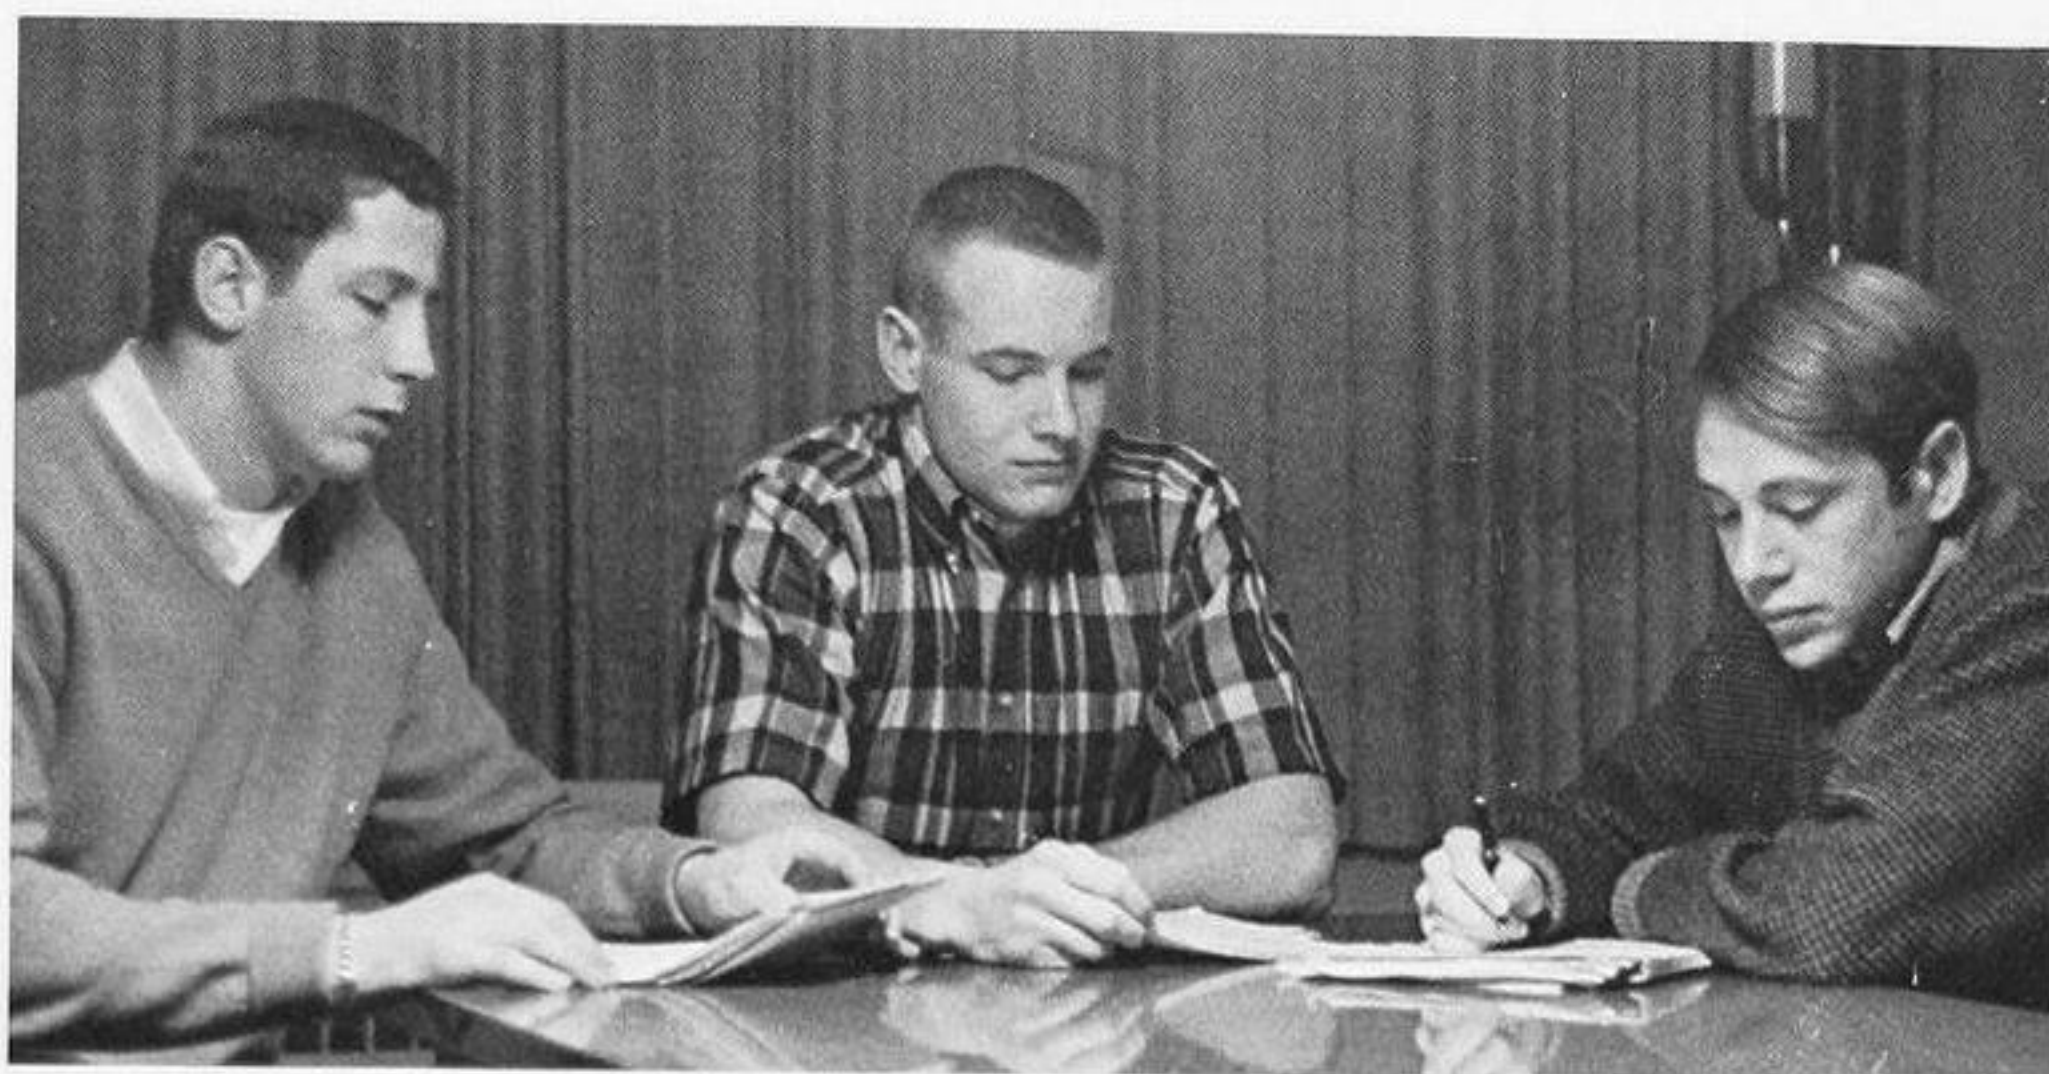

Pi Lambda Theta, women's education honorary, strives to recognize women of superior scholastic achievement and high potential for professional leadership in education. It also attempts to stimulate, conduct, and utilize research, as well as promote professional fellowship and cooperation as a means to positive action.

The organization sponsors teas and informal evening sessions to acquaint education majors with people of their profession. Speeches by well-known and competent educators and administrators were featured at the teas. Service projects and an annual scholarship are further endeavors of the group. The highlights of the year were the Founder's Day Banquet and a spring exchange with Phi Delta Kappa. Members must be in the upper quartile of their class, junior, senior, or graduate status, recommended by the faculty and sponsored by an active member of Pi Lambda Theta.

Purple Shield Sets High Standards For Underclass Members

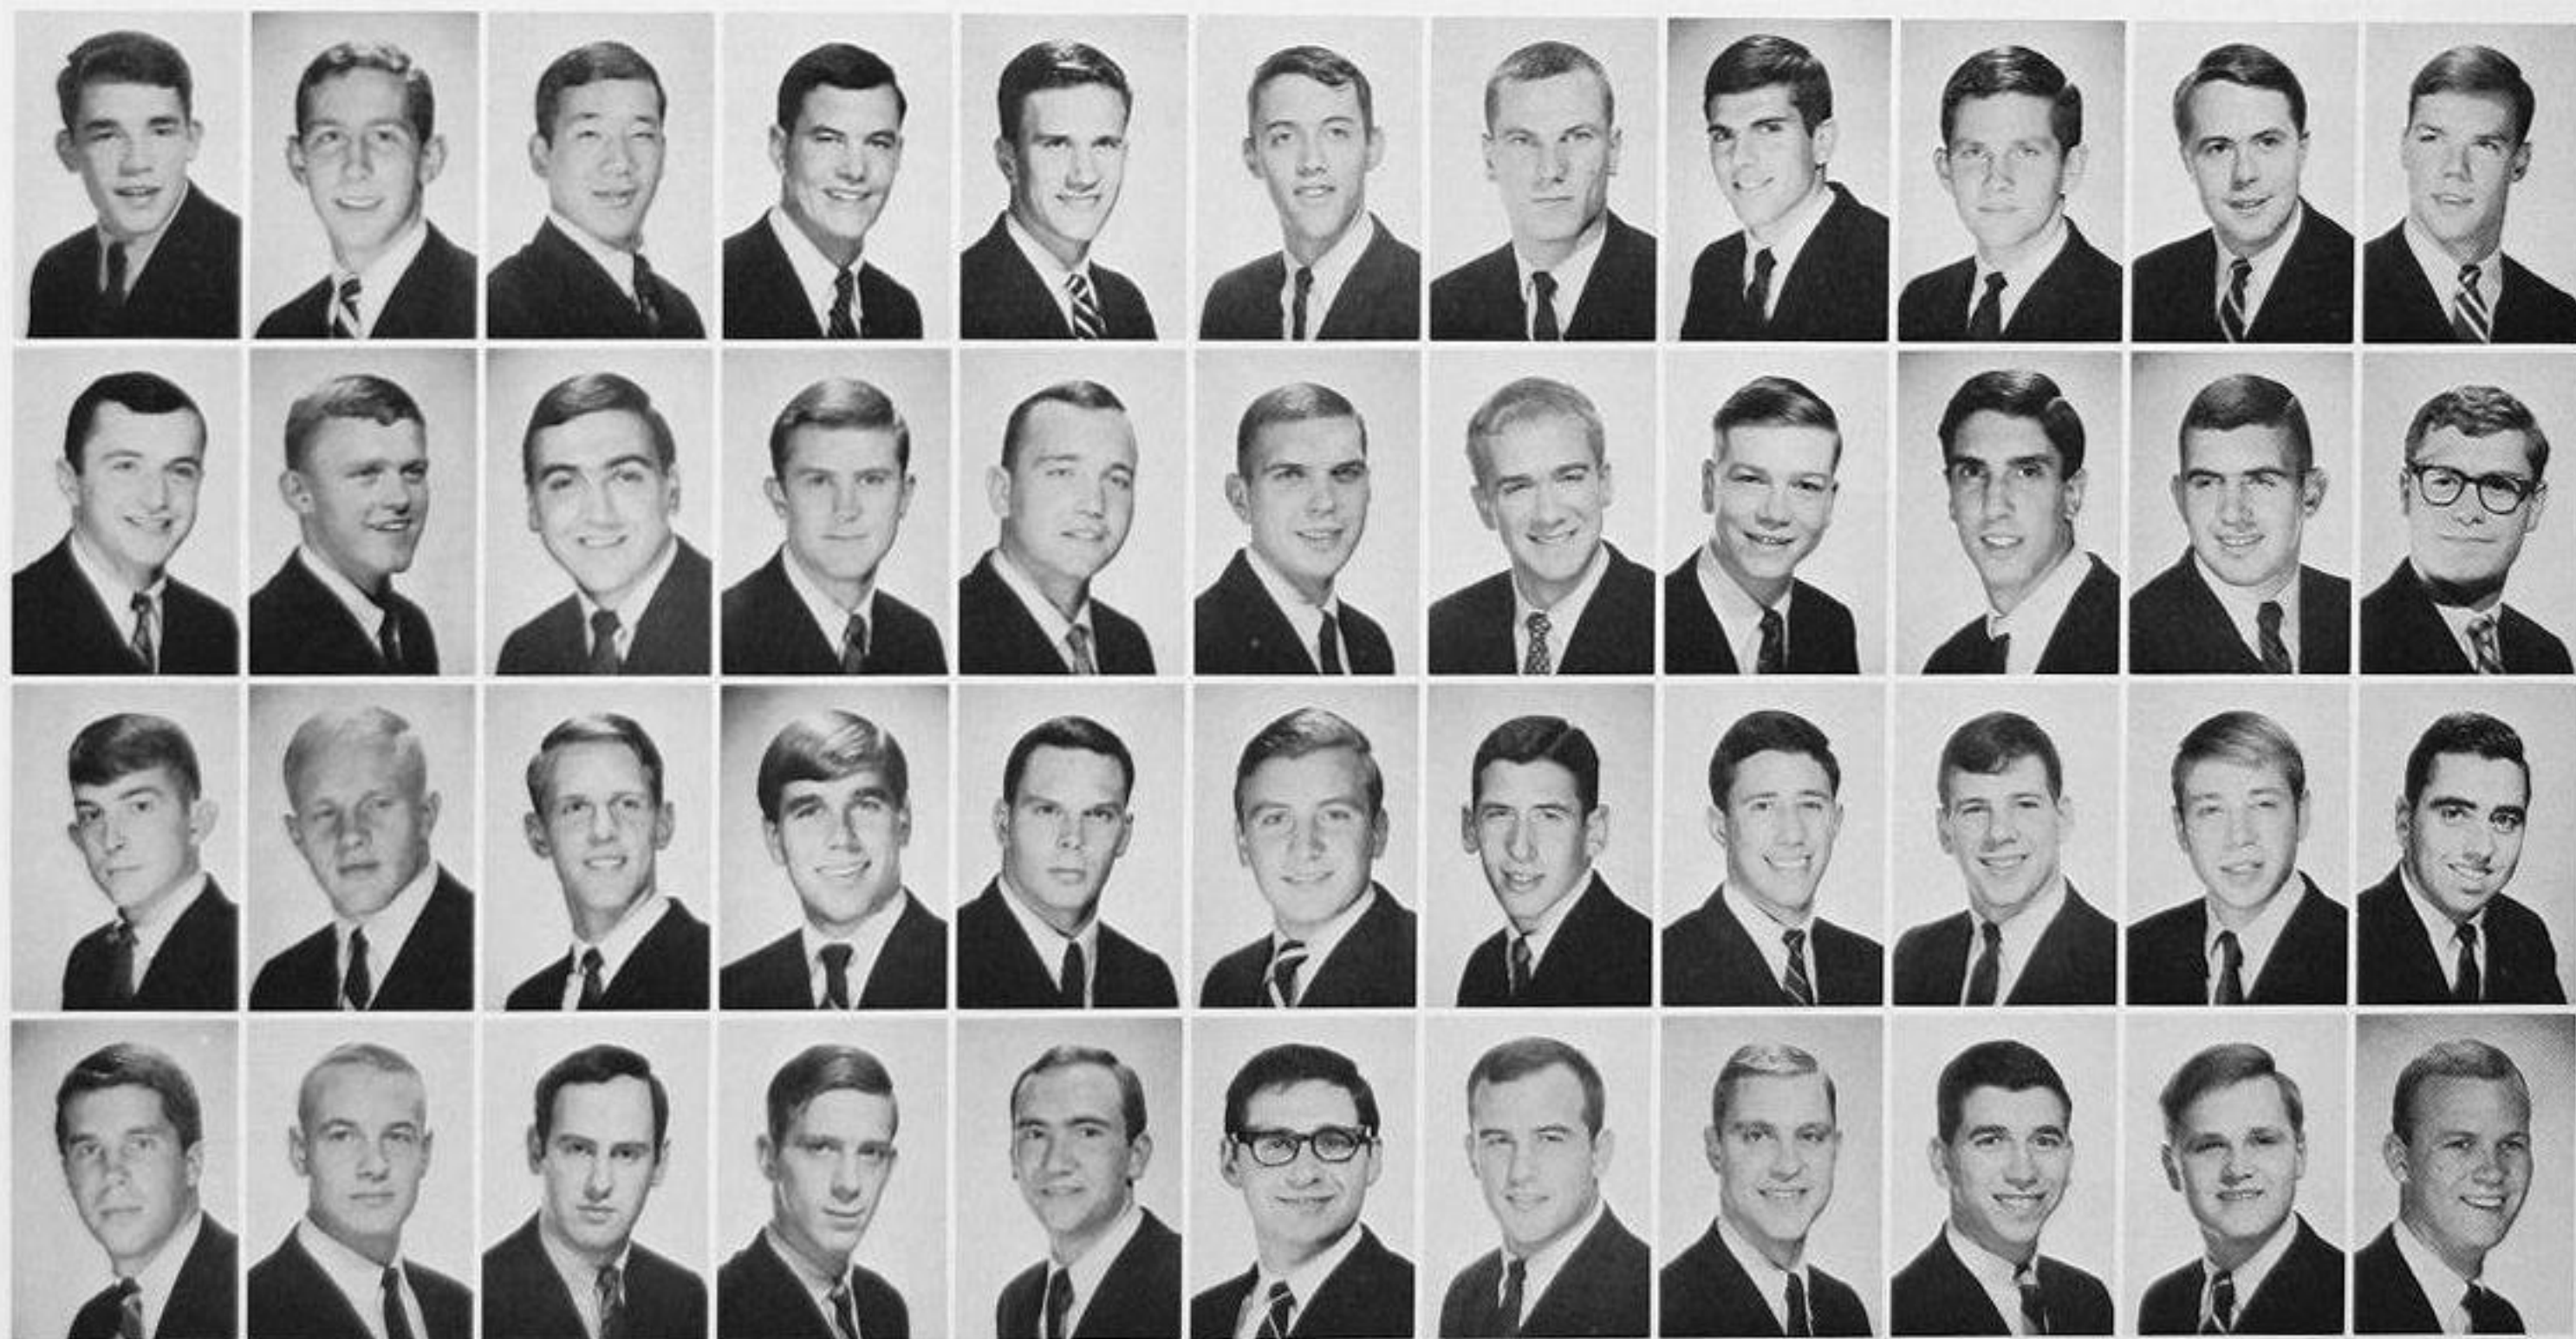

Mike Doyle, President Charles Schluter and Joseph Robin discuss plans for the next Purple Shield meeting.

Participation and accomplishment in activities and athletics, and academic standing in the upper one third of one's class—these are the standards for membership set by Purple Shield.

An underclassman's activity and scholastic honorary, Purple Shield is designed to bring together men who have shown themselves to be leaders in their respective fields of study during their first two years at the University.

Rally Girls Spark Sports Spirit

The new gold and white uniforms of Rally Girls became a familiar sight on campus this year. These sophomore, junior, and senior women selected and coached the Frosh Songleaders, set up card stunts, and co-sponsored pre-game football rallies with the Sundodgers. They were instrumental in the organization of reserve seating in the card section of football games.

Among their annual events, they hostessed the Quarterback Lunches and class day at the crew house and sponsored Songfest during Parents' Week-end.

Sigma Tau Alpha: Service, Sisterhood

Sigma Tau Alpha, a service organization for Rainbow Girls, welcomed the school year with a get-acquainted coke party honoring entering freshmen girls.

The weeks sped on and found everyone participating in community service projects such as making decorative holiday tray favors for the patients' meal trays at University hospital and tutoring underprivileged children.

Fun was also part of the Sigma Tau Alpha agenda. They shared a Chinese auction, popcorn parties, hootenannies, secret pals, memories of many meetings, and work parties which united them all in sisterhood.

Sigma Theta Tau Sets Nursing Ideals

Sigma Theta Tau, Psi Chapter, is a national nursing honor society whose purpose is to recognize scholarship of superior quality. Membership is open to students pursuing a nursing career with superior scholastic achievement and professional leadership abilities.

The main activities of Psi Chapter include the initiation of new members, contributing to the Elizabeth Sterling Soule Lectureship Fund, and educational and scientific meetings.

Shirley Smith, Psi Chapter treasurer, presents a Sigma Theta Tau check of contributions to Dr. Elizabeth Giblin for the Soule Lectureship Fund.

Women Engineers Lend Femininity To Lower Campus

The student chapter of the Society of Women Engineers has a variety of programs to offer women engineering students at the University.

In addition to meetings held once a month, there is a High School Career Orientation Program, which was organized to interest high school students—especially girls—in an engineering career. In connection with this program, the Society publishes its own newsletter. SWE also participates in the annual Engineering open house program.

Tutoring Gives Future Educators Early Experience

To orient the prospective teacher to the profession and to obtain a personal and professional commitment to community service. This is the basic theme behind the Student Washington Education Association.

With this goal in mind, S.W.E.A. has joined with the ASUW in initiating the Seattle Tutoring Agency for Youth. Under the STAY program University students spend several hours a week tutoring and helping culturally, socially, or emotionally deprived Seattle-area students. Their reward? Intangible—but real.

Boosting Spirit Is Sundodger Game

Boosting campus spirit is the purpose of the men's rally organization, Sundodgers. Members organized rallies and serpentine, stamped instructions and distributed cards for card stunts at football games. Fall quarter was busiest as Sundodgers attended all home games and some away games. Winter quarter brought basketball games—and an increased need for Sundodgers, while spring was taken up with the Queen of Queens contest.

Theta Sigma Phi: Communicating Is Their Line

Getting a message across—that's the concern of the campus chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary for women in communications. Theta Sigs sponsor and attend college career conferences, workshops and retreats with the downtown professional chapter.

The biggest event of the year is the spring Matrix Table banquet, honoring outstanding campus and Seattle women. At the banquet a Wheel of Wheels is chosen from among the top senior women on campus. Theta Sigs everyday activities send them to 251 Communications, where they keep a supply of hot coffee and donuts for faculty and students.

Theta Tau Engineering Fraternity Promotes Professionalism

Through academic, social and sports activities, Theta Tau promotes balanced professionalism.

Theta Tau is a national professional engineering fraternity whose purpose is to develop and maintain a high standard of professional interest among its members and to unite them in fraternal fellowship.

Balanced professionalism is promoted by engineering-oriented speakers. All members have a common interest in engineering and provide one another with help and encouragement.

Totem Women Top The Campus 'Poll' With Service, Smiles

Service with a smile—that's what Totem Club offers the University. As the junior and senior women's scholastic and activities honorary, the group formulated and carried out several new programs this year.

High priority went to the quarterly distribution of the Tyee Magazine. Another big project for the honor group was providing decorations at Valentine's for rooms at the King County Hospital.

Spring Quarter's activities are traditionally devoted to selection of new members, who must have a 2.5 GPA and at least three recommendations from campus activities chairmen, faculty members or advisers.

Varsity Boat Club Promotes Winning Tradition Among

Past, Present Oarsmen

The winning tradition of the Husky crew is maintained and promoted by the Varsity Boat Club, which also serves as a rowing fraternity to keep its members—past and present—in contact with the sport and its progress.

The membership requirement for VBC is five quarters of rowing—three with the frosh unit and two with the varsity turnout. But all is not rowing for these dedicated oarsmen. Before the heavy winter turnout begins, there are exchanges and a semi-formal dance; toward the end of spring quarter, the annual Alumni Banquet is held, bringing together oarsmen from as far back as 1914.

W-Key Aids By Giving Scholarship, Selling Course Critiques

"Service to Washington" is the purpose of W-Key and selling Course Critiques fall quarter helped the club carry out its goal. The main project of the year for W-Key is the annual candy heart sale winter quarter which gathers money to provide a scholarship for an incoming freshman woman.

The requirements for membership in W-Key are a 2.5 or above grade average with outstanding activities. Activities are evaluated according to quality rather than quantity. Members are chosen in the spring quarter of their freshman year. W-Key meets the second Wednesday of each month. And this year the club had dinner meetings in the HUB with several speakers in addition to regular business.

Young Republicans Win Campaigns On And Off Campus

Officers Jenny Blake, Bill Pearl, Bruce Johnston, Tom Thorsvig and Barb Durkin discuss plans for the coming year.

From urging legal sexual freedom and a volunteer army to the practical problems of electing Republicans to office, Washington's Young Republicans had a full and busy year.

Getting their secretary into a BOC position seemed easy after going all-out on the John Spellman for Congress campaign in the fall. Accomplishments for Governor Evans and the Republican Party were their most important activities.

Zeta Phi Eta Tapes, Reads For The Blind

The purpose of Zeta Phi Eta is to unite women in the departments of speech arts and speech sciences. One of their goals is service to the community, school and the individual.

Numerous activities include ushering for Reader's Theatre, taping and reading for the blind, reading for children at the Children's Orthopedic Hospital and participating in the Western Speech Association Convention as hostesses.

Membership requirements include a 3.00 GPA in speech classes and an over-all GPA of 2.50.

Speech is their major, but look at those smiles!

the seattle community and the university community share the same hard benches to cheer on the huskies. in intercollegiate athletics the bonds between generations and localities are vocal and obvious. in the arts, sciences and industry they are more subtle and sophisticated. but nose counts and decibel meters cannot fully measure the force of the university in a city, a state, a nation or a world.

a stately campus is a fine field for kites. and when the brisk winds blow the city boy, who will be growing up to this place between breezes, and the man-in-transition, who has not quite left his boyhood behind, are here again together.

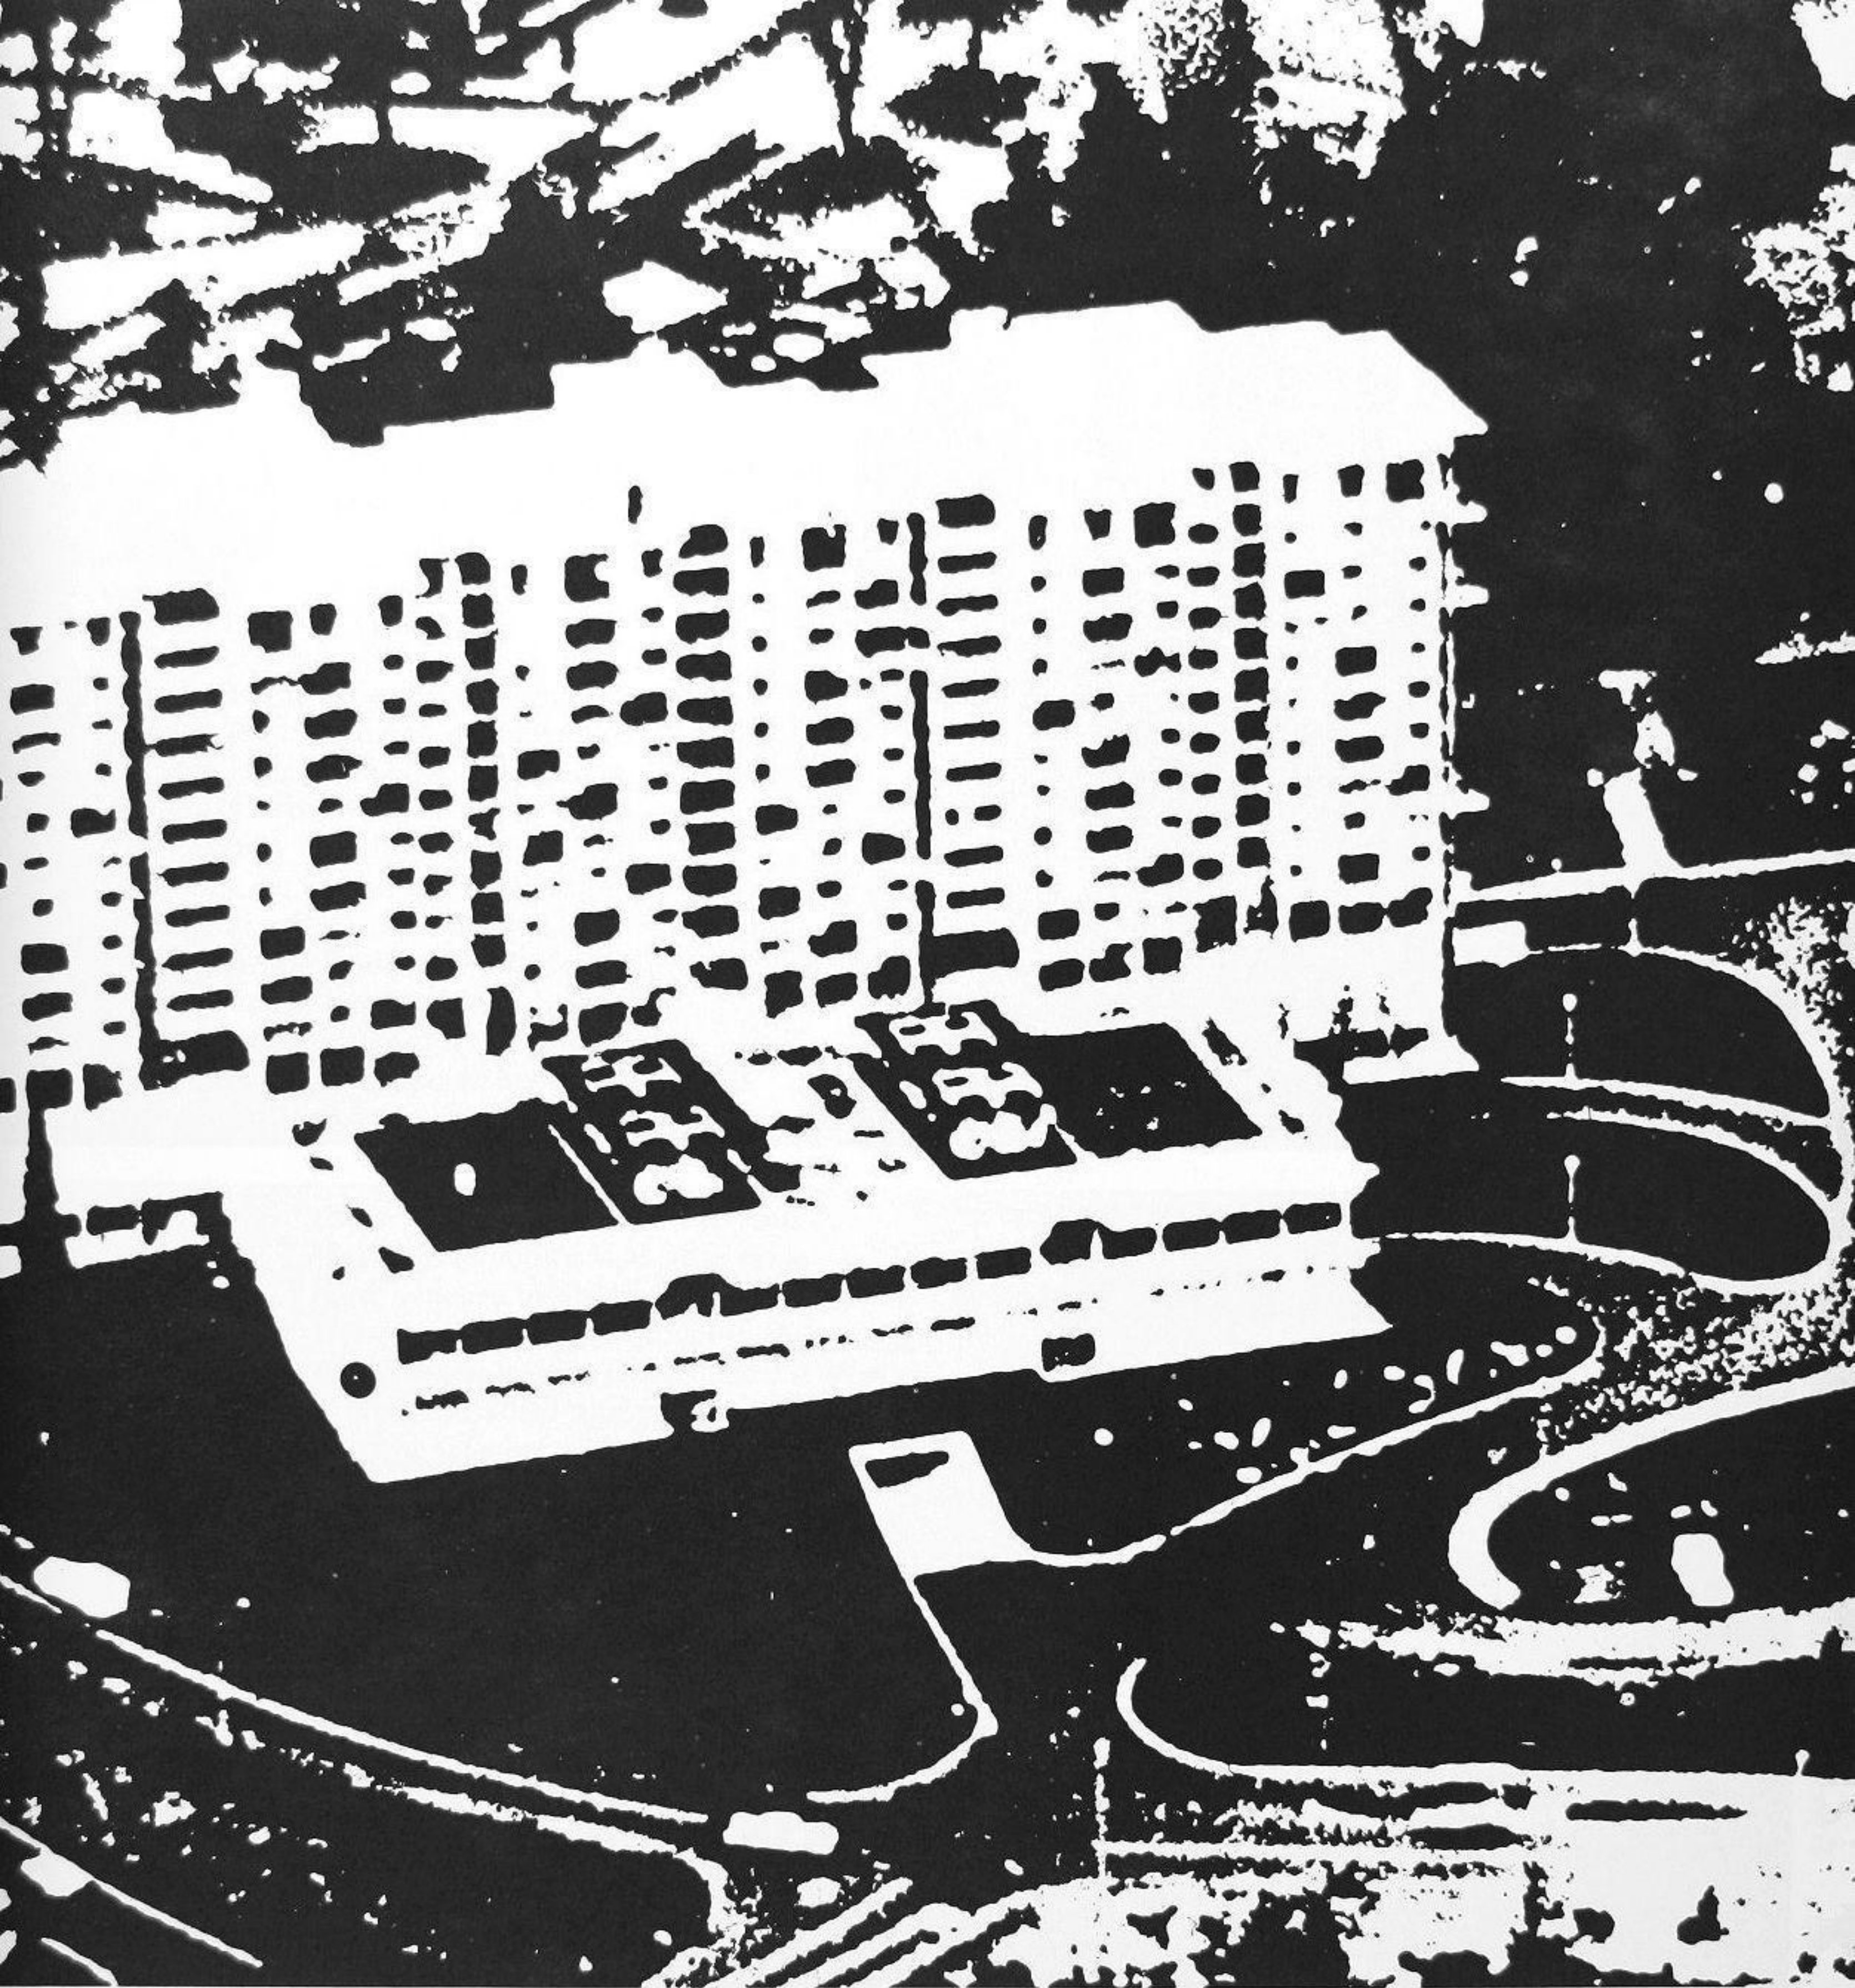

the scholars sit at common tables, but each must inhabit here a world of his own. it is a special, stern and sometimes stark world, distinctive, demanding and distant from the world of commerce and production. yet, out of these quiet cloisters come the transfusions of knowledge and understanding needed by the hurried, harried world outside, and into them return the practitioners who require rejuvenation and new directions.

so many hopes and doubts, discouragements and aspirations abide among the twinkling lights when darkness settles over the campus and the city. and here stands the university, a bastion of inspiration and intellect, set aside by the people to transmit the knowledge of past generations and nurture the visions of future generations. a perplexed but pulsating world lies just out there.

Residence Halls Council members were Rick Beck, Peter Sorenson, Greg Colvin, Brian Matsuyama, Jerry Salstrom, Gary Wick, Frank Robinson, back, and Bev Petrie, Jill Allenbaugh, Judy Lorence, Jan Saether, and Sharon Maeda.

To promote greater awareness of the problems and interests common to all residents is the purpose of the Residence Halls' Council. RHC is composed of the independent organizations of MOHC (Terry-Lander), WIHC (Hansee-McCarthy) and HIC (Haggett Hall). At present McMahon Hall is an ex-officio member.

Since its creation in 1965, RHC has changed election procedures for residence hall representatives to the BOC and has worked out cooperative cultural programs, art displays and movies. Residence hall parking problems were discussed with management.

Residence Halls Council Creates Cultural, Social Cooperation

Haggett Inter-House Council served as a sounding board for Haggett opinions.

They used to call it Men's Organized House Council, but two years ago it was changed to Mutual Organized House Council. Three guesses why.

Women's Inter-House Council provided the women of Hansee and McCarthy Halls a common governmental body.

Allison Exchanges Football, Intellect With Other Houses

Around Haggett "A" doesn't stand for apples or academics; it stands for Allison, a house so well-liked that over half of its members returned in the fall.

Dr. Allison joined them in the lounge, but poor Radley was still missing. After a vigorous football game with Cameron and an "intellectual" evening with Holladay, the house settled down to the business of retaining their GPA leadership among Haggett Houses.

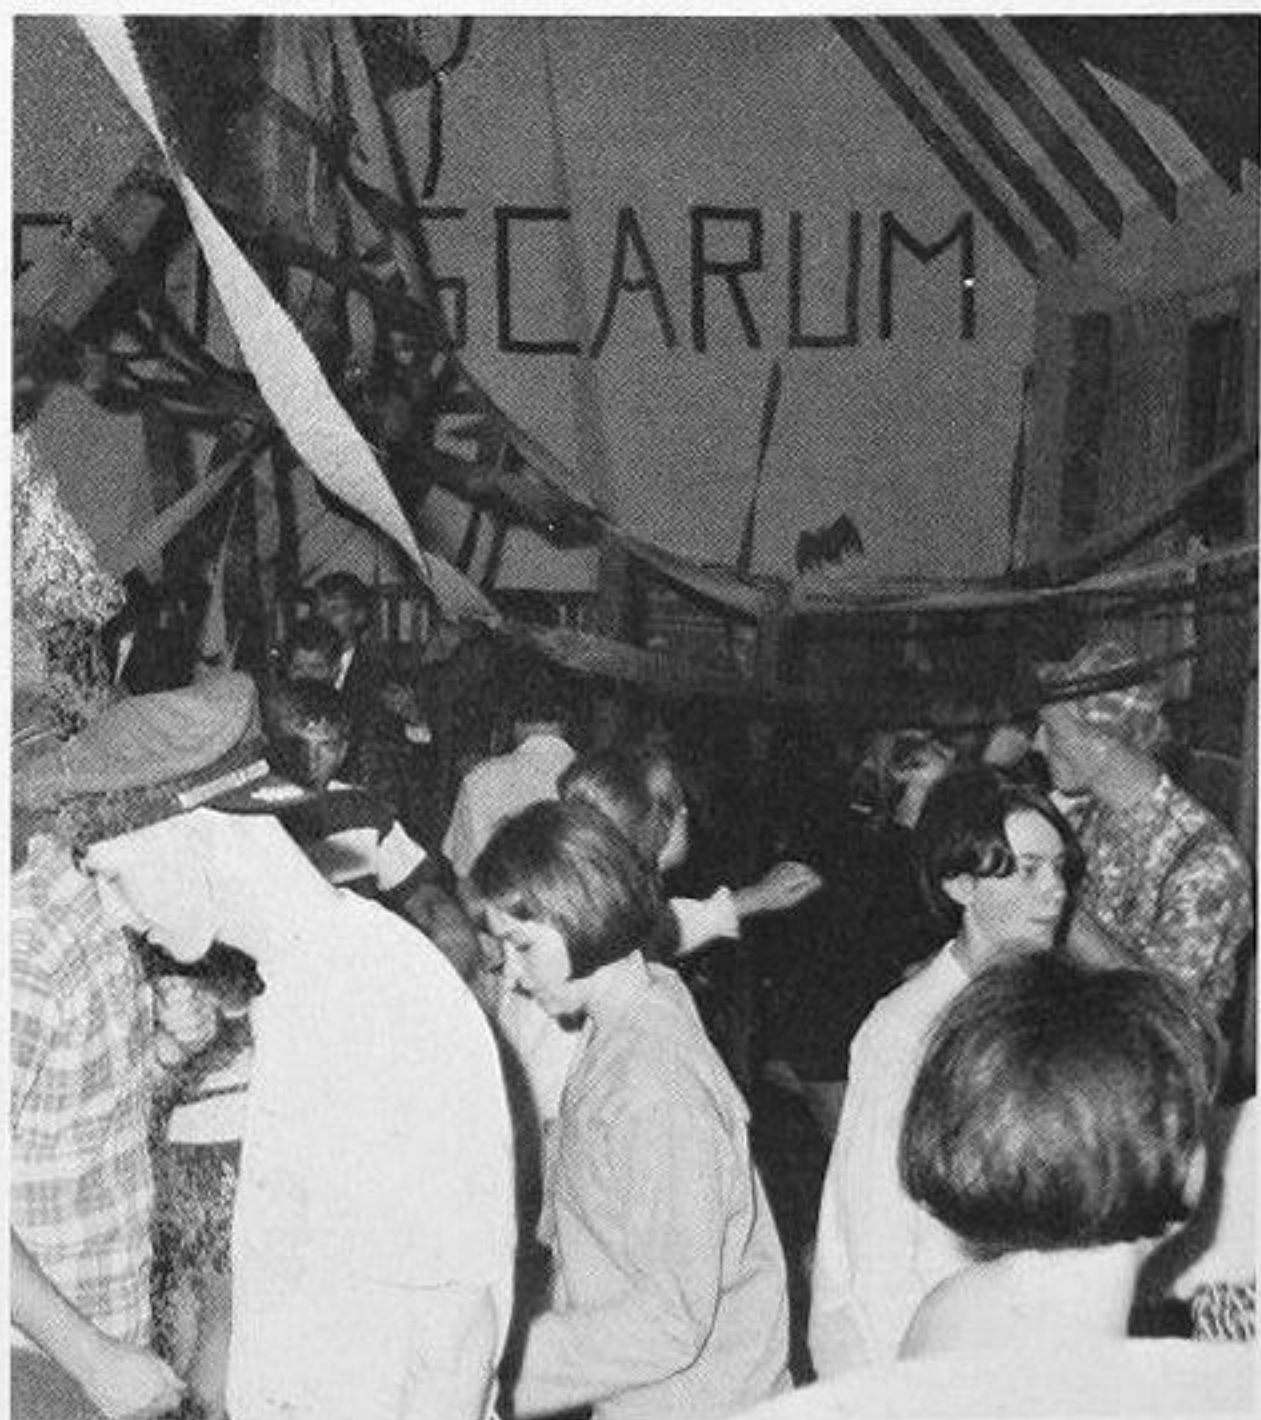

When Judy and Shirl kept hopping from TV to chairs they were sent to the zoo. Football, Peanuts, open lounges, grades, midterms, life—Allison.

Last year ended with a big bang—in the head. But Cameron House survived and bought a color TV to soothe their wound.

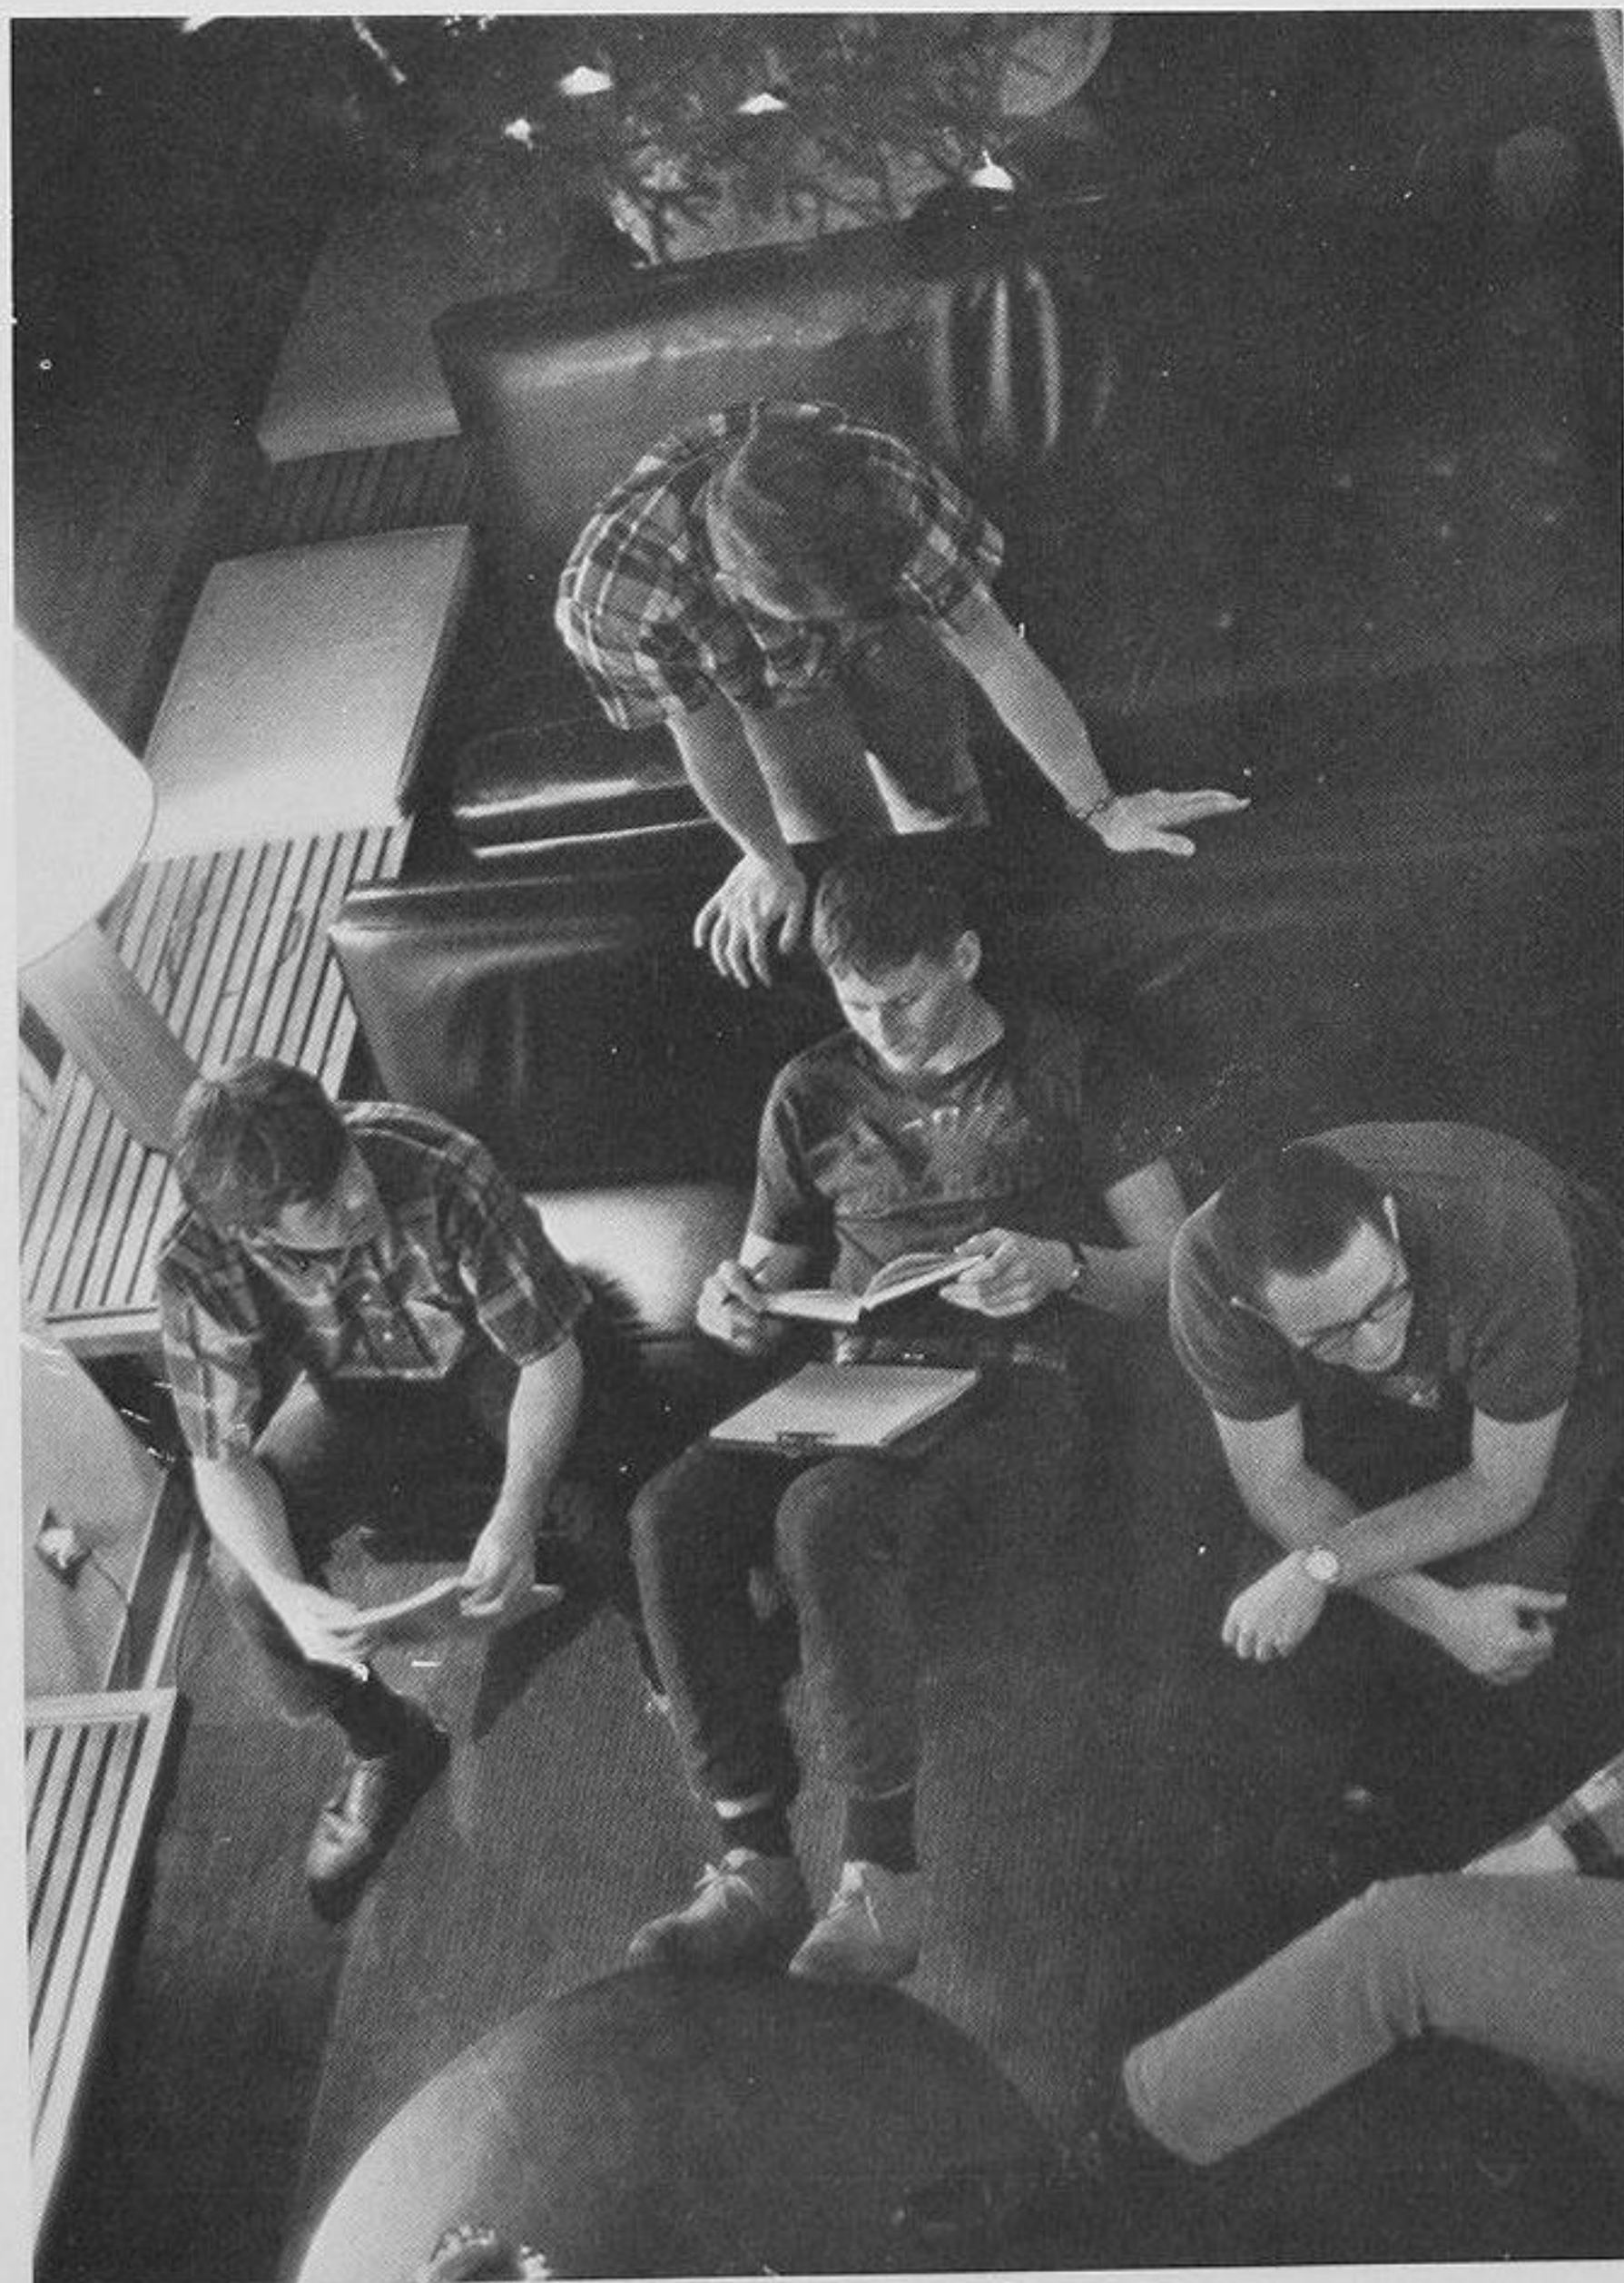

They cut the ice with DeVoe; coed football with Allison was “splendor in the grass.” Happiness? How about a house banquet with banana splits? The yellow yanker finally pulled even with the green grabber.

Cameron was well represented on the 50-yard line thanks to the Quarter-to-Six Club. Where's I.J.? Nobody remembered the “thing with the person and the stuff”—at least for three or four days.

Sneaky 'DeVoe-tees' Get Acquainted During Pixie Week, Veto Lounge TV

"Sneaky" was the by-word, De Voe was the house, getting acquainted was the goal and "Pixie" was the week.

From then on the "house in Haggitt" became a home.

Freshmen concerned with their studies pulled a turn-about and vetoed a new lounge TV. But, being typical freshmen, they didn't gripe about the more human, aspects of social life.

The Duke of DeVoe escorted the popular House Duchess to the formal. (Some say he had hairy legs under that tux.) Enlightenment came when Elizabeth talked at the house banquet.

The girls remain DeVoe-tes, adding and multiplying their happiness by dividing it with each other.

Traditions Make Difference For Holladay

Stag functions, banquets, and house politics are standard for most living groups, but close relationships among men distinguish Holladay activities. Members come and go, yet the Holladay "tradition" persists.

There were the R.F. wars (Beware, the C.C. or the F.B. may strike tonight!), informal bull sessions in the lounge (What's this—a house meeting?), Kim Sam Soo (the Korean foster child), the annual Richard Simkins Memorial Trophy (a gilded jock), the feeling of being on top at Haggett and, most important, getting to know and appreciate the guys on the floor.

"King reigns supreme" was this year's cry for King House. For the third consecutive year, King men captured the dorm intramural championship. They "snowed" Town House for the fourth time in their annual Snowman Contest.

Kultural Reunion was a smashing success (right, Gary?), and with a tenth of their members tapped for Phi Beta Kappa, they had the highest accumulated g.p.a. on campus.

"Croak!" went the mighty roar as the fastback Toads of Shannon House planned some coup de grace to top off the year. "And a wonderful year it was," thought BJ Toadey, the Shannon mascot.

He chuckled remembering the seven quaking frosh yet to be initiated into greater Toad-dom. Then he recalled the two house banquets, featuring steaks and Chuck Bolin, and the two times Shannon Toads turned electioneers. ("BJ Toadey for BMOC No. 1!") Finally the Great Toad thought of the house academic standing, which indicated that most Toads had gained much more than a good time at the University.

"Yes," BJ Toadey reflected "They were a good bunch."

'Bunnies' Dwell In Stanton Penthouse Atop Haggett

The patter of bunny feet ever present, the Stanton Penthouse moved forward through another fun-filled year. Parties, exchanges, dances, banquets, and everything in the cosmos—come what may, they were always on the top. Stevens, the new genesis of campus leadership, is a house of companions with solid traditions to maintain. It is one of the top five houses in campus academics, as well as an informal headquarters for political opinion.

Highlighting the year were the reputed Stevens House annex in McMahon with lounge extension in the Red Hen; turn out of 80 for co-ed football and pond party; canoeing with Chi O's and 26 in a VW; and athletes in football, swimming, skiing and track.

Tiffany Provides Setting For 'Longer Than Forever' Friendships

A Tiffany setting would please any female and the women of Haggett's first two floors all agree.

This was a year of Tiffany House memories: Christmas with Cameron, mingling on the plaza with or without midnight fire drills, Octoberfest and welcoming German House. It was also a year of action with AWS Standards Chairman, HIC Co-chairman, Silver Fish, madrigals and tutoring.

The setting was dear but the friendships formed were worth more than diamonds.

House President Sharon Woski, right lower center, and other Tiffany officers take a break from a busy house schedule.

Haggett 'Townies' Prose No Problems On Seven

Listen good friends and we will tell of the house in which we Townies dwell.

Fifty fine girls, we abide on Seven, the creme de la creme this side of heaven.

Twenty-one returning for their second year greet the incoming girls with smiles and cheer.

Scholastic achievement is first of our goals; it is for us Town Crier's bell tolls.

But sagacious and prudent though we may be, each day brings laughter and much gaiety.

Food and football with Adelphi for our first exchange. Underground
City with Chelan. What a change!

Orchids from Snowmen; the Kings-men sing. Fourth year in a row, a banquet for King.

Diane, our adviser, is dear to our heart. We will never forget her good advice and linen cart.

Such is our Town House, such is our home. As the talk of the town may we ever be known.

Austin Has Low Turnover And High Interest

With the large influx of freshmen came fresh ideas, and when conjoined with the renewed enthusiasm of the upperclassmen, Austin's girls ran the gamut of activities—exchanges, queen contests, and campus activities. Austin lounge was the place for the Hansee Sunday night film series which brought to many a variety in movie entertainment. Block seating at the Repertory Theatre and the art shows were keenly supported. House turnover was the lowest in years and most of the girls could say, "We like it here."

More than a home, Blaine House became a way of life for the 105 girls living there. They shared, each in her own way—Angel Flight, The Prism, Silver Fish, and WIHC committees. Blaine women frequently adjourned to after-dinner programs like a piano concert by Pierre Divenyi, fireside hootenannies, Aikido demonstrations, and Mark Ingle's discussion of Viet Nam. It was unity rather than diversity that made Blaine the house that was more than a home.

Ten Triplets Create 'Trials'

"Caution — Women at Play" describes the Camano girls—110 in all—and their guitars. They won the Sigma Chi Spirit Award (remember the 3:30 a.m. raid?), held an 11 p.m. victory march for Mary and Janis and faced the trials and tribulations of 10 triplets.

Camano-ites were active as ski bunnies, Alpha Lambda Deltas and Rally Girls.

We'll always remember those fifth-floor pondings and Hurricane Margie's wrath, Standards' "City Dump," the chorus line, "Doctor" Gregg and all the nurses, "Who emptied all the bottles in 511 and 604?" and the missing mattresses.

Cypress House Has Friendly, Lively, Responsible Year

Balloons in the closets, string-strung rooms and surprise snacks highlighted the way to Pixie-hood for the "Red Garter Girls" of Cypress last fall. A big Halloween party topped off the week of fun and new friendships.

Freshmen and transfer students, the greater part of Cypress membership, gave full support to officers and activities in making the house a home—friendly, lively, and a lot of fun.

Midnight jam sessions intermingled with finals, snacks, surprise phone calls, pinnings, and engagements to produce an enthusiastic Cypress spirit that prevailed throughout the year.

"We're decorating for Christmas—whad'ya think we were doing?"

Leary House Comes Alive; Residents Scattered At Year's End

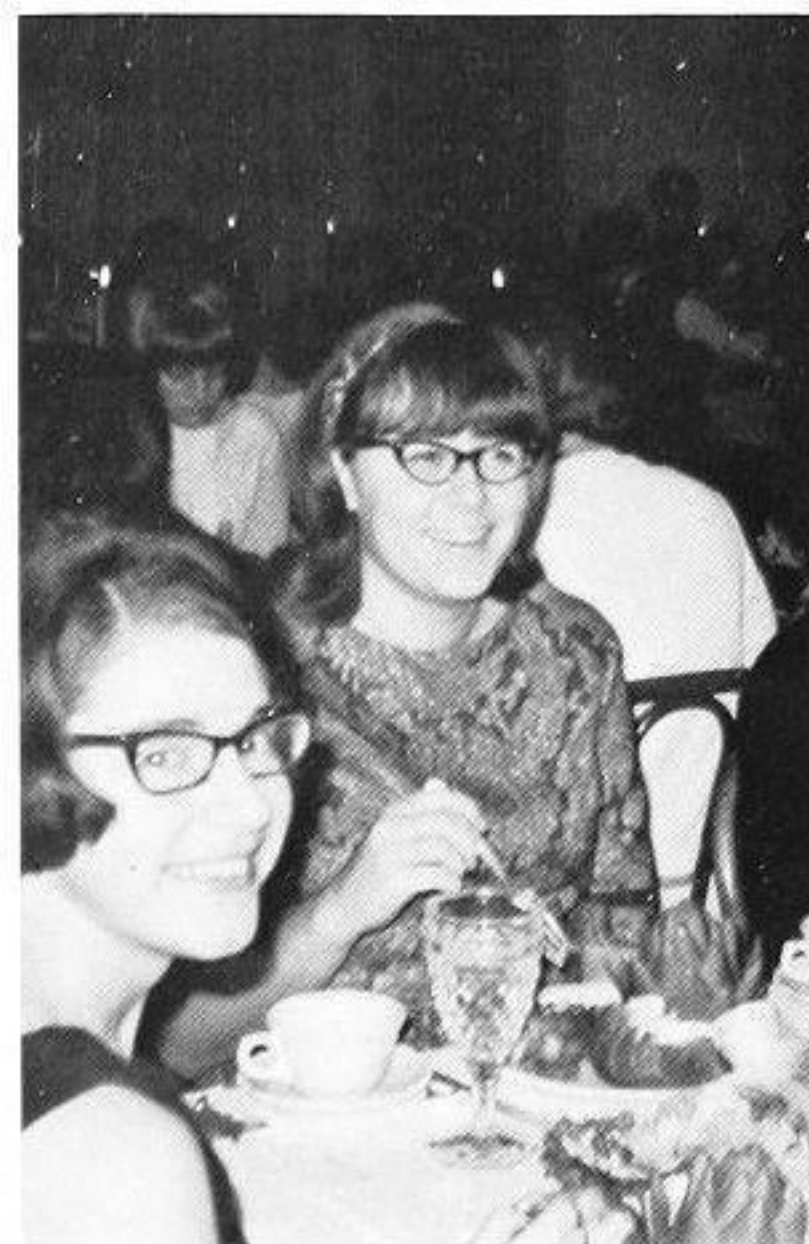

The ghost-like silence spread up the graceful staircase into the dead end of each room in Leary House. Then rustling of life began and finally it was autumn.

It was living, routine and inconvenient. But it was tolerable with so many girls—so many different kinds of girls—who somehow managed to live in harmony.

There were the freshmen with their long blonde hair, their noise, their freshness, their individualism.

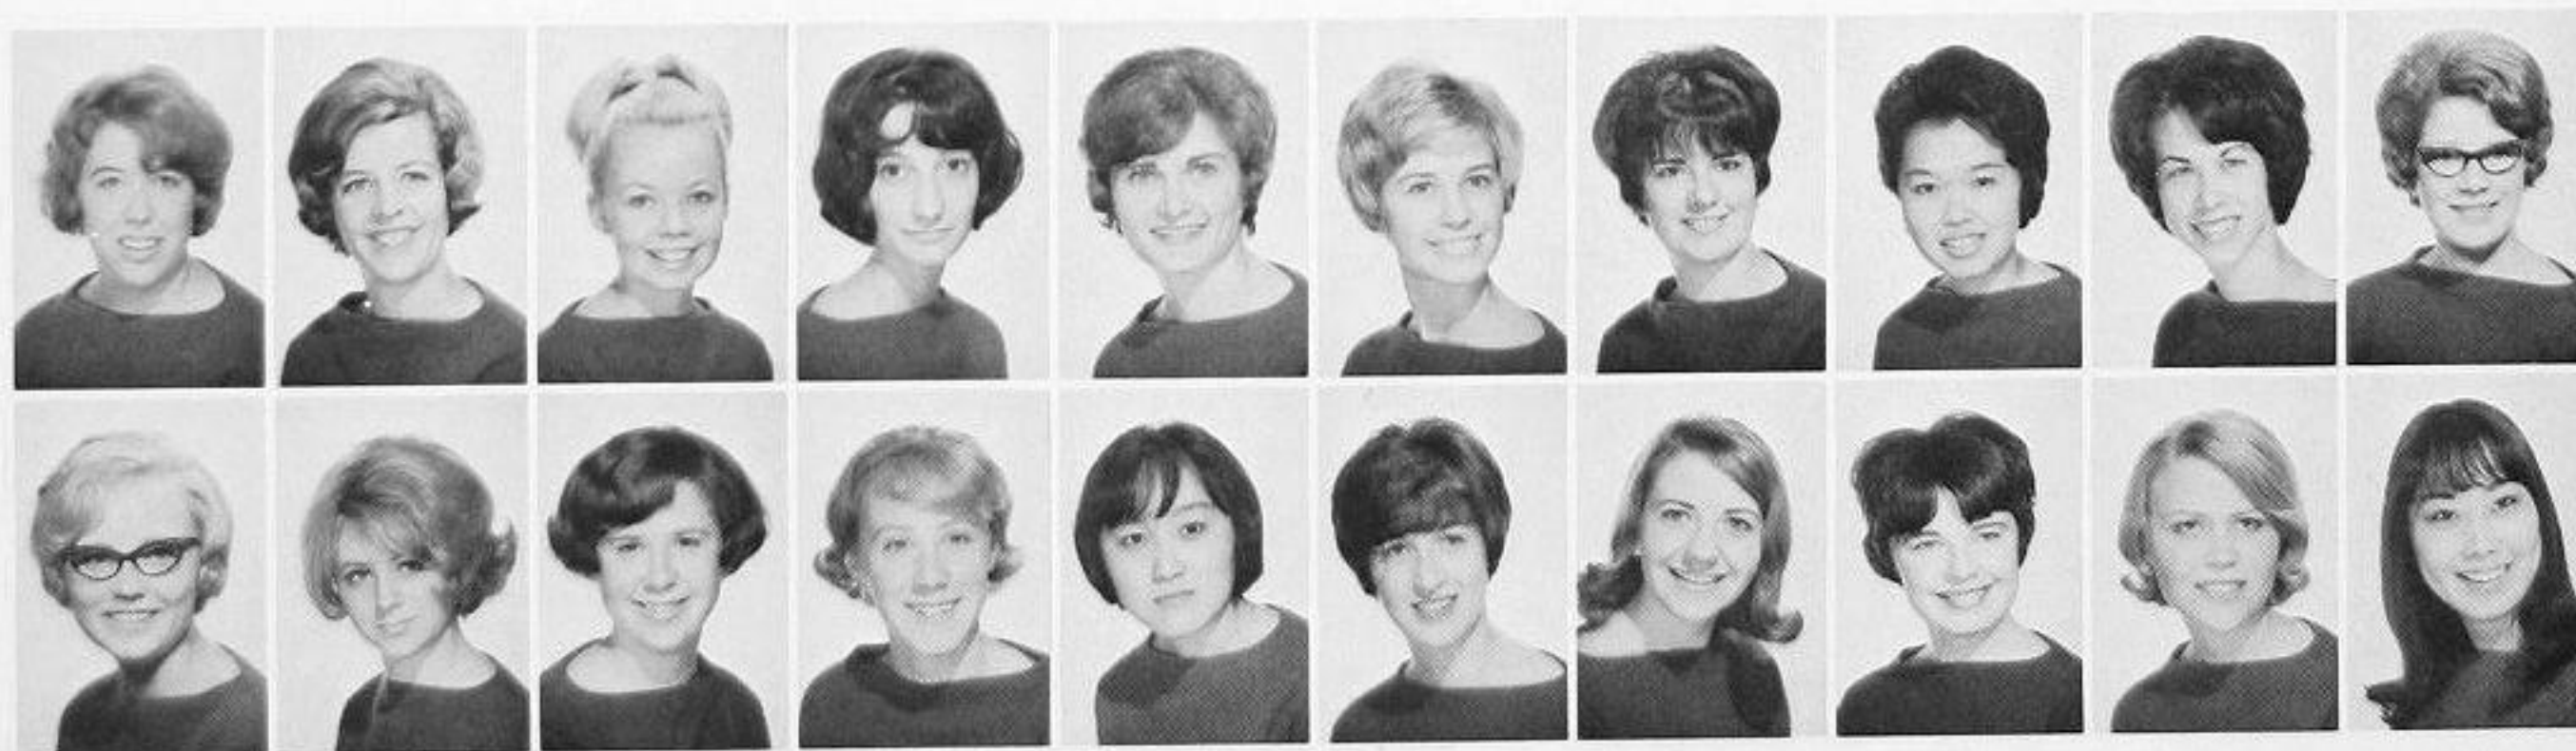

Autumn came and went. Some months skipped by faster than others with big dates, formals, and smorgasbords. Other months slowly drifted along, with nights of studying which seemed to begin and never end. But the year did end, and Leary House suddenly began to scatter her inhabitants. The staircase once again was silent.

What's so special about Hansee girls? McKee Girls! Their year, as observed by their two matronly "turnkey" advisers (Marilyn and Irene), was brimming over with warm, vibrant spontaneity; with gregarious levity; with the sharing of life. What other house can boast having a "Mob"? Situation: chronic RF's. Where else can you find exuberant folkdancing, on-the-spot coffee houses, "St. Jud" and Punch? Where will you find a contagious cordiality? McKee House.

Through People-to-People, Maury House sponsored dinner to become acquainted with foreign students.

Maury Girls Solve 'Who Left The Ring' Mystery

How to get acquainted (and find out who left the ring in the bathtub) was the problem faced by the 124 girls living in Maury House this year. There were a number of methods, they found—like attending the house meetings and exchanges (they met guys, too), being Pixie-nice to a secret pal during Tillicum Week, riding the eight-coach train to the WSU Homecoming game (more guys) and rooming in a triple. Getting acquainted was fun.

Mercer 'Sparkles' In Pink Champagne

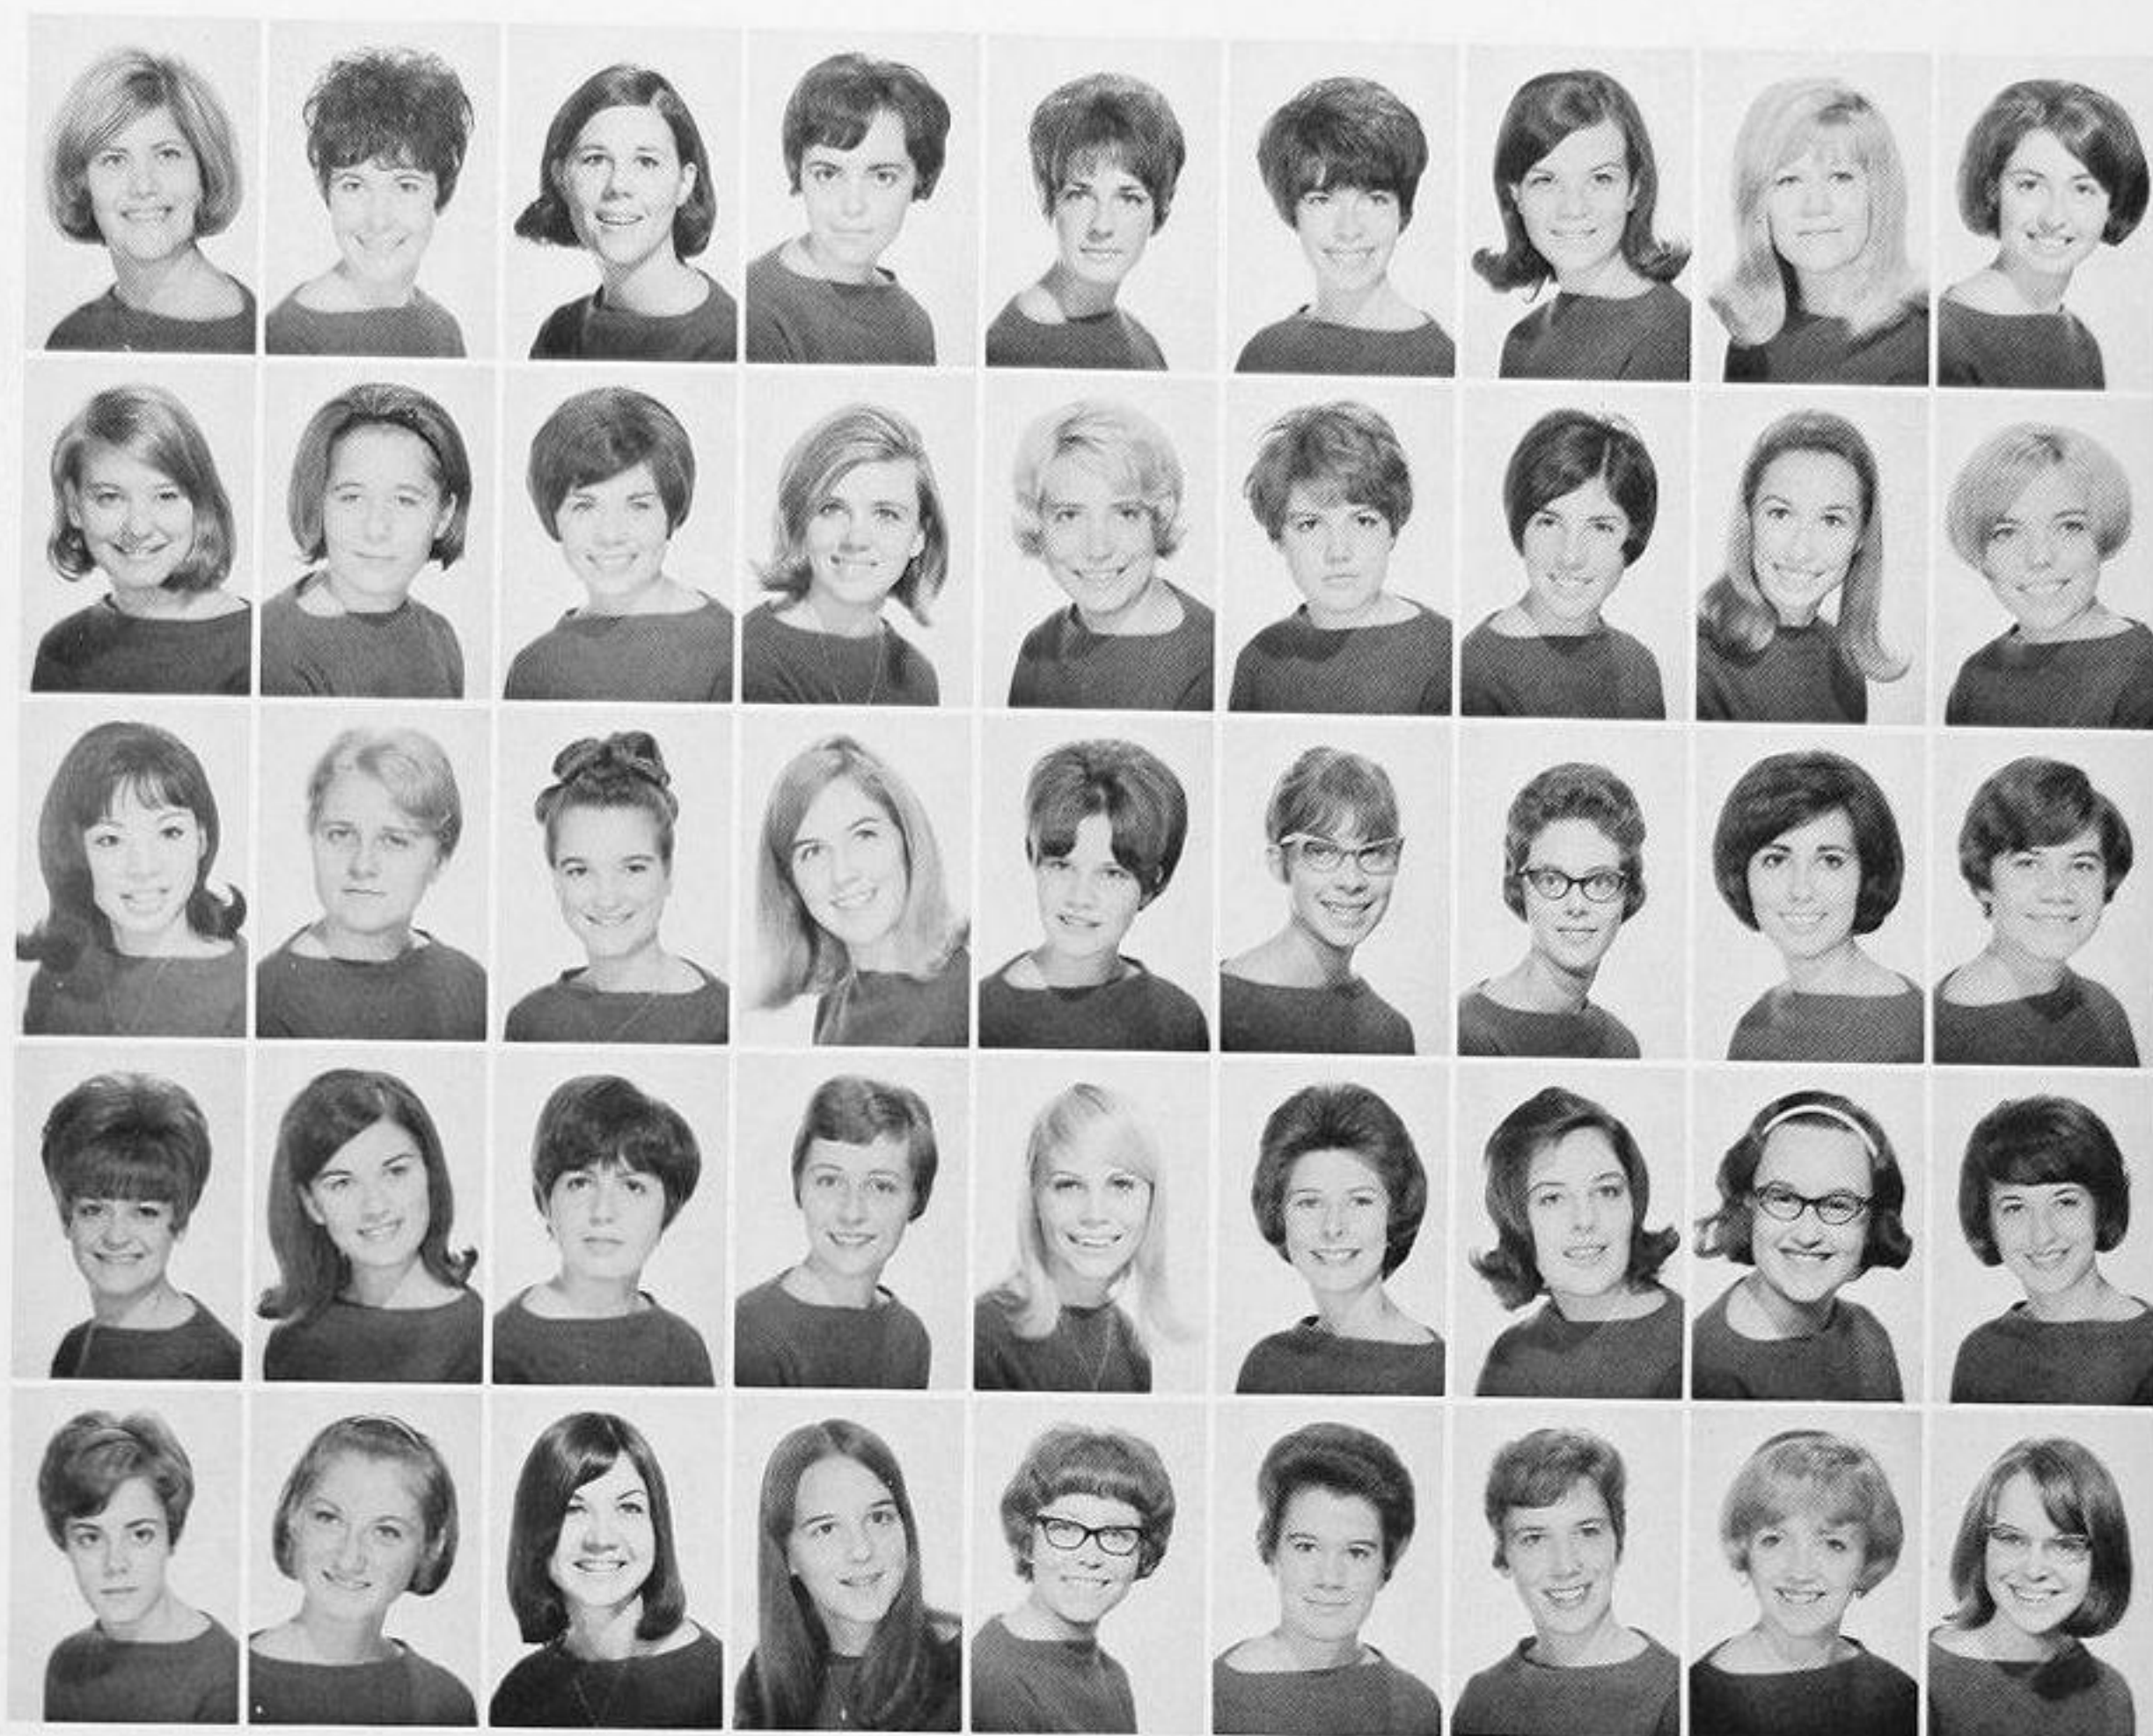

Mercer House launched the new year with all the sparkle of pink champagne, welcoming 78 new girls and Mrs. Dick, adviser.

Mercer won the women's intramural swim marathon, and volleyball "hopefuls" became champs. Together with Baker, the "Purple Onions" won the reserved tickets for the homecoming game.

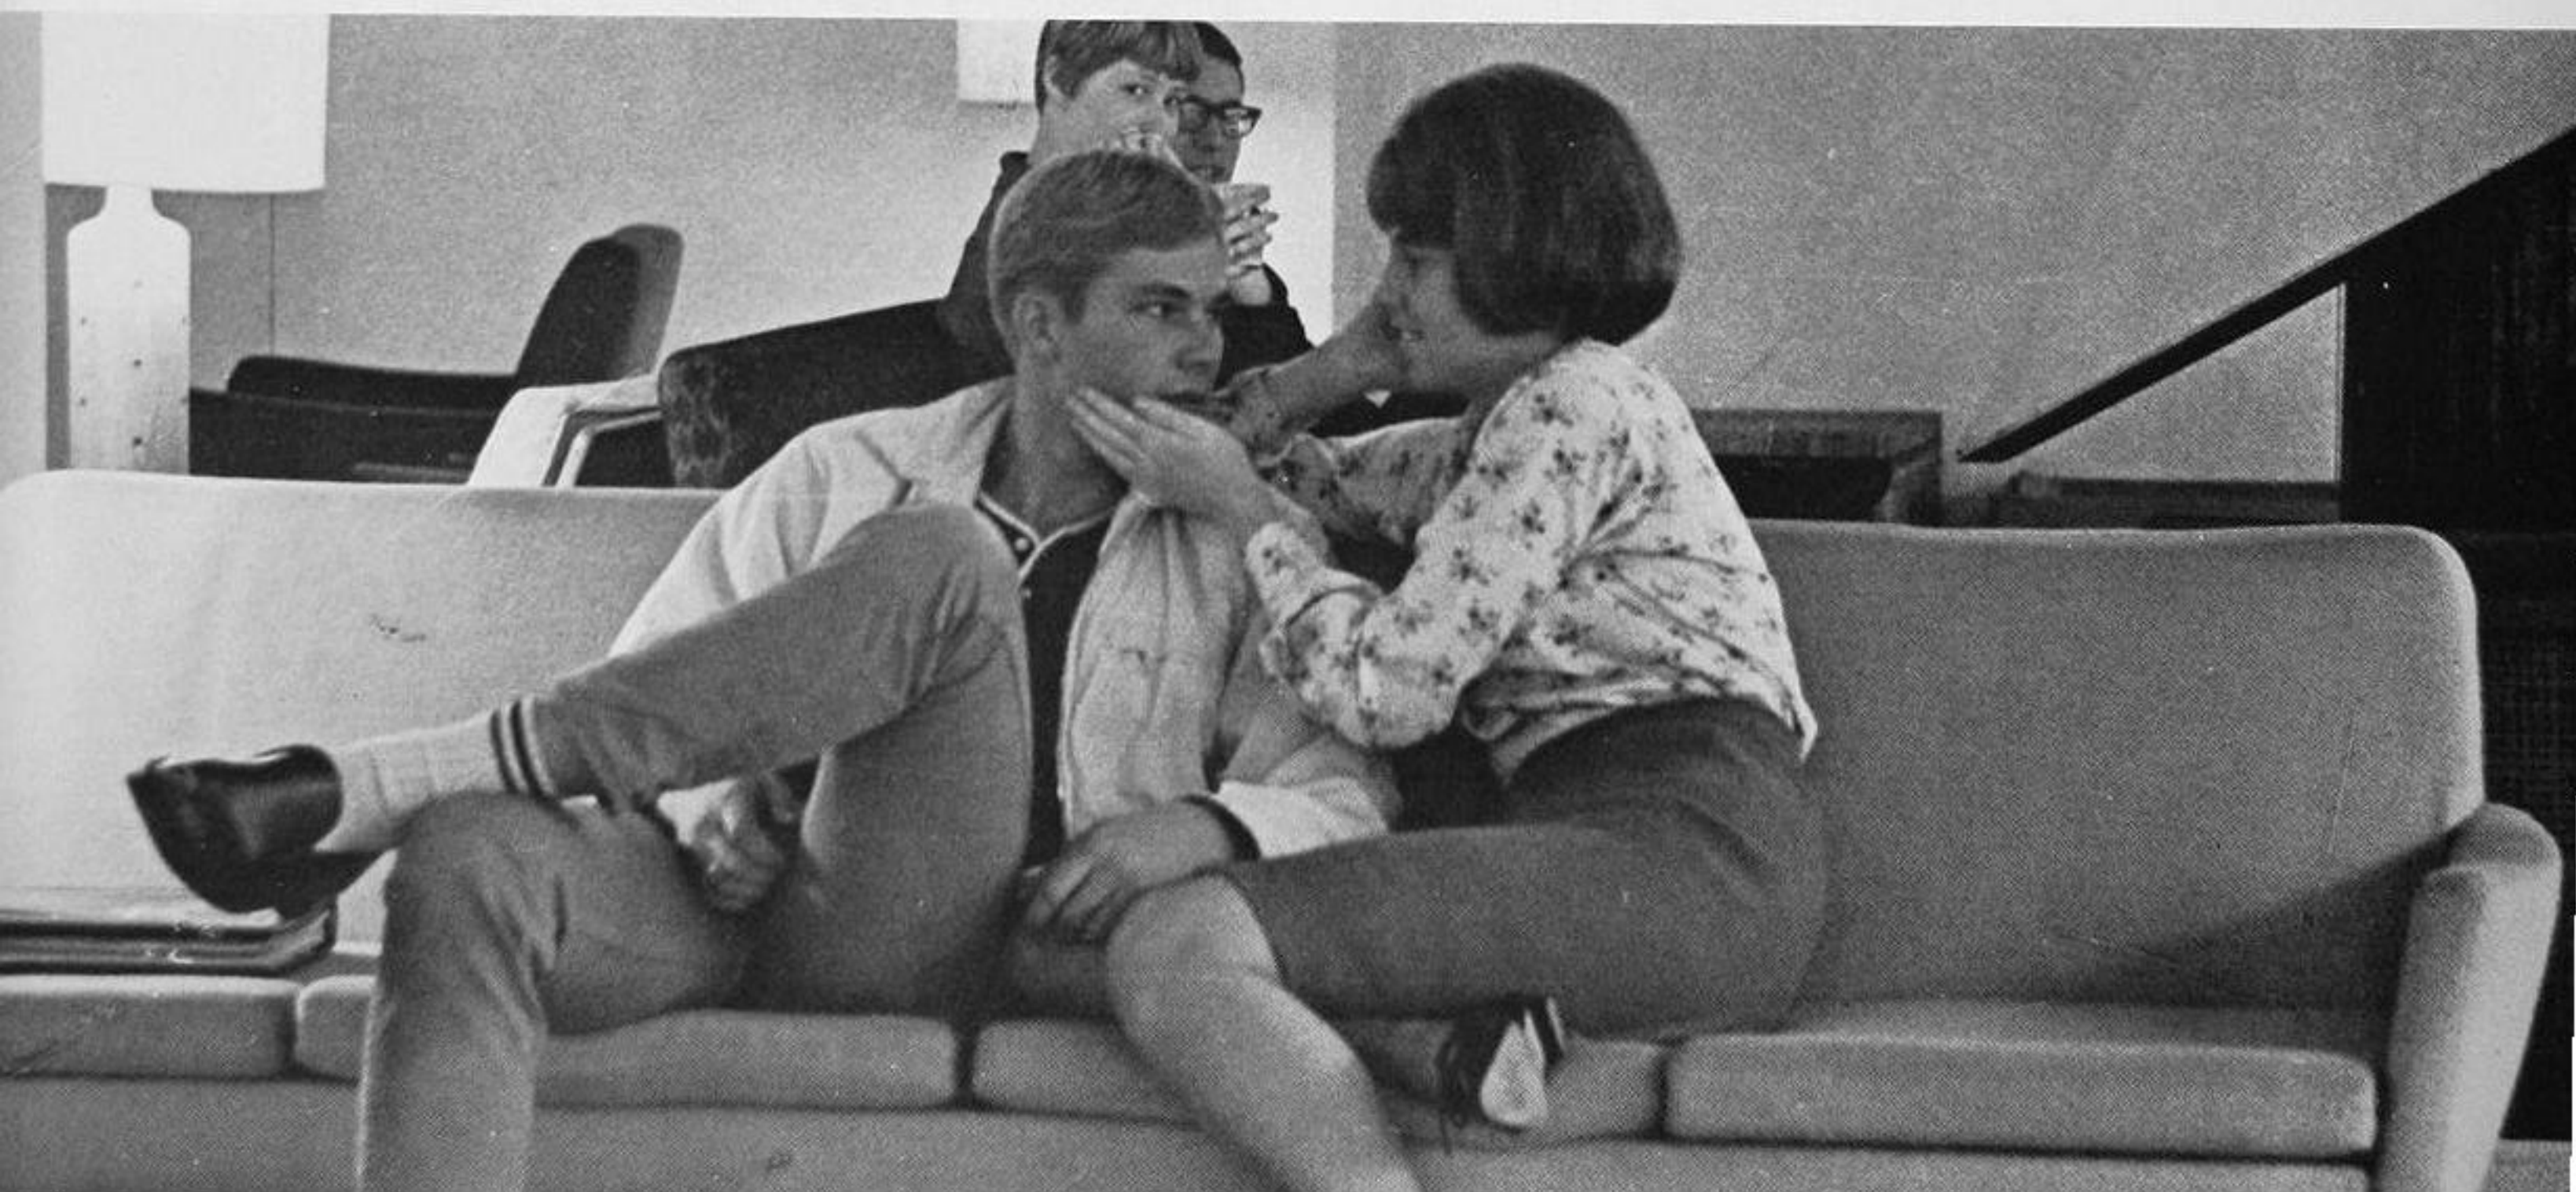

Two Corvettes, an Angel, and the president of Women's Recreational Council helped create the spirit which made this "a go-go" year for Mercer.

Stuart girls—the “Lively Ones”—campaigned, ponded, participated and even studied this year. Judy and Chris captured top WIHC positions and Bev became RHC secretary. Sharon Maeda served on BOC and Sally Tobin took care of AWS correspondence.

Together with Air Force, Stuart girls gave the March of Dimes Telethon an all-night crew—and in return got an all-night party.

With the money earned from sponsoring an open dance, Stuart was able to bring its own foreign student to Washington from Panama.

Song Fest, “Music Man,” Oscars, Thursday night pondings, pajamas, ice cream and Mrs. Luckey made the year a memorable one for the girls of Stuart.

Safeco, Rainier Provide Zest For Dotson House

Do you grunt and groan when that alarm rings? Are your mornings dull and unexciting?

Come alive! Join Dotson House where Safeco's flashes of profundity team up with inspiring views of Mt. Rainier to make mornings bearable.

Besides their daily inspirational, Dotson members found extra entertainment in broken elevators, slippery hallways (drat those new carpets!), pondings, pinnings, and pajama parties.

"Brother" Doug turned big model for the house banquet but was no match for Randy and Hans, the honorary playboys.

Dotson House not only came alive; it was a fun place to live.

"... And the (Safeco?) sign flashed out its warning, in the words that it was forming ..."

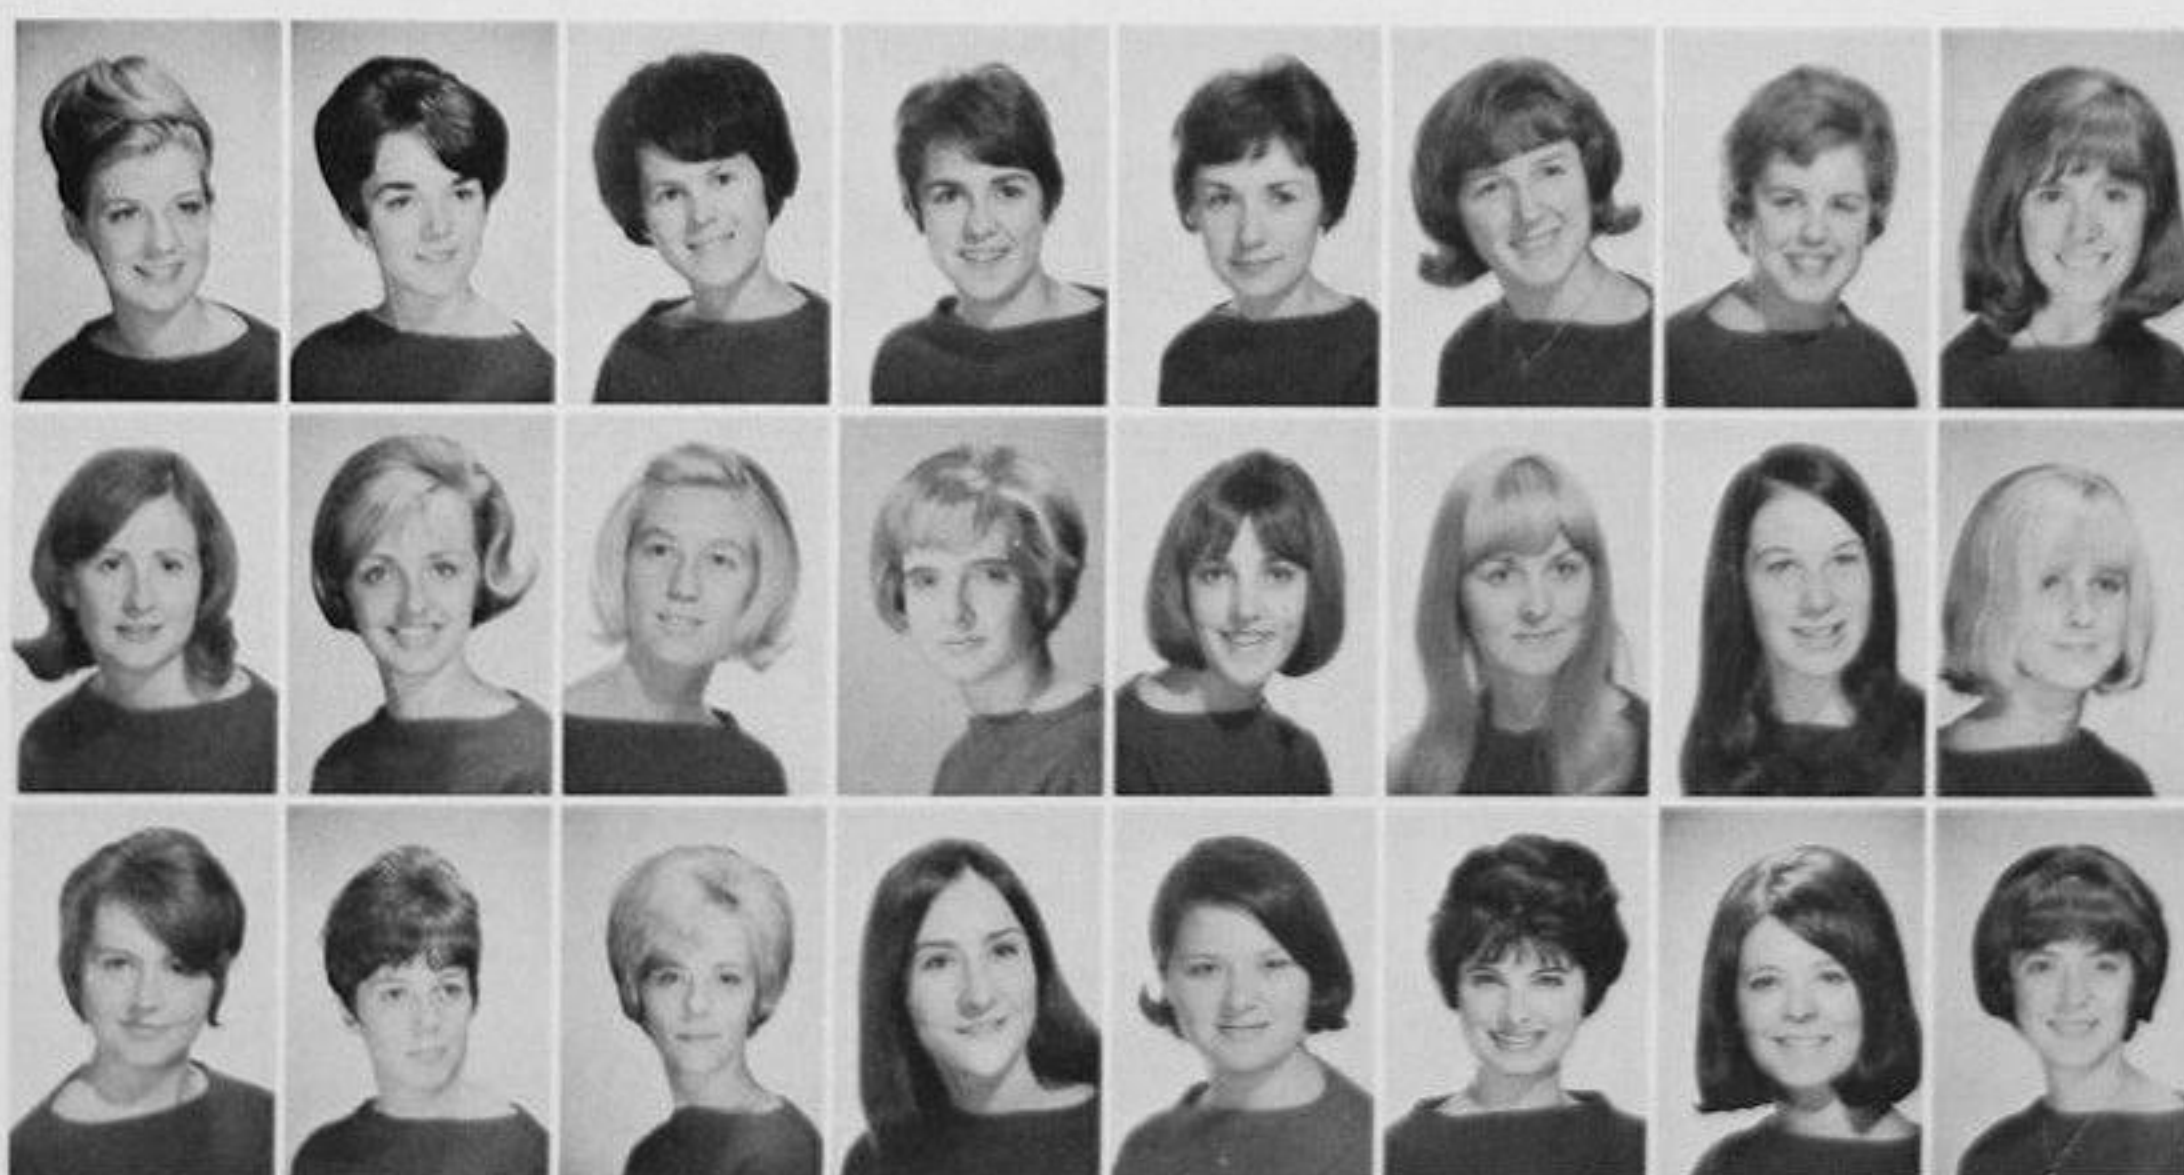

Honderich House: First To Go Up, Last To Come Down In Lander

It's unique; it's out of the ordinary; its unprecedented; it's GIRLS in the MEN'S DORMS.

They invaded Lander Hall and liked sixth floor so much they decided to stay and call it their Honderich home. New traditions had to be created—like the first birthday ponding and the Open Lounge. Then there was that mystical floating mattress in the lobby.

Enchanced by the nearness of Rofere, a distinct air prevails in Honderich. Up in Lander, they are the first to go up but the last to come down.

Macgregor Wins Saiyuk Scholarship Award

Fourth Floor, Lander Hall is the place where the men of Macgregor combine work with pleasure. Athletic championships in bowling and basketball blended well with social functions to broaden the interests of Macgregor House members. A house choir participated in Song Fest. The men also received the Saiyuk Scholastic Award by earning the highest grade point average in the Terry-Lander complex.

They have learned a great deal, not only through their courses, but also through living together.

After a house meeting to weigh the possible repercussions of their act, it's into the drink for another hapless Macgregor ponding victim. Who's next—the adviser perhaps?

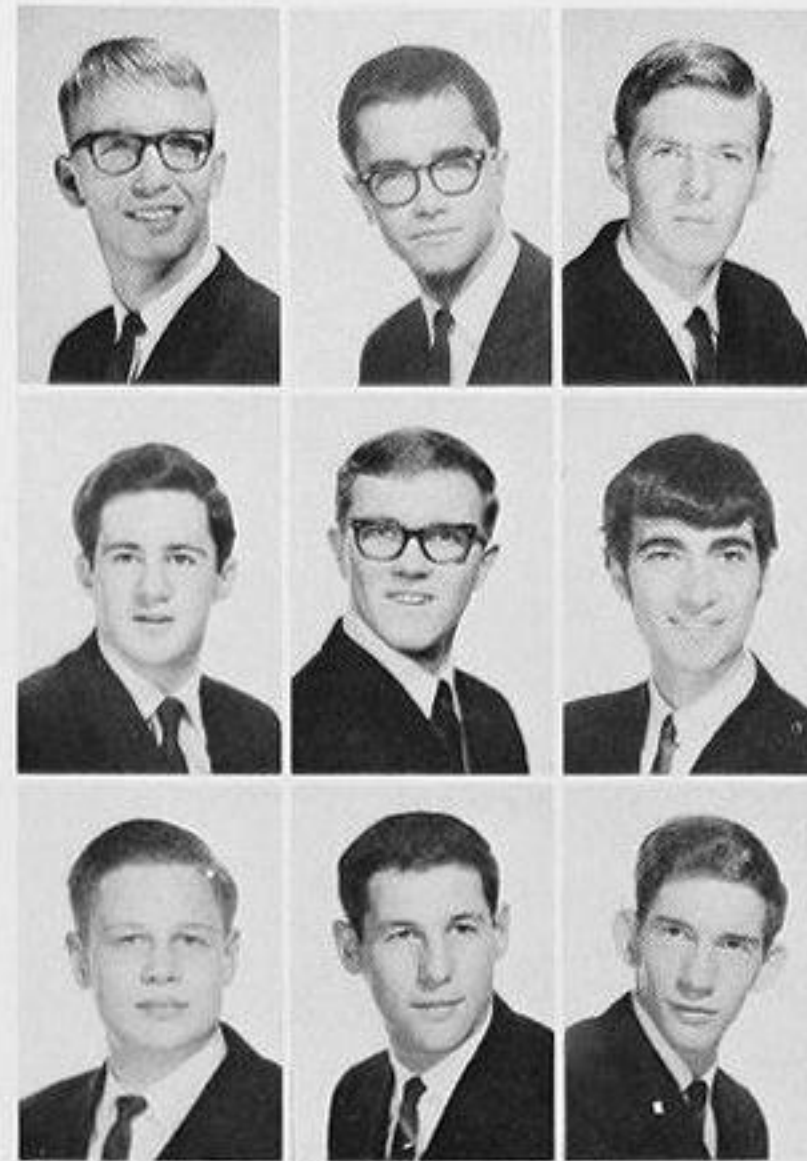

Maverick Hosts Halloween Exchange

To provide a cultural, social and academic extension to the classroom, is the purpose of Maverick House. This year Pamela headed the culture campaign while Bud took care of social affairs. The literary words of "Dell" and Hoyle led the academic field.

Spontaneous events were often initiated by Rod, our double "A," the trio of Frank, Rock and Norm with their guitars, Howie with perfect confusion in 352, Tom's roommate Lucky (and he has been so far), and cries of "How 'bout a little knuckle?" ringing through the hall.

Organized events were accented by the traditional pondings, the Maverick exchanges and sponsored "tea parties."

McLean Friendships Complement Stark Academia At 'Big U'

From September greetings to June goodbyes, the women of McLean have fond memories of their second year at Lander.

Studies were often set aside as the girls gathered for after-hours hen sessions in the newly-furnished lounge. Social chairman Jamie spent a few freezing minutes in frosh pond—her reward for another successful exchange. And who could forget the visit to the zoo with the men of Maverick?

When the going got rough, Jane and Patty were there to lend advice and moral support. They came to the rescue, too, when the whole floor was trapped in their "Seventh Heaven" by an out-of-order elevator.

For McLean it was a year of cooperative living which complemented the stark academic education gained at the "Big U."

McMahon Hall reopened its doors last fall with more than a thousand residents, a new board of officers to head its skeleton government and numerous building improvements designed to accommodate the hall's "older student" populace.

Housing mainly upperclass and graduate students, McMahon can be just a place to hang a hat, or more—depending on the individual. This year programs were provided by residents and advisers and ranged from Andante literary magazine to hootenannies and art exhibits. Informal gatherings in the new coffee house had surroundings of low lights and barrel tables.

The unique feature of McMahon is cluster living. Each cluster houses eight to ten students in four to six double and single rooms approximating life in an apartment. Close inter-relationships develop with the accompanying problems, but McMahonites would have it no other way. Lounge and balcony facilities are used for study or social events, and the "open lounge policy" allows co-ed activities. Generally, students feel a unique living experience occurs in the cluster system with 'older' residents.

Men Of Baker Live Up To Legend With Ski Chalet, Hayloft; MOB Violence Reigns Supreme In Zoo With No Bars

Fall was the time when 120 Bakerites learned to live up to the legend—in the land where the zoo has no bars, the bears no teeth, the Head Resident no hair and MOB Violence still rules. The memory of the "Bed and Board Rebellion of 1966" still lingered in the air.

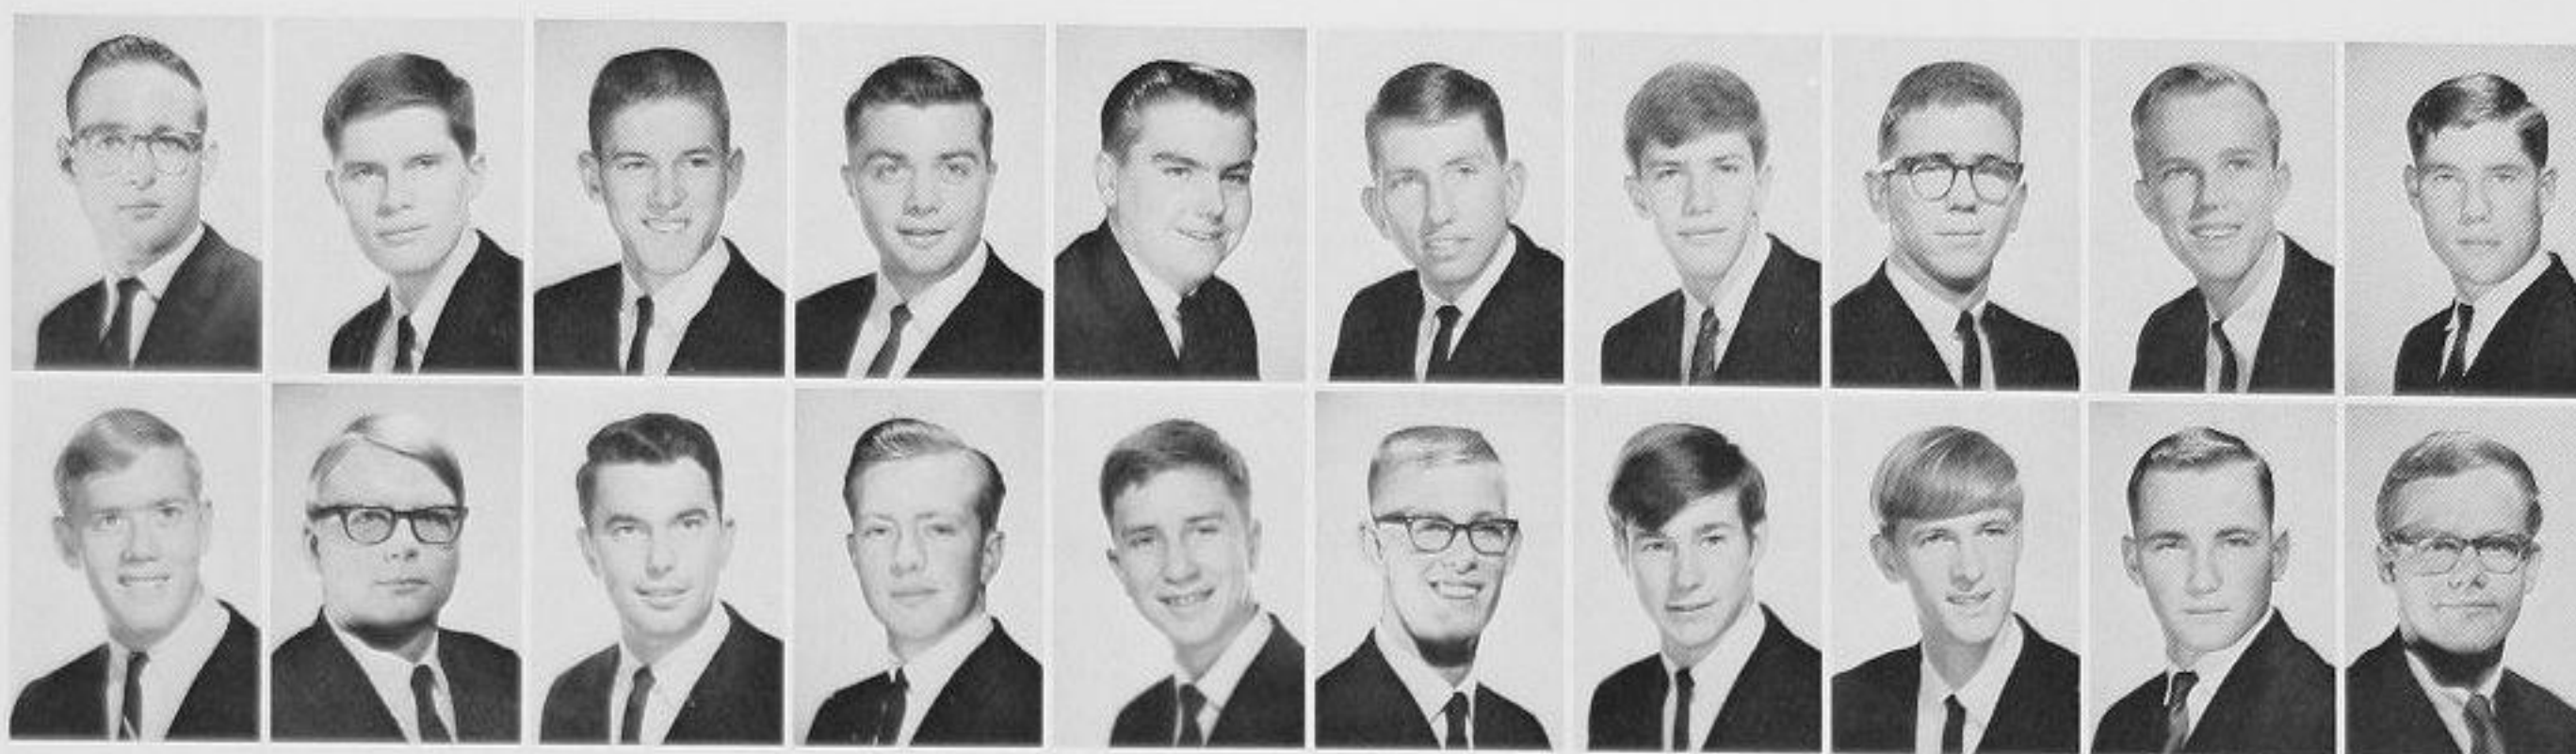

The football and wrestling teams almost made it to the top. Two snow lovers built a ski chalet on the seventh floor. The lounge dances had hayloft hanky-panky.

The all-night sessions that solved the world's problems continued. And there was always that spectacular view of the "ARE YOU"—"WATCHING"—"THE ROAD?" sign. Past memories included the all-night train to WSU and the infamous Christmas party. Then came the "Oriental Fantasy" (that was the house formal, not the Red Guards). It was a full, fun year for the men of Baker.

First stop on the Tyee tour of Cascade House, ideal location for discriminating men students, is the lounge, forum for democratic living, arena for championship card games and chamber of horrors.

Dominating the lounge is a mural, painted by mistake. The unclad Indian maiden in the lower corner was recently declared without redeeming social value and will be wearing a miniskirt next year.

Passing the cave of the Finegold, mythical lox-and-bagel-eating creature, the tour moves on to the room of John, keeper of the passkey, twice locked in the room.

Good-bye is said at the elevators, stone-age relics working even today—occasionally.

Olympus Takes Incentive With Radio KEG, Top Fall Grades

The veterans of Olympus arrived in September in varying conditions. The "pledges" were wondering what it was all about. President Doug Southard moved into residence in 301 and began instigating new plans. One of the major successes of the year came when "Oly" beat MOHC to the punch with Terry Hall's first color television in the lounge.

Radio KEG arrived and the engineers went to work. After endless experimenting it went into operation winter quarter, broadcasting throughout Terry Hall. With the first three floors of Terry and 150 members, "Oly" was the largest living group on campus. The judicial council cracked down on noise and it payed off when Olympus topped Terry Hall in GPA fall quarter.

Rainier is cool, smooth, crystal clear. But Rainier House is red hot, setting the world on fire, leaving a cloud of smoke behind.

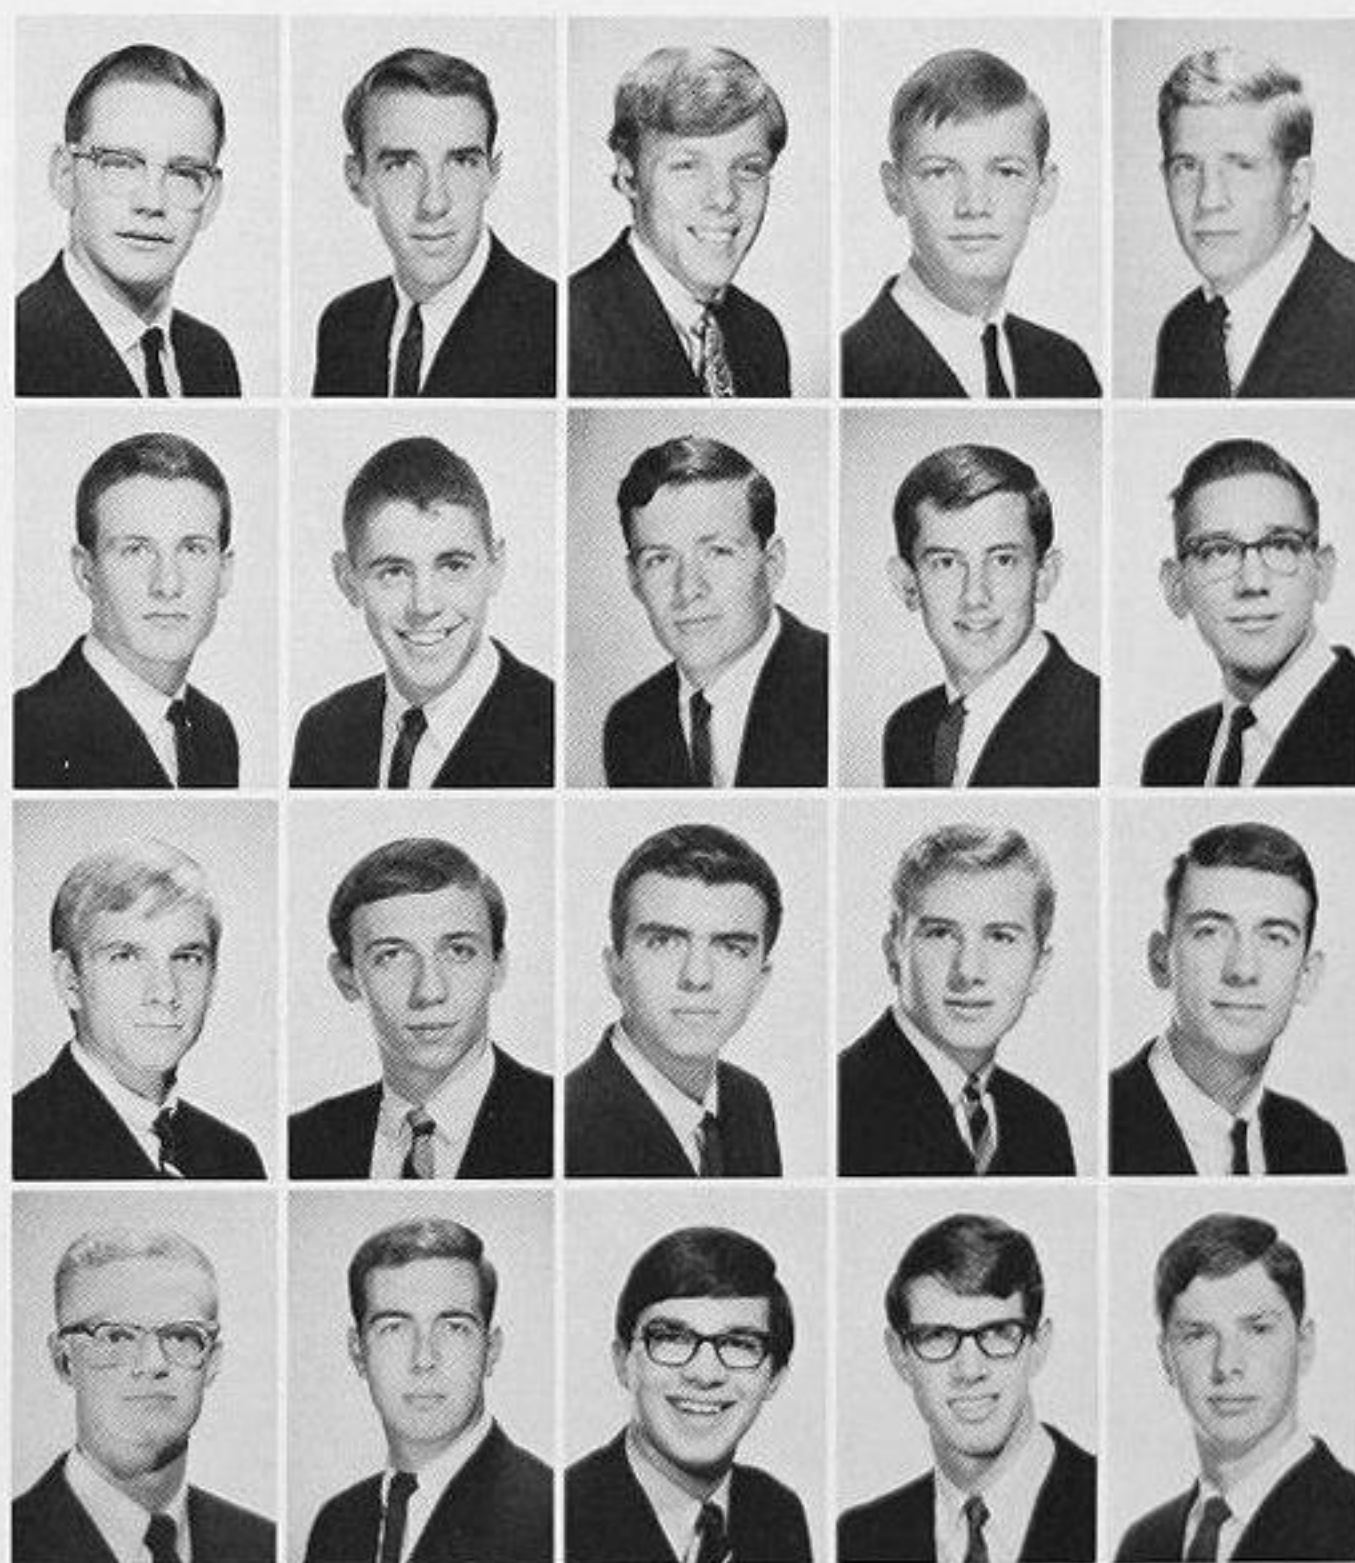

It's a house of nicknames — Uncle Willie, Lizard, Flesh Gardin, Phantom, and Great Evil. Captain Dale ran a tight sound ship while Big Daddy "Dizzy" Dicks advised why not to steal beds and why the pond is cold. Señor Reach, the head sheet man, was always quick to fix a light or unlock a door.

The exchanges, the banquets, the WSU train trip, and Rainier Orientation Weekend dance were all brought about by the men of Rainier who lived and worked together to make a very good year.

IFC Captures National Award —Best In Nation

The Inter-Fraternity Council has the responsibility of government among the thirty-one fraternities on campus. The University's IFC has been honored by the National Inter-Fraternity Council as number one in the United States.

The house presidents meet about once a month to discuss and vote on rules, policies, and programs. The coordination of formal Rush Week each fall is the largest task delegated to IFC. The use of IBM machines for programming has streamlined the system and brought about favorable results, including a ninety-six percent pledge total. Work continues throughout the year in the areas of scholarship, faculty relations, high school relations, communication, and service projects relating to the university community.

Fraternity System's Pi Omicron Sigma Honors Greek Men

Pi Omicron Sigma was founded at the University of Washington in 1954 by a group of Inter-Fraternity Council officers under the direction of their Dean of Men Dr. Glen T. Tygreen, who recognized the need for honoring outstanding senior fraternity men. These individuals have made effective contributions to fraternity welfare and give promise of continuing their effective work toward maintaining and extending the educational leadership of the fraternity system.

In recent years outstanding men have been given honorary membership in Pi Omicron Sigma as recognition for their contribution to the fraternity system at the University.

Since its founding, the name of Pi Omicron Sigma has spread across the United States. It is hoped that its name will soon be nationally established.

JIFC officers Chip Pankow, vice president; Kurt Bulmer, president, and Ron Adolphi, secretary-treasurer, led the organization toward mutual cooperation among pledges.

Junior Inter-Fraternity Council provides its 31 members with the opportunity to discuss mutual problems, to bring out new ideas, and to focus the united efforts of pledges on specific projects. By exposing individual leaders to functions of an all-fraternity organization it is hoped that interest will be developed which will carry over to IFC in the following years. With this goal in mind, JIFC continues to work for the fraternity system, the University and the community.

Panhellenic Coordinates Sorority System, Represents Greek Women On Campus And Off

Paula Kruger, treasurer, and Janet Smith, first vice president.

Gloria Porter, secretary.

Panhellenic is the united coordinating body of the sorority system. Composed of nine officers, two advisers and the presidents from each of the twenty sorority houses, Panhellenic organizes and controls both formal and informal rush. During winter quarter Panhellenic sponsors an Inspirational Kickoff Tea, followed in the spring by a training retreat for all members. The organization works closely with Interfraternity Council, co-sponsoring the Greek Letter and an annual spring conference.

Junior Panhellenic is an association that attempts to foster friendship and cooperation among the pledges of the sororities on campus. It also trains pledges in the organization and policies of the Panhellenic program and promotes high scholarship by giving financial aid to an entering freshman girl from the State of Washington.

With this in mind activities such as an apple sale and the Mothers March of Dimes with JIFC are planned to bring about better communication between the pledge class members. Money earned from the apple sale provides the funds necessary for the scholarship.

Discussions between the pledge class presidents and advisers and speakers bring a better understanding to all.

Junior Panhellenic Unites Coed Pledges

Pledge class presidents meet once a month to plan Junior Panhellenic activities.

Acacia Loses Skins, Bull, Pledge, Oar; Gains Still Being Counted

Returning from Turkey, New Orleans, Barcelona, Norway and Mercer Island, the men of the ivy-covered palace returned for another year of studies and intramural reading. The pledges had a well-planned sneak; but who invited the actives? Winter quarter and the "Week" saw the initiation of the best pledge class since '66. Acacia had its first week-end function. Except for Monday's classes, it was a huge spring success. Sharman was our sweetheart.

The year's losses included one Bull, five skins, one pledge and one oar which all showed up in the end.

The gains are still being counted.

Alpha Delta Pi Adds New Wing

Alpha Delta Pi went into rush this year with a new addition and emerged with thirty-six outstanding pledges.

As the year progressed, honors and activities began to fill already busy schedules; a Navy Queen was joined by a Homecoming princess and Timber Queen. Mortar Board and Totem tapped several sisters. Miss Skipper Pin and University District Queen were active in Sea-fair. Brigadiers, Corvettes, Angel Flight, AWS first vice president, Husky Honeys' president, SAE Little Sisters of Minerva president and frosh cheerleaders were among A D Pi members.

The pledges spent their sneak in jail; the seniors, 30 members strong, tried their luck on a sneak, too.

It was a clear Thursday morning when the new pledge class arrived, signaling the start of a new year at A E Phi. Pledges were introduced to Gilda from Bogota, Colombia, and our wonderful Housemother Mrs. Barringer.

All too soon the house was caught up in homecoming preparations, activities on campus (Corvettes, Brigadears, Rally Girls, College Bowl, Husky Honeys, Readers Theater and Program Panel), honoring moms and dads, Inspiration Week, candles being passed and the pledge formal with a champagne toast.

The year passed quickly, but the memories will linger in those "remember whens."

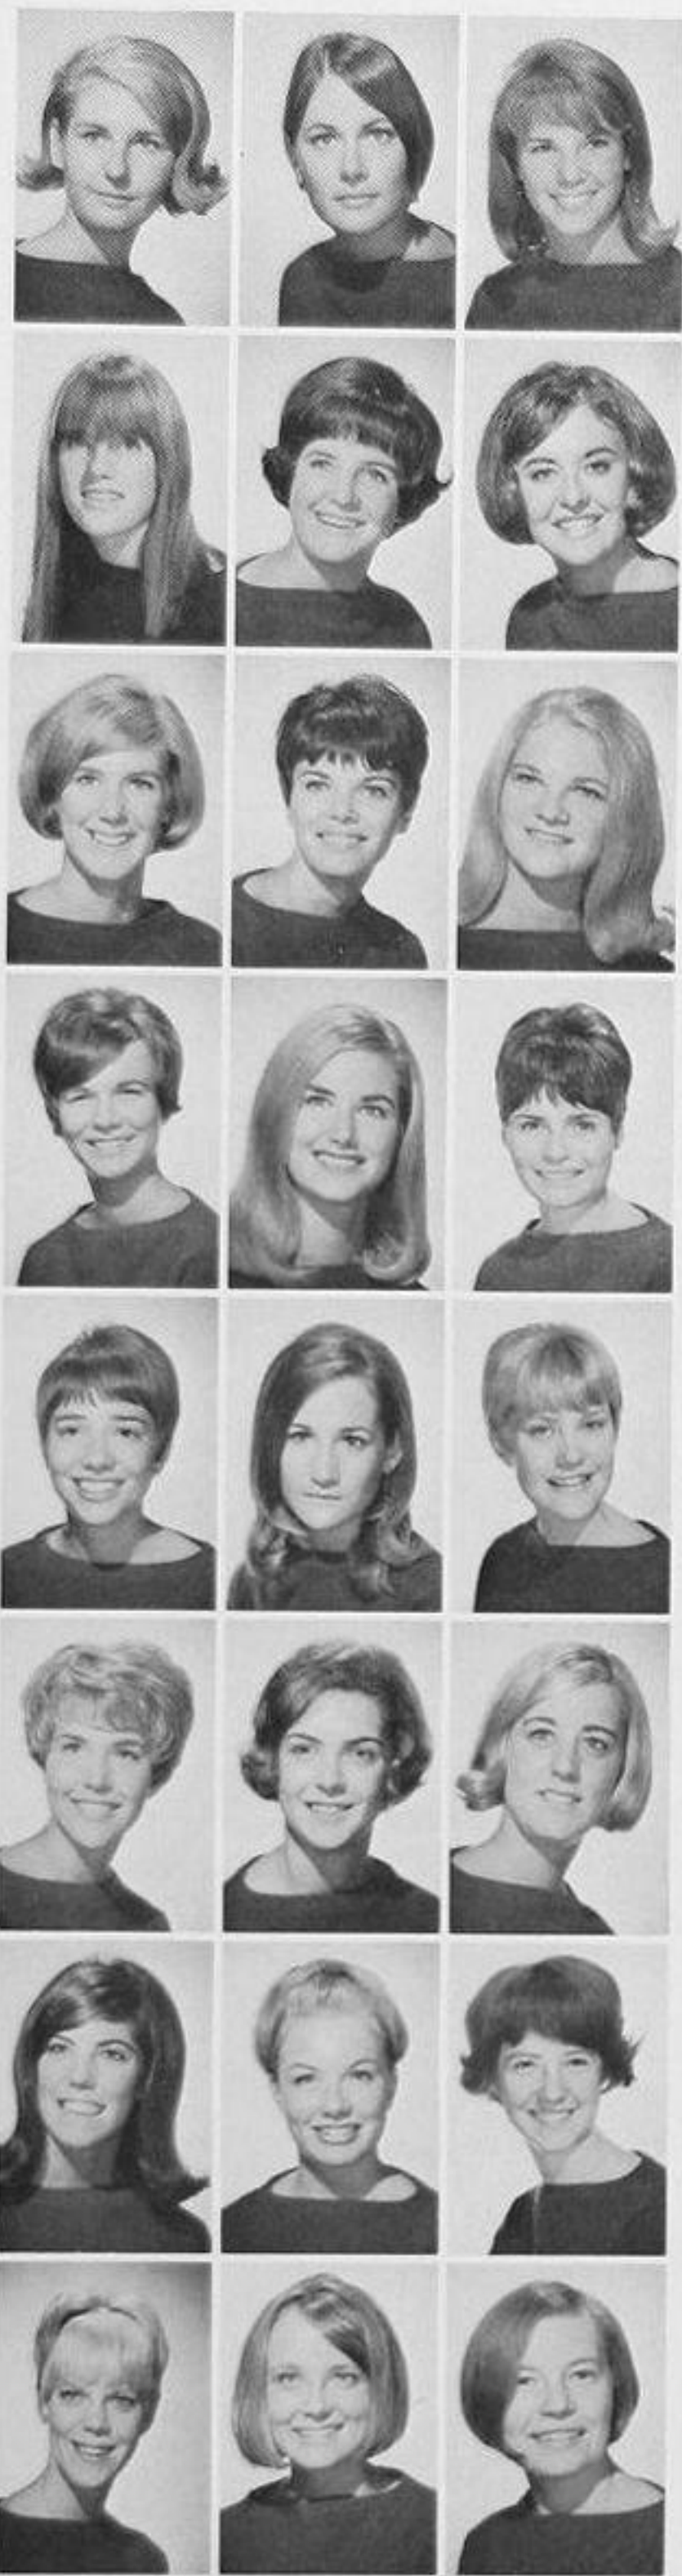

Princesses, Husky Honeys Among Alpha Gamma Deltas

This was a year of leadership and activities, laughter and studies for the Alpha Gam actives and their 36 new pledges. Besides the AWS secretary, they had Husky Honeys, and Corvettes, the Maid of Chi Psi, Winter Sports Club Princess and a Seafair Princess. No one could forget Margi's hairpiece lost in class, the Beta kidnap, chipped beef for lunch or the first place hillbilly homecoming skit.

Rush week is shaking hands, smiling, and no prospect for a room in the dorms or finding an apartment.

The excitement of rush and the work and fun together promised that Alpha Omicron Pi's fifty-first year at the U would be another golden year.

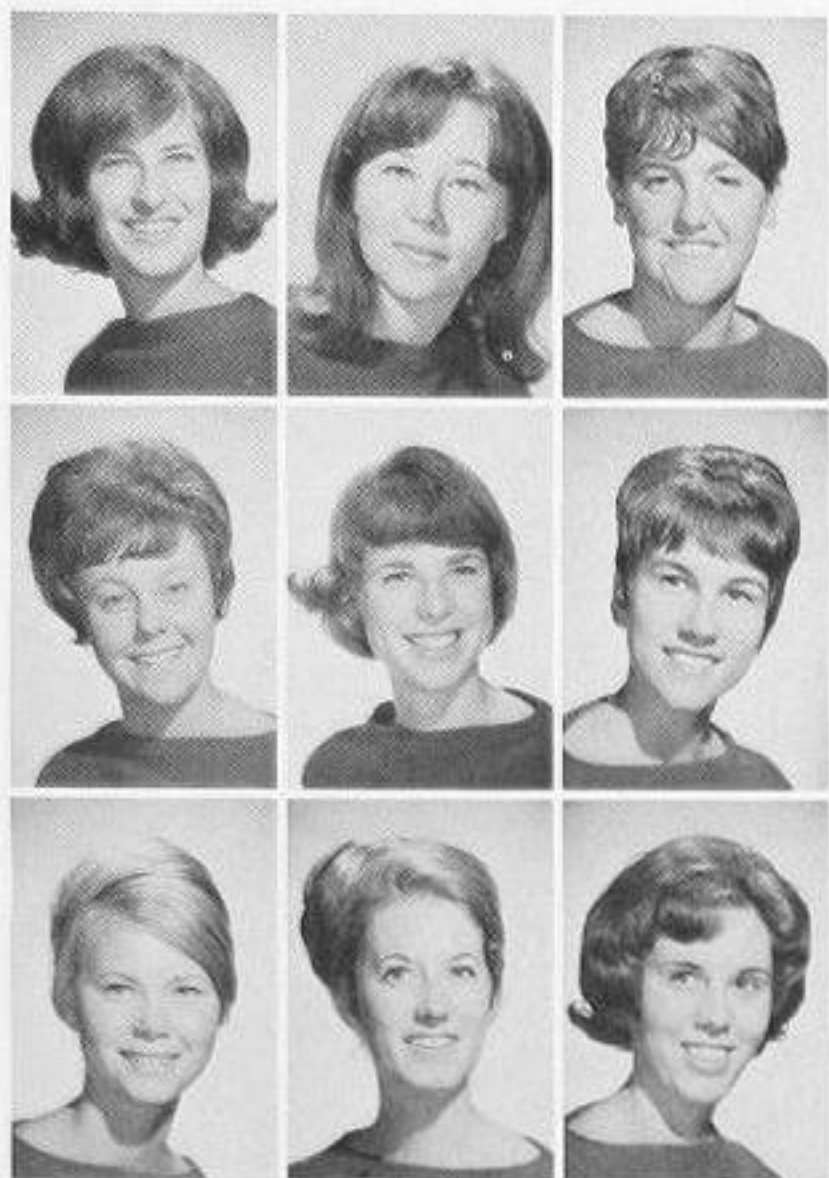

The pledge sneak succeeded, but the pledge tests were another story. Hanna became a Phi Beta Kappa and Ellen had a 4.0 freshman year. Homecoming saw Carol Ann on the court and the AO Pi-Phi Psi combination winning a first and a second.

AO Pi's led an active life by being busy Husky Honeys, Brigadears, and Corvettes. The Magnolia girls walked while others searched for the orange rug. But all met on Monday nights, and all enjoyed the second golden year.

Could that look in their eyes be the gleam of victory?

Who says sororities are secret? Not Alpha Phi! They let everyone on campus know they're around. Elections were fun and frantic for Rosemary and Robin, as well as for the rest of the house. Boasting members in Mortar Board, Totem Club, W-Key, Alpha Lambda Delta, and Theta Sigma Phi; Alpha Phi let the scholastic world know of their existence.

While civilian sisters were busy baking 200 dozen cookies for shipment to Marines in Viet Nam, "service with a smile was the by-word for Alpha Phi's in Corvettes, Angel Flight, and Brigadeers. Promoting harmony was the purpose of the sophomore-pledge sneak; that part of Alpha Phi was secret, but isn't it supposed to be?

Austrian Foreign Student Adds European Flavor To Fraternity Life; Alpha Sigma Phi Provides Intellectual Atmosphere

With an increased emphasis on well-rounded individuals, Alpha Sigma Phi entered the year with a new outlook on fraternity life.

Heinz Havas, foreign guest from Austria, added a European viewpoint to all-night bull sessions and an intellectual atmosphere to the house as a whole.

Campus life saw its share of Alpha Sigs in IFC, Sundodgers, Ugly Man on Campus, honoraries and athletics. The house placed high in intramural basketball, golf, softball and bowling.

Dances, ski parties, exchanges and the traditional Harrison Hot Springs house party provided a full social calendar.

In all it was a full year promising even more for the future.

Cast Of Alpha Tau Omega's Stage Big Production Number, Play Santa, Claim Skiing Honors, Week-End At Lake Chelan

Television coverage, tails and white ties, champagne, limousines, a dance following the main event, and a cast of Alpha Tau Omega's at the Olympic made the largest dance on the coast an unprecedented success.

In fact, the whole year was a success for the ATO's. There was the dance for the Oregon Tau's and a Lake Chelan weekend that proved a big hit.

One of the brothers played Santa Claus for underprivileged children at the annual rug-rat party.

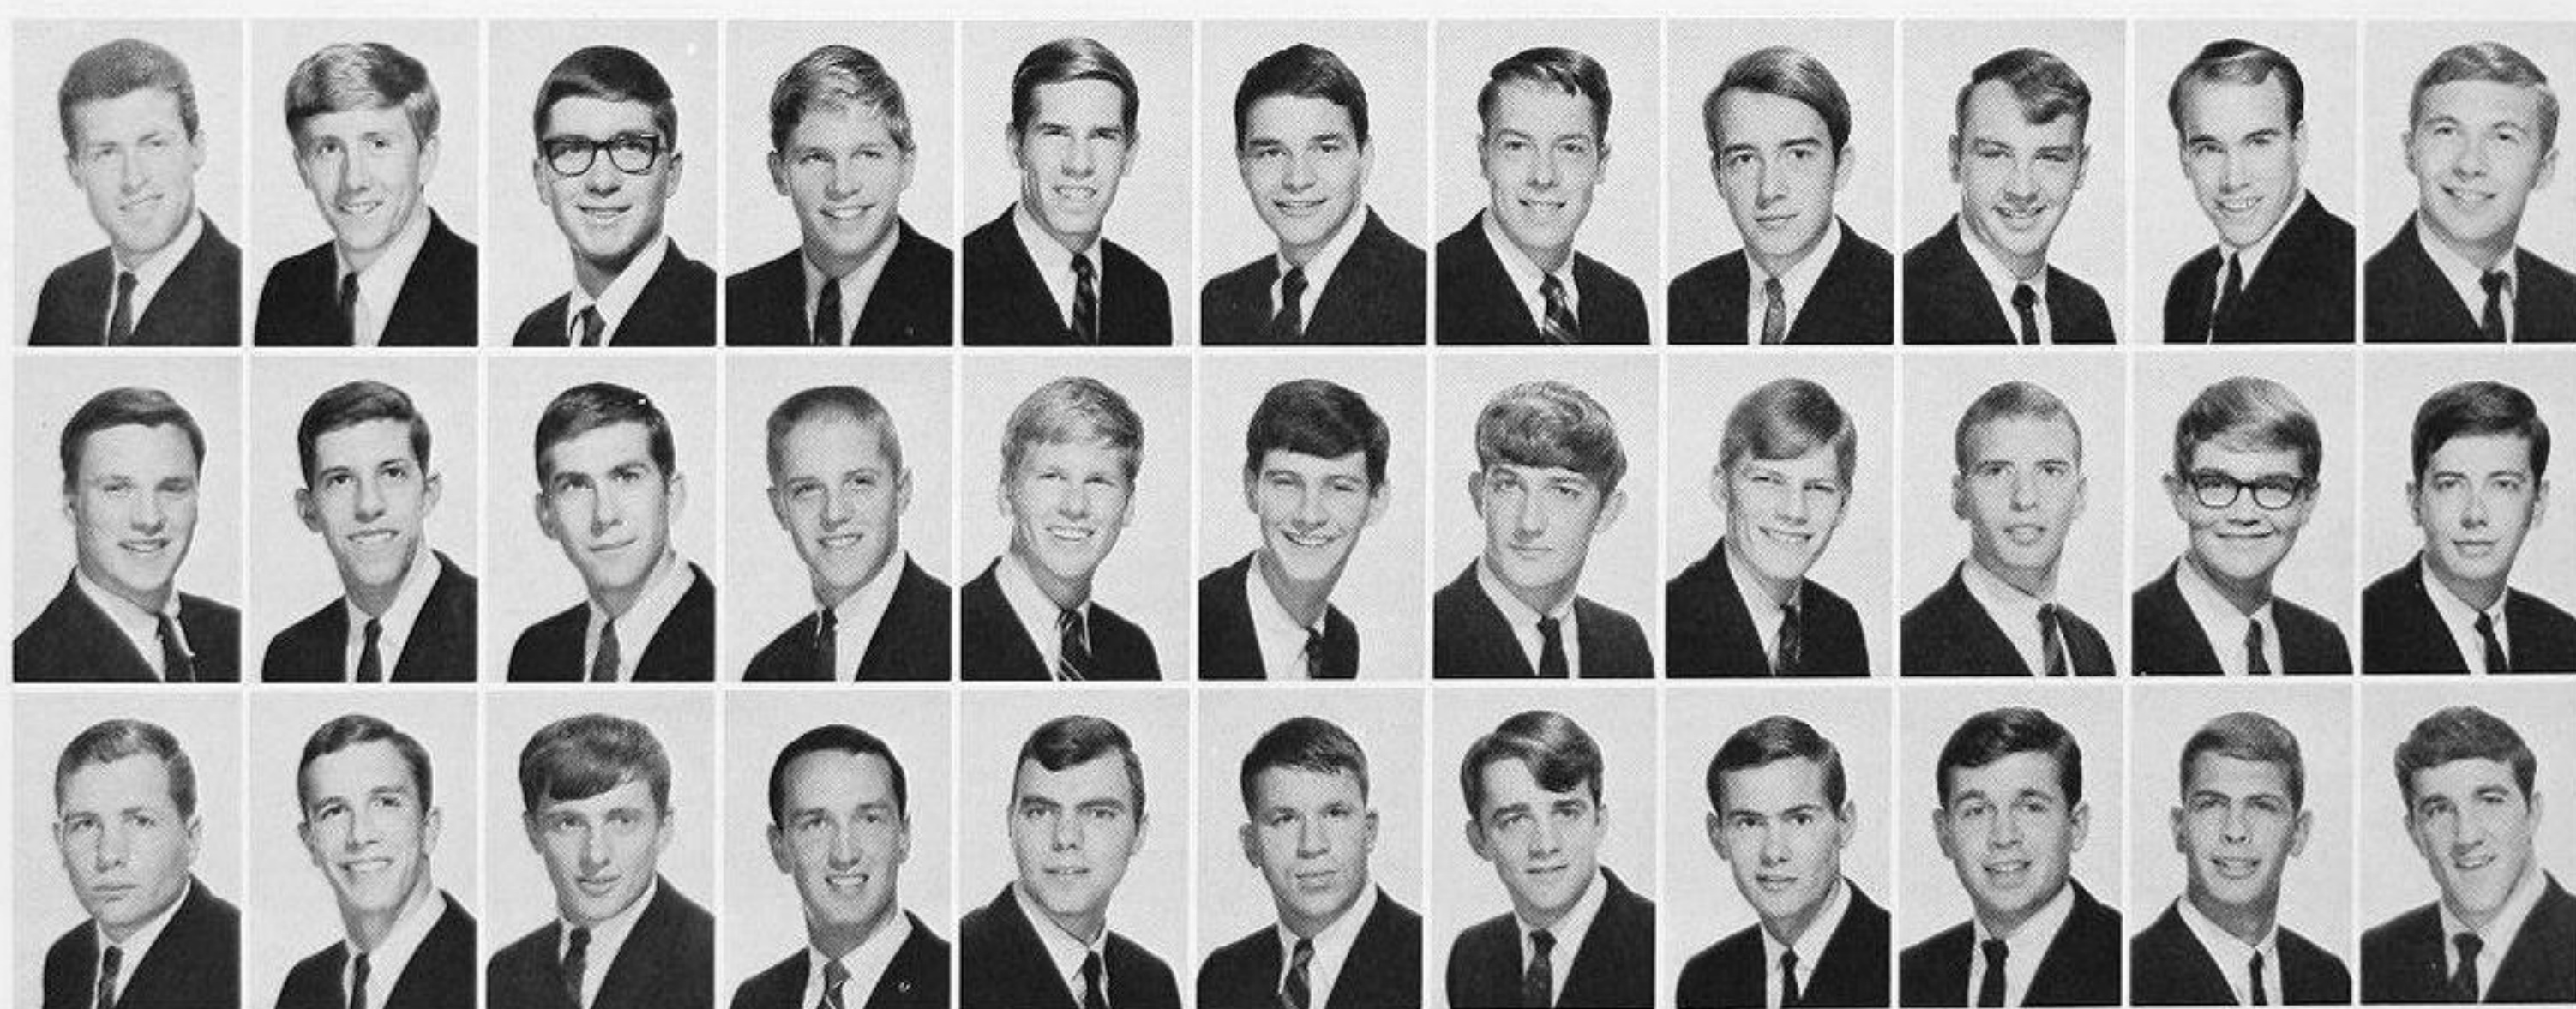

Sportswise, the intramural football team tied for the division championship. Two of the nation's top skiers captured many honors, and ATO's stood out in varsity and freshman wrestling and crew.

Alpha Xi Deltas participated in Las Vegas Nite (three hostesses), Totem (president), Mortar Board, AWS, Orchesis, Corvettes, Panhellenic (secretary), Acacia, PKA and International Ball Queen finalists and Rally Girls (eight in all).

What makes a house a home?

Some say a house is a home when the people inside work toward a common goal—a first quartile scholastic average or a winning Homecoming sign.

Others say a house becomes a home when the individuals within are respected like Chi O's Homecoming princess, outstanding sophomore and senior women, Phi Beta Kappa Scholarship winner, W-Key and Alpha Lambda Delta junior advisers.

Others say a home needs hard work and a flow of ideas from 35 pledges, busy actives and a Brazilian guest.

Chi O's have a house, and a home for every one.

Chi Psi House Bubbles Over With Brotherhood, Music

There's brotherhood in the Chi Psi house.

Brotherhood included Johnson carrying his cymbals down to the rec-room. While Dainard solved quartic equations in the Cub Scout room, Shane took contributions for a thousand-bottle bar with lights. Then fair damsels saved baa-baa-Brastow's homecoming sign as Kennedy invented the "instant date."

The Great Pumpkin struck again. This time it was a six o'clock fire alarm and tricks without treats.

Cook and Ostler ambushed Colonel Morrison and unsuspecting couples in Ravenna Park. Parker played "Tonight" every night. And no one could forget Wasilausky, the accordion-playing auto mechanic.

It was all brotherhood.

Delta Chi is a brotherhood of individuals, emphasizing scholarship and enjoying campus life. Fifth among fraternities scholastically, the house G.P.A. is good enough for entrance into grad school.

The Thunderbird Lodge ski party, formal at the Olympic, Luau and traditional Delta-She underline Delta Chi's second avowed purpose—to have fun.

Campus and Hub "jocks" include Las Vegas Nite and Christmas Party general chairmen, "Greek Letter" editor-in-chief, YD president, JIFC secretary-treasurer, IFC executive council and Sundodgers. Members also participate in varsity crew, swimming, track, baseball and tennis.

DG's Score 'Participation Plus'

At the convention this summer, the U.W. chapter of Delta Gamma received an award for being the most outstanding chapter in its province. Starting the new year, the pledge class, 38 strong, organized a clever sneak which surprised the whole house.

How about a swimming pool, complete with goldfish, in the pledge-trainer's room? A rip-roaring, western-style pledge dance (with "the Bumps"), a Halloween party and Homecoming ("The Huskies Beat the Bruins in a Broadway") sent D.G. spirit soaring.

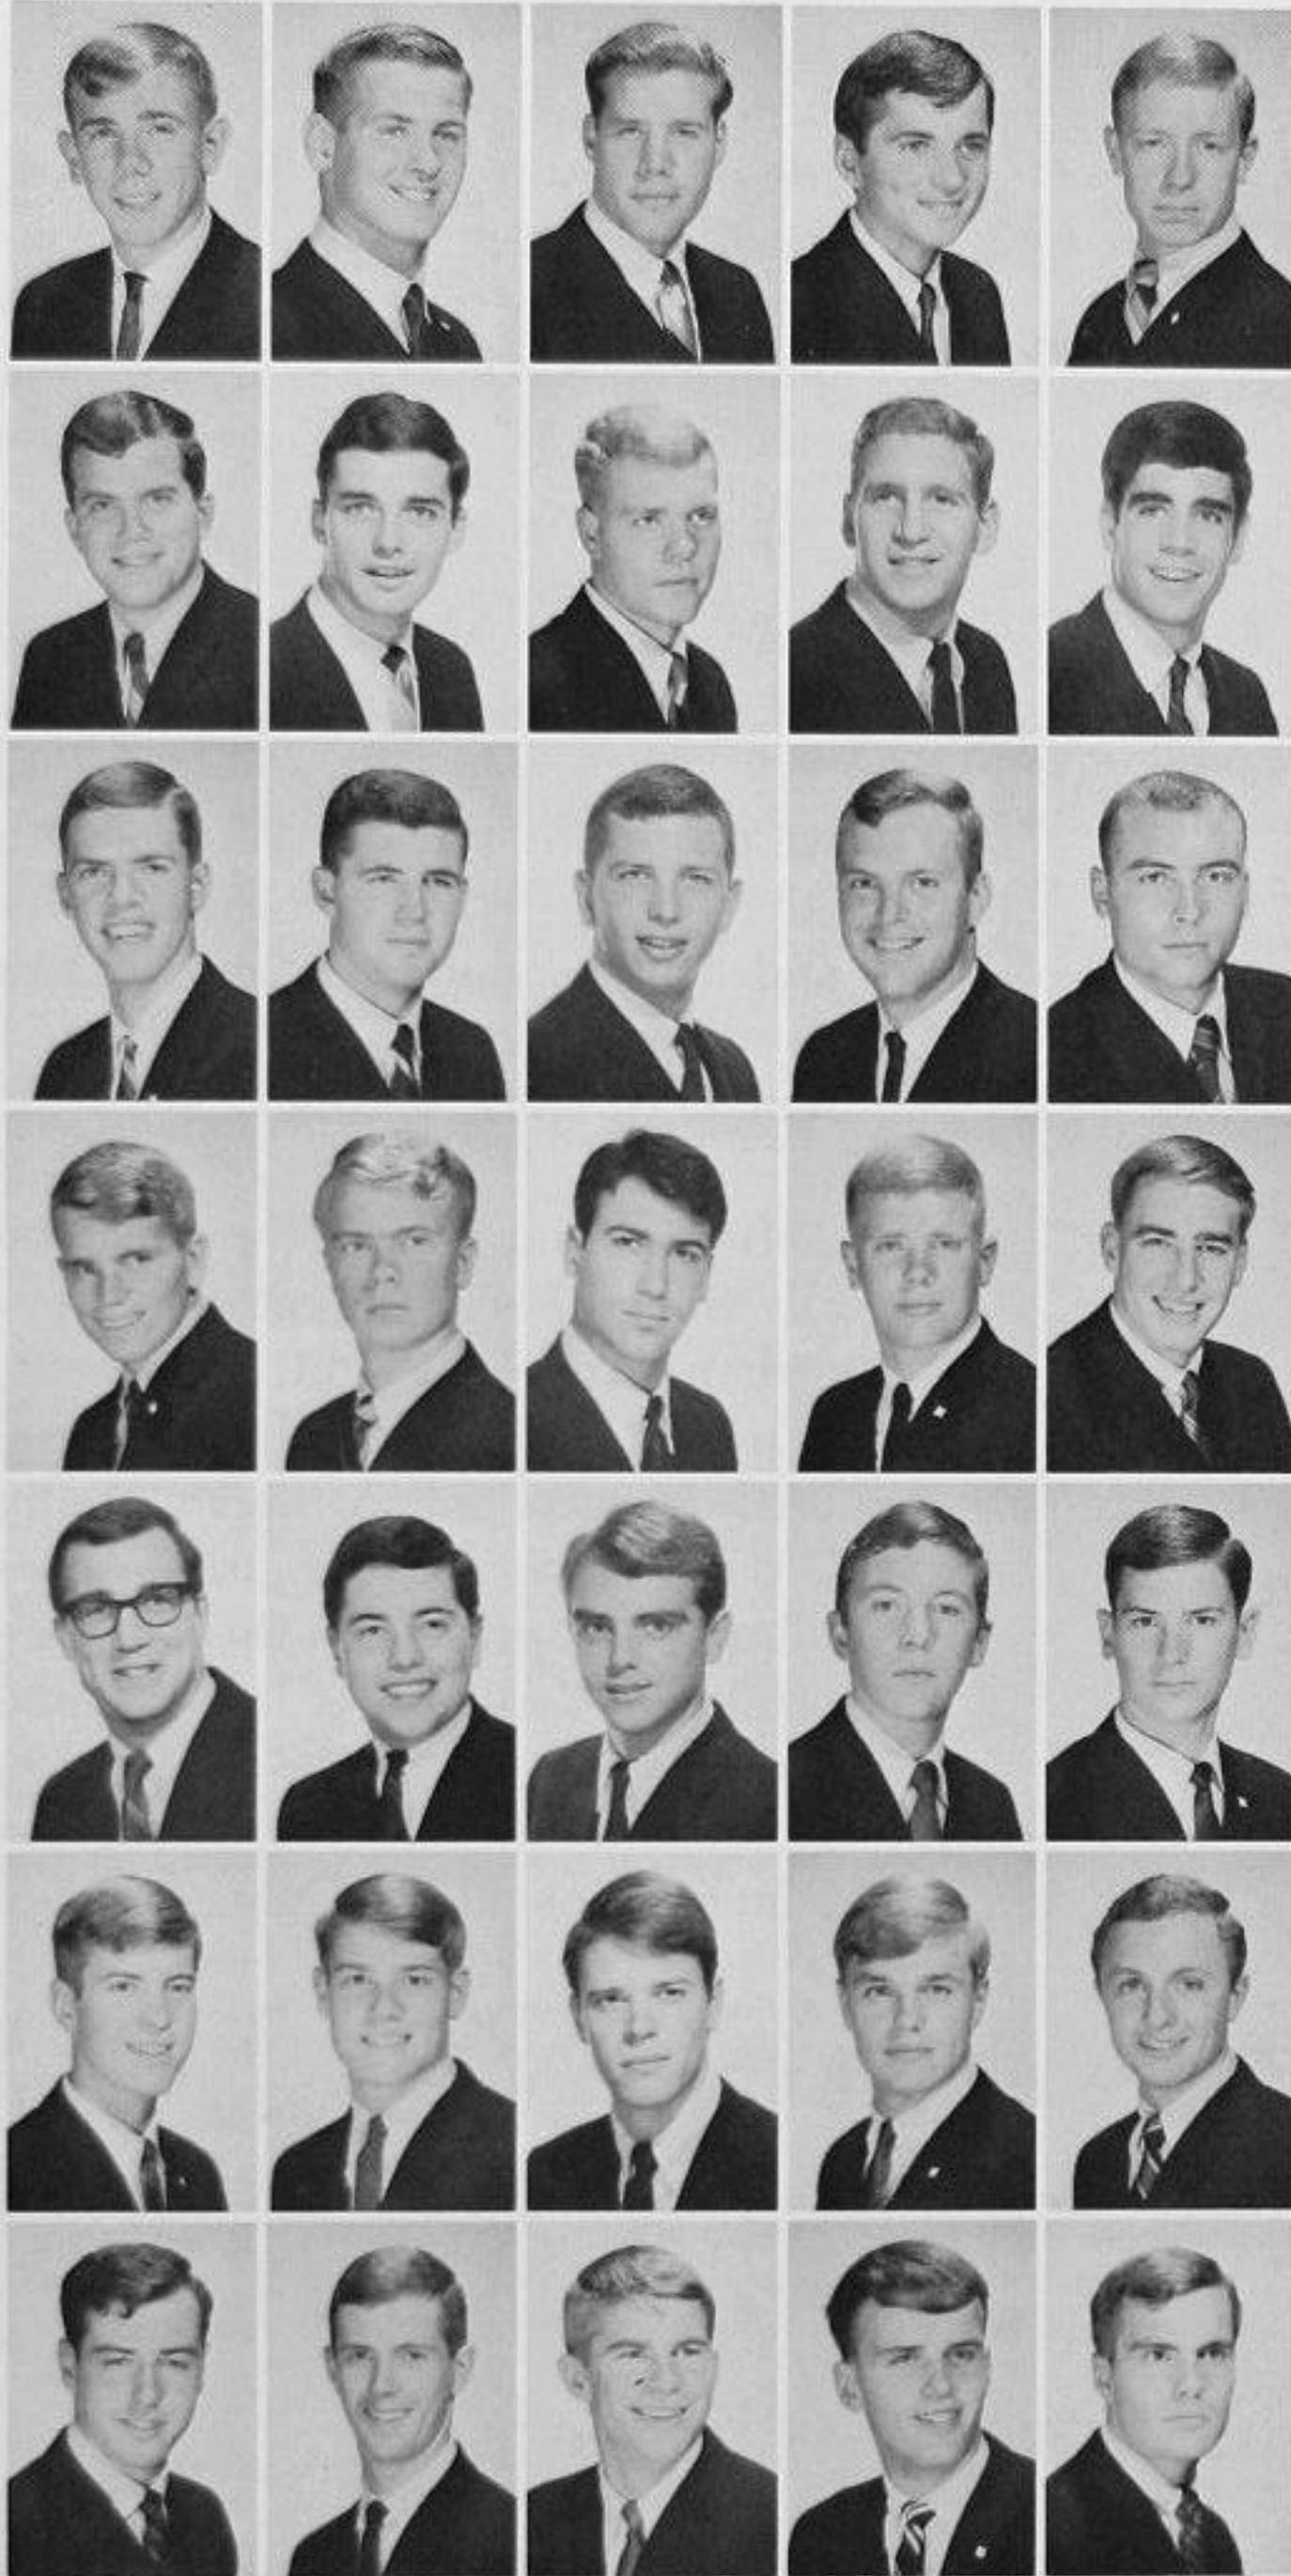

Activities and honors were had by all: Silver Fish, Corvettes, Brigades, Angel Flight, Orchesis, Husky Honeys, frosh cheerleading, Little Sisters of Minerva, Rally Girls, a SAM calendar girl, a "Miss Maritime" princess, the W-Key president, Totem Club, Alpha Lambda Delta, AWS treasurer, Panhellenic president and Program Panel personnel chairman.

Delts Excel In Signs, Sports, Studies

It was a year of illuminating spirit—the kind of spirit that makes a good fraternity a better one and an active year a memorable one.

A vigorous rush was culminated by the selection of 37 men whose diversity maintained the Delt tradition of strong individuality. Delts competed in skiing, baseball, basketball, track, wrestling, swimming, soccer, rugby, volleyball, golf and football.

Rumor has it that next year's pledge dance will be held in Padelord Hall, for symbolic purposes. Delts were in their customary top-ten position scholastically. The Winter Formal at the Olympic was again a memorable occasion, and seismologists declared that Viva Zapata was still the world's largest dollar party. Walton 'embarrassed' the Bruins.

Delts dine with their dates at fraternity guest dinner.

For the DU's, '66-'67 was a good year. Fall quarter meant a 43-man pledge class, dedication of a new half-million dollar house and leaders on campus (AMS president, TYEE editor, JIFC president). It meant adjustment for freshmen and toil for varsity and intramural athletes.

Winter quarter brought forth new goals; for Jay and Thor it meant being All-American skiers; for Wayne, making the Olympic team.

Spring quarter meant the Big Weekend (formal style), lasting relationships, June, finals and the "last hurrah" until September.

Leadership for DU was provided by Jim Carpenter, Vince Mullally, Bill Perry and Jay Jalbert.

Thirty-seven bubbly pledges crossed the threshold of Gamma Phi Beta last fall, only to stumble over Ashcan conducting her flea orchestra. Then the sophomores oriented them to the sign of the put-down and opened their DW club to new members.

Fully-clad juniors enjoyed Monday night showers—a reward for that just-received pin or ring — while seniors contributed with Friday night parties and experienced leadership.

An ASUW secretary, AWS president, Mortar Board president and four varsity cheerleaders led the house through a fun-filled year of bomb scares, rowdy dinners, spring retreat, and mausoleum visits.

KKG's Push

Rep, Symphony

Beta Pi chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma, on campus since 1905, became aware this year of a new aura surrounding it as a group of students; one in which the increasing pressures of university life came to be a dominant theme. Kappas were forced to re-evaluate and to decide which aspects of sorority living would ultimately prove the most valuable.

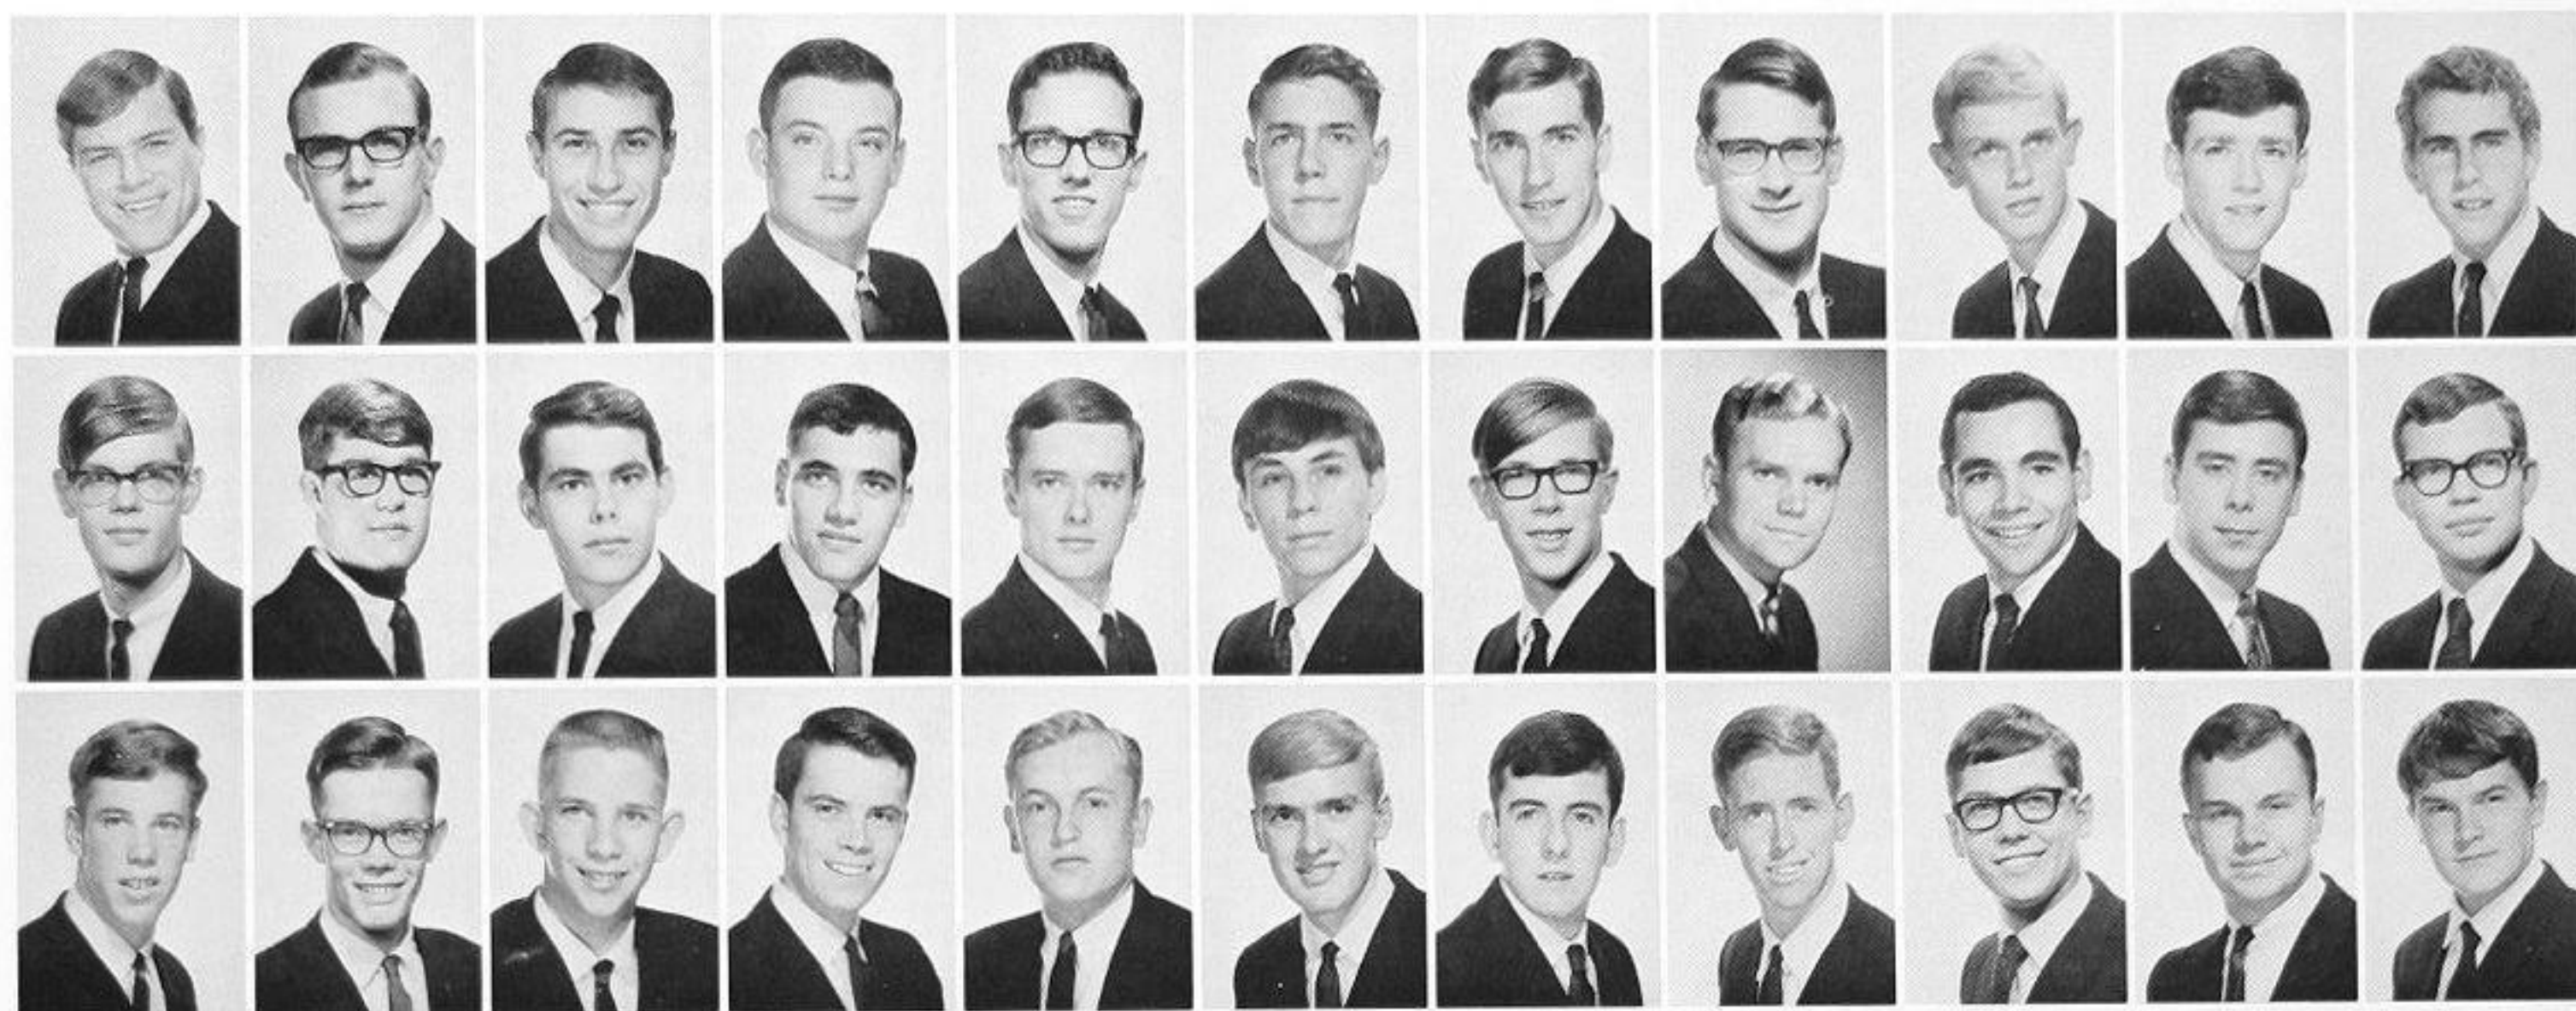

The chapter underwent changes to adapt it to better meet the demands of the "more mature student." Chapter programs to a greater extent than ever before utilized the educational and cultural activities available to the University community. Campus opportunities to hear nationally renowned men and women, and to meet and exchange ideas with students from all over the world were stressed. An increased emphasis was placed on activities involving the Seattle Repertory Theater, the Seattle Symphony and various fund-raising drives.

This emphasis made Kappa play an integral part in each member's life.

Sportsmanship Key

Kappa Sigma Word

A good fraternity must have the right combination of tradition, spirit, and action. At Kappa Sigma, they've got it. Kappa Sigs chairing special events, JIFC March of Dimes and University Prevue Speakers showed that participation is a reality as well as an ideal. From football to billiards, sportsmanship is a key Kappa Sig word. A pledge dance at the Penthouse was followed by the Kappa Sigma Queen Contest. Kappa Sigma helped each member obtain the self-reliance and responsibility which resulted in a successful and memorable year.

They study, too.

Lambda Chi Alpha Members Work, Grow

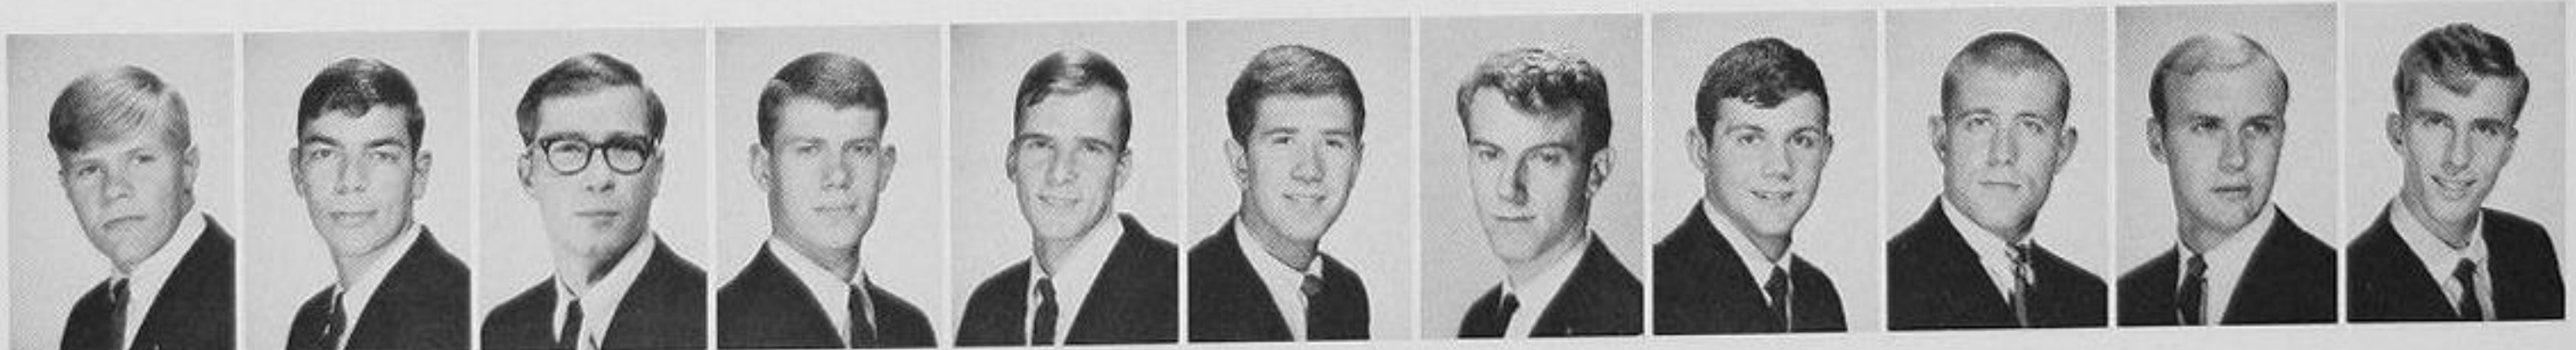

Planning the agenda for their next chapter meeting are Lambda Chi officers Jim Wonn, Jim Turner, Grant Hansen, Ned Nelson, Luther Hintz, Paul Gibson, Bud Lofgren and Curt Beattie.

Lambda Chi Alpha consists of over one hundred men working, relaxing and growing together. Scholastically Lambda Chi has been consistently above the all-men's average. The house includes members of Oval Club, Purple Shield, Fir Tree, Phi Beta Kappa and Sundodgers, as well as the ASUW first vice president. Highlighting this year's social calendar were the Prison Dance, Crescent Ball, Shipwreck Dance and the Spring house party. Lambda Chi's have lettered in all major sports, including football, basketball, baseball, track and crew.

The year brought a great pledge class and a new annex on the corner for the Phi Delts.

Eight Phis went to Med School, three more were in Fir Tree and sophomores booked in for 3.3.

A baby gator was born at the pledge dance, while West, Irvine, Woolcock, and Bond started for frosh basketball. Ryan missed a Rhodes scholarship by a "neck," but "2nd string" Williams was outstanding in the post season bowls.

Bumgardner, Cope and President Odegard discussed campus problems on TV and brotherhood was at an all-time high.

"Now let's try the next shot with your arms at your sides, okay guys?"

At the corner of 45th and 17th, the Fijis blend high scholastic ideals with activities and athletics in a triangular fraternity program.

Continuing a 12-year tradition of being Number One in fraternity academics, Phi Gamma Delta captured both IFC scholarship trophies: actives with a 2.73 and freshmen with a 2.65.

If scholarship formed the bottom of the triangle, activities and athletics formed the other two sides. Fijis dominated Purple Shield with 11 members, besides having five in Oval Club.

In athletics the brothers won 43 Big W letters and 23 frosh numerals.

And the future? The 38 members of the class of '70, boasting a 3.4 gpa, look as if they will continue the Fiji tradition of well-rounded excellence.

Phi Kappa Psi Has Active Year

With 35 pledges averaging an entering 3.3 GPA, Phi Kappa Psi found this year one of the most productive in the more than 50 it has seen on campus.

A well-rounded program encourages the house to grow internally and externally. Thanksgiving with the Tri-Delts saw the Phi Psi's sponsoring a banquet for 60 orphans. Culturally, the brothers found ample opportunities in the numerous Cirque Theater parties and speaker programs. Socially, the calendar was crowded with a winter formal at the Olympic, the weekend Fire Party and a Roaring Twenties party.

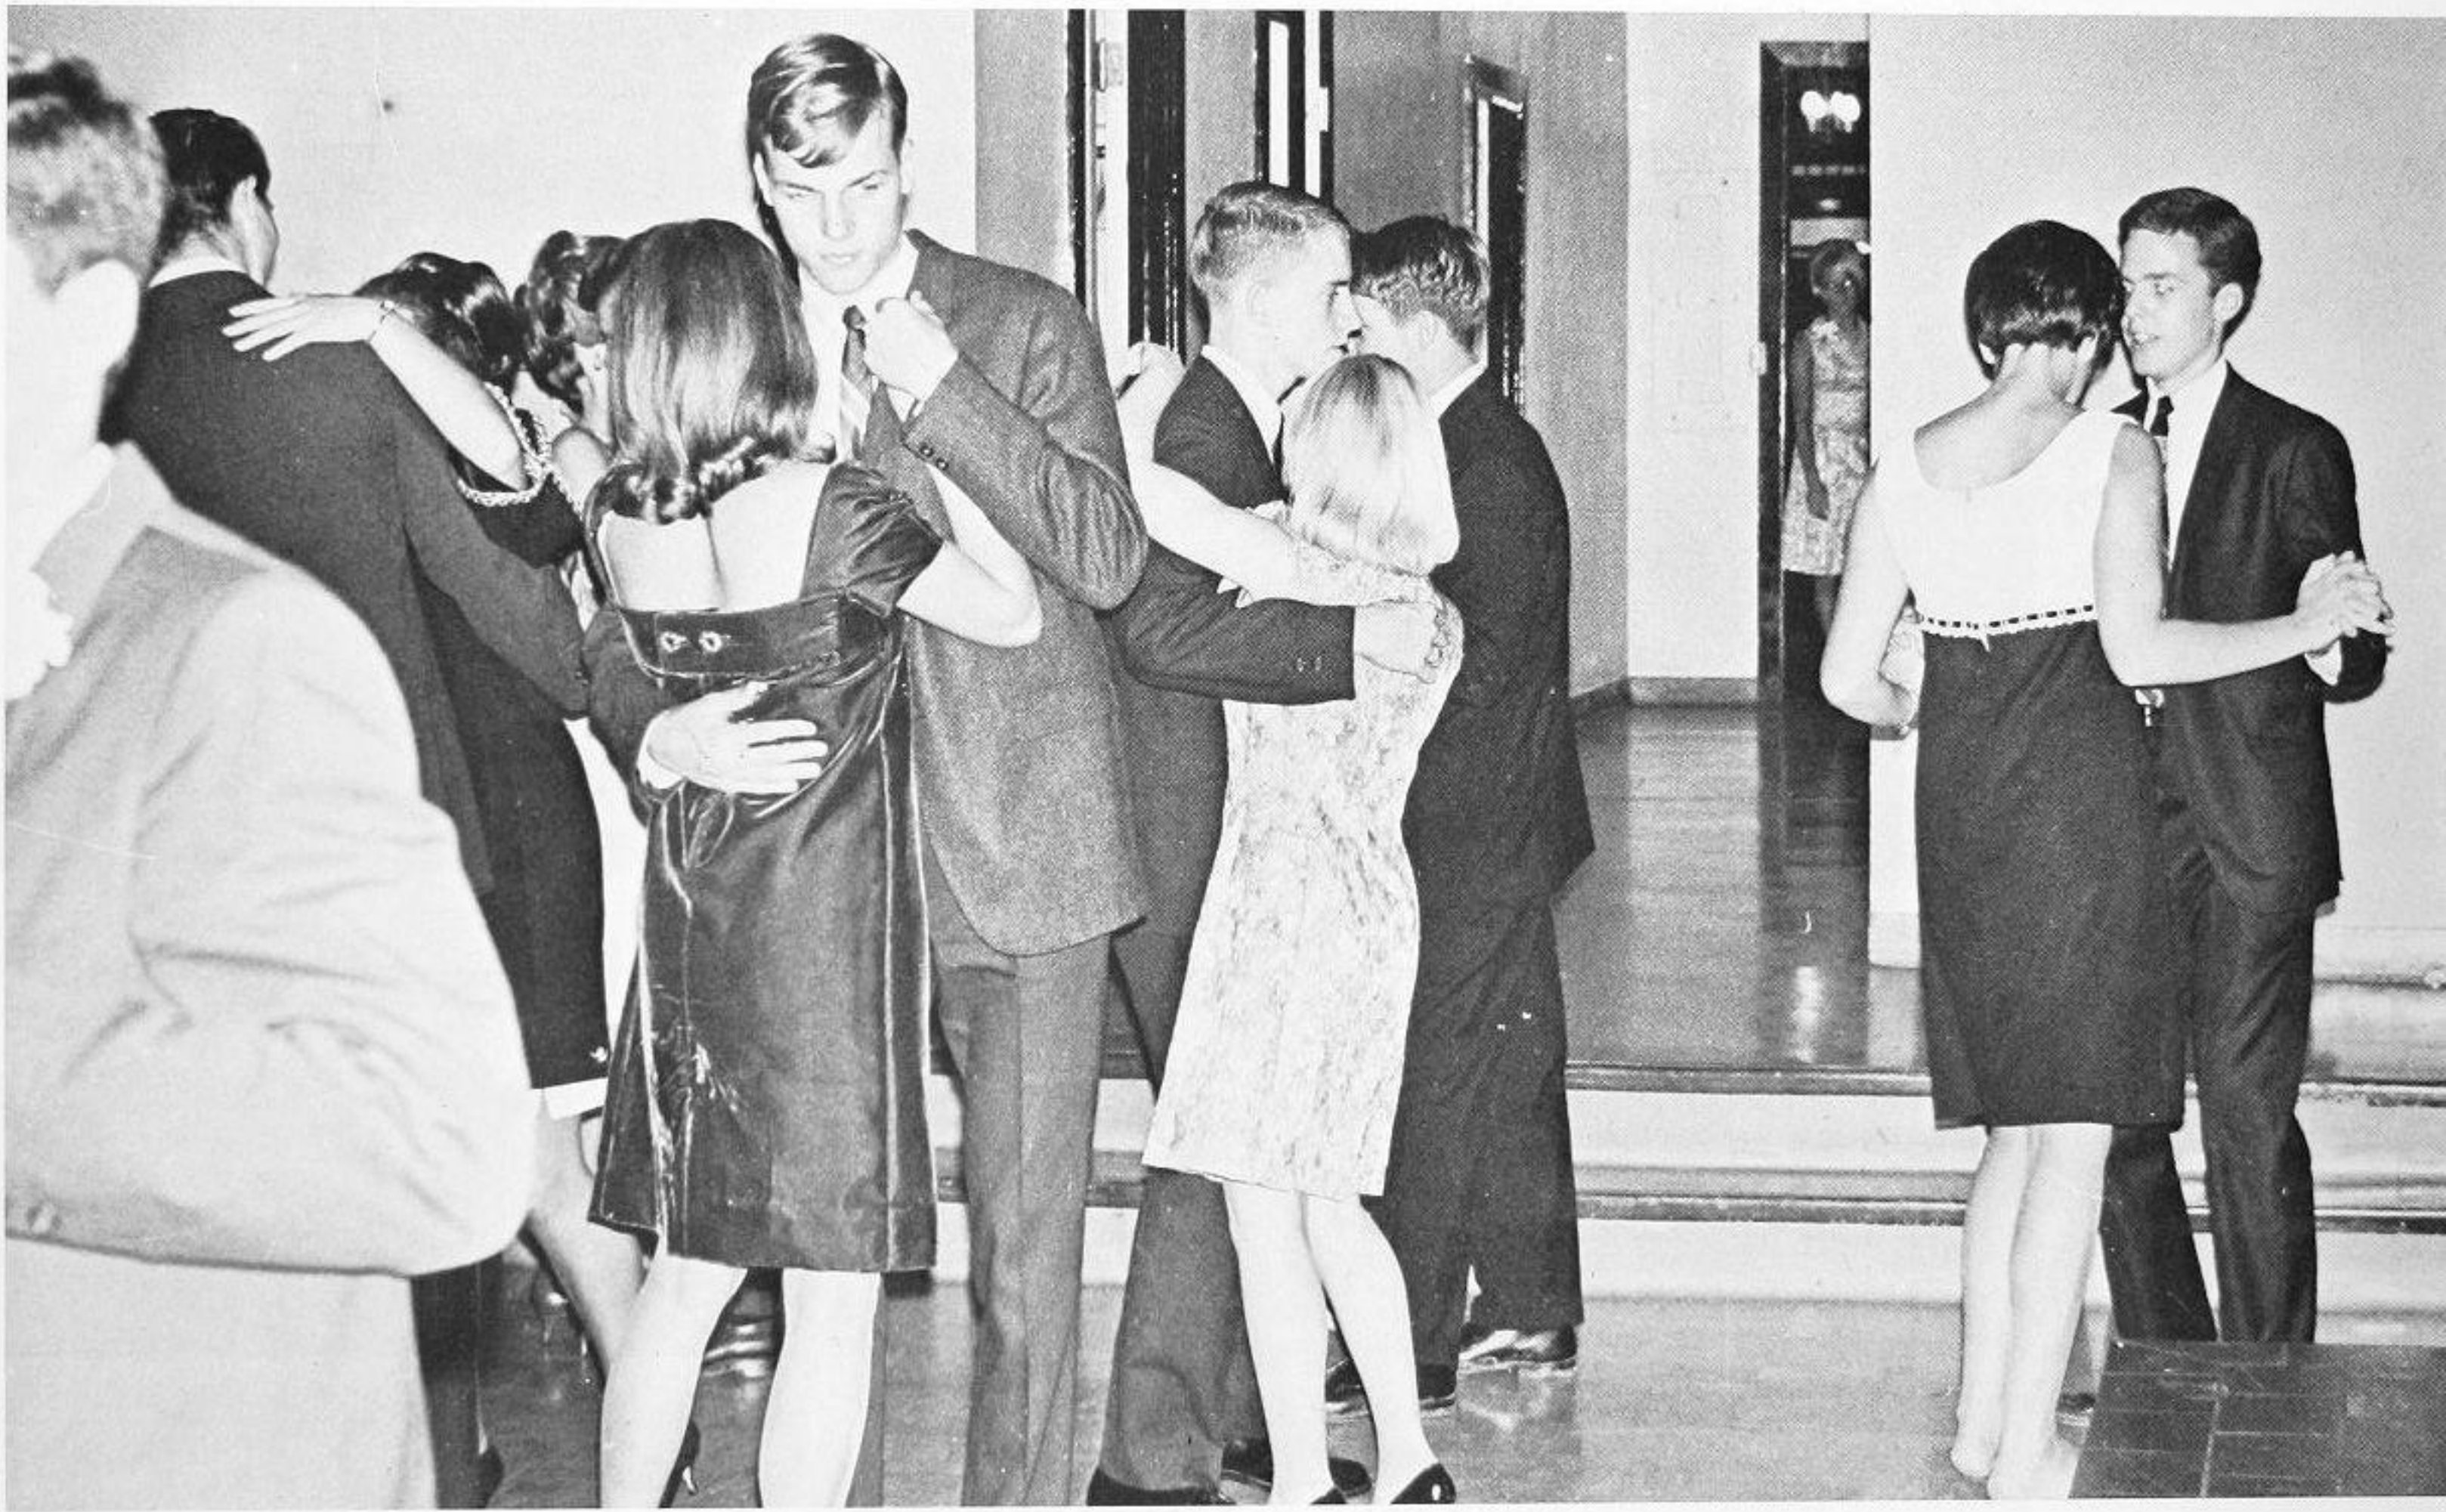

Phi Psi was active outside the house, too—in Program Panel, HUB committees, Purple Shield and rallies. Targets for big W's were Dave Blien, swimming, Bob Moch, crew, and Frank Russell, wrestling.

All in all, the year was a "happening" at Phi Kappa Psi.

Academics, Campus Participation, Athletics Mean Full

Phi Kap has a purpose—grades first, strengthened by campus positions and athletic letters. Rush week, in step with this goal, saw thirty men pledge with a 3.4 entering grade point and 83 high school letters. Study hours were enforced; pledges, as well as actives, garnered leadership positions on campus and athletes appeared certain to capture frosh numerals in 6 sports.

Phi Kaps started the year with a sorority serenade by the Towne Criers after Stock Show and a cruise around Lake Washington. The Pledge Dance, Winter Formal, Go To Hell Dance, House Party, and Tahitian Party were the big functions, while firesides, exchanges, and dollar parties filled the rest of the year.

"A house is not a home."

In September a newly formed nucleus of 19 men returned to inhabit an abandoned house on 21st N.E. They had high hopes for a new Phi Kappa Tau, one which they themselves would organize.

Their rewards were many—active participation, challenge, responsibility, fun, brotherhood—and the unique privilege of being able to say, "I built the foundation for that fraternity."

Busy, happy individuals kept Phi Mu's name alive on campus; House members were seen in W-Key, Rally Girls, Totem Club, Husky Honeys, People-to-People and Songfest. But it wasn't all play; girls gave their time for STAY tutoring and learned about the Ship Hope, their national philanthropy.

Phi Sigma Kappas Overcome Frustrations, Confusion To Gain Secure Foothold In UW Greek System

Phi Sigma Kappa returned to Washington in 1963. Since then they have gained a secure foothold in the Greek system, overcome the frustration of year-round rush, and mastered the irritation of being confused with their neighbor.

Their small size has served to emphasize leaders and workers. They were league champions in football this year and won the AMS Hockey Night Participation Award for the third straight year.

Phi Sigma Kappa is emerging at Washington. Growth is accelerating and the future holds nothing but promise.

Phi Sigma Sigma Alphabet Begins With 'Art,' Ends With 'Zowie'

From bagel-baking for soldiers in Vietnam to marching for mothers in Seattle, Phi Sigma Sigmas made the year come alive.

Homecoming "kabonged" with a "zap" and a "zowie" when Batman zipped through the skit in his little red wagon. On a culture kick, Phi Sigs supported a national touring exhibit showing art trends of the first half of the century. Members in Mortar Board, W-Key, Program Panel and Las Vegas hostessing kept the Phi Sig name on campus.

Phi Sigma Sigmas aimed high while strengthening their bonds of fraternity and friendship.

"Great, great! Now give it some of that Boston soul."

Pi Beta Phi Fills Campus Activities

Pi Phi's celebrated their Centennial Year in a big way—by doing everything up BIG.

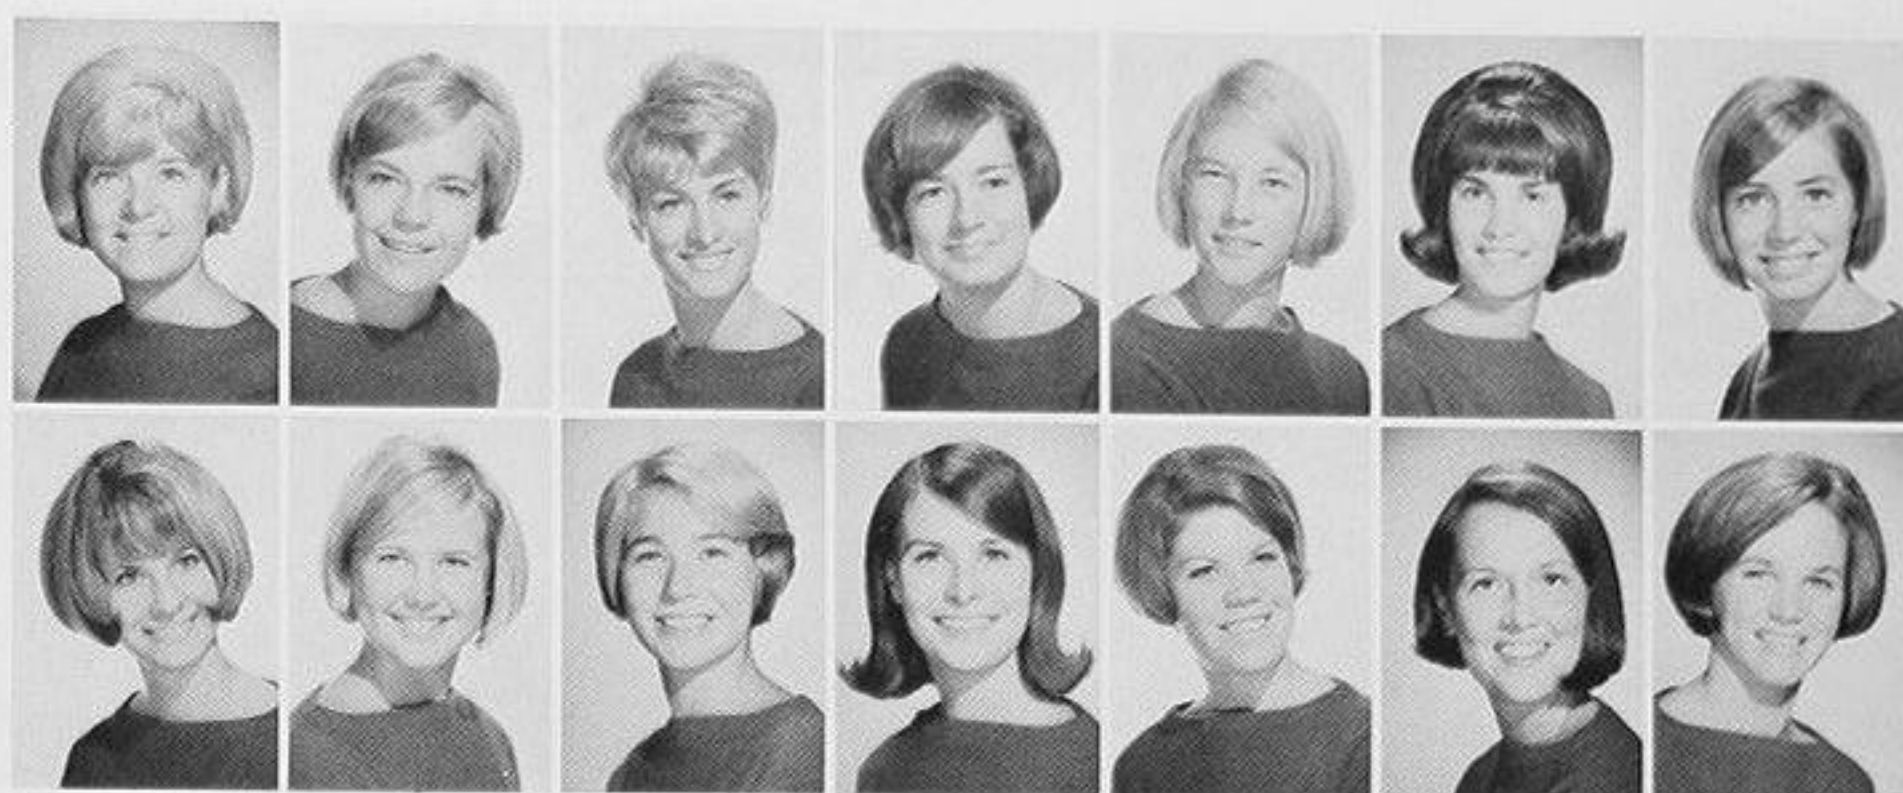

The pledges thought they were sneaking until they received a telegram from the actives at their "hideaway." Pi Phi's found depth through Settlement School, their National philanthropic project in Gatlinberg, Tennessee.

From the thrills and traumas of campus elections to filling the "draft quota" for Brigadears and

Corvettes, "active" was the Pi Phi motto. Sisters were in Husky Honkeys, Mortar Board, Rally Girls, Silverfish, Songleading, AWS, W-Key and Totem. Four Phi Beta Kappas and the Outstanding Senior Woman were on the membership list, as well as the Seafair Queen.

Another Derby Day brought no Derbies—only the Sigma Chi Spirit Award. Intramurals? Pi Phi's weren't exactly champs, but they sure had fun.

Pi KA officers who received a helping hand from Dream Girl Deanna Dawson were Rick Boston, Bill Lockwood, Dick Schwabe, Rick Triebel and Larry Beagle.

The Pi Kappa Alpha year started out in a sneaky way, but alas! The pledges were caught early in the evening at Ward's. The active sneak, more successful, featured a pool-side party. Other parties were well-attended and full of surprises—even during winter quarter when grades received a major emphasis. They “played” basketball and billiards, and skiing was as big as ever.

“Dreamy” Deanna made Monday night dinners super-enjoyable and even bearable until spring quarter when thoughts could once again turn to the selection of a Pi KA Dream Girl. Spring also brought with it the week-end, the formal at Rosario and visions of a new year ahead.

Helpful House Manager Neil Dean, left, balances the books.

It was a noteworthy year for Sigma Alpha Epsilon at the University of Washington.

Washington Alpha members held a variety of student government positions. Campus "politikers" included Judd Kirk, ASUW president; Jerry Jamison, AMS secretary; Lon Fairbrook, BOC member, and Jim Kelly, IFC president.

It was a year of outstanding alumni relations, hard work by the Mothers' Club and a menagerie of house activities including a unique touch for Homecoming.

Sigma Alpha Mu Seeks Scholarship, Varied Activities

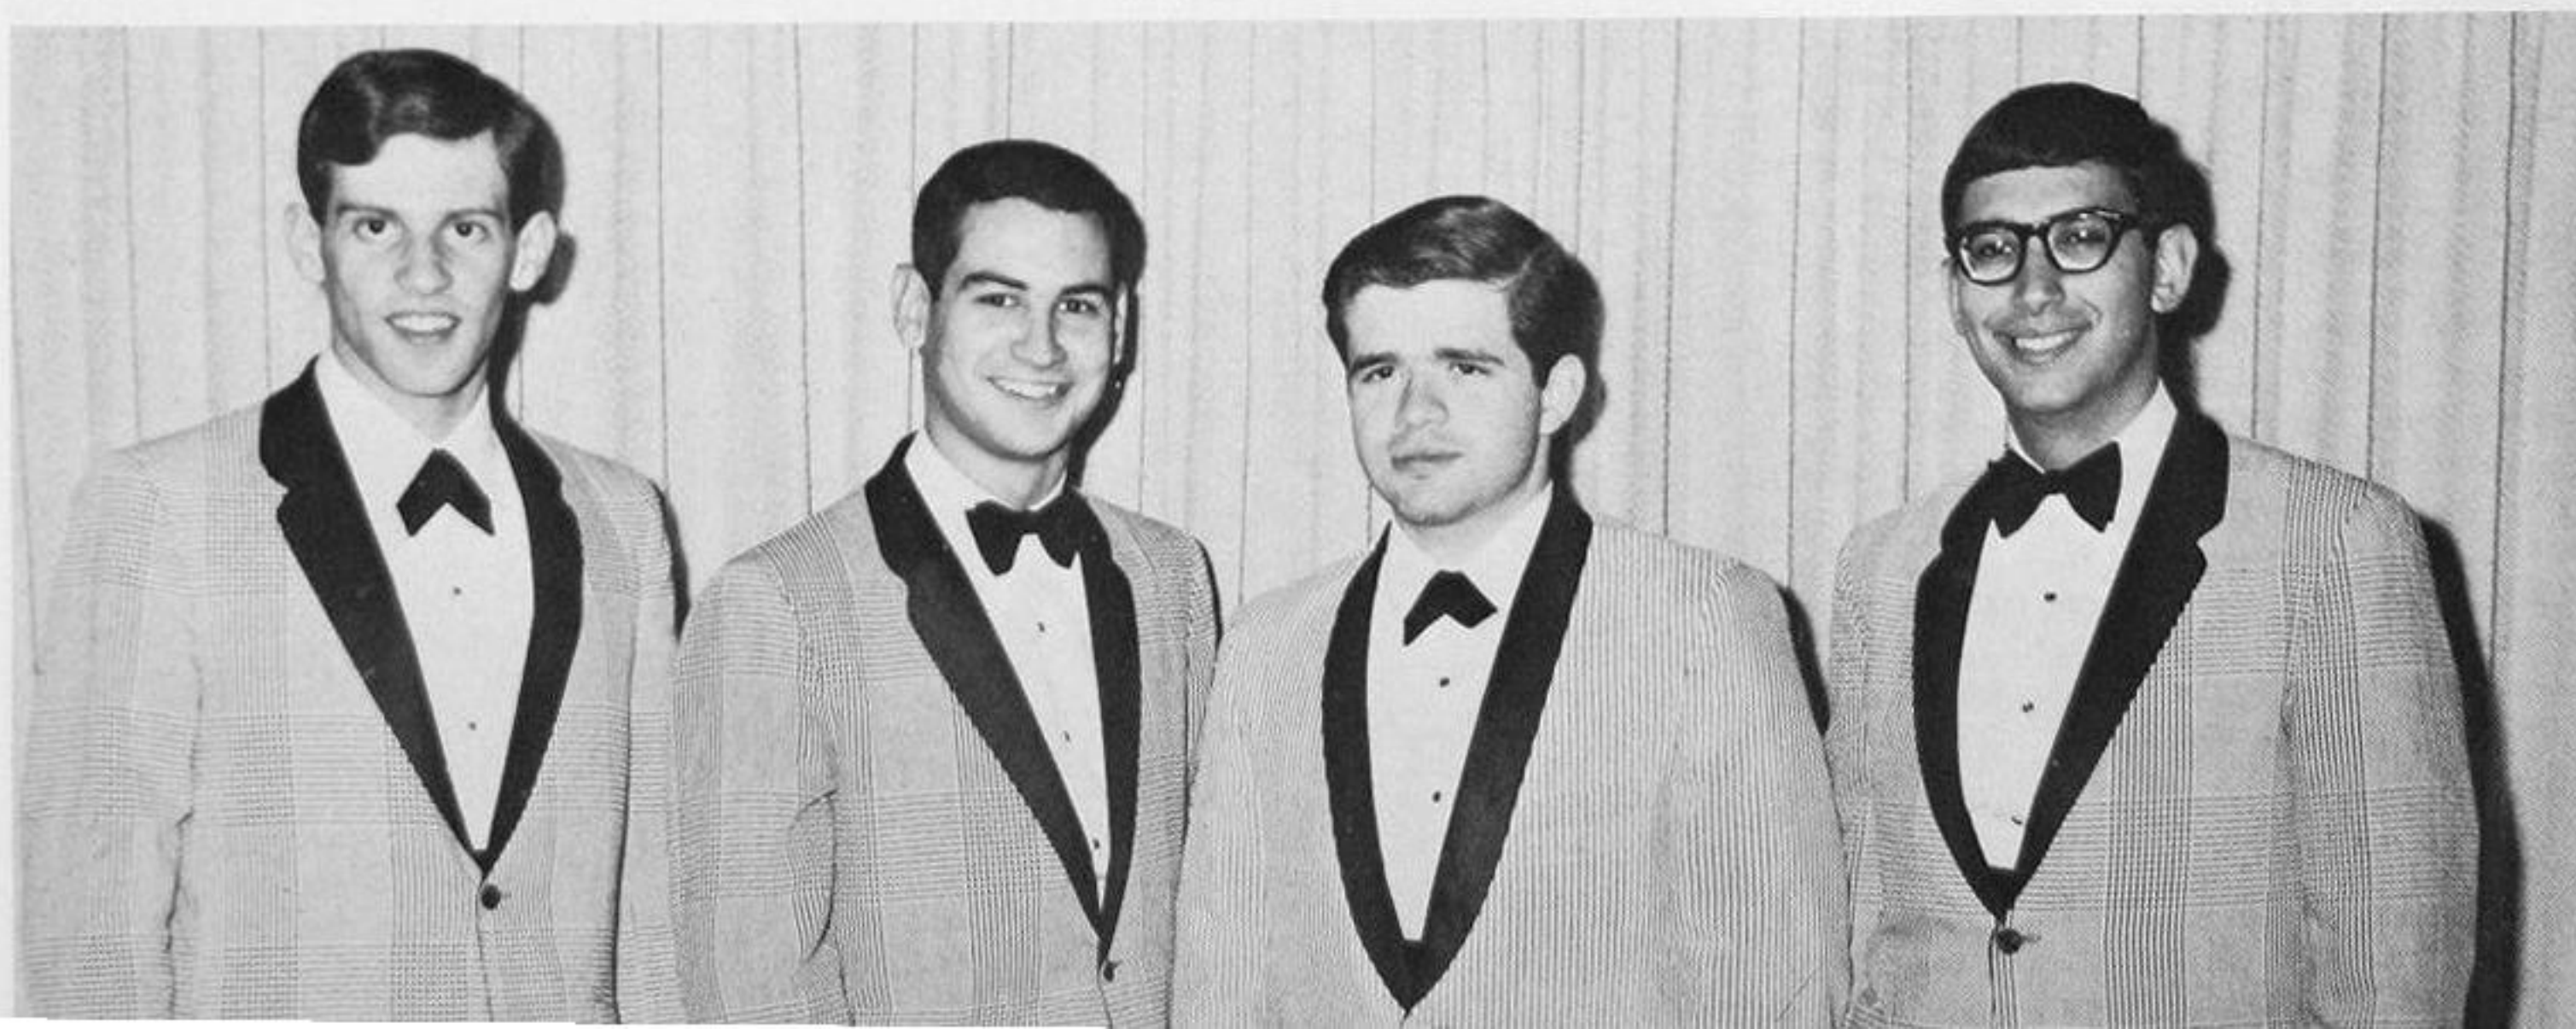

"Sammies" continued through the year maintaining its scholarship within the top five fraternities on campus. The number one house scholastically during spring quarter of 1966, the house averaged number three for that entire year.

To the members of Sigma Alpha Mu, "Sammie," this year meant more than a set of stereotyped goals. Most of all, it meant fraternity—a community of men living and working together for the benefit of each individual. It was a group of which each member could be proud, both of his fraternal association, and its activities and its alumni. At the same time each member was respected for his own abilities, personality and achievements. One would have been hard put to find a campus activity in which Sammies did not participate. These activities included Sundodgers, Purple Shield, IFC, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Eta Sigma, Alpha Delta Sigma and many others.

Sammie house officers included Bob Gelb, secretary; Quent Steinberg, president; John Kalin, vice president, and Bob Porad, treasurer.

Red-Letter Year For Sigma Chi: Pledges

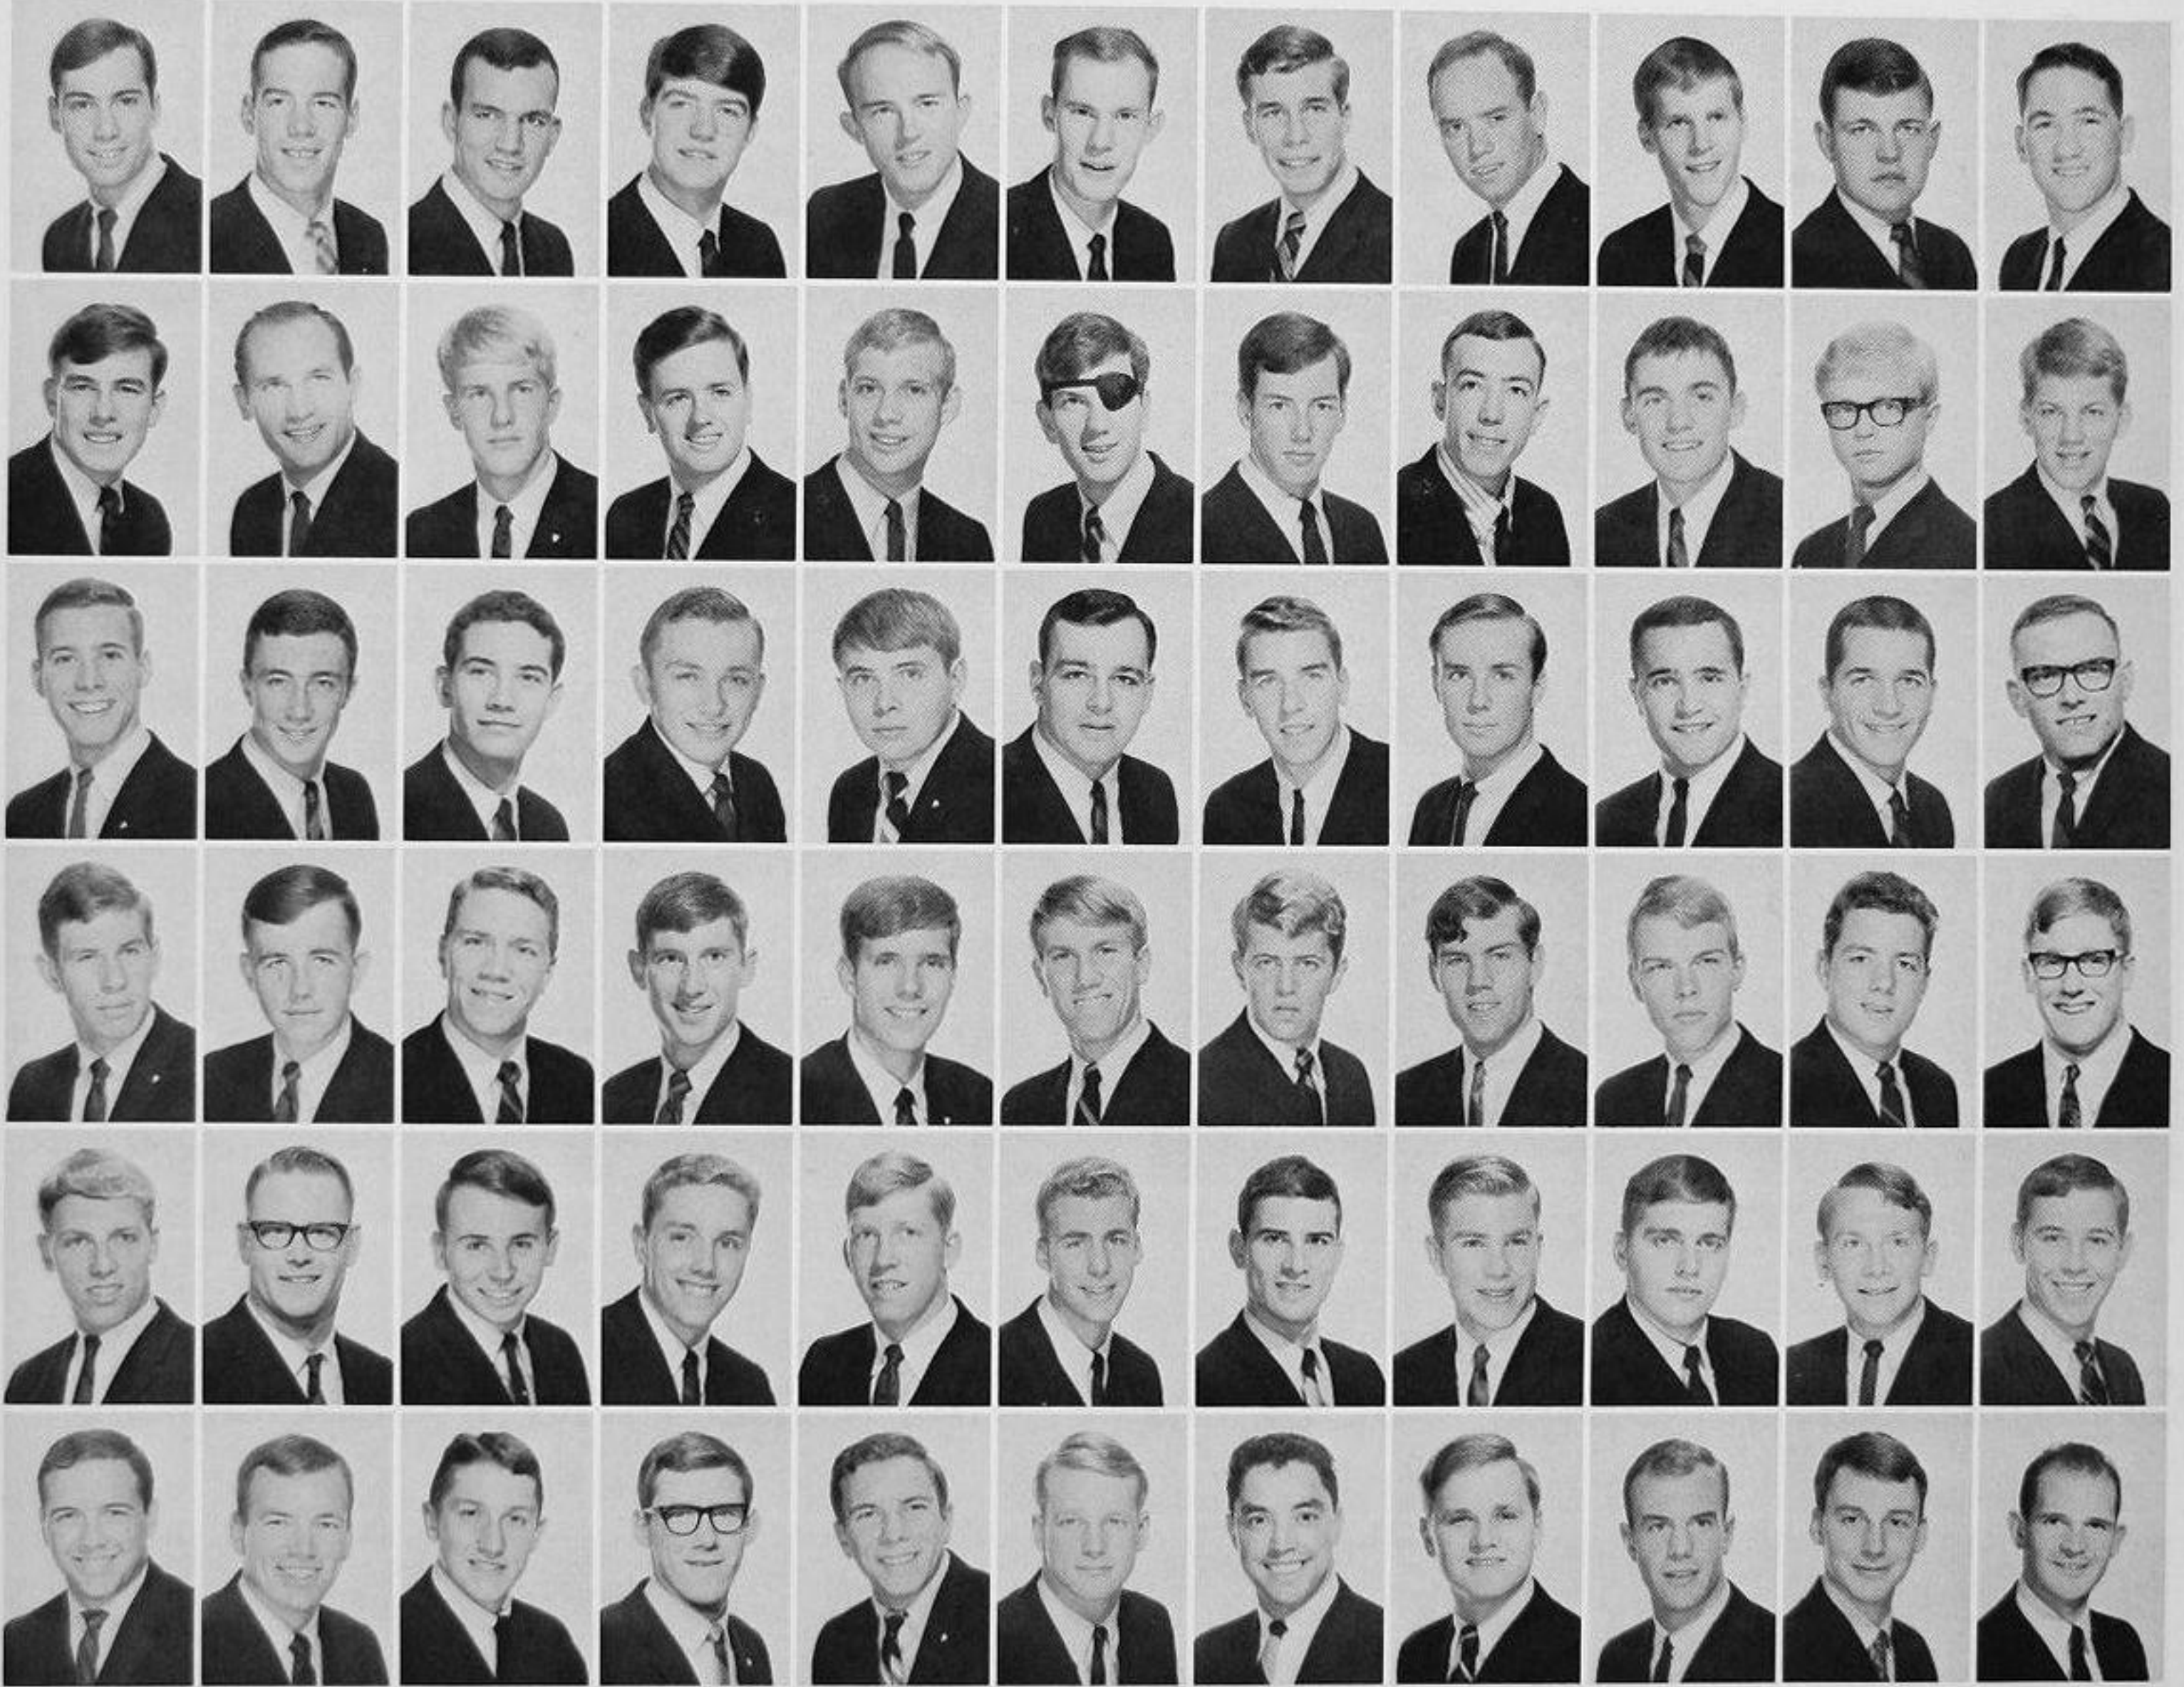

Activities, academics and athletics marked this as a red letter year for Sigma Chi. Activities? Stolen hats and ponded cheerleaders made Derby Day. Candy Cline completed her year as Sweetheart at the Harrison Hot Springs formal. Morrison headed Phi Eta Sigma and Wangsmo ruled the Sundodger roost.

Academics? With keggers, exchanges and midterms, everyone managed to pass finals with flying colors. Athletics? Jones headed the intramural program, Lorrain started with defense for the Huskies and freshmen were also active.

It was a red letter year promising more for the future.

Exchanges were seldom dull at Sigma Nu.

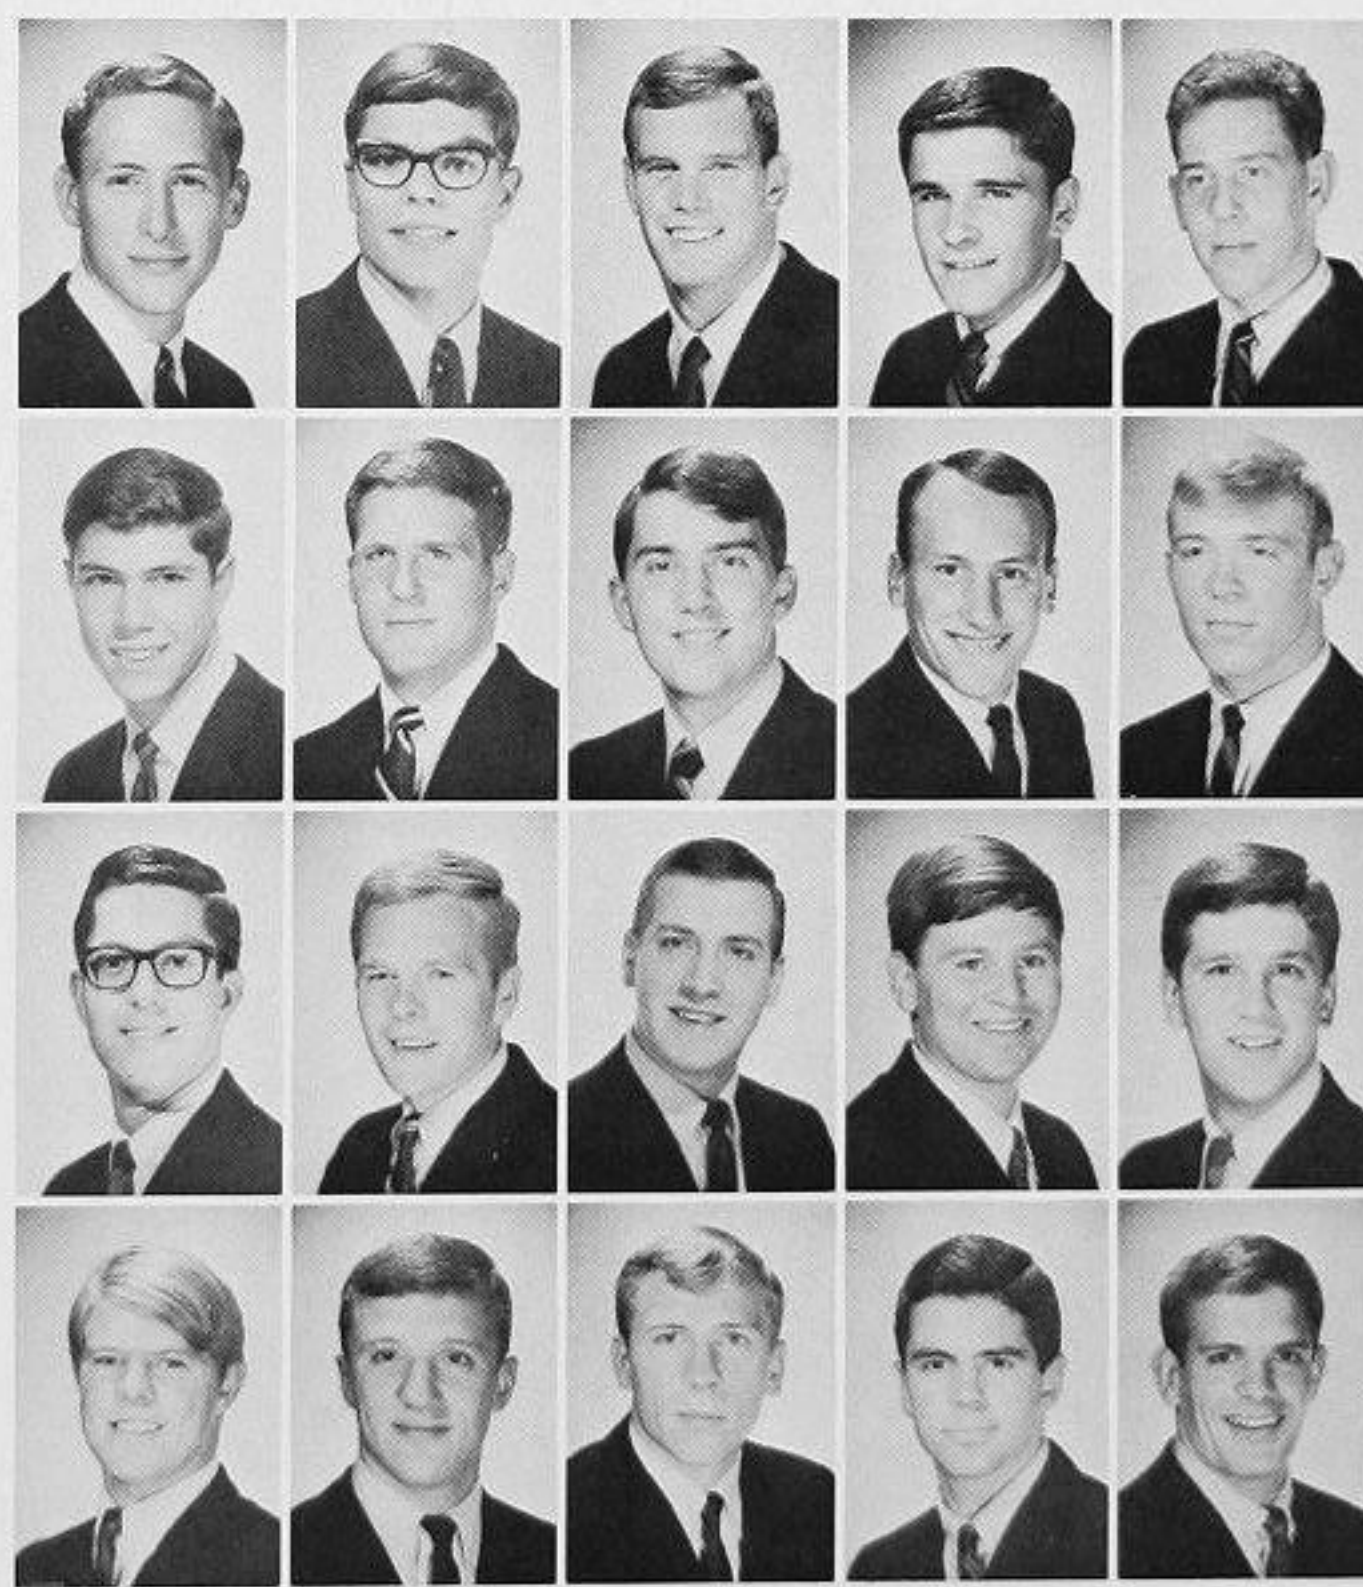

Fraternal living provides an educational experience quite unlike that offered in the lecture halls of Guggenheim, the laboratories of Bagley, or the classrooms of Parrington. It focuses on social growth and individual development easily overlooked in a university of 27,000.

Among Sigma Nu's 125 members are varsity athletes, Dean's List scholars, student government leaders and Bachelors' Club trenchmen.

This fall three dozen men pledged Sigma Nu, emphasizing what many UW Sigma Nu's have felt: that mere existence at the University is a strangely static concept in a dynamic environment.

A Sig Ep returned to school last fall and was met by the whip in D.I.'s hand. Martyr said, "Rush!" and this Sig Ep came up with 42 pledges.

"Spirit" was the next order of the day and he countered the Time Machine, a very "active" exchange with the A Chi O's and "Brewin's Ruin" at Homecoming.

The house asked for scholarship so he enrolled in Law, Med, and Dent schools and consequently was invited to pledge Phi Beta Kappa, thus placing SPE sixth overall scholastically. Then he turned jock in swimming, crew, and rugby.

He wanted to be socially adept so he dined the housemothers, danced and gathered informally with his brothers.

Santa came with ties and poems for him at Christmas and Sepp taught him how to ski. He got pinned in the spring just in time to wave good-bye to Constant and Hardman. Moral: get your own whip!

Teke officers examine scrapbook of the past to find ideas for the future.

Hard Work By Tau Kappa Epsilon Earns Province Improvement Award

From the "Most Improved Chapter" in the province award to the "Good Grief Charlie Bruin" homecoming sign, the Tekes showed that hard work is vital to individual and collective successes. For the second consecutive year, they led in summer fraternity pledging. Involvement in campus and community affairs greatly influenced TKE. The brothers found reward in cleaning and painting at Harborview Hospital and building a playground for the Spastic Children's Preschool. Greater than all of this, however, were the intangible rewards of close brotherhood.

Remembering the picnic at Lake Cle Elum and Bob's blue banner-stairs from last spring, Tau Phi started the year with one of the best work weeks ever. The powder room got a new ceiling, which still leaks, and the dining room floor was refinished.

Garb Day commenced with reveille on the sleeping porch and ended with the band getting paid to leave. Firecrackers burst, Nagel traps tripped and shaving cream oozed as hunter became hunted and then hunter again. Pledges made their debut in the rain.

Time waits for none; at last the old Canuck made his adieu—which brings to mind a joke . . .

In past and present Theta Chi's have learned the lessons and bonds of brotherhood. The 110 men are proud of their living environment which is conducive to preparation for academics, politics, business, athletics, and the living of a full life.

Reviewing this year they take note of a pledge class ranking ninth scholastically, sibling quarrels, and good times with the Gamma Phis; the spring weekend, and winter formal, and the Sweetheart of Theta Chi coronation.

They take pride in their year: of politics with the ASUW second VP; in learning the Japanese way with Sho, and especially in the fraternalism of parties, pledge sneaks, pinning ceremonies, inaugural KHI broadcasts, and Battman's cooking.

Theta Delta Chi: Where Brotherhood, Spirit Combine

Theta Delta Chi is a unique and worthwhile organization where brotherhood and spirit combine to produce lifelong memories.

The beloved annex was torn down during the summer to make way for a $105,000 addition, complete with paved parking lot. Rumors still circulate that the annex is alive and healthy in Argentina. Thirty-two pledges honored their newly-pinned pledge trainer with tar and feathers and a bath in Frosh Pond.

Tobiason's minutes highlighted the "Monday Night Magic Show." Theta Delt activities included YR VP, Sundodgers VP, ASUW Elections Chairman, Phi Epsilon Kappa VP, IFC Public Relations Chairman, not to mention eight Sundodgers and various "jocks."

Theta Xi's can remember this year as one of growth (IBM "expedites" rush), intellectual advancement (Mailman dreams up the best study programs on campus), records (seven serenades in one night), and renovations (teak paneling in the remodeled rooms)—not to mention exchanges (17 in all, including trips to the Rep and underground Seattle), scandal (Fatty Arbuckle makes the Daily), and mutual assistance (G.I.P. reigning over late evening Straight Arrow Confessions).

Together they made it a year to remember and together they learned the ways of brotherhood.

Will the real Sweetheart of Theta Xi please step forward?

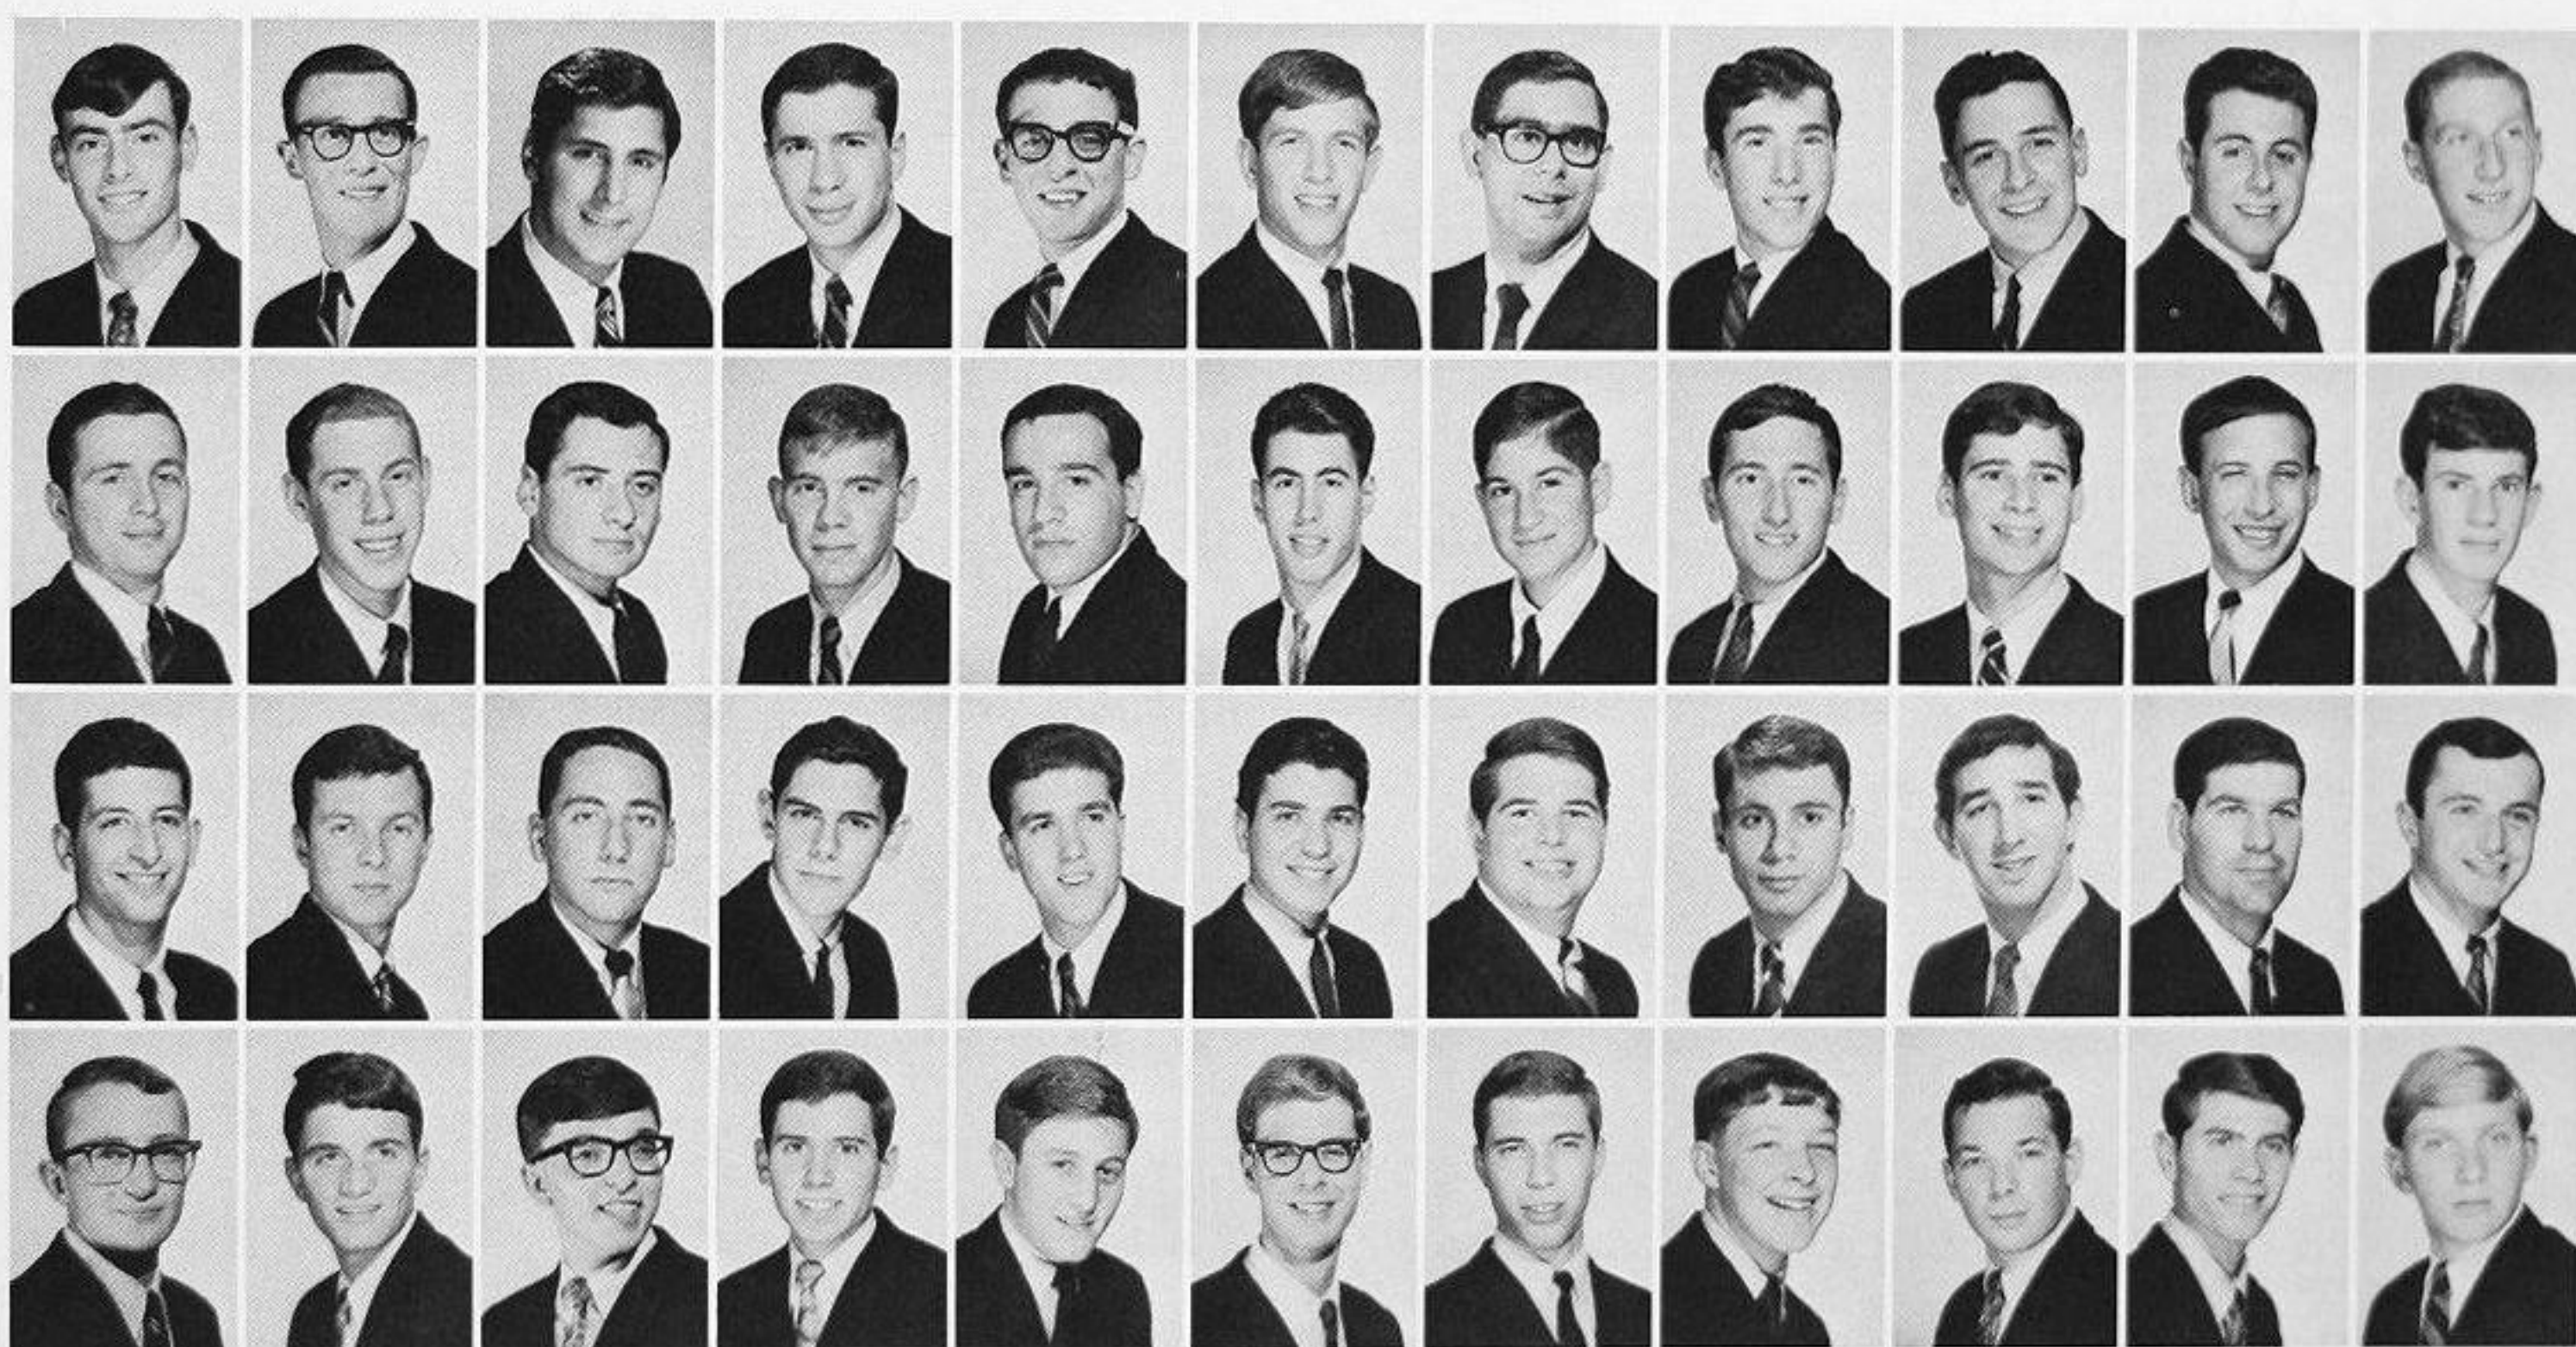

"The essential idea is to break only the paddle."

Zeta Beta Tau showed an ever-growing interest in campus activities this year when members participated in Fir Tree, Purple Shield, Oval Club, BOC, College Bowl, and Bachelor's Club. A thirty-one-man pledge class, newly crowned Sweetheart Lisa, and the Homecoming parking lot dance were much fun.

Scholarship broke all records with two Phi Beta Kappas. And, even with a new pool table and color TV, their grades skyrocketed.

Zeta Psi: Building Brotherhood From Loyalty And Respect

Responsibility and effective leadership are the keys to Zeta Psi's progress and expansion.

Dedication and patience won the animated Homecoming sign trophy for the house. Zeta leadership was found on Program Panel, DAILY Staff and in varsity athletics.

Every Zeta enjoyed the elegance of the winter formal, the relaxation of the house party, and the fun of informal splash parties in their new indoor pool.

Every Zeta Psi has a house he can call "home."

Zeta Tau Alpha Adds Memories, Meaning To College Life

Zeta Tau Alpha is many things. It's pinnings, chapter dinners, fire-sides and study hours. It's memories, dreams and traditions. Most important, it's girls tied together by one bond—sisterhood. Zeta is a whirl of activities—a "Snoopy" homecoming sign with the Teke's, the Pheasant dinner for dads, a Sweetheart dinner and the White Violet Ball. Zeta is variety. There were Rally Girls, Mu Phi Epsilon and Arena members and a Junior Panhellenic vice-president. Zeta is mainly love and meaning.

Besides formality, Monday night dinners mean fun and friendship.

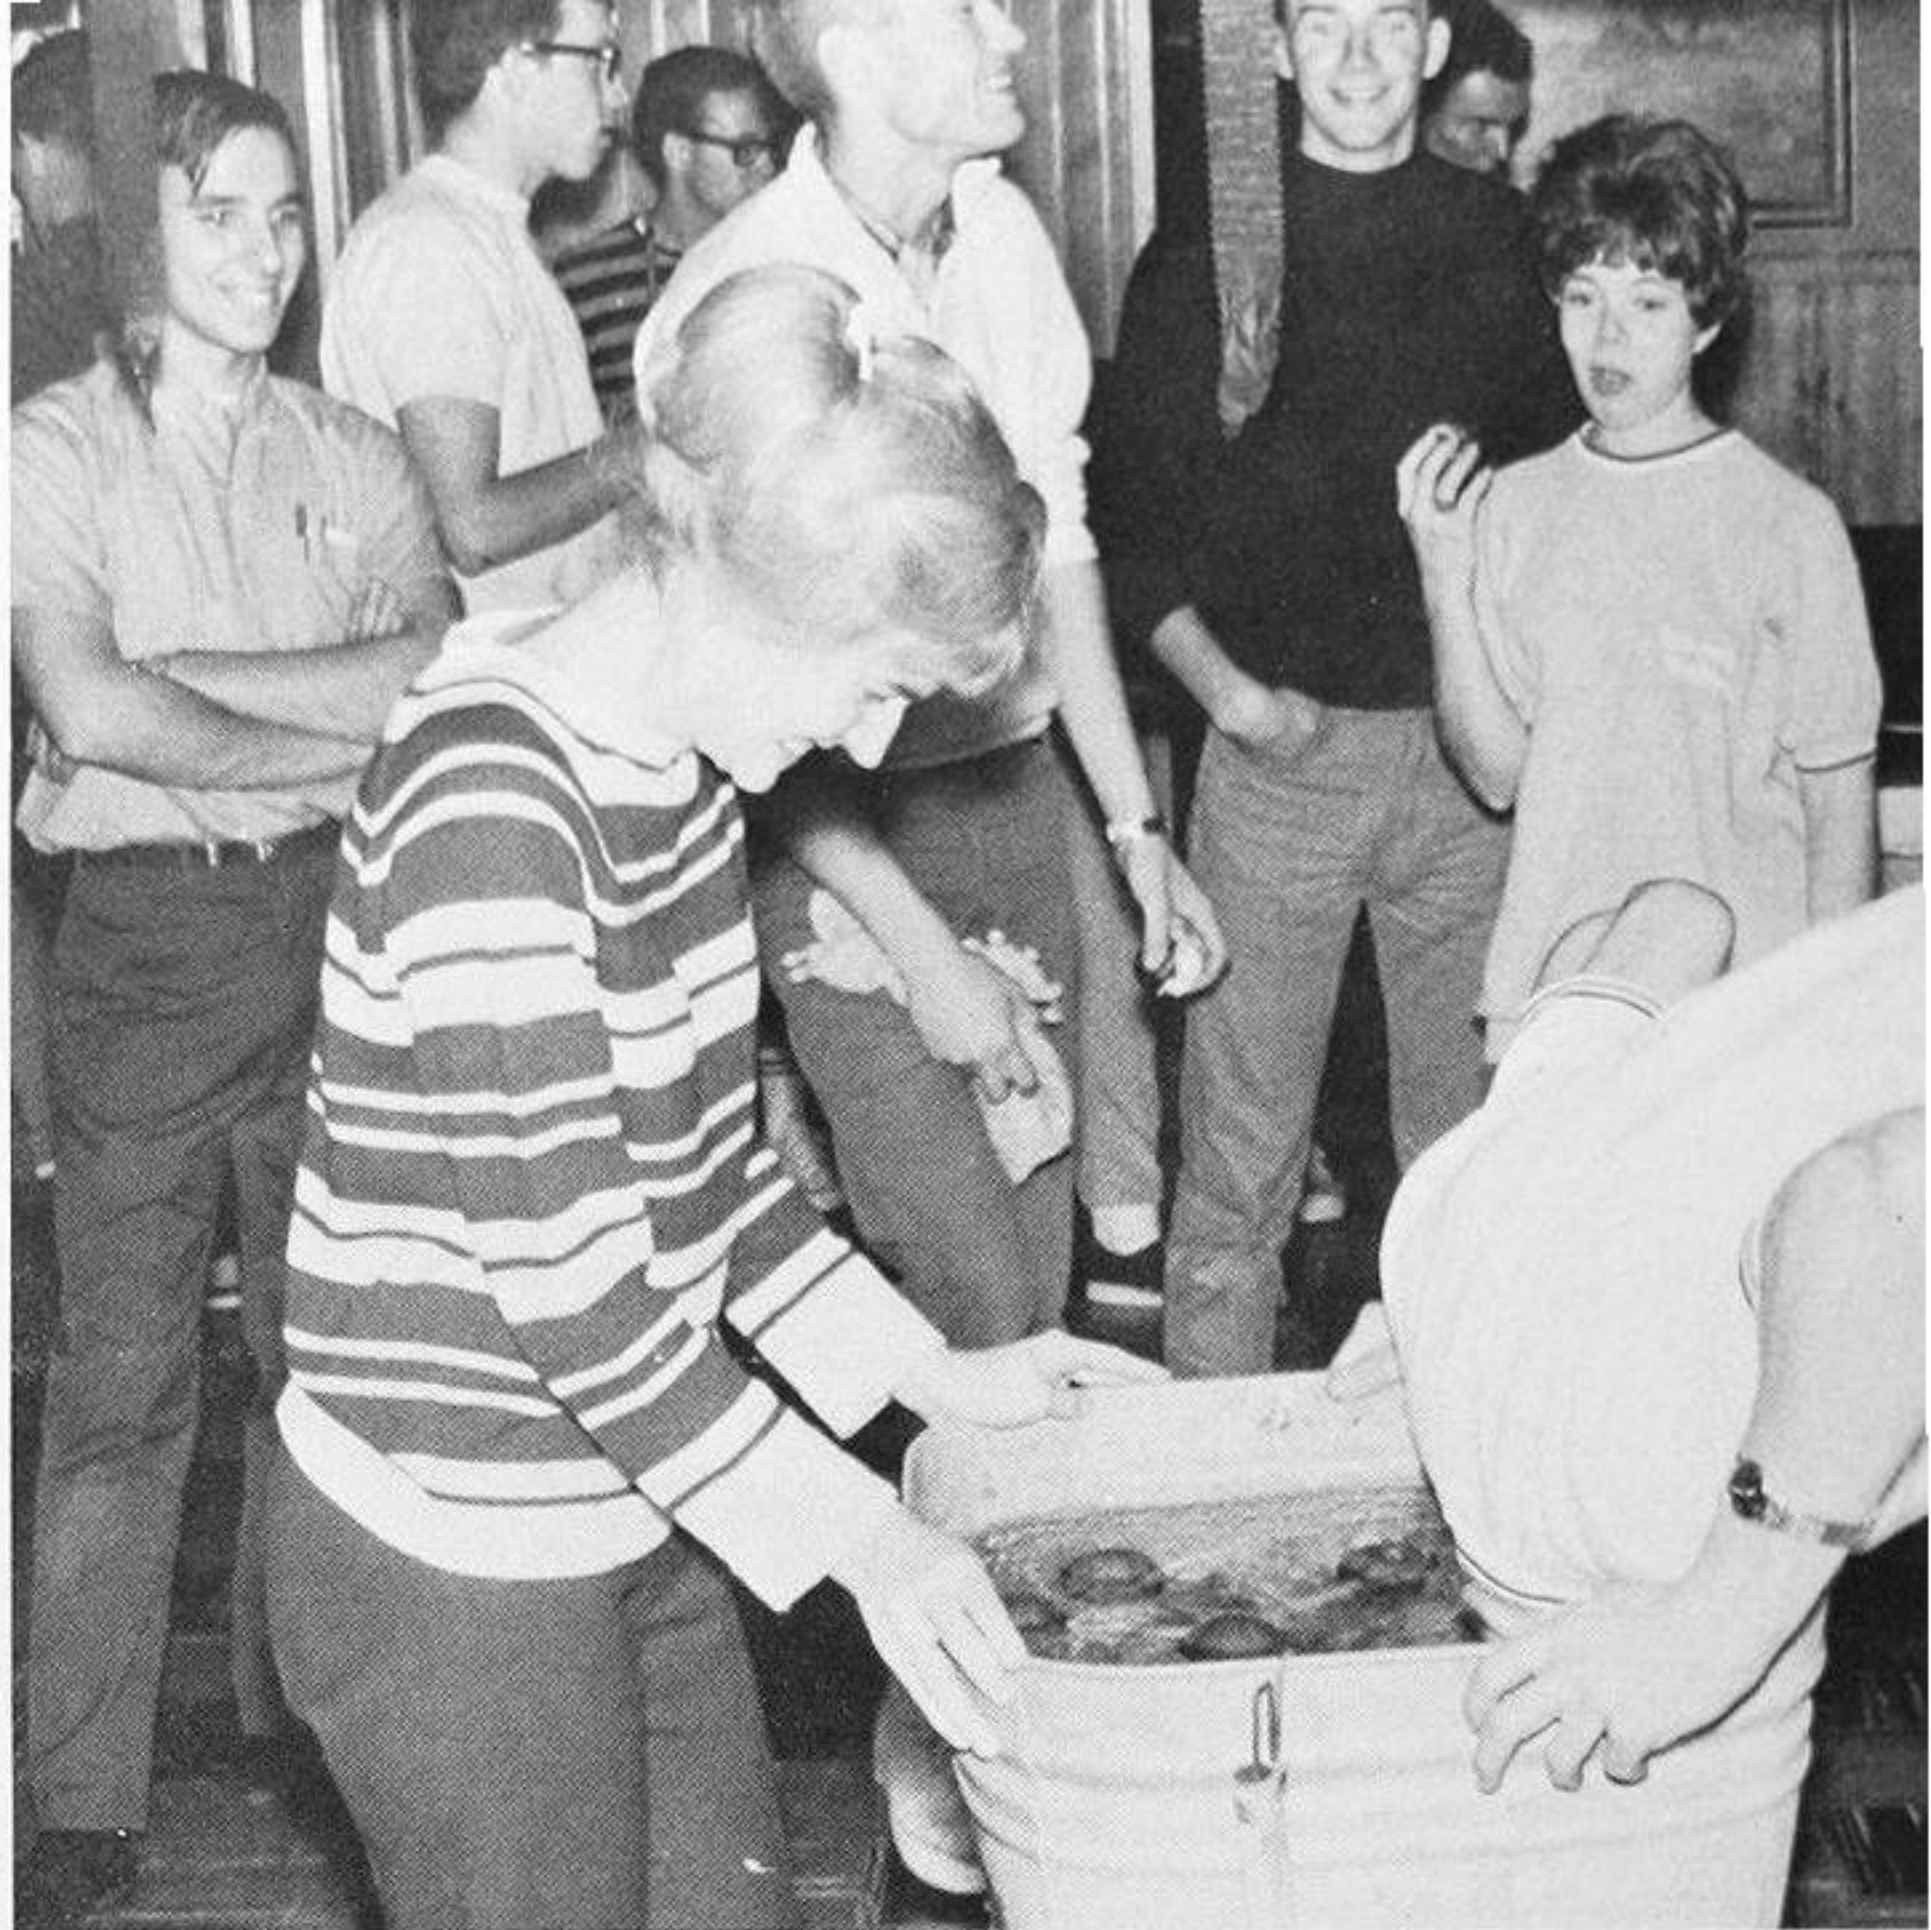

Encouraging fellowship and spiritual growth among Christian coeds, the University Christian Union Women's House had an active year.

They started off with a retreat at The Firs. Then, back on campus, there was a Halloween party complete with skits, scavenger hunt, and player piano.

Pixie Week was a time of knotted clothes, short-sheeted beds, pranks, and surprises. It all ended with a gift exchange after a scrumptious Christmas breakfast.

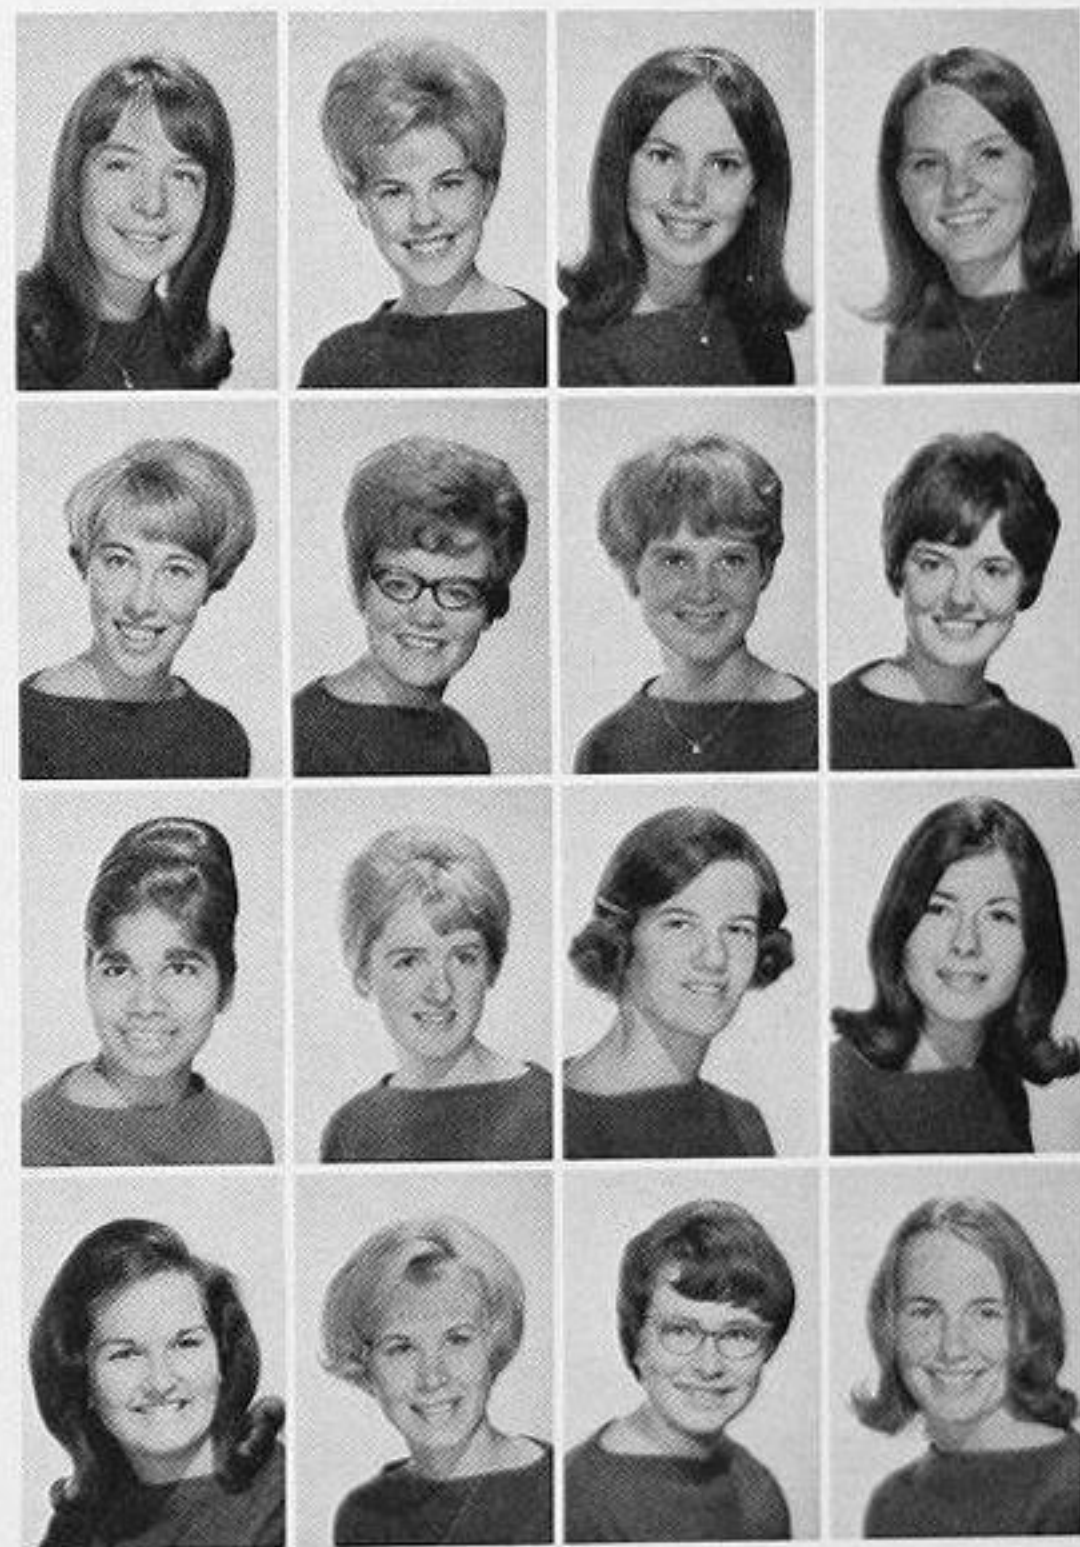

The Monday night speakers topped off the year's events and added to spiritual growth.

Men's University Christian Union is where members are linked by a common bond in Jesus Christ. This is reflected in every aspect of their spiritual, social, and academic lives.

Here members have a very personal relationship with one another. Holding a universal point of view about life, they share their college experiences. There is an environment for individual spiritual growth.

House activities include the fall quarter retreat, Monday night Bible studies, exchanges, spring initiation banquet, and seasonal intramural sports. "Behold how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity." Psalms 133:2.

...A Time To Acknowledge

A number of the editors of previous TYEES have come into the job knowing a little something about every phase of the yearbook operation, all the way from photography to coffee brewing. I took on the editorship knowing a little bit about photography and a little bit about coffee brewing, but very little about the complexity of tasks in between. For this reason I attempted to choose staff members on the basis of my own deficiencies, hoping that what they knew would offset what I was supposed to know but didn't. And this is pretty much the way things turned out. While some of the staffers were totally inexperienced at the beginning of the year, they were all aggressive in attempting to define and pursue their duties.

The 1967 TYEE Yearbook Award for Stick-to-itiveness, Hard Work and Low Pay goes to Lizette Muller, our copy editor and satirist in residence. Liz was stuck with the job of editing the lousy copy which year after year is submitted by the living groups, for laying out pages when the need arose, for doing more than any other person on the staff to assure the ultimate existence of the 1967 TYEE. It is her book as much as it is mine or anyone else's.

Slaving away all year to see that the TYEE had the photographs it needed was Maureen Matthiesen, a freshman who established herself as an institution after about two weeks in the Communications Building. She came to the University thinking she was going to get an education and that in her spare time she might hang around the DAILY and the TYEE to see if she could learn anything from the expert photographers. Little did she suspect that in one month she would become Chief Photographer, telling all the other Indians what to do and how to do it. Maureen has a knack for achieving the impossible on a miracle-per-day basis.

At the end of Christmas vacation, when it seemed that the TYEE would never be distributed on time, I called Jean Purcell and

Joan

Jim

explained our predicament. She rallied to the cause and ended up doing most of the layouts in the book. Jean was editor of the yearbook in 1962 and directly or indirectly has played a major part in the production of every yearbook since. She was a real lifesaver.

The division editors of the book did a tremendous job. Janie Yamamura had the awesome responsibility of collecting pictures and copy from all the living groups. This she did, somehow, after calling each living group at least ten times, I'm sure. She did a lot to help the other editors when her section was completed. By the way, Janie, have you heard the rumor that you're inviting everyone on the staff to Hawaii for summer vacation? Joan Zegree, editor of the senior section, persevered the frustration of eleventy-five missed photo assignments to pull together some of the best photographs and copy in the book. Yes, J. Z., there is a photography staff. Holding forth in the battle to squeeze copy and pictures from the campus student organizations was Ken Levinson, organizations editor. Ken, with the assistance of Joan Applegate, sleuthed the campus to locate and plead with the allusive officers of all the allusive clubs. Jim Silva, sports editor, somehow managed to make most of his deadlines, which may set an unrecorded precedent for sports editors of the TYEE. He also became self-appointed social chairman, keeping the female staffers entertained in his spare time. Thanks go to Lois Evers for organizing the culture section.

Mr. Johnston

Chuck Caddey, our representative from the printing plant, really let his true soul be known this year—he just didn't yell enough to

Christie

Marilyn

Karen

convince us that he was mean and heartless. Chuck, whether joking or yelling, is a saving grace to the TYEE.

I'm not sure how the TYEE actually used to get to press before William F. Johnston, ASUW publisher, and Ame Berg, his secretary, were installed in the Communications Building. I am sure that editors of years past had more acute ulcers (and definitely lower grades) before their arrival. Mr. Johnston was always ready with his advice, but never forced it. He watched all year as the TYEE fell further and further behind, and the budget went further and further into the red. But you never lost faith that the book would come out on time, Mr. Johnston, you never lost faith, you never lost faith. Ame took care of the thousand tedious tasks which used to flunk TYEE editors out of school. She typed, she phoned, she phoned, she typed. If nobody else knew, Ame knew. If nobody else had time, Ame had time.

Penny

Lynn

Christie O'Loughlin, managing editor, brought to the TYEE a professional knowledge which, I fear, went largely untapped in our amateur operation. She was a big help, serving as troubleshooter whenever problems arose. Marilyn Purcell, sister of Jean and another of the spirits of the TYEE office, did layouts for the book fall quarter. She is responsible for organizing the color essay. Karen Kubin took over the layouts for the second half of the year. She did a remarkable job of working with the particularly unexciting organizations pages. I hope for the sake of future editors that she will be around for the next three years.

There are years of thought behind the text of this year's lead essay. It was written by Dick Simkins, head resident adviser in

Pat

Barry

Marilyn

Robin

Haggett Hall, an Arts and Sciences adviser, and personal friend. Dick has worked with students for several years, never losing his enthusiasm for their ideas or his deep-felt interest in their problems. He has a lot to say and has done a tremendous job of including many of his ideas in the limited space we allotted him. Thanks, Dick. Penny Ginther (otherwise known as penny m ginther) served as essay writer and messenger girl. She was managing editor of the TYEE in 1962, and like Jean Purcell, rose to the cause with her creativity and encouragement.

Helping Liz Muller were Lynn Rainier and Carol Pete. Lynn and Carol were lifesavers for Liz and did a great deal to ease the burden of editing a huge volume of copy. Lynn doubled as our expert on "Effective Public Relations," while Carol helped Joan Zegree write much of the senior copy.

The photography staff this year, as always, was underpaid and overcriticized. They did some tremendous work. Wayne Kosbau devoted many hours to the living groups and concluding essays in addition to doing more than his share of tedious day-by-day assignments. Pat Spector also did a remarkable job, taking pictures which would do justice to a professional photographer. The lead color essay was shot by Barry Broman whose excellent photography has appeared in many other TYEES. Barry always throws himself into his work; his acceptance of an assignment is always an assurance of quality. Many other photographers deserve credit for their efforts, notably Bob Lawrence, Lyle Jorgens, Wayne Nishijima, Tom Quinn, Dave Boughner, Ulvis Alberts, John Bisbee, Dail Adams, Bill Coburn, Bob Perry, and Pat Mann.

Yearbook production takes skill, inspiration... like hell. It takes bodies, people to do lots of tedious work. For what little it's worth in comparison to the hours they spent I can only thank people like Marilyn Byers, Robin Ackerlund, Nancy Koo, Kathy Emerson, Jenny Sconce, Judy Marth, Judy Robinson, Linda Lunceford, Patricia Gormley, and Jeanne Rogge.

The souls in the TYEE business office did an exceptional job this year. Under the management of Rob Wintersteen, the ads, index and queens section was skillfully completed with a minimum of the problems characteristic of years past. Rob received many hours of assistance from Janie Miller and Sue Kaanta.

The ASUW Publications business office, headed by Norris Adams, took over much of the burden of billing and selling for the TYEE. Mr. Adams' secretary, Sue Smith, who this spring left that position to take over another job at the University, will be tremendously missed. She has been an invaluable asset to the student publications for years. Special thanks go to Diane Stapp, business office assistant, who did everything from supplying paperclips to following up on delinquent payments.

Mr. Robinson

Finally, I would like to pay a brief but sincere tribute to Mr. Clyde A. Robinson, a former TYEE editor and veteran of publication management who retired this year after serving the University for 38 years. He had been manager of Associated Student Publications since 1946. The advice and encouragement he provided TYEE staff members is immeasurable, as are the "above and beyond" hours of service he has contributed to all student publications. He will be greatly missed.

Jack Rhodes, editor

Printers' Credits

The 1967 TYEE was produced by offset lithography on Lithofect Enamel sub 70 stock in the U.W. Printing Plant, G-1 Communications Building, University of Washington. Headlines were set in 24 point Spartan Medium, body copy in 11 point Caledonia, and captions in 10 point Spartan Medium. The text of the lead color essay was set in 14 point Garamond with headlines set in 30 point News Gothic. All color work was done in the University Printing Plant from Kodachrome prints prepared by Floyd R. Lee. Division pages were line shot Kodaliths.

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH ALL THE MONEY YOU SAVE WHEN YOU BUY USED TEXTBOOKS FROM US... HMMM?

Why pay full price for new books? We probably have the same texts in like-new, used editions... and priced much, much less (as much as 50% less)!

You'll find the Northwest's largest selection of used textbooks right here, because we constantly shop other campuses for used books. More to choose from... more opportunity to save (as much as 50%)!

University Style Center for Over 38 Years

symbol of America's most famous names

Your appearance expresses your good judgement . . . in quality, in value, and in taste. Good reason why you should select your clothes with care. Here you can shop with confidence, because you'll recognize the known quality of the lines we carry. You'll shop easily, too, because our entire staff is trained to give you experienced, unhurried assistance in your selection.

just where the hell are you going?

four years (plus) you've endured this "university of a thousand years."
now, little man—loaded down with degree, ideals and an understanding of the sexual symbolism of moby dick—you'll be weaned from this nurturing campus.
how lingering then those ideals that saw you through open forum, hours battle, and discussions of lsd? you've grouped with the friends of your ideals at the university. you anticipate future ideals:

—the ideal job
—the ideal woman
—the ideal ideal.

how will life change you?
 green wood doesn't set the world on fire.
 chaucer will fade in the structured world in favor of spock.
 the we'll-make-a-better-world dream chafes in the daily friction of freeway traffic. will you enact your ideals? did this four years give you the guts to grapple with creativity or will you seek the moneyed way out?

will the you against them survive?

beware of the idealism that deals only in words, for what are words?
lost sounds in the echo chamber of semantics.
now life will be real; full of active challenges.
all of it is there;
the ideals and the ruts—
the results and the futility—it is there, waiting,

just beyond now.
